CARSONS GREAT OVATION AT BELFAST AND LIVERPOOL

One Hundred Thousand People Met Him at the Docks on Reaching England and Made a Hero of Him—Pursues Peace—But Will Return to Fight if Necessary

Liverpool, Sept. 30.—Nearly 100,000 people, mostly of the working classes, welcomed Sir Edward Carson, the Marquis of Londonderry, and other Unionist leaders on their arrival from Belfast. Several thousand members of the Orange society were drawn up with banners and bands. Alderman Salvidge, on behalf of the Unionist workers and the Orange Order, extended greetings to which Sir Edward Carson and P. E. Smith, M.P., replied briefly. The horses were taken from the carriages and the visitors were drawn by the workmen through the streets to the Conservative Club amid cheering and singing.

Just a Big Holiday.
Belfast, Sept. 30.—Ulster Day is safely over, and what some professed to believe would be practically the first day of a quasi-civil war passed off as a grand holiday. The public houses were a thriving trade, the results being jovial instead of saturnine.

Beyond the presence of the country Irish Constabulary the only signs of a military organization were 500 members of the Unionist clubs wearing red, white and blue armlets and trailing long staves like the Boy Scouts, who in the morning marched to the City Hall grounds and took positions to keep order. They were relieved periodically by detachments from a reserve of 2,000 men and Sir Edward Carson's guard of honor of 110 Unionist club men and 110 Orangemen. The club men wore tri-color sashes with long white stripes, and the Orangemen sashes only. The holiday spirit was all pervasive. Harland and Wolff's shipyard, indeed, opened as usual, but not a single workman, not even a Roman Catholic, appeared for duty. Every industrial centre in Ulster was a miniature replica of Belfast. To the south as far as Portadown every farm house and every artisan's dwelling was flying the Union Jack and bunting. There was a sparseness of decoration as one approached the frontier town of Newry, and thence toward the Boyne it gradually faded away.

WHY DISCUSS LOCAL OPTION AT THE PRESENT TIME?

Mr. Burnham Says the Question Should be Left for the People to Decide at the Next Election for the Provincial Legislature

Mr. Burnham says that he is frequently asked the question: "Do you mind stating whether you are in favor of submitting the Temperance question (that is Local Option) to a vote of the people next January, as suggested by some, or of letting it go to the people when they go to the polls at the next election for the legislature?" His reply is: "I do not mind stating my opinion. I should say that it was necessary and not a matter of option at all, to leave it to Sir James and Mr. Russell at the next election. Their own policies supersede, or will supersede local option altogether, and it would therefore be useless to bring it in under these circumstances and just as useless to defeat it."

"The result of continued agitation has been that Mr. Russell has suggested something new and Sir James has countered with something else. If local option had been pushed by both leaders it would have been quite different to giving it a black eye by proposing something else. Frankly, therefore, I cannot see the use of discussing local option further."

Assessors Rolls Show Peterborough's Population 19,759

The local assessors yesterday returned their lists of Peterborough's population and assessment for the year 1911 to City Clerk Armstrong. From this is taken the appended list of particulars, which show a somewhat disappointing growth in population and one that will come as a surprise. The total population of the municipality is given as 19,759, or a gain of only 459 over the preceding year. A synopsis of the assessors' returns is as follows:

|---|--------------|
| Number of taxable persons | 6503 |

JORDAN WALKS CALM TO DEATH

Who Murderer Is Executed at State Prison at 12:00 P.M.

Boston, Sept. 30.—Charles S. Jordan, of Somerville, who killed his wife in this city at 509A Bedford street, Somerville, on Sept. 1, 1906, and was arrested two days later in a West and lodging house, after he had failed to dispose of the trunk into which he had bundled her dismembered body, was electrocuted in accordance with the decree of the court early this morning at the state prison.

THE NEW FUNNELLESS MOTORSHIP OF THE HAMBURG-AMERICAN LINE, AND THE CAPTAIN

THE CHRISTIAN X.

On the Maritime Exchange and in shipping circles speculation is rife as to where the development of a motor driven ship, using crude oil for fuel, will lead. That this mode of propulsion for ocean going vessels is at last within the realm of practicability is amply proven by the trip of the motorship Christian X., of the Hamburg-American line.

The first oil driven passenger vessel to cross the Atlantic left Hamburg for Havana, and from there went to New Orleans, stopping at Vera Cruz and Tampico, and thence to New York, averaging 11.01 nautical miles an hour on the trip. She is fully capable of thirteen knots without crowding.

In her tanks to spare for 1,000 tons of oil, and as the motors use only ten tons a day the vessel should run 100 days without putting into port for fuel. She is 570 feet long, 58 feet beam, and can carry 7,000 tons, which is much for a vessel of the size.

It is estimated that the saving in money for a trip of 100 days by the Christian X. over a steamship of the same size would be approximately $12,000.

"The Bride's Boat," as it is called, is commanded by Captain Robert Niss.

THE POWER QUESTION

The Review has called attention to the fact that we have nothing from the Seymour Power Company. This is unfortunate. It is of the greatest importance and in the best interests of the city that the fullest information be furnished by the City Council to the ratepayers before any vote upon the power question is taken. Why have the City Council not applied to the Seymour Power Company to obtain its best price for a supply of power? It is well known that the Seymour Power Company can develop upwards of 100,000 horse power from its various water privileges. Why should not the City Council request the Seymour Power Company to furnish it with its best price for a supply of power? Why should the City Council become a party to adding to our already large indebtedness a still larger debt? If the same can be secured for power development? A full frank and clear explanation should be furnished. If Alderman Gordon was sincere when he said the last proposition from the Hydro-Electric was "beautifully inadequate," then why did the City Council accept it and act upon it? Why did the City Council ask both the Hydro-Electric Commission and the Seymour Power Company for "adequate" propositions for a supply of power?

NO THEATRE CENSORSHIP

Immediate Arrest Threatened for Indecent Performance

Toronto, Sept. 30.—"A peculiar situation exists at present in the city of Toronto, which affects the Star Theatre in particular, and the Police Department is drawn into the matter in a manner that has caused the Chief of Police to issue orders that the first offence against the standard of morals laid down by the law is to be followed by the arrest of the offender and every member of the company with which the guilty party is connected. Hitherto it has been customary for the censor to view the first performance Monday afternoon and suggest "cuts," and changes, now the cuts must be made before the first show.

"Dams and Hell must go. No double entendre will be permitted. The girls must not lift their skirts in any number. The song 'Keep Away From the Fellow That Owns an Automobile' was cut out of the Oriental after the first show. It is not permitted here.

"Cut out 'ragging,' 'turkey trotting' or any of that class of dancing. The girls must be particular not to do the least thing that the severest critic could construe as suggestive movement.

"Remember, what goes even to a lady audience in the States does not go in Toronto.

"We desire Mr. Nichols to read this to the entire company, to confer with Mr. Pierce, the house manager, and in every way to defeat the enemies of the Star Theatre and assist our sensible friends of the Police Department, who are in self-defence driven to extreme measures."

"Will Not be Caught Napping."

The letter printed above is a copy of the instructions issued by Mr. Dan Pierce, manager of the Star Theatre, and Mr. W. C. Cameron, manager of Zallah's own company.

CHINESE MASONS DEDICATE TEMPLE

Over Six Hundred Celestials From All Canada Gather at Calgary
Calgary, Alta., Sept. 30.—On Saturday night the Calgary Chinese Masons opened the new Chinese Masonic Temple on Third Avenue and Centre Street. Prominent Chinamen from all parts of Canada were present, including many belonging to the order from Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, and other cities.

Yesterday afternoon a banquet was held on the ground floor of the building, in which more than six hundred were served during the three sittings.

The Calgary lodge has been organized nearly two years, and has been very successful. The Masonic order is very strong in China, where it has been established several hundred years, and now has lodges all over the world where Chinese are found.

CABINET MET YESTERDAY TO PREPARE FOR THE SESSION

Important Questions Including the Matter of an Emergency Contribution to the Navy Will be Taken Up

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—In response to a call sent out last week to the members of the Cabinet a practically complete Cabinet council convened this morning in the office of the Privy Council to commence the task of preparing the sessional program. One of the first things to be decided on is the date of the opening of Parliament. That it will be either on Thursday, November 14th or Thursday, November 21st is certain. There remains only six or seven weeks in which the Ministers must prepare for the consideration by Parliament of important measures. The permanent naval policy of the Government will be likely to be brought down until the 1913-14 session of Parliament.

Matters of importance which will engage the attention of the members during the next few weeks include the new Bank Act, amendments to the Railway Act, the bill to create a permanent tariff commission, the bill to provide Federal aid to highways and possibly the redistribution bill. Of the various matters to be outlined in the speech from the throne, by far the most important will be the Government's declaration of a naval policy which will become a subject of immediate consideration by the Cabinet. The additional information from the admiralty which was promised Premier Borden has now been received by the Government in its possession of the facts both in regard to the German situation and the cost of the construction of war vessels of all types.

Action this season will be confined to the voting of an emergency contribution.

SERVIA AND BULGARIA BOTH ORDER ARMY TO MOBILIZE

Say It Is Because of the Movement of the Turkish Troops

Sofia, Bulgaria, Sept. 30.—The mobilization of the Bulgarian army was proclaimed by the Government to-day.

The action was taken in consequence of alarming news received here as to the centralization of considerable forces of Turkish troops along the Bulgarian frontier.

Belgrade, Serbia, Sept. 30.—Orders for the general mobilization of the Serbian army were signed to-day.

The Skupstina has been summoned to meet on Thursday in extraordinary session.

MANUAL TRAINING IN PETERBOROUGH SCHOOLS

A Times Representative Sees This Good And Practical Work Done by Our Local Boys

By invitation of Inspector Mowat, a Times representative yesterday visited the local Central School, to see the Manual Training Class at work. This department of the local schools, under the experienced eye and care of Mr. Hagerman, is doing splendid service of a thoroughly practical nature for the boys of Peterborough. As Mr. Hagerman sagely remarks, "Education is a grand thing and to be admired. Still the boys cannot all be professional men and accomplished savants. Even if they could, a course of Manual Training is likely to be of use to them."

Now that the Great West is taking so many of our young men, and that part of the Dominion where distances from anywhere are so immense, a knowledge of a practical handiness with tools is sure to be a great boon to settlers.

The Manual Training classes, held in the ground story of the old Collegiate Institute building are thoroughly adapted to their requirements. In the larger room to the south are some twenty three carpenters' benches fully fitted up with various tools. Here a busy hive of industry was to be seen in operation yesterday morning. Some fifteen to eighteen boys, ranging from 12 to 16 years of age were busily engaged in practical carpentry and cabinet makers work, under Mr. Hagerman's smiling guidance. The boys seemed to take great interest in their work. Whilst the unwritten law is that only boys from the 4th book classes and upwards may enter, should a boy in the 3rd class show special aptitude and desire for the course, he is admitted. When a boy first enters the class he is first given a thorough training in drawing plans and perspective before he begins to use tools. Among some of the finished products completed by individuals of the class were a mounting board for entomological specimens for the Normal school, a moulding box for a cement flower pot, etc. The metric system is used as well as the usual linear system of measurement. This is a decided advantage to the boys, when studying foreign reports as well as actual work. In the room to the north is a band saw and three turning lathes of latest design run by electric motor. Mr. Hagerman noted that one graduate of his class who had recently gone out West is now making $3 a day, with good prospects of rapid advancement.

In the afternoon Mr. Hagerman took the Normal School to give lessons on the same subject. Strange as it may seem, the Normal School pupils do not advance as far in this particular branch of education as the boys of the Central school. This is due to the fact that those at the Normal are only taking the Manual Training as part of their preparatory work in qualifying for teachers.

PARLIAMENT WILL SOON HEAR THE NAVAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Belief in Ottawa That Policy of Borden Government Will Comment Itself to all Classes in Canada

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—The announcement that Parliament is to be summoned for some time in November means that before long the people of Canada will have before them the result of the deliberations which took place in London during the past summer between representatives of the Canadian and Imperial governments. The Borden government is to announce its naval policy, and is to make that announcement, according to proper constitutional practice, on the floor of parliament, in the hearing of all the people, through their representatives.

That the policy to be announced will fully realize the expectations of those Canadians who believe that Canada as a British nation should do her part toward British defence on the seas, seems to be more than probable. It is also to be said, however, that in whatever proposal the government makes to Parliament there will be no discussion of Canadian autonomy and no sacrifice of Canada's position as a great self-governing Dominion within the empire.

The Borden government has considered it and is believed, has found, a solution of the navy problem, which is at once adequate to the needs of the time, consistent with the increasing dignity and importance of the Dominion, and a worthy recognition of the long years of service freely given to Canada by the mother country in the maintenance of great fleets for the protection of this as well as other portions of the empire of Great Britain.

Alone in Old London.
Here is a curious report of the alien in London in the year 1871: "There being a great increase of foreigners in the city, her majesty ordered the lord mayor to take the same quality and profession of all strangers residing within the city of London." The first was headed by the name, "Boche, etc." Other nations were represented by "French, 428; Spaniards and Portuguese, 66; Italians, 146; Dutch, 2,600; Burgundians, 44; Danes, 2; Liegeois, 1."

Structure of Fur.
Fur is a threadlike fiber which grows out of the pores of the skin of animals. It grows in length from the root and not from the top, as with vegetable productions. The lower portion merely lengthens out, and the top projects forward, consequently it does not fall away from the skin. It is tubular and filled with oil, which gives to the fiber its color. In addition to the oil it contains mineral matter, among which are sulphur and iron. A close examination of the fiber will, to a certain extent, show the section of the country the animal inhabits. The short and crisp, with an oval or angular cross section, is from a cold climate. The long and soft, with circular cross section, is from a warm climate. The fibers from different parts of the same animal have a different structure and value, that which is taken from the back of a land animal being the finest, while the reverse is true of the animal which confines itself mostly to water, the under side being much finer than the back.

A MUSICIAN'S ROMANCE.

Fanelli's Triumph, That Came After Thirty Years of Misery.

The life story of M. Fanelli, the composer of "Tableaux Symphoniques," reads like a romance. How easily it might have read like a tragedy this incident will show.

In his youth Fanelli had been courageous and ambitious, full of dreams of the music he was going to write for the world to hear and admire. But misfortune followed misfortune. He found it impossible to get a hearing for his compositions, and one by one his dreams began to fade.

Ten, twenty, thirty years went by. Fanelli, all hope crushed by continued adversity, was earning a pittance by playing night after night in an orchestra. None of his colleagues suspected his genius, for he kept his ambitions locked in his heart, as he kept the symphony, the masterpiece of his youth, locked in his desk.

Then one day Fanelli, in search of work as a copyist, called upon Gabriel Piere, one of the great musical celebrities of Paris. Asked to show a sample of his writing, Fanelli produced the symphony, which he had brought with him. Piere looked at it and saw that the writing was clear, then he saw something more, for he continued reading the music eagerly.

"Who is this Fanelli?" he asked at length. "Myself," answered the composer. "I wrote this nearly thirty years ago." "Leave this with me and come again in a few days."

So Fanelli went out, while Piere, too smart to say goodby, stood by the window, poring over the music. A few days later he announced to the delighted but dazed Fanelli that he was going to produce the symphony at one of the Concerts Colonne.

On the eventful night Fanelli himself took a seat with the musicians. Tears came into his eyes as he heard the first strains of his work, neglected for so many years. He was not alone in his emotion, however, for as the music proceeded tears came into the eyes of the other musicians, the director, the audience. The music took them by storm. When it was over a burst of applause broke out, rose and swelled and would not die away. The composer alone sat quiet, as if in deep thought. Finally he got up, walked over to Piere, and with a full heart expressed his gratitude.

"Again I thank you, M. Piere," he said, taking his leave. "Good night, and a good appetite to you." Piere wondered at this strange farewell, but at last the meaning dawned on him. The applause that was still ringing through the hall had brought to Fanelli not only fame, but what for the highest of all, the love of his fellow men. The composer of "Tableaux Symphoniques" had left the scene of his triumph to enjoy a much needed and rare treat—a good dinner—Yest's Compagnie.

Self Conscious Gratitude.

One day in the train—on one of Victor Hugo's journeys to or from Brussels—he happened to find himself in the company of two English ladies who spoke French. Hugo knew but one word of English—Christmas, which he always pronounced "Christ-mas." In the course of conversation these ladies observed that it must be inconvenient for him not to know English when he was passing through that country. To which the great man's reply was, "When England wants to talk with me she will learn my language." From their astonishment at this answer," said Hugo in relating the story, "it was evident they did not know who I was!"—Victor Hugo, His Life and Work," by A. P. Davidson.

THACKERAY AT OXFORD.

A Jolt to the Author's Fame and an Awful Libel on Punch.

The ignorance of the scholar concerning what is going on in the world around him is proverbial. But a story of Thackeray's own telling gives an astonishing instance of "isolated ignorance" at Oxford in the last century. Thackeray, it seems, was to lecture at Oxford and, according to custom, had first to get the vice-chancellor's license to do so. This is the conversation that occurred, as the novelist reported it:

Vice Chancellor—Fray, sir, what can I do for you?
Thackeray—My name is Thackeray. Vice Chancellor—So I see by this card.

Thackeray—I seek permission to lecture within your precincts.

Vice Chancellor—Ah! You are a lecturer. What subjects do you undertake, religious or political?
Thackeray—Neither. I am a literary man.

Vice Chancellor—Have you written anything?

Thackeray—Yes; I am the author of "Vanity Fair."

Vice Chancellor—I presume a dissector. Has that anything to do with John Bunyan's book?

Thackeray—Not exactly. I have also written "Pendennis."

Vice Chancellor—Never heard of these works, but no doubt they are proper books.

Thackeray—I have also contributed to Punch.

Vice Chancellor—Punch? I have heard of that. Is it not a ribald publication?

Rev. Dr. Grant in Peterborough.
Yesterday morning the large congregation of St. Paul's church enjoyed the address given by Rev. Dr. Grant, formerly of the Yukon, but now superintendent of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church. During the evening, Dr. Grant ably filled the pulpit of St. Andrew's church.

Arrested Again in Lindsay.
A man with the same name as that of the Lindsay individual who was arrested here last week for being drunk and who was allowed to return to that town to look after his bank account, was "picked" by Constable Short of the Seagraveville force on Thursday whilst drunk and frightening ladies. In fact he was brought up short, paying a fine for indulging in Lindsay stimulants.

Do You Feel Moody, Irritable, Depressed

When That Languid, Laggard, Restless Tired Feeling Comes, Your Liver is Ailing.

Tells How to Cure Quickly.

"Even when I was young I was not robust and healthy like other girls. I suffered from headaches, and had sort of blue feelings that deprived me of the joyful spirit and pleasure other girls seemed to get. After I married I found I could not throw worries of my dear woman, and those full feelings of despair, worry and weariness made me very unhappy. There was no cause to feel so, and my doctor said my liver was sluggish, and this accounted for my poor color, my tiredness, languor and despair. The pills the doctor gave me were too purgative, made me weaker because they were too active for my constitution. Doctors of my friends recommended Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and they were so mild and helpful. Well, I never used a pill that acted so quickly as Dr. Hamilton's. They were so comfortable to use, I was afraid they might not help. But in a week I knew they had been actively engaged in cleansing up my system. They did the work of a tonic and blood medicine combined. I improved to a marvelous degree with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and I now maintain the most perfect kind of health by using them once or twice a week."

It is Mrs. E. V. Erlanger, well-known at Gloucester, who relates the above experience. She proved what you and all others, men and women, can prove—that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are best for restoring health and best for keeping the system in perfect running order. Don't be misled into using anything but Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. a box, five for $1.00, at all drug stores and storekeepers, or postpaid by the Cataract Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Boston Herald: "We called attention a few days ago to the printed program of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce in Boston, issued as it was in French, and in English, as an illustration of the difficulties involved in the present relations of nations." How about bilingual practices and advocated in the English colony of Canada?

Instructor McKay, attached to the Peterborough Armory, on Saturday told a Times representative a story of his experience in India. A soldier of McKay's regiment, returned late at night to camp. When halted by the sentry and asked "who goes there?" the soldier, giving the sign, said: "Friend, adding sotto voce, 'with a bottle!' Pass friend; halt bottle!" replied the sentry.

AIR SCOUTING AND WAR.

Last week the mimic war arranged by the military authorities in England came to a sudden and most unexpected termination. There were some 60,000 troops involved in the manoeuvres, and neither side seems to have obtained any very definite advantage. There is no official explanation offered as yet, but the war correspondent supply several. One of the most startling is that the successful aeroplane scouting had made it impossible for either side to outmanoeuvre the other, and the conclusion drawn is that the advent of the aeroplane means a revolution in military tactics. Secrecy of movement, upon which successful generals have always relied, seems now to be impossible and each army has the satisfaction of knowing not only what its opponent's numbers are, its equipment as to guns, etc., but its location and its every movement, while at the same time it knows that the enemy also possesses the same information in regard to itself. Is war possible under such circumstances? No wonder the Inter-parliamentary Union meeting last week at Geneva, refused to put the ban upon the use of airships to war, agreeing rather with Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, president of the French group of delegates, who declared that the wider use of flying machines would be rather a guarantee of the world's peace. What with the wireless telegraph and the swift aeroplanes, both army and navy may possibly find their usefulness greatly diminished if not destroyed.

STAGE PROFANITY.

Miss Josephine Cohns, playing with her husband, Mr. Niblo, in Australia, writes to a friend that the Australia-

Hans, hearing Americans elang in "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," have taken a fancy to it; but "the My Gauds," spoken by E. J. Gauds, have all been changed to "Gee whizz!" for the reason that the people over there consider it sacrilegious to say, "My Gauds."

When the "glorious old English comedies" were performed at the Boston Museum, the audience, made up largely of eminently respectable persons who were not easily persuaded to go inside another theatre, took a fearful pleasure in hearing the word "damn" spoken with emphasis by any actor that was an established favorite. The word was for the moment thought intensely humorous. But was to the young beginner, or the unknown, who ventured to take this liberty, and if by accident the eminent respectable person visited a theatre other than the Museum, and heard the monosyllable, he is inclined against the immorality of the stage, as though he were Jeremy Collier attacking Dryden. Congress at all.

For some years profanity on the stage went out of fashion in this city. Even "damn" was looked upon with aversion, if it were not positively tabooed. With the development of so-called realistic plays and with increasing popularity of farces and comedies with much profanity as a main came into favor. In a serious drama a reverend oath is supposed to supply realistic intensity. In a farce of shop or street life, any girl wins an easy laugh by ejaculating "My Gauds," and, pleased with the evident approval, she indulges herself in the tiresome repetition. Or a mugging comedian, feeling that he is not exciting sufficient attention, makes a forcible allusion to "hell," and the audience is at once convinced that a genuine humorist is on the stage. A savage oath brings down the curtain on an act of a "high-class comedy" now playing in the city.

We are not fussy in these matters. There are occasions, even on the stage, when an oath of an apostrophe to the deity, or a more explicit, adds to the tragedy or the comedy of a situation; when it seems necessary, inevitable; but fluent profanity is not necessarily intensity, nor is it of itself irresistibly funny. When an actor or actress continually indulges in it, the inference is that the author's lines are feeble or the people on the stage are of limited resources.

MUSIC & DRAMA

THE LIGHT ETHERIAL AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Lofty ideals and sentiments that ring as true today as in the fourteenth century form the keynote of "The Light Ethereal," the big spectacular religious drama to be offered at the Grand Opera House, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 5th and 6th; matinee Saturday at 2.30. All the glamour that wealth of coloring, splendor of costumes and scenic settings can lend has been utilized in making this production worthy of the ideas embodied. History has been consulted for the theme, and the horrible tortures of the early martyrs make the drama for the story of love and religious devotion. Throughout the four acts the earnest call of the excellent cast engaged in the portrayal of the play fans the religious sentiment of the audience into a living flame, and a furor of enthusiasm invariably greets the close of the third act—where the Christian sign appears above the shattered altar of the pagan god of gods, Jupiter. The name of Louise Dunbar appearing in the principal feminine role, leads to the further addition of great gained by her fine training and artistic achievement. A certain strength and life characteristic her portrayal of the role of Artemis that suggests the imperious beauty of the Roman court, while her gentler moments have the tenderness of a loving woman. However, Miss Dunbar's regal personality and marked dramatic skill can but slight shadow over the excellent work of John Milton, her immediate support. The cast of "The Light Ethereal" is unusually large for a dramatic offering even in these days of big things theatrie. The play is an adaptation of the late Cardinal Wiseman's beautiful story "Fabiola," and deals with the persecution of the Christians by the Roman Emperor Diocletian, who was the last of the persecutors that who was succeeded by Constantine, in whose reign the Christian religion became an established fact.

DICTIONARY OFFER BEST EVER MADE

The instant popularity into which the remarkable Webster's New Illustrated Dictionary sprang when The Times offered it to the public at such astonishing figures has steadily increased. A large number have already been disposed of at The Times office. As expected, the style No. 1, the limp leather bound edition, is the most popular. Every one should be willing to take the trouble of clipping six coupons from The Times so comprehensive, so up-to-date, so for the purpose of obtaining so large a volume of information as this one is. It may fairly be called an encyclopedia in small form. But though its form is small, its scope of subjects is vast. For it is printed on the finest Bible paper, and with its flexible leather binding it becomes the most compact compendium on the market to-day.

Everybody is talking about the dictionary. Not only in The Times office, but on the streets, in the cars, you hear people discussing the book volume, which, as if by magic, has gathered into handy form all important information of an era.

Is it an encyclopaedia? Is it a dictionary? Is it a compendium? Is it a reference work? Is it a book of facts? Is it a book of figures? Is it a book of names? Is it a book of dates? ALL DEALS ARE OFF WITH THE STRIKERS

Boston, Mass., Sept. 30.—Charging that the leaders of the striking Park House employees have broken every agreement made with the management, President Edgar Pierce of J. R. Whipple Company announced that he has made arrangements to permanently fill the place of the strikers. The company has definitely determined to enter into no further negotiations with the union, according to President Pierce.

HEAVY SENTENCES FOR WOULD BE ASSASSINS

Conspired Against Life of Count Terauchi, East Serve Two Years in Jail—Governor at Korea, Seoul, Korea, Sept. 28.—Heavy sentences were imposed to-day on many of the 123 Korean prisoners charged with conspiring against the life of Governor-General Count Terauchi. Baron Yun Chi Ho, formerly cabinet minister, and several others of the more prominent among the accused were sent to prison for ten years, while various terms of punishment were inflicted on all the other prisoners except nine who were released.

COUNT TERAUCHI RETURNS TO KOREA.
Tokio, Japan, Sept. 30.—Governor-General Count Terauchi leaves to-night for Korea to resume his duties.

Some Timely Verse.
Come out to the shore of the frozen lake
In the sharp and driving air
Clamp on your skates on the smooth, clear ice
And glide o'er the glittering glare.
With a laugh and a shout and gay chatter
Add a share to the shatter's mirth,
For the frost king reigns, and his icy rays
Prevail o'er the frozen earth.

Or bundle yourself in your wraps and fur
And come to the waiting sleigh
Now the jingling bells fill the frosty air
As the horses dash away!
The snow lies deep, and its white expanse Contrasts with the sky's clear blue—
And it may be that this hour's cooled you
But we've done what we could for you.
—Hemlockville Journal.

Let's Move It.
An early campaign orator was addressing a small crowd over on the south side of the river.
"This high cost of living is a serious question," he cried.
Nobody disputed that.
"It's a great question," vociferated the orator, "a very serious question indeed."
"We know it's a question," yelled a man at this point. "What's the answer?"—Pittsburgh Post.

ALMOST SHIPWRECKED.

Trying Ordeal For the Sailor Who Wanted to Be a Master.
Joseph Conrad, who was a sailor before he turned author, has told of the examination that he underwent for his master's certificate. The examiner began by trying to make him talk nonsense.

"But I had been warned of that dreadful trait and contradicted him with great assurance. After while he left off. So far good. Placing me then in a ship of a certain size at sea under certain conditions of weather, season, and so forth, he ordered me to execute a certain maneuver. Before I was half through with it he did some material damage to the ship. As soon as I had grappled with that difficulty he caused another to present itself, and when that, too, was met he stuck another ship before me, creating a very dangerous situation. I felt slightly outraged by this ingenuity in piling trouble upon a man.

"I wouldn't have got into that mess," I suggested mildly. "I could have seen that ship."

"No, you couldn't. The weather's thick."

"Oh? I apologized blankly.

"The examiner did not stop there. Difficulty followed difficulty in the imaginary homeward voyage until when just as he was about to cutting sand banks the examinee said desperately, 'I shall have to think a little, sir.'

"Doesn't look as if there were much time to think," was the sardonic reply.

"No, sir," the examinee responded, "not on board a ship; but, then, I could see. As in so many accidents have happened that I really can't remember what there's left for me to work with. Have I two anchors at the bow, sir?"

"Yes. But there's only one cable. You've lost the other."

"Then I would back them if I could and tell the heaviest hawser on board on the end of the chain before letting go, and if she parted from that, which is quite likely, I would just do nothing."

"Nothing more to do, eh?"

"No, sir. I could do no more."

"You could always say your prayers."

"But the exhausted captain of this vessel in multiform distress was not shipwrecked after all. He passed with credit."

An Art Critic.

An actor who is known as Low is of German descent, and his father speaks broken English. Low says the old gentleman went to a big art gallery recently and came home greatly enthused.

"Saw a fine painting, Louie," he said.

"You did?"

"Yes, it was a fine one—busts of people looking at it. It must have been worth a hundred dollars, sure."

"What was its name?" asked Low.

"Dot I can tell you not, but it was a fine picture."

"Describe it to me."

"Well," said the old gentleman, "there was three fallers. You was playing the six, you was playing the drum, and other hat a headache."—New York Telegraph.

He Was Sarcastic.

Dublin's car lay flat on its side and deep in the mud in the freshly plowed field, having skidded off the road, through the low stone wall, to get there.

"Ah!" cried a passerby from the roadside. "Had an accident?"

Dublin tried to hold his tongue, but the strain was too much for him.

"No, of course not," he replied coldly. "I've just bought a new car and brought my old one out here to bury it. Got a pickaxe and a shovel in your pocket you could lend me? I can't seem to dig very deep with my motor horn."—Herald's Weekly.

New Apes and Monkeys Differ.

What are the differences between apes, baboons and monkeys?

Apes are such as are destitute of tails; baboons have singular beards; elephants, camels, and their tails are usually short; monkeys are those whose tails are in general long, some of them, the catapans, having prehensile tails, which can at pleasure be twisted around any object, and thereby, in many instances, answer the purpose of an additional hand.—"Herald Weekly."

A Quaker Oath.

Two small boys in a family of friends, writes a contributor, had a disagreement, during which the elder boy became very much heated.

Finally, so heated as to control himself, he took his brother by the shoulder and shook him, with the exclamation, "Oh, thee little you, thee!"

Then as the enormity of his offense came over him he said, in a changed voice, "Don't tell mother I swore."—Youth's Companion.

Impertinence.

"This is the fifth time you have been brought before me," said the judge severely.

"Yes, your honor," replied the offender. "When I like a fellow I like to give him all my business. You see?"

"Sixty days," roared the judge.—Herald's Weekly.

Fame.

Fame is the inheritance not of the dead, but of the living. It is we who look back with lofty pride to the great names of antiquity, who drink of that flood of glory as of a river and refresh our wings in it for future flight.—Herald's Weekly.

But for some trouble and sorrow we should never know half the good there is about us.—Dickens.

The Worst Case.

"The worst case of mixed metaphor known," said a teacher of English at the University of Pennsylvania, "was the output of Mr. Ellis Ashmead Burt, Esq. His little case wrote to The London Times."

"The output of the powers in China is a more delusive screen, agreeing in most, very telling in the important one, calculated to draw the cheers of the groundlings, but which really serves only as a blind to conceal, as a cover for ministerial inaction, as a sounding board to tell our loss of our plans, and as a lever whereby they are enabled to checkmate our policy."

"Imagine," ended the instructor, "imagine a screen doing all that!"

STORIES OF BRET HARTE.

His Dilemma of Social Duties and More Literary Friendships.

Mr. Monro Conway in his autobiography gives an amusing reminiscence of Bret Harte's promise to escape from what are known as "social duties." Mrs. Conway "received" on Monday afternoon, and Bret Harte had told her that he would be present on a particular Monday, but he failed to appear, much to the regret of some persons who had been invited for the occasion.

"What, charming to meet him," writes Mrs. Conway. "I alluded to the disappointment. He asked for forgiveness and said, 'I will come next Monday, even though I promise.'"

He had a constant dread that his friendship or acquaintance would be sought on account of his criticism rather than for himself. A lady who met him at dinner without learning his name afterward remarked, "I have always longed to meet him, and I would have been so different had I only known who my neighbor was."

This, unfortunately, being repeated to Bret Harte, he exclaimed: "Now, why can't a woman realize that this sort of thing is insulting? . . . If Mrs. H. talked with me and found me so interesting as a man, how could she expect to find me interesting because I was an author?"—Henry Childs Merwin's "Life of Bret Harte."

CURIOUS INSURANCE.

Some of the Quaker Risks Taken by the Broker at Lloyd's.

They will take any risk at Lloyd's in London. It should be understood that this great corporation has nothing to do with it, but that the brokers issue policies as individuals. Here are a few specimens of risks actually insured:

The uncle of a rich baronet took out a policy for 10,000 guineas against her eloping with a certain man before a specified date. He paid 1,000 guineas premium, and the girl did not elope, so the broker was 1,000 guineas.

A young man sued by a girl for damages for breach of promise to marry paid 800 guineas for a policy covering any amount of money the jury might award to the plaintiff. It gave her £700, so the broker made more than £100 profit.

A cablegram arrived at the office of a shipowner stating that one of his steamers was on the rocks in a dangerous place. The owner took out a policy for £5,000, to be paid to him if the ship were lost. He paid for this a premium of £5,000. The ship was saved, so he lost the money.—New York World.

The English King.

The king of England has no legal title. He must sign his own death warrant if the two houses meet in close session. It is a scheme of the great to swallow the king's title.

Active Business Requires Adequate Telephone Service.

The essentials of adequate telephone service for a busy establishment are:

1. An open door for outgoing telephone calls.
2. An open door for incoming telephone calls.
3. Facilities for immediate intercommunication between offices and departments.

Private Branch Exchange telephone service meets these requirements. Outgoing and incoming messages can be handled simultaneously. Interior intercommunication can be carried on independently.

Private Branch Exchange telephone service is recognized as the only suitable service for active organizations, and it costs even less than the simpler form of telephone service.

Let us send our representative to explain it in detail and to quote rates.

GAY OLD FASHIONS.

Dandies of Past Centuries Would Mock Solomon Look Sad.

Compared with the gay apparel worn by the dandies of the past ages the poor of our time in the gayest of gay raiment make but a poor show.

The history of fashions in the fourteenth century had a change of raiment for every day in the year. The Earl of Northumberland boasted no less than sixty cloths of gold suits at this time.

In the time of Chaucer the men wore clothes as many colored as Joseph's coat, so that while one leg would be a blue of crimson, the other would be tricked out in green, blue or yellow without any regard for harmony or contrast.

Even as late as the middle of the eighteenth century, a dandy would dress himself in a vivid green coat, a waistcoat of scarlet, yellow breeches and blue stockings.

And the gentlemen of a few years later wore, among other vagaries, a coat of light green, with sleeves too small for the arms and buttons too big for the sleeves; a pair of fine Manchester breeches; electric silk stockings; a club of hair behind larger than the head which carried it; a hat not larger than a napkin.

It was a common thing in the early part of the eighteenth century for a man of fashion to spend several hours daily in the hands of his valet. Among the many operations which took up this time was "the starching of the waistcoat and the proper performing of the parade, the painting of the face and anointing with oils, tinctures, essences and pomades.—London Standard.

Nasal Discharge Proves Catarrh is Active

THE PURE BALNEO ESSENCE OF CATARRHOLONE AFFORDS SURETY AND QUICK-EST CURE.

Catarrh is certain to cure because its healing vapor is carried with the breath directly to the seat of the ailment, open or throat trouble. Being composed of the purest balsams and fine essences, it immediately allays irritation, facilitates the action of mucus, soothes and eliminates the larger and broader tubes. The mucus of the nose in catarrh winter illness—that's what thousands say about Catarrh. There is nothing so sure to cure, and to those in fear of catarrh—those who work among lung-chilling surroundings, or where dust, impure air, fog or damp can affect them—let them get Catarrh and use it several times daily—it will cure every time.

RAD CASE CURED IN TWO DAYS.
"I was unfortunate enough to catch a bad cold from sitting in a draught in my home," writes Miss Nora E. Jones, well known in St. George's, N.B. An acute condition of catarrh developed in my nostrils and for three days my nose and throat ran most copiously. The usual remedies entirely failed to relieve. I read in the Mirror newspaper about Catarrh and sent to South River, drug store for a dollar outlay. In two days Catarrh cleared out my nostrils cured the swelling, coughing, and all traces of catarrh." Large size Catarrh, sufficient for two months' use, guaranteed price $1.00; smaller size 50c and 25c. Beware of imitations and substitutes, and insist on getting Catarrh—only. By mail from the Catarrh Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

Rev. Harry Taylor, the famous evangelist, will open a series of special services in the Park street Baptist church in December, and will be assisted by Mr. Hatch, the well known Gospel singer.

AM. Gordon Was Kept Busy.
AM. G. N. Gordon was yesterday one of the busiest men in the city. On his shoulders fell the onus, hard even though pleasant to him, of completing final details for the big reception to Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Local Contractor in Big Contract.
Mr. James Dugan of this city has received a contract from the Dominion Government, for the construction of a retaining wall for the Rideau Canal, at Smith's Falls. The work will cost $20,190.

A Local Business Change.
The store recently occupied by J. T. C. Lang, druggist, was closed yesterday. The representation of a Hamilton Company has arrived and is negotiating for a lease of the store with a view to opening a branch here.

Caveat Furner in Bed Shop.
The condition of Mr. Daniel Hill, of Caveat, who is reported to be a former inmate was seriously gored by an infuriated bull last Friday, is precarious. Several internal injuries were sustained. Mr. Hill was attended by Dr. Turner of Millbrook. This is the third accident that has occurred to the Hill family since spring.

Annual Fire Inspection.
To-day begins an inspection of the business establishments of the city, the schools, churches, public places of amusement and hotels by Fire Chief Howard. It is to be hoped, that this annual function, as expected, will result in a favorable report. On the result of Chief Howard's report greatly depends the rate of our local insurance.

What the T.A.S. Is Doing.
At the last regular meeting of the Sacred Heart T.A.S., several candidates were initiated. Arrangements are being made for a grand concert in St. Alphonsus' Lyceum on Thanksgiving Day. A series of special services will be commenced at Sacred Heart Church on Sunday night when Rev. Father John O'Brien will speak on the "Rosary."

Barrie's Limited Open New Store.
The well known local retail establishment of Barrie's Limited has opened a new branch at Saskatoon, Sask. The store has a frontage of 23 feet. It is situated in the new Wilfrid Laurier Block on 3rd avenue and will be used for the fur business only. Mr. J. Gorham, who has for a number of years been connected with the local branch, left last week to take charge of the new store.

Mr. H. P. Young Gets Good Position.
Mr. H. P. Young, left the city yesterday morning for St. Thomas, where he has secured a position with the Ingram-Davies Co., as foreman of the electrical department. Mr. Young has been with the F. R. J. McPherson Co. for a number of years, and as an experienced electrician and the Ingram-Davies Co. are to be congratulated on securing such a reliable man.

Mr. John Doug for Castle Neglect.
At yesterday's police court, Mr. John Doug was sentenced to a fine and costs of $12.00. The charge was depositing night soil on a vacant lot. As Mr. Doug did not have the necessary in his jeans, he was given a 30 days' order on Castle Neglect.

Fathers Fitzpatrick and Phelan, Judge Haydock and James Lynch, B. Morrow, R. Sheehy, H. Phelan and others, were yesterday guests of Superintendent J. H. McClellan on a steamer trip over the Lake. The party was met by automobiles on their arrival at Nassau and conveyed home.

A Correction.
In our issue of Saturday appeared one of those mistakes that will creep into a newspaper. The article referred to was regarding the marriage of Miss Mildred Maud Reynolds of Springfield, to Mr. Loren J. Morrow, of this city. By mistake the printer making up the form for the issue referred to, mixed up the type, describing the charming event with that of a totally different article, thus destroying the sense of each. The Times regrets the unfortunate contretemps.

President Knight of Columbus Here.
A dinner was given yesterday at the residence of Mr. A. Poppen, in honor of his Lordship Bishop O'Connor, when Mr. James Flaherty, of Philadelphia, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus was present. Mr. Flaherty is visiting the city on an official tour of Western Ontario and during his stay here is being entertained by the Peterborough Council. This is the first official tour of Western Ontario that has ever been made by the Supreme Knight, and Mr. Flaherty is being extended every courtesy by the local Council.

Then the grand parade will take place to the Brook street rink for the speeches.

Business Cannot Be Cured.
By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running or stuffed ear, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; and cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Readers of The Times are reminded that the following events are of interest to the community and are being held at the following places:

Mr. Ryerson Ritchie is in New York.

Miss Hazel Moffat left yesterday to spend upon her first year at Toronto University.

Miss Edith Foy, Toronto, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Goodell, of London, Ontario.

Mr. A. B. Chag, Batavia, N.Y., is the guest of his sister, Mrs. J. B. Farnham, Benson avenue.

Mr. Eric Walton, Toronto, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. S. Walton, Smith.

Mr. Melville Jamieson has returned home after spending his vacation at White Mountains, Maine.

Miss Margaret Anderson left yesterday for Toronto, where she will attend Toronto University.

Mr. Kenneth Rootley, 418 Stewards street, left to attend the Grand League College School, Quebec.

Miss Edith Bonner, Toronto, is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. James Edgar Walker street, for a few days.

first year at the School of Practical Science.

Mr. Ernest Langford left for Kingston yesterday, where he will commence his career at the Kingston College of Mining.

Mrs. W. E. Wassas, and Master Arthur, have returned home after spending the summer at Winnipeg, Man., and Minak, Ont., the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wright.

Miss Eva Noyes, East City, has returned from a three weeks' visit with her two sisters, Mrs. J. Cole and Mrs. H. Orsborn, Rochester, N.Y., her brother, Mr. W. H. Noyes, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Dobbin, announce the engagement of their daughter, Constance Winnifred, to Mr. Harry Bonfield Pope, of Westmount, Que. The wedding will take place very quietly about the middle of October.

Mr. and Mrs. Easton, Detroit, have returned to Detroit, accompanied by Mrs. John Heal, Charlotte street. Mr. Easton who was formerly of Otonabee, has spent the past six weeks visiting friends and relatives, while Mrs. Easton visited her sister, Mrs. John Heal.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The Board of Education will meet in regular session this evening.

Another effort is to be made this year to secure the adoption of local option in Whitley.

The village of Otonabee is greatly stirred over the recent and drowning accident.

The initials "V.R." are still to be seen with the coat of arms over the Lindsay Post Office.

Mrs. T. Cavanaugh has shipped 33 horses to Mr. Louis Green, Toronto. Mr. Cavanaugh shipped 16 to the same address.

the population of Peterborough as a direct result of the Imperial Home Resonance Association movement.

St. John's W.A. will give a tea this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. W. R. Morris, Monaghan Road, when it is hoped a large number of members will be present.

Peterborough's population may only have increased 750 during 1911. Still just consider the sons and daughters of this city who went to swell the growth of Canada in the West, during that period.

Owing to the kindness of Mr. J. D. Flavell, improvements have been made to the Lindsay Carling Hotel. The Carling Club there intend to install a new incandescent light system.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

FULLY EXPLAINED

Interesting Lecture in Conservatory Hall by Virgil O. Strickland.

The Audience Greatly Impressed.

Last night the Conservatory of Music Hall was filled by an audience who displayed great interest in the proceedings. The occasion was a lecture on "Christian Science" given under auspices of the local Christian Scientists, by Mr. Virgil O. Strickland, of New York. The local exponent of Christian Science, Mr. Todd, introduced the speaker in a few well chosen remarks.

Mr. Strickland is an able and forceful speaker. One point he made, regarding diversity of opinion regarding Christian Science, and apart from the question of physical healing it is generally conceded that it produces a happy and contented mentality, that it destroys fear, and makes people loving and kind.

He said in part: "When we add to the fact that it has healed many sick people who had previously been unable to find relief under other systems, that it has cured many of the drug habit, and of the liquor habit, has restored harmony in many homes that were discordant, and has given hope and courage to people who were discouraged, it is easy to understand why Christian Science has spread from one end of the earth to the other with such wonderful rapidity."

SIR WILFRID Gets a Splendid Welcome in Peterborough

Ex-Prime Minister Delivers Stirring Address to Cheering Multitude—Declares that Question of Wider Markets Must Be Settled in the Interests of Canadian People Pleads for Conciliation and Amity.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, ex-prime minister of Canada was yesterday the recipient of a welcome which showed clearly that whilst his party may have met with defeat at the polls, a year ago, on the Reciprocity question, the Reformers of this city and district still hold their old leader in veneration and kindest regard.

As the C. P. R. 4:10 train pulled into the station, the latter resembled an island swept by waves of humanity. Seldom has a larger crowd assembled at a Peterborough depot to greet a leader of either political party. As the train pulled into the platform, the venerable leader, as he emerged from his private car, was met with a hearty and spontaneous roar of applause and cheers. Handkerchiefs were waved and eulogistic cries filled the air. With the Apostle of Reciprocity were Messrs. Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Hon. McKenzie King, Hon. Sydney Fisher, former Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Chas. Murphy, former Secretary of State, Hon. Rudolph Lemieux, former Postmaster General, Senator Jaffray, Senator Kerr, local Reform member of Parliament and aspiring candidate for Parliamentary honors on that ticket from the surrounding district as well as other loyal, but lesser lights of the party. Mayor Bradburn, with Ald. Gordon, Gillespie, Anderson and Duffus met the party as they disembarked. His worship delivered an address of welcome as representative of the city.

As soon as the city's welcome had been extended to the former Liberal Prime Minister, a number of automobiles, drawn up in readiness, conveyed the distinguished visitors on a tour of inspection through the city, where the great and future growth of Peterborough was observed.

The Parade.

Shortly after seven o'clock, a great throng of every shade of politics began to gather on the market square. Here the assembly was joined by contingents from Lindsay, Port Hope, Hawkeston, Lakefield and the surrounding townships. At 7:20, after the visitors had been entertained at Strathmore by Hon. J. R. Stratton, the big parade formed up under plans formulated under generalship of Ald. Gordon, set out for the Brock street rink. The long procession included three bands. As the automobile containing Sir Wilfrid passed through the crowds lining George street, roars of cheers rent the chilly air, Roman candles sent their flaming messages of welcome skyward.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER

give a wider market to Canadian products they safeguarded the manufacturing interests. There have been racial and religious problems. Sir Chas. Tupper tried to coerce Manitoba on the school question. To the credit of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, his true Canadian patriotism, made him tell his compatriots to stand for Provincial autonomy. Canada has to thank Sir Wilfrid Laurier, not Mr. Borden for Canada's nationhood. If the Conservatives allow the coalition with the Nationalists to continue, there will never be a united Canada. The speaker was here interrupted with general cries for "Laurier!" "Laurier!"

The Big Meeting.

The Brock street rink was crowded to fullest capacity, some four thousand or over being present. Ald. Gordon had made complete arrangements for accommodating the immense throng. The rink was prettily decorated with flags. At the speakers' stage was erected, fronted by national flags to the west side of the rink. At 8:15 amid a hurricane of cheers Sir Wilfrid came forward on the platform and bowed to the immense audience. Mr. James J. Hartley occupied the chair. In a short speech Mr. Hartley introduced the speaker of the evening. He would only ask one man, the Hon. J. R. Stratton to speak (cheers).

Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Mr. Stratton said he had been so long in Peterborough politics the chairman thought it would be unkind not to ask him. The audience was present to hear the greatest Canadian to-day, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The City of Peterborough has made great strides in the growth of Canada under the Reform Administration. (Applause).

Hon. Chas. Murphy.

The former Secretary of State said it was not the first time he had visited Peterborough, but it was the first time he had addressed an audience here. The verdict of Sept. 21 will be raised at the first opportunity. An overflow meeting had been found necessary in the opera house. Mr. Borden so fears the revolution in favor of Liberalism, that he has called Parliament for November instead of January. Col. Sam. Hughes, instead of attending to Imperial affairs is over in England buying automobiles for his hard worked staff and teaching England, Germany and France how to run their armies. The speaker showed how Mr. Monk and Pelletier had discharged many former Reform office holders, some of whom had been dead for years. The Nationalists of Quebec and the jingoes of Ontario united in condemning a naval policy they had approved. No political party has ever asked the opposition before to help them out of a difficulty. With regard to the naval question, Mr. Borden has made his bid, let him be on it. After the next election Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be leader of the Liberal party and Prime Minister of the Dominion (cheers). He concluded by asking support for the next Liberal candidate.

Hon. Sydney Fisher.

Opened with an eulogy of the city. He is a farmer. Although a farmer, he takes great interest in manufacturing. The speaker then read some statistics to show the growth of Canada during the Reform regime. The home market is the best market for the Canadian farmer. The immigration of the Laurier Government helped the Canadian farmer, and helped to fill the great plains of the west. The Liberal policy had united the various parts of the Dominion into one united Canada. Whilst the Government of that time sought to

CONFLAGRATION IN THE BALKANS LOOKS LIKELY AFTER PASSING OF MANY CRISES

People of Western Nations Skeptical About War, But Diplomats Regard Situation Seriously—Four Nations Eager to Fight Turks, Being Greece, Serbia, Bulgaria and Montenegro

London, Oct. 1.—The armies of the Balkan States are preparing for war with feverish activity. The mobilization order given out yesterday is being put into effect with all speed, according to despatches received here.

The various nations concerned appear to believe that the longed-for moment has at last arrived when they will be called upon to march against Turkey.

There still remain but two points in regard to which diplomats can continue to maintain optimism. The first of these is the fact that winter is approaching and will render active war operations difficult, while the second is that the European powers are working in accord and have warned the belligerent little States that whatever might be the outcome of a war, they would not be allowed to extend any of their borders so as to take in a portion of Macedonia.

At present there appears to be no reason why any of the European powers should become involved in hostilities should war break out, although, of course, it is recognized by diplomats of every country that it would take very little to draw them in once the trouble is started.

AUSTRIA TO MOBILIZE.

Austria, it is believed here, will be forced to mobilize a few of her army corps in Bosnia so as to prevent the Servians from entering the Sanjak of Novi-Pazar, which is a part of old Serbia, and which that country is anxious to recapture. In fact, it is understood that the possibility of securing that addition to her territory is the inducement for Serbia to join forces with her neighbors against Turkey.

NEEDS A BISMARCK

Strong Man Required in England to Grapple With the German Menace Says Britisher

Winnipeg, Oct. 1.—"England needs a Bismarck—a strong man who will take the German situation in hand and settle it effectively and speedily. We are seated on the brink of a volcano—a volcano that is storing secretly but rapidly all the forces at its command to break out and overwhelm us at a moment's notice and when we least expect danger. The masses in England are opposed to war, just as the masses in Germany are against a clash with England. But the British Government is aware of the plans of the military power in Germany, which is stronger than the people. Those plans are to wipe Britain's navy from the sea and make Germany master of the world. We need a Bismarck who will ask Germany, in diplomatic yet firm language what is her purpose in setting this unprecedented pace in building Dreadnoughts, and who, if Germany fails to give a satisfactory reply, will in the dead of night sound the alarm of war and launch the full force of Britain's might against the secret foe, striking while she can with sure effect."

This is the opinion that Mr. J. H. Southall, of Birmingham, England, manager of one of the largest ocean accident insurance companies in England, who is visiting his brother here. He believes that there are only two things which may prevent a conflict—the refusal of the German people to be further taxed for Dreadnoughts, and substantial contributions to Imperial defence from the overseas Dominions.

SERVIA CONFISCATES ALL AUTOS FOR USE OF THE ARMY

All Night Long the Trains Carried Troops From Belgrade —Business Houses Closing in Belgrade

Vienna, Austria, Oct. 1.—King Nicholas of Montenegro to-day ordered the general mobilization of the Montenegrin forces, according to a despatch received from Cetinje.

Trains Rushing to Front.

Belgrade, Serbia, Oct. 1.—Troop trains were leaving the capital all night long for Nish and other garrison towns near the Turkish frontier. Many business houses in this city have been compelled to close on account of their employees having been ordered to join their regiments.

The street railway service also has been suspended, as it is worked largely by army reservists.

The owners of automobiles throughout Serbia have been ordered to surrender them immediately to the military authorities.

Consider War Unavoidable.

London, Oct. 1.—The Central News prints an interview with Minister Stancic, Bulgaria's Foreign Minister, expressing the opinion that a Balkan war is almost unavoidable, owing to the proof secured by Bulgarian Government agent that Turkey is secretly preparing for a holy war on the Bulgarians.

Turkish Ministers Sitting.

Constantinople, Oct. 1.—The decision of the Bulgarian and Serbian Governments to proceed with the mobilization of their armies has called forth very little comment here. The Yusi Gazette is the only newspaper of importance to refer to the matter. It says: "We have no belief in the likelihood of war, but should it break out the responsibility will lie with Bulgaria. Turkey will know how to preserve her honor."

A special council of Ministers was called to-day and is still sitting.

PLEDGE OF THE WOMEN OF ULSTER

We (whose names are underwritten), women of Ulster and loyal subjects of our gracious King, bring solemnly and mutually pledge ourselves to stand by our menfolk in carrying out the solemn league and covenant which they are this day entering into, pledging uncompromising opposition to the present conspiracy whereby it is proposed to drive Ulster out of her cherished place in the Constitution of the United Kingdom and to place her under the domination and control of a Parliament in Dublin. Is sure confidence that from this calamity God will save Ireland, we hereto subscribe our names.

HANDSOME GIFT BY DEPARTMENT OF MINES TO COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

Cabinet Filled With Valuable Mineral Specimens—The Board of Education in Monthly Session Last Night

The Board of Education met last night in regular monthly session. Chairman Mr. John Crane presiding. There were also present Messrs. T. F. Adams, B. F. Ackerman, L. M. Hayes, W. H. Hill, Col. Miller, Dr. Morrison, and V. Eastwood.

Inspector Mowat wrote that an additional class had been opened in the King Edward and Central schools, making more work for the janitors of those premises. The salaries of these janitors will be increased according to schedule.

Reports of attendance at the Public schools and Collegiate Institute, showed a marked increase over that of a corresponding period last year. The Inspector's report of conditions in the Public schools showed that the teaching staff includes 59 members.

On motion of Dr. Morrison, seconded by L. M. Hayes, the presentation to the Collegiate Institute by the Department of Mines, Ottawa, of a handsome cabinet, replete with valuable mineral specimens, will be suitably acknowledged.

The Board will make the usual grant towards the field day sports of the Collegiate Institute, and also to pay for the use of Riverside Park for the scholars this fall term.

Dr. Morrison is submitting Principal Kenner's report of the results of last Collegiate Institute examinations, as previously published, thought such results reflected considerable credit not only upon the scholars, but on the community in general.

WASHINGTON AS A JUMPER.

The Father of His Country Was a Champion in His Day.

There is an athletic record of which every American ought to be proud, although it is not found in any sporting chronicle. It was made by George Washington of Virginia and was a tremendous jump of twenty-two feet three inches.

Exactly when and where Washington made this jump is not known, but it seems to be historical.

Thereafter refers to it in "The Virginian," where he tells of the jumping match between Harry Warrington and Lord March and Ruger. Harry wins with a jump of twenty-one feet three inches against his adversary's eighteen feet six inches. In his letter to Virginia, Harry says he knows there was another in Virginia, Colonel G. Washington, who could clear a foot more.

If Washington's figure are correct
Washington must have been a wonderful athlete. He could easily have won any intercollegiate championship competition up to 1900 and most of the national championships. Then, too, it must be remembered that the future Father of His Country did not want any athletic games like the athletes of today, nor did he have a tender path for his "run" nor a five inch plank for his "take-off." These improvements not having come into general use so early as the middle of the eighteenth century, Washington today would be a record breaker. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Apprehensive.
Little Robert did full justice to his dinner, but showed signs of uneasiness when his aunt passed him some golden for dessert. "It's fine, Robert.
What you have some?" said the aunt.
"Maybe it is good," replied Robert, saying the quivering man, "but, gee, it looks nervous!" —Johnstown Telegram.

A MAN'S MOTHER.

Just a Little Reminder to the Son Who May Have Forgotten.

But your mother's life has not been easy. Your father was a poor man, and from the day she married him she stood by his side, fighting the world from the door with her naked hands, as a woman must fight.

She worked not the eight or ten hour day of the nation, but the twenty-four hour day of the poor wife and mother.
She cooked and cleaned and scrubbed and patched and nursed from dawn until bedtime and in the night was up and down getting drinks for thirsty lips, covering restless little sleepers, listening for creepy coughs.

She had time to listen to your stories of boyish fun and frolic and triumph.
She had time to say the things that spurred your ambition on.

She never forgot to cook the little dishes you liked.

She did without the dress she needed that you might not be ashamed of your clothes before your fellows.

Remember this now while there is yet time, while she is living, to pay back to her in love and tenderness some of the debt you owe her. You can never pay it all, but pay down something on account this very night.

—Ladies Home Journal.

ASKED FOR A CRITICISM.

The Lecturer Got a Reply and a Big Surprise as Well.

Mr. Alphon P. Man, the American scientist who invented incandescent lighting by the use of a carbon filament in a vacuum, when he was about seventy years of age looked more like a banker than a scientist and in the subdued light of a lecture room appeared at a distance like a young man.

Some years ago he attended a lecture in Brooklyn upon the highest problems of electrical science, delivered by a "professor" with many titles and degrees. At the close the speaker called for comments and criticisms from the auditors.

Mr. Man, who was sitting well back in the hall arose and, quoting a long statement from the lecture concerning a difficult process, asked if he had heard it correctly.

"With remarkable accuracy, sir," replied the lecturer. "They are almost my very words."

The inventor then clearly but cogently tore the lecturer's argument to pieces, greatly to the latter's astonishment and to the amusement of the audience. As he sat down the lecturer said:

"I can hardly reply at present. You seem to have some information on the subject."

"Yes," replied Mr. Man. "I discovered the process myself nearly thirty years ago." —Pearson's Weekly.

THE COCKNEY DIALECT.

London Speech Presents Humors As It's Own.

During his long association with the poor children of South London Canon Horsley has been much interested and amused by their extraordinary pronunciation of words. "Frequently," he says, in his reminiscences, "I remember: 'I write on the blackboard some phrase I have heard in the schoolroom or the street according to its Walworth pronunciation, and then invite some boy or girl to write the English thereof underneath. The children take very kindly to my corrections, though fearfully puzzled when some of their sentences are pilloried in their phonetic form. Thus: 'Bless thine name'; 'Blessingimagine'; 'Bless thine name's James—pills James'; 'Al in't a povv'; 'Al ain't 'ad no kibe'; 'Ow, thy cans'; 'Blessis like' are hardly intelligible until I read them with the local white and vowel sounds, and then at once they recognize 'I've been to take her home'; 'I've been having a game'; 'Blessy's name is James';
'plain James'; 'I'm not going'; 'I haven't had any cake'; 'Oh, shab hands'; 'Rosa is late.'"

Canon Horsley also mentions that one of his daughters saw in a local draper's window some ties and desired to buy one for her brother. Going in, she said: "I want to see some ties, please." "This way for corsets, miss."

"No, I said ties—neckties." "Oh, I beg your pardon, miss; I thought you said stays"—i.e., stays!

Concerning slang used by the London jachin, the canon gives some amusing examples. "Needle and thread" for bed, "You and me" for tea, "Jim Skinner" for dinner, "Oats and Abel" for table, "Orimes" for beer, "Brussels sprout" for boy scout are somewhat common. Other terms new to the canon were "joseph" for broth, "scotly" for mad, "short" for foreigner, "roaser" for policeman,
"coal" for a penny, "mibbles" for mables, "bar" for a sovereign, "dada" or "ladger" for a farthing, "minges" for greedy, "wet sack" for drunk,
"water bones" for a "cry baby," and
"moggies" for cats.

Bulwer's Wonderful Memory.
Bulwer had a wonderful memory, as was evidenced by his astonishing feat of memorizing Kie's concerto, while the man who wrote it could not accompany without notes. His accuracy was almost infallible. He was once recommending a composition of Liszt's for orchestra in that composer's presence without notes. Liszt interrupted to say that a certain note should have been played aloud. "No," replied Bulwer; "it is aloud." "Look and see," said the composer. Bulwer was right. How everybody did applaud! In the excitement one of the brass wind players lost his place. "Look for a bit in your part," said Bulwer, still without his notes.
"Five measures further on I wish to begin."

Spring Chard.
Chard is the bleached leaves, leaf stalks or midribs of certain plants, as of the globe artichoke and white beet, also a variety of white beet; Swiss chard best, leaf beet. In cooking Swiss chard for greens the wide white mid-ribs are cut out and the green leaves served alone, the ribs being cooked separately and served like asparagus, for which they are an appetizing substitute. Then, for a change, a dish of leaves and ribs together is served as greens, but this always seems a waste of good material when either is better alone. The home grower eat any that may be left when the table is cleared, or the cows and pigs will dispose of it,
so that not a leaf need be wasted.
All things considered, Swiss chard is one of the most satisfactory plants a gardener can raise.—Richings.

By Breathing the Soothing, Healing
Vapor of Catarrhose All Throat and Catarrhal Trouble is Quickly Cured.

It's simply wonderful to think how quickly a bad throat or Catarrh can be cured with Catarrhose. Its rich balsamic vapor is carried along with the breath into the innermost recesses of the lungs, bronchial tubes and chest, making it impossible for the germ of any disease to live. These poisons in the chest are at once eliminated—phlegm is loosened and ejected from the throat, old-standing coughs are removed.

"I suffered from an irritable, weak throat for three years. I had a severe cough, pain over the eyes, constant bad taste in my mouth, and noises in my ears. It was chronic catarrh. Nothing gave me permanent relief till I used Catarrhose. In one hour it relieved, and in a few weeks drove all trace of Catarrh from my system."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The harvest moon does not shine down on reapers enough to explain the ancient name.

Japan's equinoxials, the typhoons, bear an odd name, but they have familiar earmarks.

Things are moving more swiftly every day. Now a Niagara woman is accused of shooting her husband during a joy ride and also of having several other husbands to dispose of.

A local contemporary has a long article on the "different uses of saw dust." If the writer would only come to Peterborough he could add to his list. Among other uses is the extermination of the surplus (and otherwise meaningless) and; the plugging of steamboat channels; putting to rest the tempers of a man whose summer cottage landing is made dirty and in short lots of other uses.

If those who are fishing for evidence in the Farmers Bank matter, would succeed in prying open the door in order to get at the inner workings of the concern, they will have to use some other "jimmy" than our own J. B.

It is well to note that the Hon. Nick Langworth has more spunk than most of the people of the United States thought he had. In plain terms he has told the great chief of the Bull Moose that he is a Republican first and a non-in-law after.

SIR WILFRID'S VISIT.

Yesterday a spirit of anticipation seemed to mark the expression of our citizens. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the grand old leader of the Liberal party, was due to arrive, with other distinguished members of his late Cabinet and political faith. The hearty and spontaneous welcome accorded the party as they reached the platform showed that the Liberals, whilst out of office for the present, are not buried in the depths of despair. Everywhere and everything pointed to recognition of the efforts of a man, mistaken or not in his policy, who has been Canada's Premier. The reception accorded the distinguished visitors at Brock street rink by several warm ones. Sir Wilfrid and those of his thousands of our citizens was a colleague who spoke were given an attentive hearing, punctuated by frequent day for Liberalism in Peterborough bursts of applause. It was a laugh, and their chairman will carry away with him a vivid recollection of the great reception accorded him.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

THE POWER QUESTION.

Editor Morning Times.
Sir,—In common with other ratepayers I have been following with a great deal of interest the proposition for a supply of power from the Hydro-Electric Commission. I had expected that a definite proposition would have been submitted to the City Council, stating exactly at what price light and power would be furnished to our citizens. According to your report of the city council, Alderman Gordon remarked that the proposition of the Hydro-Electric was "beautifully indefinite." May I ask the Council in what respect was it "beautifully indefinite"?

I notice in the report in your paper that the city council proposes to appropriate the Peterborough Light and Power Company pole line for $250,000.00. Could the city appropriate that plant and obtain it for $250,000.00? Must not some court or some impartial arbitrator fix the amount? I learned some time ago upon the authority of one of the shareholders of the Ontario Power Company that that Company seven years ago offered Mr. Robert Stuart the Treasurer of the Jucker Date Company in the neighborhood of $150,000.00 for the same identical pole line and plant and yet I am told that that same offer was refused. Since that time large additions have been made to the pole line. Perhaps the proposition to obtain this pole line for $250,000.00 by expropriation was one of the features that is "beautifully indefinite."

If the city is forced by arbitration to pay perhaps $200,000.00 for the Peterborough Light and Power Company pole line and plant instead of $250,000.00 then the chances of getting "cheap" light is "beautifully indefinite," even though it is supplied from "power at cost."

Every citizen of Peterborough is most anxious to procure a cheap supply of power for manufacturing and for domestic purposes and I am sure they are willing to assist the Council in every way they can but the City Council must show some business capacity in obtaining a definite proposition from the Hydro-Electric Commission embodying the exact price at which power and light can be supplied before such assistance is furnished.

The time to get that information is now and not after the city has committed itself to an expenditure of $250,000.00 with every probability that it will exceed three times that amount and is bound to pay tens of thousands of dollars a year as a rental to the Hydro-Electric Commission besides. Why do not the City Council take the ratepayers into its confidence and tell them why exact information cannot be furnished? Why cannot exact information be obtained instead of a "wild guess" of a "beautifully indefinite" proposition?

Ratepayer.

THE PRICE OF HAIR CUTS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In the Examiner of recent date appears a letter signed "Traveler," in which the writer defends Mr. Egerton's charge of 16 cents for an "English" hair cut, i.e., a hair cut without the usual Canadian work shave. The writer claims that in England a neck shave is a rare operation. This statement may be correct; probably it is, as shown by the woolly look of the average English immigrant. Traveller quotes prices charged in English barber shops. A few years ago I was in London and saw a barber's sign which read "shaving, two pence." Feeling blue enough from the climate to be reckless I walked in and braved the ordeal. When I got the kinks out of my neck, made by the upright, old-fashioned English barber chair, I tendered a threepenny-piece, telling the barber to keep the change. I was asked for twopence more, however, for bay rum or some such excuse, possibly a fine for being "green." To revert to the case in point, Mr. Egerton is a newly arrived Englishman, whom I am told has been hinted that he does not particularly care for the trade of the common people, but seeks that of the aristocracy. It seems to me a poor part of judgment on his behalf to "butt in" to a new place and try to revolutionize existing conditions.

Another Traveller.

A "Japanese" Garden.

At his country seat at Gunnersbury Mr. Leopold Rothchild, who is an enthusiastic amateur gardener, has a wonderful display of garden plants which the Japanese garden, prepared with enormous care and expense, is his especial pride. For this reason, when on one occasion he had been entertaining the Japanese Ambassador to lunch and was conducting his guest round his gardens, he kept it to the last, says The Manchester Guardian. The ambassador admired the green-house and garden and at last, after careful preparation, the Japanese garden was, so to speak, "burst open before him." He held up his hands with enthusiasm. "Ah!" he said, "wonderful, wonderful—we have nothing like this in Japan."

A Marathon Planter.

There is in Johannesburg a piano Marathon winner who on three occasions (at Bloemfontein, Johannesburg, and Potchefstroom) has played continuously for 74 hours starting at 8 p.m. on Wednesday and finishing at 10 p.m. on Saturday.

It is nothing for this young man (his name is William Kendal, and he is only twenty-three) to undertake to play 1913 hours daily for six days running.

SIR WILFRID

Hon. Mr. Graham.
Hon. Mr. Graham made a humorous speech replete with anecdotes. There is not a back yard in Peterborough but could float the Borden navy. Many people in this riding voted against Mr. Stratton on the no temperary cry. If the Canal were completed to the lake, the people of Peterborough would save their taxes on the price of coal.
He concluded by advocating the claims of Mr. Stratton for election (Cheers).
Mr. Kerr gave a few remarks, and complimented Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He moved a vote of thanks to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues.
The motion was carried, and spoken to by the seconder, Mr. D. O'Connell. The meeting broke up with three cheers for the King and Mr. Stratton.

COURTSHIP IN SPAIN.

A Difficult Business in Which Speaking Tubes Play a Part.

In Spain, as is well known, a rigorous etiquette governs the business of love making. A young man cannot interview his sweetheart without her parents' consent, and indeed all conversation openly carried on between the couple must be in the presence of the fair one's mother.

Many subterfuges are adopted by the lovers to overcome this difficulty, and the "reja"—the ornamental ironwork on the windows of Spanish houses—has become one of the favorite trysting places. Modern life, however, has imposed fresh barriers. If a young man's sweetheart lives on the third floor of a city building he cannot very well meet her at the "reja."

In this as in other spheres of life necessity is the mother of invention, and some ardent lovers have brought speaking tubes to their assistance. The seignior, at the appointed hour, lowers this to her lover below, and they are thus able to carry on their love affairs with the assurance that they are not overheard by the people on the intervening flats, as would be the case if the conversation were carried on without such aid.—London Answer.

Rushing Things.
The young man breezed into the old man's library.

"I met your daughter," he announced, "at a Fifth Avenue reception. I want to marry her next Friday afternoon at 3.30. She's willing."

The old man turned to his card index.

"Which daughter?" he asked.

"All right," said the old man. "Make it 4.30 and I'll attend the wedding. I have an engagement of the other kind."

It was no ordered. This is a happy man.—Pittsburgh Post.

A Wide Acquaintance.

A nouvelle riche dowager has afforded much amusement while clambering up the slippery rounds of Washington's social ladder. One day after she had returned from circumnavigating the globe she essayed to entertain a drawing room with a boastful account of her travels. She had been everywhere, and her flow of slaughter house English was augmented by frequent wavings of her bedlammed hands and forcible noddings of her tinned head.

"Did you see the Dardanelles?" asked a sprightly debutante.
"And the Himalayas?" inquired another fair young bird.
"I dined with them in Paris," replied the dowager triumphantly.
And she wondered why everybody smiled.—Chicago Tribune.

Whooping Cough Superstitions.

Whooping cough is the subject of more quaint superstitions in England than almost any other disease. In Northamptonshire it is believed that if a small quantity of hair is cut from the mane of the sick child's neck, rolled in a piece of moist end given to a dog the whooping cough will be transferred to the animal. In Cornwall the child is fed with bread and butter which has been passed three times under the belly of a pious dog. In Lancashire they still tell you that whooping cough will never attack a child that has ridden on a bear.—London Answer.

Well Worth It.

An dentist knew very well that people do not call upon them merely for pleasure, they are not likely to be attended at this bit from the Washington Star.

"Didn't that man complain when you charged him for a broken appointment?"

"No," replied the dentist. "He said breaking an appointment with me is worth every cent it costs."

Bureau of Information.
Stranger—Can you tell me where I will find your bureau of vital statistics? Farmer Brown—I'll give you the village drummer's address. She knows the age of every woman in town.—Life.

The Inevitable.
There is no good in arguing with the inevitable. The only argument available with an east wind is to put on your overcoat.—James Russell Lowell.

"Take my advice! I have proved Zam-Buk best for common skin diseases."
"As a mother you owe it to your family to give it a trial! It cures pain and it heals!"

Active Business Requires Adequate Telephone Service.

The essentials of adequate telephone service for a busy establishment are:—

1. An open door for outgoing telephone calls.
2. An open door for incoming telephone calls.
3. Facilities for immediate intercommunication between offices and departments.

Private Branch Exchange telephone service meets these requirements. Outgoing and incoming messages can be handled simultaneously. Interior intercommunication can be carried on independently.

Private Branch Exchange telephone service is recognized as the only suitable service for active organizations, and it costs even less than the simpler form of telephone service.

Let us send our representative to explain in detail and to quote rates.

Learning His Father's Business.

"What?" exclaimed the wealthy Cleveland papa who had put his son to work in order to teach him a few things. "What? Fired after working one week?"

"Yes, dad; I was discharged." "What was the trouble?" "They said I was too green for them."

"What was your mistake?" "I paid a bill the first time the collector called."

"And now you see how foolish you were?" "Yes, dad. I'll never do it again."

"My son, you have served your apprenticeship and learned your lesson. You may now come into the office with me."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Composition.

"Now, Johnny," said the teacher after she had explained the meaning of the word, "I wish you would write a sentence containing the word defect."

After a struggle which lasted for about twenty minutes Johnny announced that he was ready to be heard. "Please read your composition," the teacher directed. "When you get about the two lines," Johnny read, "it's hard on the feet."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Very Observing.

Maggie—Do you believe women are more observing than men? Maggie—Well, my wife met a friend on the street today for two minutes, and it took her two hours to describe what the other woman had on.—Philadelphia Record.

No Tests For Them.

"I notice that you always have a box at the horse show. Are you a lover of horses?" "Oh, dear, no! I'm a strict vegeterian."—Chicago Record-Herald.

In so far as you approach temptation to a man you do him an injury, and if he is overcome you share his guilt.—Jobson.

A Second Shock.

Lord Saye and Sele is the present head of one of the very old families in England, a family, by the way, not of its dignity and exclusiveness.

The story goes that it was a member of this family who once staggered her relatives at dinner one evening.

"Mother," she remarked casually, "I was married to-day."

Her mother, who would have regarded any display of emotion as an oversteering display, controlled herself by a tremendous effort.

"My dear," she said coldly, "you might at least have waited till James had left the room."

"But it's James I've married," the young lady looked at.

A photographer who had taken Dr. Ian Macdaren's picture destroyed the negative. When there was a considerable demand for the picture the photographer's Scotch heart was disturbed.

He was remarked aggrieved: "That man might have told me he was famous and I would have kept him. He didn't look like it."—Christian Register.

Household Gods.

COMEDY IN A BOOKSTORE.

Queer Experience in an Attempt to Buy a Rare Work.

A correspondent of the Glasgow Herald contributes the following amusing account of an attempt to buy a rare book:

In his "Antiquary of the Bookshop" Oliver Twisted relates many a curious book called "Tales I to Myself" as having been written and published in England by a person of quality about the beginning of the last century. Some time ago, among a number of second-hand books exposed for sale outside a shop in Glasgow, I noticed one in elegant black binding. It was "Tales I to Myself," in two thin volumes. The first volume took my fancy: "I was born of very worthy, honest and respectable parents—least I think so!"

I went into the shop with the volume and asked the old man of the bookshop, "What is the value of this?" He turned them over curiously and said: "These are of no use to me; they're just so much waste paper." This struck me as an original way of selling books, and I gravely responded, "Very well—how much for them?" "Three shillings," he said. "For volume?" I asked. "For the two," he replied, whereupon I put the books into my pocket and handed him the money.

He looked at me wearily and inquired, "Where did you get them?" "Outside, at the door," "Why," he guessed, "I thought you were selling them!"

Mangled for a Trifle.

It is almost impossible to hang a woman in Anglo-Saxon countries today, but in old time England this was not the case. King George III. once offered twenty-three women of status an alternative to hanging. They might, should they choose, be transported instead. Six of them voted for hanging. Many women were then hanged for far less crimes than wise-shaming.

Welsh Falling Off.

The denizens of the Welsh language is evidenced by the statement that about 85 per cent. of the people of Wales know some English, while nearly 50 per cent. speak no other language.

Costly Plumage.

Fancy prices have recently been paid for prize-winning ostrich plumes in South Africa, the highest being $487 a pound, far above the ordinary market value.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Harbour Improvements at Whitty, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Tuesday, October 23, 1912, for the construction of a Stone and Concrete Esplanade Wall at Whitty Harbour, in the Township of Whitty, County of Ontario, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this department and at the office of J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Conservation Life Building, Toronto, Ont.; H. J. Lamb, Esq., District Engineer, Windsor, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at Whitty, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p. c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the contract. If the tender is not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary,
Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, September 24, 1912.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the department.—26624.

SPINNING EGGS.

Rotation of Fluid Friction to the Solidity of the Earth.

An interesting experiment exhibits the phenomenon of fluid friction. Take two eggs, one raw, the other hard boiled, and suspend them by wires from an electric light fixture or other support, their long axes being vertical. Then if they be gently turned around once or twice it is found that while the boiled egg continues to revolve the raw one comes immediately to rest.

This difference is due to the fact that the boiled egg is a solid body, the whole egg turning, while the raw egg is a fluid contained in a shell, the shell alone being turned by the twisting of the wire and the fluid remaining stationary.

The investigator who devised this and the following experiments employed it as one of the proofs that the earth is a solid body and not a fluid or "pasty nucleus." In that case, he said, the observed swinging and swaying motions of the earth's axis in precession and nutation would be impossible.

The same phenomenon is shown in the following experiment, though in a directly opposite way: If two eggs be spun rapidly on their sides on a mirror or other perfectly smooth surface the experimenter by gently placing his hand upon the boiled egg as it spins stops its movement permanently. But if the same experiment be made with the raw egg it will immediately begin to spin again when the hand is removed. Indeed, it is extraordinary how long one can hold his hand upon the raw egg without destroying its motion. The reason of this is apparent. The fluid within the shell continues to revolve, although the shell itself is stationary, while in the other case the whole egg is stopped.

If one attempt to spin the eggs on the mirror, after the manner of a top, he will find that the boiled egg will spin for a considerable time, but that the other will fall almost immediately on its side. It has been observed that this experiment furnishes a solution of Columbus' problem—how to make an egg stand on end. First boil the egg hard and then spin it.—Harper's Weekly.

BRIDES IN JAPAN.

First They Are Arrayed in White Gilt. Then in Red.

Brides in Japan follow the same custom which prevails in the western world—that of wearing white at the wedding ceremony, at least during a part of it. But the significance attached to the choice of this color is quite different on the two sides of the world.

The Japanese bride is dressed first in resplendent garments of white silk, the sleeves of the costume usually being about three feet in length, while the sash, an important feature, measures about eleven feet in length. But white is the mourning color in Japan, and the bride leaving her parental home considers herself dead in the same that she will never return alive, preferring death to divorce and in consequence wearing a white costume.

After the exchange of cups of sake with the bridegroom, which is the most important part of the wedding ceremony, the bride changes her costume to a red one. This is called tsunomichi (changing color). Red is supposed to have a purifying power and perhaps clears the minds of the parties of all association of mourning.

This is the origin of the Japanese custom of using white costumes at weddings, but many people in modern Japan do not any longer have these theories to bother their heads with these questions of color and simply go ahead and marry according to the accepted custom, with no thought of what the colors signify.—Orchestra Review.

Wanted to Be Sure.

A German farmer left his horses unattended in front of a hardware store in Gary. When he came out after an interval of a half hour they were gone. There had been no sound of a gun, away, so the farmer surmised that they might have gone home. He phoned his wife, saying:

"Chulla, ten der horses dere?" A negative came over the phone, for no answer.

"Nor der wagon oder?"—Chicago Post.

BRITAIN'S CABINET

It Really Has No Legal Warrant For Its Existence.

YET IT RULES THE NATION.

This Most Powerful and Important Committee in the World is Without a Staff, a Secretary, a Seal or a Minute Book and Has No Fixed Home.

Sidney Low, the English writer, calls attention to the fact that the British cabinet has really no standing in law, though it is actually the body which rules England. He makes several interesting statements in describing the situation.

The British cabinet has long been one of the mysteries of that greater mystery, the British constitution. To be quite exact, indeed, it is not correct to call it a part of the British constitution, for strictly speaking it is unknown to the constitution. The cabinet today rules the country, but it has no legal status. It was not until about 1801 that the word "cabinet" appeared on the notice paper or other official document.

A cabinet minister takes the oath that every private councillor takes: "To be a true and faithful servant unto the king's majesty as one of his majesty's private council" and "to keep secret all matters committed and revealed unto you or that shall be treated secretly in council." The entire body of the private council is supposed to advise the sovereign on affairs of state, but to be made a private councillor today is practically an empty honor. It is regarded as a high compliment, but if a private councillor is not a member of the cabinet he hears no secrets and performs no official functions.

All the executive and political functions of private councillors have passed into the hands of those of them who form the cabinet, which is really a secret committee of the king's servants who in practice collectively rule the country so long as they remain in office.

"But," as Sidney Low writes in an article in the London Daily Mail, "no act of parliament ever gave them these powers, which could not be asserted or defended in any court of law. They are due to prescription, accident and custom."

"Technically the cabinet as a cabinet can do nothing. It cannot even write a letter or issue a signed order. It has not indeed the means of doing so, for it does not keep a clerk or a typewriter; it has no office, nor has it any money wherewith to buy a sheet of note paper. The most powerful and important committee in the world is without a staff, a secretary, a seal, a minute book or a fixed location."

"When a cabinet council sits it has no agenda before it, nor has it any record of what was done at its last meeting. No one keeps the minutes, and it is still deemed a little contrary to etiquette for any minister to take a note of the proceedings or indeed to write anything at the meetings at all."

"In fact, the cabinet council is still treated as if it were nothing more than a casual private gathering of a few of the king's ministers. It bears the traces of its ancestry, for it was born over the dinner table. It originated in the reign of Queen Anne in those famous Saturday dinners at which a select group of the private council assembled to discuss the affairs of their party without the presence of the queen and of colleagues whose presence was not desired. The cabinet has always kept to the tradition. It is a secret committee of government and a secret committee of the dominant party in parliament, and upon the one function begins and the other ends its life as a secret committee."

"All its members are collectively responsible for his acts of one of them, but there are no means of knowing what the decisions of the cabinet are at any moment till they are embodied in action, or how many of the ministers may dissent from the opinion of the majority, or whether indeed it is the majority or a minority that really directs the policy."

The promotion of Sir Rufus Isaacs, the attorney general, to the cabinet was a double novelty. Not only was there no precedent for an attorney general being a member of the cabinet, but never before had the official announcement of the conferment of cabinet rank mentioned, as it did in the case of Sir Rufus Isaacs, the words "his majesty's cabinet." This appointment therefore marked further development in the acquisition of a corporate existence by the cabinet.—New York Sun.

Sleighbells—How Made.

It is a mystery to many how the bells made of sleighbells are made. In making sleighbells the iron bell is put inside a sand core just the shape of the inside of the bell. Then a mold is made exactly the shape of the outside of the bell. The sand core, with the finished inside, is placed in the mold of the outside, and the mold of metal is poured in, which fills the space between the core and mold.

The Proposal.

Bertie—Edith, will you be my wife? Edith—Oh, Bertie, it all depends on the weather.

Bertie—The weather? Edith—Yes, whether you can keep me in the hazy I am used to.—London Telegraph.

LONDON, ONT.Thackeray's Favorite Book.
In her introduction to the "Roundabout Papers" in the customary edition of Thackeray, Lady Ritchie speaks of her father's favorite book. Thackeray had an old Montaigne, which he always kept on the table by his bed. He had a second copy, still older, bound in white vellum, on the book shelves in his study. Lady Ritchie cannot remember that he had any particular feeling for special editions. "He used a cheap, battered old Brevint with decorative columns, the companion with whom, as he said, he could have been quite content to dwell for a year upon that problematical desert island. He loved his 'Don Quixote.' He also liked his shabby, worn copy of Johnson's poems. They had been to India and back, and bookworms are very common out there." Milton's sonnet to Shakespeare in Johnson's poems was, Lady Ritchie adds, one of the first things Thackeray ever read.KINGSTON & PEMBROKE

TEN CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE, PARENTS WERE AT A PARTY

Shocking Tragedy in a Quebec Village When Home of a Large Family Was Destroyed by Flames—Lamp Probably Was Upset

St. Bernard, Que., Oct. 2.—Ten children, the whole family of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gravel, were burned to death in their home here early this morning.

The mother and father went out last evening to a party, leaving their ten youngsters, who ranged from 15 years of age to 18 months, at home.

They returned after midnight, and then noticed that their house was in flames. Both father and mother made frantic efforts to get into the building to rescue their children, but the heat of the blazing house, which was of frame construction, was too much for them.

There is no fire-fighting apparatus in this village and the father and mother had to witness the consumption of their home and their children.

Dragged away by Parents.

At first the cries of the children were pitiful and both parents had to be forcibly held back by neighbors who prevented them from rushing into the blazing pit. Mr. and Mrs.

Gravel towards the end were in a state bordering lunacy and were taken by main force from the tragic scene.

The fire completely destroyed the house and the skeleton of the eldest child, a girl, and the skull of the youngest were found.

It is thought that the fire was started by a lamp which was left alight in the bedroom of the children.

SUEZ WILL BE DEEPENED 3 FEET

Montreal, Oct. 2.—Sir William Garston, a director of the Suez Canal Company, announced to-day that that waterway would be immediately deepened from thirty-three feet to thirty-six feet.

WIFE IN COURT SNATCHED PHOTO OF DEAD WOMAN

Goshen, N.Y., Oct. 2.—For the first time since the charge of murder was lodged against her husband, Mrs. Burton W. Gibson guarded the features of Mrs. Rosa Mendelick Szabo, whose relations with the lawyer have brought him within the shadow of the electric chair. The incident afforded the supreme sensation of the day's proceedings.

Throughout the day, Gibson's own attitude and that of his wife formed the one picture upon which all eyes in the courtroom were centered. Mrs. Gibson was for the most part passive during the recital of events leading to the charge of murder upon her husband. But when the personal relations between him and Mrs. Szabo were touched upon her manner became reticent, her eyes open wide and she bent forward eagerly to catch every meagre detail of the evidence. And then on towards the middle of the afternoon came the incident of the photograph.

Snatched Photograph. Mrs. Gibson had never met Mrs. Szabo. Wilkes DeGraw was testifying as to the exhumation of the body. The fact that photographs had been taken at the morgue was brought out and Attorney Elder, for Gibson, demanded their production. Mrs. Gibson was seated beside her husband, smiling. The smile faded, and when the photographs were uncovered by Assistant District Attorney Murphy, the wife of the accused dashed forward and fairly snatched them from Elder's hands.

Wife Betrays Curiosity. They were gruesome relics one of them showing the body of Mrs. Szabo.

NEW C.P.R. ISSUE, 175

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy in President's Address Explains Plan 31st ANNUAL MEETING

Montreal, Oct. 2.—The thirty-first annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was held to-day at its offices here.

The meeting was made more than ordinarily interesting by reason of the fact that the directors asked for authorization to increase the ordinary capital stock by an amount not exceeding $60,000,000. The necessary sanction from the Federal Government for power to increase the company's capital, which now stands at $100,000,000, has, it is understood, been applied for.

The C.P.R. policy of holding back new until the company is ready to make a definite announcement is well illustrated in the case of the new stock issue. During the past week speculation as to the company's intentions have been rife and the question as to the amount of stock to be offered immediately and the price at which it is to be issued have covered a very wide area.

To Be Issued at 175. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, the president, in the course of a brief address, explained the financial situation of the directors in regard to the new issue. He said that the $60,000,000 would be issued at 175. The sum of $33,000,000 would be used to retire 5 per cent bonds, which matured during the next two and a half years. In this way the GREAT FLOODS TURN ENGLISH CITY INTO A SECOND VENICE.

Floods recently turned the streets of Norwich, England, into rivers, and Great Britain for a time had a Venice of her own. One of the illustrations shows the water reaching well up to a horse's body and the other shows how the natives of Norwich quickly made pedestrians of themselves.

THE POWER QUESTION

It seems to be an open secret, or at least is openly suggested that certain members of the City Council, whether in a laudable ambition to foster the Hydro-Electric proposition or from personal reasons, have steadfastly and persistently neglected to give British fair play to the Seymour Power Co. These gentlemen of the Council seem to turn down requests of the Company for information on which they could submit concrete and definite proposition for supplying the city with power. There is no disputing the fact that ceteris paribus, the City should avail itself of the Hydro-Electric power. Still, apart from the universally recognized spirit of fair play characterizing Canadianism, this is a matter of dollars and cents. May have, lowest taxation for power available. Before the Hydro by-law is submitted to the ratepayers, it is absolutely to be essential that the Seymour Power Company's request for full information be seriously considered. That, when such information is supplied the Company, and they submit a proposition for power that such proposition be weighed and investigated fully. Whilst the Hydro-Electric seems to be the best offer now submitted to the City, the question of power is too broad and important to leave any stone unturned in the City's ambition and need of cheap power.

DOMINION BY-ELECTIONS BEFORE PARLIAMENT OPENS

A Probable Conservative Acclamation in Carleton—Sorel Ship Yards Count in Richelieu—Much Interest Taken in Ottawa

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—It is expected that the writs for the Carleton and Richelieu by-elections will be issued very shortly so that the elected members can take their seats before the opening of Parliament. The date will probably be towards the end of October. The Carleton election will be by acclamation as the Liberals have decided not to run a candidate. There are several aspirants for the nomination and there promises to be a lively fight for the Conservative nomination. Rev. R. H. Steacy, Anglican clergyman at Westboro, is mentioned as a candidate. The convention is called for October 19th.

The Richelieu by-election promises to be an interesting fight. The seat is traditionally Liberal and A. Cardin, the member elect who was unseated, had a large majority. However, the Sorel ship yard with nearly a thousand employees are located in Richelieu and they usually vote with the Government. E. A. D. Morgan is the Conservative candidate. The Conservative banquet at Sorel to-night opens the fight. There is a great deal of interest in political circles in the Macdonald by-election. Several have been suggested; one to-day of a large amount, that the Conservative candidate, Alex. Morrison, would have 300 majority.

FARMER, 75, FATHER OF 15 CHILDREN.

Albion, Iowa, Oct. 1.—What is believed to be the largest family of children in the State was Tuesday augmented by the birth of a girl, the 15th child of Captain D. K. Ewalt, aged 75, a farmer living near Albion. Mrs. Ewalt is 39 years of age. She is Ewalt fourth wife and has borne him seven children. She also had seven by her first husband.

TURKISH TROOPS ORDERED TO MOBILIZE FOR FIGHT

Press Unanimously in Favor Of War Against All Opponents—Balkan Peninsula Becoming Armed Camp

London, Oct. 2.—The Balkan crisis is to-day being closely watched by Great Britain as well as by every European power. All eyes are turned to the frontier where troops are assembling in hundreds of thousands. The neglected demand by the Balkan kingdoms that Turkey improve the conditions prevailing among her Christian inhabitants in Macedonia and Albania, which was the cause of the present tense situation, has been almost lost sight of in the distraction of gathering armies.

Fervent Activity. The four States of the new Balkan Alliance are rapidly organizing to act together in arms for the first time against the common enemy, Turkey. The Ottoman authorities are no less busy, while it seems from despatches from Vienna that Austria will find it impossible much longer to refrain from taking military precautions in order to keep the Serbians from encroaching on territory which Austria-Hungary insists must remain part of Turkey and not become an adjunct of Greater Serbia.

The slightest outward incident will undoubtedly start a general conflagration according to the prevailing opinion in diplomatic circles here and the great powers might easily be drawn into this.

London, Oct. 2.—The whole of the Balkan Peninsula is being rapidly transformed into an armed camp. According to despatches from the capitals of the various states upwards of a million men have been ordered to gather to decide once for all in a trial by combat the question

ROOSEVELT MEETING ENDED IN A FREE FOR ALL FIGHT

Salisbury, N.C., Oct. 2.—A Roosevelt meeting at Hickory yesterday ended with a slight in the crowd, and Colonel Roosevelt was obliged to give up the attempt to make a speech. It was not the Colonel's only adventure during his trip across North Carolina. Earlier in the day he was looked out of his car, and rode on the platform in the sharp air of early morning for twenty minutes before his speech was discovered.

At Hickory half a hundred students from Lenoir College, gave the College cheer, "Wilson, Wilson," on the way. "That's a fine cry to keep up the spirits of the side that ought to lose," Colonel Roosevelt shouted. The cheering continued despite the protests of those who wished to hear the Colonel. A man pushed his way into the midst of the students surrounding "The Taft Republican," but I want a square deal for Roosevelt. You college boys have got to keep still."

MISS WYLIE'S EYES OPENED SINCE SHE REACHED CANADA

Toronto, Oct. 2.—The suffragette situation is becoming clearer since the return of Mrs. Flora McD. Denison from her summer home last night. "I have just been talking to Miss Wylie over the long distance wire," said Mrs. Denison to a reporter. "She is still in Montreal and it will be at least five or six days before anything official will be done in regard to her coming here. At present she is waiting for a letter from our executive."

Asked why Miss Wylie had not requested such a letter while still in England, Mrs. Denison said that Mrs. Pankhurst was in a real state, so broken down that she was not allowed to receive mail or even see her own family, and that the Pankhurst-Lawrence who edit "Votes for Women," the official organ, were all present in British Columbia.

WEDDING BELLS

Coughlin-O'Brien. A pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. Fr. McGuire in St. Joseph's church, Douro, on Tuesday morning Sept. 24th. The bride was Bridget Teresa, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Brien of that township, whilst the groom was Mr. Jas. Coughlin, of Lakeside. The bride-maid was Miss Bridget Lovetta Sullivan, while groom was supported by his brother, Mr. John Francis Coughlin. At the conclusion of the ceremony the party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a rather sumptuous wedding breakfast was served. The happy couple will reside in Lakeside.

OBITUARY

Daniel Sullivan. An old and respected citizen of Peterborough in the person of Mr. Daniel Sullivan, passed away on Tuesday afternoon at the House of Providence. The deceased came from Ireland when a boy. He conducted a grocery on Rutledge street and was, later on a school teacher in Douro. He was 85 years of age. The funeral will be held this morning.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The rapidity with which the bachelor girls and the bachelor boys are making up these days is the best proof that prosperity is coming along with other things.

Everybody's doing it. Doing what? Guessing what Mr. Borden's naval policy will be. This morning it is dreadnoughts, to-morrow will it be doughnuts?

A short time ago General Baden-Powell said: "My fighting days are over," and now it is announced that he is to lead at last. This shows how a man can be mistaken.

We regret to hear that the price of good sausage will be advanced this fall, but there is some comfort in the thought that nothing will interfere with the free and unlimited coinage of ordinary hash.

It is well to note that the Hon. Nick Longworth has more spunk than most of the people in the United States thought he had. In plain terms he has told the great chief of the Bull Moose that he is a Republican first and a son-in-law after.

The newspapers are now making a making a great parade of the $50,000,000 Vanderbilt baby, but it is a safe bet that he can't drink as much as Mike Finney's broth of a boy, who won't have a cent coming to him.

We are glad to hear that after arduous investigation the Department of Labor is able to announce that the high cost of living is a fact and not a theory, but the people found it out long ago, when on returning from market they counted the money they had left.

After being heckled and perfectly mowed for twenty years, a Toronto husband went on a hilarious jamboree that lasted three weeks. This shows that the humblest worm will turn, and that things will break loose even in the most governed homes.

A New England man, who devised a plan to beat the high cost of living by keeping his food expenditures down to 25 cents a week is now a physical wreck in a hospital. A man, like the Irishman's jackass, can be trained to do without food, but he dies about the time he gets used to it.

The west will soon be decorated with a few more senators. That will be all right; why consider it? Does the Liberal party consider it? Does the Liberal party consider it? Still, while the jobs are being handed round Peterborough has a claim.

There is a good deal of complaint about the lack of enthusiasm in the present presidential campaign across the border, but it is well to remember that the people have been thinking for themselves during the past four years and when they vote in November, they will be guided by common sense rather than enthusiasm.

The Review publishes an item which states that some Toronto doctors are greatly astonished by the case of a woman there who talked interruptedly for twenty hours. This great family journal might remark without fear of successful contradiction that there are a great many married men, however, who can bear witness to the fact that the record of the Toronto woman has been beaten a mile.

At the last game at Riverside Park between Ottawa and the "White Caps," a young lady from North Bethune street, was an interested onlooker. As the blackboard in the fifth innings showed the figures: Peterborough 1.0.1.0; Ottawa 1.0.0.0. She exclaimed: "Isn't it splendid? Peterborough has ten hundred and ten runs and Ottawa only a thousand! Isn't it grand to think we are ten ahead!"

On Tuesday night Sir Wilfrid Laurier handed out to his followers in Peterborough a bunch of sunshine that revived their hopes of an early return to the treasury benches at Ottawa, when along comes the announcement that an appeal will probably be made to the country after another session when Quebec will have its representation decreased. This probably means a greater majority than ever for Borden, which will enable him to govern Canada without the aid of Nationalists.

LESSONS OF THE MEETING.

The great meetings of Tuesday night demonstrated three concrete ideas. First that a great canvas and preliminary effort had been made by the Liberals of Peterborough to prove that, even in the face of overwhelming defeat at the polls, they are not morbid but very much alive. Secondly, that curiosity is a dominant factor in human life. The immense audiences who heard Sir Wilfrid Laurier on Tuesday night were composed of both shades of politics. It would not be saying too much to intimate that many Reformers as well as Conservatives were brought out on a chilly night through curiosity to see an ex-prime minister. The third matter of general local interest is that Hon. J. R. Stratton may be regarded beyond peradventure as coming candidate on the Reform ticket at the next general election.

A HERO OF '64.

One by one the heroes of the immortal charge of the Light Brigade are answering the call of "Taps." A roll call would show that there are few survivors left.

In a quiet portion of the cemetery at Streatham Park, London, Sergeant William Jones, one of the last of the heroes of the famous charge of Balaklava, has just been laid to rest, with all the honors due to one who had fought gallantly for his country. Jones, an Oxfordshire man by birth, died aged 87.

During the charge of the Light Brigade he was wounded in the leg by a cannon ball and his horse was shot under him; but he captured a riderless mount and managed to get back to the British lines without further mishap.

On his return to England he joined the police force, and, after serving some time, left and entered the services of the L. and N. W. Railway, eventually being appointed stationmaster. But, being of a roving disposition, he left the railway company and went to America, crossing the Rockies twice on foot, joining surveying parties, and prospecting for gold, etc. It was not till 1897 that he returned, in order that he might join the other seventy-three survivors who witnessed Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee procession, and he was then persuaded to stop in England.

ITALY AND TURKEY

It is reported that Italy and Turkey are about to agree upon terms of peace. The war between these countries over Italy's occupation of Tripoli has been dragging along for months rather as a test of endurance than as a conflict of arms, and has been so devoid of stirring incidents and carnage as to attract little of the attention of the world. Italy has gained the advantage of a formal possession of Tripoli, from which Turkey is unable to dispossess her, and has captured without serious naval conflict some of the Turkish islands in the Aegean Sea, but she can

Natural Cure For Catarrh Obviates Taking Drugs

It Has Superseded the Old-Fashioned Stomach-Digesting Remedies, and Invariably Cures Quickly.

It was their inability to reach the real source of catarrh and bronchitis that caused the medical profession to drop liquid cough medicines and adopt "Catarrhones." Instead, Catarrhones provides a method of breathing right into the lungs certain rare medicinal vapors which are so healing and comforting as to entirely banish coughs, catarrh and throat trouble in a very short time.

The most wonderful thing about Catarrhones is that no matter where the germs of bronchitis or catarrh are hidden, Catarrhones will reach and destroy them.

"About five years ago I took a cold in the head and catarrh set in. It kept increasing by leaps and bounds. I kept putting off getting anything until at last I found I would have to. After trying several things I heard of your remedy, Catarrhones, and procured a bottle and began using it. I was not long in finding out I had struck the right thing. I am recommending Catarrhones to all who have catarrh, etc."

(Signed) Everett L. Wanas, Blair F. Co., Queen's Co., N.B.

Catarrhones has made an astonishing record of cures. Its method is right; no drugs; just healing balsamic vapors, that bring instant relief to Catarrh and all throat, bronchial and chest colds. Get the large size, last two months, is sure to cure you, price $1.00; smaller size, 50c; sample or trial size, 25c. All dealers, or the Catarrhones Company, Buffalo, N.Y. and Kingston, Ont.

ANOTHER WAR WITH JAPAN?

A traveller from the Far East reports that Russia has been building a chain of very strong forts along the frontier of Manchuria and has turned her attention toward Mongolia so as to absorb that great province of China desert for itself, and all the indications point to the making of vast forces to the Far East for another war with Japan.

It is said to be the fact, that where Russia not long ago had perhaps 200,000 men within a certain territory in Eastern Asia, she has now several times that number. It is reported that many who are noticed in the guise of laborers are really soldiers and that equipments are ready for them, so that they do have their drilling and when the time comes are admitted into the regular ranks.

Few suppose that Russia would give up her effort to reach warm water in the Pacific as an outlet for her empire unless she were permanently overcome by a stronger rival. Japan can make a wonderful fight, no doubt, to retain her footing on the mainland, and yet it would be contrary to the light of affairs that she should sustain herself permanently against the prodigious empire of the East, especially when the day comes that finds the ruler of Russia with a first-class military leader at command.

On the other hand, at the same time of the report that Japan has spent a million dollars on the funeral of the Mikado, the fact is brought to mind strongly that Japan is so poor as to require even the humblest of day laborers to contribute something out of an income to the support of the state. In a word, the income tax reaches those who earn the least wages in the empire. Japan is gathering even the pennies to insure her strength and her national life.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

Our readers attention is called to an advertisement which appears in this issue regarding the offer for sale of shares in Central Garage and Supply Company, Limited, Head Office and Garage at Toronto, Ont. This Company has been incorporated by Letters Patent, Province of Ontario, for the purpose of conducting a Garage and Automobile Sales Agency. An ideal location has been purchased with 64 foot frontage on Sheppard street, and the plans for a five-story, fire-proof garage are now ready, this will be the largest and most modern structure of the kind in Canada. The Company have opened temporary premises at 509 King street west, where a complete line of the Abbott-Detroit automobiles are to be seen. They have secured the Central Agency for the Province of Ontario for these high-class well known cars and have already made several sales. The large profits accruing from the sale of automobiles, auto supplies and accessories, repairs and storage of cars should make it a very desirable investment and very large dividends might be reasonably expected from the beginning as the automobile trade is very rapidly increasing and has become a business necessity.

THE MARKET

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close High or, Chicago Lower—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Sept. 31.—Balkan war signs failed today to stimulate buying and selling in wheat. The closing tone was unsettled, with prices varying from 1/2c decline to 1/2c advance. Corn finished 1/2c off to a rise of 1/2c to 3/4c, oats 1/2c to 1/4c down, and provisions straggling from 1/2c loss to a gain of 1/4c.

The Liverpool market closed yesterday higher on wheat, and higher on corn.

Sale-Post wheat closed 1/2c higher.

PILED IN THE PILLS.

Samuel Joseph Gwendolen 228.84 in Twenty Years.

People were greatly addicted to put out medicines 100 years ago, and a case that was tried in 1817 in England gives some idea of the pill taking practices of the time. An apothecary used one Samuel Joseph for payment of a long standing account. The bill amounted to fifty-five shillings and he showed that in twenty years he took 228.84 pills, beginning with the modest number of twenty-nine a day and advancing by easy stages to a daily consumption of seventy-eight. During the same period he consumed 40,000 bottles of mixtures, bottles of pills, electuaries and other trifling specifics. The apothecary over the day, but Joseph died soon afterward at the age of sixty-five, no doubt from stopping the medicines.

In the advertisement of their wares the eighteenth century quack medicine purveyors were quite as conspicuous as the modern representatives of their craft. Nowhere, the proprietor of "Dr. James' Powders," was a publisher and managed to make one branch of his business help the other by inducing his authors—inflicting calamity—in center references to the powder throughout the pages of their books.

Then, in "Goody Two Shoes," the heroine's father "perished miserably" because so unfortunate as to be "taken off with a fever in a place where Dr. James' powder was not to be had."—Chicago News.

The Flag Halyards.
"Many a slender flagpole has been ruined," said a rigger, "by drawing the halyards down too snugly when slackening them after hauling down the flag. If this is done in dry weather and it comes on wet the shrinking of the halyards thus draws the flag up with may be enough to bend the pole, and if it should be left in that way long enough the pole would be permanently bent. Flag halyards when no flag is flying should be made fast with a little slack."

THE ELEVATOR BOY.

In Chicago He Made Rapid Progress in Becoming an Expert.

The first day he is occupied mainly in learning how to run the elevator. The second day he is so delighted with his position that he makes every effort to give all the information asked of him. The third day he gets his uniform and begins accustoming himself to telling the passengers to step lively. The fourth day he learns how to advise anxious inquirers to look at the bulletin board or ask the starter. The fifth day he is so thoroughly versed in the duties of his position that he can run the car past people who are yelling "Down!" or "Up!" and three floors away from them and look back the gentle admonition to push the button. Also, he is now able to carry the nervous passengers two floors too far and then refuse to go back.

The sixth day he is an adept and demonstrates it by adding the door quickly in the face of the man who is in a second lift, also by stopping the car and dropping a couple of floors to take on the telegraphers with huge black hats, who laughily omit pressing the button.

He is now a real elevator boy and wonders what right the public takes in him, anyway.—Chicago Post.

CHEERFUL MENDELSSOHN.

The Pioneer in Good Conducting and the Boy Joachim.
The art of good conducting began with Mendelssohn. The Leipzig Gewandhaus owes the greatness of its conductor to him. He was a hard taskmaster, but, according to the words of Joachim, he earned the good will and respect of his men by his thorough knowledge of the music.

Step Your Worry.
If you are inclined to worry today stop and think of the worrying you did yesterday and how little it really amounted to.—Chicago News.

FUNERAL AT OMEMEE OF M'CAFFREY FAMILY

On Monday, the little village of Omemee was practically a place of mourning. The funeral of the unfortunate McCaffrey family, drowned in the Omemee river on Saturday, was held from the family residence to the family cemetery in one long drive. Rev. F. Wilkinson, rector of St. Peter's church, Carlton and Blenheim streets, Toronto, where the McCaffrey family worshipped, assisted in the services. A number of friends of the family from Toronto were present. Mrs. Seager, mother of Mrs. Wm. McCaffrey, was reported at 18 South Drive as progressing favorably under the circumstances. Mrs. Seager has been suffering from heart trouble for several months, and it was on this account that Mr. McCaffrey did not take his family to his former home during the summer. When Miss Salter, a trained nurse and daughter of Mrs. Seager, who is now in attendance on her mother, was able to come to Toronto, the McCaffrey family were able to go to Omemee.

MAIL CONTRACT

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the Postmaster-General, will be received at Ottawa until noon, on FRIDAY, THE 8TH NOVEMBER, 1912, for the conveyance of His Majesty's Mails, on a proposed Contract for four years, six round trips per week, OVER LAKEFIELD RURAL MAIL ROUTE NO. 4, from the Postmaster General's Pleasure.

Printed notices containing further information as to conditions of proposed Contract may be seen and blank forms of Tender may be obtained at the Post Office of Northwood and Hastings, and at the office of the Post Office Inspector, Kingston.

H. MERRICK,
Post Office Inspector's Office,
13th September, 1912.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Harbour Improvements at Whitley, Ont." will be received at this office until 4.00 P.M., on Tuesday, October 22, 1912, for the construction of a Stone and Concrete Esplanade Wall at Whitley Harbour, in the Township of Whitley, County of Ontario, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this department and at the office of J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont.; H. J. Lamb, Esq., District Engineer, Windsor, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at Whitley, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p. c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fails to complete the contract. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary,
Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, September 24, 1912.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the owner of a family, or any male over 21 years of age, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within one mile of his homestead on a farm of at least 50 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

Pre-emption—A homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Six months' residence upon the homestead at pre-emption, six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate 50 acres entire.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and clear 4000 sq. ft.

W. W. CORY,
Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the Department will not be paid for it.

The combined stores of Peterborough can easily rival any two city departmental stores in the stocks carried, the prices offered, and the quality of goods sold.

Investigation will prove this point beyond dispute.

When you have ALL the big store stocks here to choose from you have more variety than any city departmental can give you in any one line.

By trading here you have the opportunity of inspecting the goods and comparing values on the spot.

You save the time, trouble, postage, express, and disappointment.

You have immense stocks of new goods to choose from.

You have the reputation of business men who are here all the time to back up the quality of what you buy.

You are not trading sight unseen. You see the goods you buy, and buy the goods you see.

It Will Pay You to Trade in Peterboro

Just make that comparison once or twice and convince yourself. In the meantime, read the advertisements in this issue; there are some great bargains offered. See the goods, get the prices, examine the stocks, and the rest may safely be left to your good judgment.

Read The Times each day and week. It contains the fresh, bright news of all the leading advertisers in Peterborough. You will get up-to-date news about stocks, goods and prices. In addition you will get all the news of the district, a summary of the world's doings, special pages for the farm and the home. The Times costs only $3.00 a year daily and $1.00 weekly. LONDON, ONT.A ROMAN VILLA.Fine Example of an Ancient Residence Is Found in England.A particularly fine example of a Roman villa—its discovery kept secret until now—has been unearthed at Hambleton, near Henley, England.
Very little imagination is required to vest this relic of the Roman occupation with the greatest interest. From the spaciousness and luxurious equipment of the house, and the buildings it is clear that here dwelt a Roman of wealth and refinement. Within the high wall that surrounded his estate were his fish ponds, his private well, his bath—the waterpipes and a break-et for holding washing utensils still remaining—and the apparatus for heating his house.The house itself contained beautifully designed tessellated floors, and money, a scarab ring, oyster shells—some oysters left unopened—have been found.
The date of the villa is about 100
A.D. It was early in the fifth century that Rome ceased sending troops and officials to Great Britain, that the Roman civilisation gradually lapsed in our island and the dwellers—in this villa was fast becoming submerged to give place in our day to a field of waving corn.It is a wonder, this Roman villa. It is so vivid and so intimate. We do not realize sufficiently the extent to which the ideas and customs of Rome permeated the island close on two thousand years ago. In spite of the fact that the climate of Britain was a byword even in those days, yet Horace would have looked with a kindly eye on this spot, and have compared it not unfavorably, perhaps, with his own farm at Tivoli. True, here was no vaulted simplicity; the owner had his bath, his banian wares and his birds of coo; but his was essentially a country house, and in farming, from a practical point of view, it is evident that he took considerable interest.The various lesser buildings contain, or, rather, their foundations contain, numerous hypocausts or "fuses," one of whose uses was certainly that of drying and baking corn. It was a frequent custom in those days not to thresh the corn, but to pick the ears only while they were green, and hence the necessity of artificial treatment.
Some of these devices are T-shaped, others more elaborate, and one is almost identical in design with the Union Jack.Near the villa are three good-sized fish ponds, without which no Roman villa of those days was complete, and one can walk over the beautiful tes-sellated pavement, and there, too, is already for use the lead pipe through which the water came to bath and kitchen and the well is full of water.It is all rather awe-inspiring. There are bowls and pots galore, mostly in a fragmentary state, nails, pins, bones and many coins of Claudius, Vespasian and Trajan. These of course are valuable in fixing the date, which is probably about 100 A.D., though even such an authority as Prof. Haverfield is unable to form an exact estimate of this or of the precise nature of the villa or its owner. That he was a man of culture and refinement is certain. He was even an antiquarian himself, for an Egyptian scarab of the 18th Dynasty (1500-1400 B.C.) is among his possessions, and this is the first scarab to be discovered in England. He was also an epicure, and, like all Romans, loved oysters,
by which, according to a certain poet,
Nero declared Britain justified herself.
Empty shells marked his feasts, and wonder of wonders, some are even unopened.Forbear to judge, for we are sinners all.—St. AugustineMadame, This

VOL. XXXIX, NO. 233.

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1912.

PRICE, TWO CENTS

CITY COUNCIL, THE C.P.R. VS. PETERBORO CEREAL CO.

The Proposed Diversion of Simcoe St. at Water Front Would Jog Across Cereal Co's Property—Latter Want a Deed of Their Land at Once

The City's Manufacturing Committee met last night. There were present His Worship Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Chairman Alderman Johnston, Aldermen Gillespie, Gordon, Duffin and Graham.

The main issue under discussion was the Peterborough Cereal Company's demand for a deed of the land now used by them for manufacturing purposes. It appears that in 1905 the Cereal Company acquired from the then City Fathers the rights of the land along the water front upon which their present premises now stand (much of which had to be filled in by the company). Upon the following conditions: The company were to erect buildings and install machinery at a cost of $100,000, to employ 30 hands, and to use the property for manufacturing purposes only. Upon complying with these conditions the company was to be entitled to a deed of the land at the expiration of ten years. Or at any time within ten years the company were to have a deed of such land at any time on payment of $1,000 beyond dispute.

in escaping a number of frogs necessary to be constructed by the C.P.R. at this point. If Simcoe street is diverted as contemplated, however, Simcoe street would jog across the property held by the Peterborough Cereal Company, hence the position taken by the latter company.

To his worship, Mr. O'Connell replied that his clients were not asking an immediate conveyance to them of the property in order to hold up the C.P.R.; in fact in 1911 they had concluded to take advantage of the purchase clause in their agreement with the city, not knowing that an encroachment upon their property would be needed to meet the C.P.R.'s requirements. Then apart from this issue, the Cereal Company did not wish to sell any of their land for, as they contemplate erecting a new mill and warehouse, they would need it all.

Mr. E. A. Peck was present in the C.P.R.'s interests, and offered that there actually existed no "agreement" between the city and the Cereal Company on the question at issue. A by-law and an Act of Legislature were passed, it is true, but those measures do not constitute a binding agreement.

Mr. O'Connell could not see it in that light. The Act of Legislature passed in 1911 is binding upon both parties; his clients have done and are ready to do their part in good faith, and in all fairness look for a conveyance to them of their property.

City Solicitor, Mr. E. H. D. Hall offered that the company are within their rights; the measures went through council in the regular way, and were subsequently ratified by legislature as stated by Mr. O'Connell.

Considerable further consultation resulted in Mr. Peck's agreeing to secure the presence of a C.P.R. official at the earliest possible moment to consult with Mr. O'Connell with a view to mutual agreement being reached between the C.P.R. and the Cereal Company, as to the proposed diversion of Simcoe street, or otherwise, for Council to deal with on Monday night.

The city is contemplating a diversion of Simcoe street southward instead of running straight to the water's edge as at present, to convenience the C.P.R. in regard to their new siding and freight sheds along the water front. Such diversion the City Fathers claim would provide a better public right of way

MR. ST. CLAIR GIVEN LEAVE TO APPEAL

Stated Case Will Likely Come Before Higher Court Next Week—Mr. Raney's Stated Case

Toronto, Oct. 3.—His Honor Judge Denton this morning granted the application of Mr. W. A. Raney, K. C., for leave to appeal in the St. Clair case.

In granting permission to appeal, His Honor said in part:

"I have decided to grant a reserve case, in such a form as will bring the whole case both as to law and evidence for review, in order that any wrong done your client may be righted, and if there has been any miscarriage of justice, he may get the benefit of such an appeal. I have written out some questions to put to the court of Appeal, which I think will cover the whole case."

His Honor's questions, as read in court, were as follows:

"1. Was the bulletin in question obscene printed matter, within the meaning of Sec. 207 of the Criminal Code, having regard to the form in which it was issued, and to the manner in which it was found to have been circulated by the accused?"

"2. Was I right in ruling that the occasion of the publication was such as might be for the public good within the meaning of Sec. 207 of the Criminal Code?"

"3. Was I right in ruling that there was evidence of obscenity, beyond what the public good required, in the manner, extent and circumstances of the publication?"

"4. Was there any evidence tendered by the accused which was improperly rejected on any branch of the case?"

"5. If question four is answered in the affirmative, was any substantial wrong or miscarriage of justice occasioned as the trial by such rejection, as called for by Sec. 1010 of the Code?"

EXCITING TIME WITH A BEAR

Animal Tried to Carry Away Grub Pack Which Was Tied to Lumberman's Foot.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—Two lumbermen, named Lafreniere and Laplante, employed by the W. C. Edwards Co., near Maniwaki, Que., reported in Hull to-day an exciting experience with a bear in the woods near the former place this week. The two were running lines in the timber lands during the afternoon and returning in the evening found their grub pack partly eaten.

They suspected bears and sat up on watch part of the night, without success. Finally Laplante suggested trying the grub pack to his foot with a rope. He did so and the two men awoke to find something tugging at his foot and seizing a rifle fired in the darkness in the direction of the object. Lighting a lantern they found the bear lying dead a few yards away.

TURKISH ARMY ON WAR PATH

Strict Censorship of News is Adopted—Ready to Fight

NO EXPORT OF CEREALS

Constantinople, Oct. 3.—The Turkish Government to-day prohibited the export of cereals from European Turkey.

Turks Attached Montenegro.

Cettigne, Montenegro, Oct. 3.—A detachment of Turkish frontier guards to-day attacked the Montenegrin guards on the border in the Herana district. The Montenegrins did not reply to the firing and the Turks then retired.

The order for a general mobilization in Montenegro has been received with the utmost enthusiasm throughout the country. King Nicholas and his ministers have received a number of telegrams urging them to begin hostilities immediately against Turkey.

Drilling in Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 3.—Bulgarians and Servians are drilling up to the number of several thousand out of the twenty-five thousand of those now living in Chicago, are drilling here in preparation for war against Turkey. A large number of able-bodied men are on their way to the eastern seaboard to sail for home, and more are preparing to go. Funds are being collected to send them to the front.

LOCAL CHILD GIVES MOTHER'S SECRET AWAY

Everybody loves a child. That is everybody worth while. From the mouths of the little innocents come words of truth, verified by their round eyed steady gaze. Now the following narrative of local early childhood is an absolute fact, to wit: Prof. E. F. Bashford, director of the London Imperial Cancer Research Fund, and the foremost English authority on cancer declared in an address before the American Pathological Society here last night that "Practically all of the so-called cures of cancer announced within the last few years are worthless."

He added that the only means of saving or prolonging the life of a person afflicted with the disease is by operation.

"Cancer kills one man in every seven," he said.

"In one hundred families of six members each equally divided between the sex, about sixty-four, or more than ten per cent., will die of cancer."

"It is an important cause of death from thirty-five years on, getting rapidly more so as age increases. Cancer is now becoming more frequent in young persons."

MADE $35,000 A YEAR BUT ENDED HIS LIFE

Noted Berlin Barrister Was a Victim Of Gambling Habit.

Berlin, Oct. 3.—One of the cleverest and most successful of Berlin barristers, Counselor of Justice Michaelis, has committed suicide at Engleberg, near Paris, after vainly endeavoring to retrieve his fallen fortunes at the gambling tables.

Herr Michaelis filled a prominent position in many ways; he was devoted to art, literature and the drama, and was an intimate friend of Hauptmann and Sudermann. His legal advice was eagerly sought in extrajudicial questions of international law. One of the biggest cases brilliantly won by him was Captain Helldorf's suit against the Russian Government, and the confiscation of the Russian Government's deposits at the Mendelssohn's Bank.

Happily married himself, one of Michaelis' "specialties" was to divorce suit. He made an average income of $35,000, but his passion for gambling was paramount and finally,

C.P.R. DOES NOT NEED TO ASK GOVERNMENT

Company Has Right Under Statute of 1892 to Make Present Issue of $60,000,000—Go To Ottawa
in Future

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—The news that the C.P.R. had issued $60,000,000 worth of stock and that it can be issued without consent of the Government caused considerable interest at Ottawa and somewhat of a sensation in political circles. The clause under which the C.P.R. claims the right to issue this stock without an order-in-council is under a statute passed in 1892 and apparently had been forgotten or overlooked. It is the opinion here that for further issues the C.P.R. will have to come to the Government for sanction.

Application Still Stands.

The facts relating to the issue of the new stock as understood at Ottawa are as follows:

In August last application was made to the Government by the Canadian Pacific Railway for authority to issue an additional $60,000,000 of its stock. This application has not been dealt with by the Government and no arrangement or agreement as to price or terms or conditions of issue was reached. The position therefore is that the application stands as originally made, the Government not having passed upon it favorably or unfavorably.

When the last issue of the stock was made an order-in-council was passed under which $50,000,000 new stock was authorized to be issued at a figure not less than par. The market price of the stock at that time was around 200 and the stock was issued at 150.

At the meeting of the C. P. R. stockholders yesterday the Chairman, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, pointed out that under the existing legislation affecting the company the right to issue ordinary shares of capital stock in lieu of consolidated debenture stock.

To Retire Debentures.

He stated that the company was authorized to issue $60,000,000 of four per cent consolidated debenture stock in addition to all hitherto disposed of. Instead of issuing this consolidated debenture stock (the power to issue which has now elapsed) the company elects to issue $60,000,000 par value of its ordinary shares. In addition the company proposes to expend for the purposes of its undertakings the sum of $15,000,000 which its directors could distribute as dividends to its shareholders.

MR. PETER HAMILTON A WELL KNOWN CITIZEN GONE

Yesterday the city was shocked when the sad intelligence became known generally that Mr. Peter Hamilton, of the big Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Co., had passed away suddenly from heart failure. The sad event occurred in the office of the company, so Mr. Hamilton may be literally said to have died in harness. Mr. Hamilton was talking to Mr. Frank Pairen and Mr. Wm. Irwin and had just enquired of the latter how long it was since the former had been in the employ of the company, when he collapsed. Mr. Pairen, who had not begun to leave the time on a sheet of paper, caught him in his arms as he fell. Mrs. Hamilton and Mann were quickly summoned, but nothing could be done, as death was instantaneous.

In Mr. Hamilton's death the City of Peterborough loses a man whose whole activities and life were closely connected with the general advancement of Peterborough's interests.

Mr. Hamilton was born in 1841, being a son of the late James Hamilton, whose implement factory he succeeded to.

Mr. Hamilton was a town councillor for some years and was for a considerable time a member of the School Board, as chairman of which body he officiated for a number of years.

In politics, Mr. Hamilton was a Liberal. He occupied for some time the position of President of the West Riding Liberal Association.

In religion, Mr. Hamilton was a Presbyterian, and a member of St. Paul's being a member of the Board of Managers for many years and a faithful attendant at the services of the church up to the time of his death.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Robt. Ina and Mrs. John Cameron, of Peterborough, and by a family of five children, Mr. James Hamilton, of Peterborough; Mr. George Milne Hamilton, of Vancouver, B.C.; Mrs. Bruce Gillespie and Miss Florence Hamilton of Peterborough, and Mrs. W. S. Shaw, of Portland, Oregon.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 p.m., from the family residence, 273 George street, to the Little Lake cemetery. Friends are asked not to send flowers.

MUSIC & DRAMA

"THE RED ROSE."

The offering at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday next, Oct. 8th, will be "The Red Rose," a musical comedy in three acts, by Harry B. and Robert B. Smith, with music by Robert Hood Bowers, which made a sensational hit in New York at the Globe Theatre. The production is under the direction of Mr. John C. Fisher, the noted producer of "Florodora," "The Silver Slipper," and other big musical successes. "The company is unusually large and is headed by the charming little prima donna, Zoe Barnett, and is said to include some stunning young women. There are twenty-four musical numbers, with a variety of popular songs and others of greater musical worth. From a scenic and costume point of view, "The Red Rose" is said to be a sensation. Money has been spent galore. It is, in short, a drama maker's and milliner's delight.

The story tells the following tale: A young American, studying art, falls in love with a model, Lola, who is really a baron's daughter. Her wealthy father objects to the marriage. Storing scenes follow, but in the end, Nick Lorimer, the young American, obtains some pictures taken by a moving picture syndicate, showing the antics of the father with a young art student. This, coupled with the discovery that Lola is really a baron's daughter, enables young Lorimer to overcome his father's objections, and the last act ends with a scene reminiscent of Sapho, when the student carries his fiancée up a flight of stairs and they walk away in true Viennese musical comedy style and are married.

You May Have Catarrh And Not Know It

HEAD AND THROAT BECOME DISEASED WITH CATARRH FROM NEGLECTING COLDS AND COUGHS

Catarrh is Treacherous—When Fully Developed is a Horror—Note Its Symptoms.

"Is your breath bad?"
"Is your throat sore?"
"Do you cough at night?"
"Is your voice raspy?"
"Does your nose stop up?"
"Have you nasal discharge?"
"Have you pain across the eyes?"
"Is your throat irritable, weak?"
"Do you sleep with mouth open?"
"Are you subject to morning flat?"
"Do your ears roar and buzz?"
"Are you hard of hearing?"

If you have any of these indications of Catarrh, cure the trouble now—stop it before it gets into the lungs or bronchial tubes—then it may be too late. The remedy is "Catarrhose," a direct, breathable cure that places antiseptic balams and healing medication on every spot that's tainted by catarrhal germs.

There can be no failure with Catarrhose—for years it has successfully cured cases that resisted other remedies. "No one can know better than I the enormous benefit one gets from the very first day's use of Catarrhose," writes T. T. Hopkins, of Westvale, P.Q. "I had for years a stubborn case of Bronchial Catarrh, ear noise, headache, sore eyes, stopped-up nose and throat. It affected my appetite and made my breath rank. Catarrhose cured quickly."

Get Catarrhose, use it, and you are sure of cure—beware of imitations and substitutes. Large size Catarrhose, with hard rubber inhaler, lasts two months, and is guaranteed. Price $1.00, at all dealers, or the Catarrhose Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

are of any good. A couple of officers were killed in the recent manoeuvres on Salisbury Plain as the result of a mishap to a machine that had only been in the possession of the war office a week.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION.

It looks as if President Taft has sold his birthright for a mess of pottage, and has not even got the pottage. A man who was once a distinguished judge of the Supreme Court, and who at the time when he was first nominated was spoken of as high minded, must feel rather badly when he has deliberately sacrificed his reputation in order to catch the popular breeze—and the breeze never comes his way.

President Taft's repudiation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty is the most disgraceful episode which has ever sullied the record of a national representative. It involves a sacrifice of honor, not only the honor of the present, but of the nation. President Cleveland tried the same move twenty years ago, and paid the same penalty. Possibly President Taft thought he could tickle the ears of the groundlings, and that his action would appeal to men of the baser sort. It is a striking commentary upon the incident that within so short a time since his act of repudiation he has by common consent been placed at the tail of the procession. There is hardly a newspaper in the States to-day which does not relegate him to the third place in the race.

UNDERPAID MINISTERS.

Rarely has the plight of the underpaid clergyman been more bluntly stated than last week at the Central New York conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, where it was said that 3,900 Methodist ministers are living within the shadow of the poorhouse, and that the average stipend of an educated Methodist minister is $550 a year, while Chicago carpenters are paid 65 cents an hour, or more than $1500 a year.

The only available statistics on the incomes of ministers are those which resulted from the religious census taken by the government in 1906, and published two years ago. The averages derived from data contributed by 164,000 ministers of 100 denominations showed the Unitarians at the top of the list with an average salary of $1653. Then in order came the Universalists with $1238, the general convention of the New Jerusalem with $1223, the Jewish with $1228, the Presbyterians with $1177, the Reformed with $1170, the United Presbyterian with $1098 and the Congregationalist with $1042. But the average in all denominations for places below the rank of fourth-class office and for the rural districts was $573.

Some one wittily said a few years ago: "The demand both in city and country is for minister who shall be a Roosevelt, a mayor of Milwaukee, a Prof. Briggs and a Salvation Army Booth, all rolled into one." All so it has been said that the country minister is to be "a proper" of the Lord in the pulpit, and out of it a theological professor, a lecturer on theological, professor, a lecturer on well as on every phase of country life on travel, history, biography, sciences, village improvements, sanitation, public education, and so on, a leader of the farmer into the new rural civilization. To which it should be added that in the city the minister is expected to be a society man in addition above all an accomplished dinner-out.

MANY TAKING STOCK

Have You Inspected Your Supply of Words?

Isard. Simous. Yapoek. Sunk. Wow-wow. Xeraxis. Menicus. Isothermal. Parachrynos. Selenium. Transubstantiation.

The above is not the college yell of the Imperial University of Pekin, a list of Chinese poetry, an arctic or even a page from the school apalar, but only a few words culled at random and in haste from Webster's New Illustrated Dictionary, which The Times is giving away by the carload in exchange for six consecutive coupons clipped from the daily editions and a small expense bonus.

ARE THESE WORDS STORED ON THE SHELVES OF YOUR MEMORY? THE TIMES HAS SET THOUSANDS TO TAKING STOCK OF THE WORDS WHICH THEIR VOCABULARIES CONTAIN.

THE MORE INTELLIGENT OF THOSE WHO HAVE INSPECTED THEIR SCANT STORE HAVE HURRIED TO GET A DICTIONARY, HENCE THE RECORD-BREAKING RUSH. HAVE YOU?

Don't lose time. Stock-taking is one of the most important features of business operation every year. Look over your more or less limited vocabulary and then join the throngs of wise ones who are replenishing their word-stock from the supply placed on the market by The Times.

You will find the Dictionary which has created such a demand as interesting a book as it is a handy work of ready reference.

Get the habit of looking up words and you will find that dabbling in a Dictionary is one of the greatest of indoor sports.

Look over the words at the top of this column and get busy word-hunting in your spare moments. Men have acquired greatness by this simple method. A BOOK AGENT COULD NOT GET A JOB ON THE TIMES.

WHY? BECAUSE THE DICTIONARY SPEAKS FOR ITSELF TO EVERY INTELLIGENT AND EDUCATED MIND. THERE IS NO NEED OF EXPLANATION OR ELUCIDATION TO THOSE WHO ONCE GET THE BOOK IN THEIR HANDS.

THE SALESMAN PROCESS IS SIMPLE: GIVE A CUSTOMER A BOOK TO LOOK AT, THEN REACH FOR THE COUPONS AND BONDS WITH ONE HAND AND FOR A VOLUNTARY WRAPPED AND BOXED FOR MAILING WITH THE OTHER.

The words which may have seemed a puzzle to you when you started this pursuit are defined thusly: Isard, another name for the lily; simous, sub-nosed; yapoek, a South American acorn; sunk, a squirrel-like rodent; wow-wow, a Japanese ape; xeraxis, a scalp disease; menicus, a crescent; isothermal, having the same mean summer temperature; parachrynos, pertaining to spongy; selenium, a metallic substance resembling lead; transubstantiation, a religious doctrine explained briefly in the dictionary.

FARMERS WILL BE BENEFITTED

Minister of Agriculture Make Important Changes

ASSISTING THE FARMER

Hon. Martin Ballantyne Provides Additional Facilities for Experiment Farming in East and West.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—Sinn Hon. Martin Ballantyne has resumed office as Minister of Agriculture he has been devoting a great deal of time and attention to reorganizing the experimental farms throughout Canada and to making them of more real value to the farmers of Canada. The work of the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa has been strengthened by the addition to the staff of a field husbandman, an animal husbandman, and an agriculturist. A specialist has also been appointed to take charge of forage plant work.

More Breeding. Some additional work has also been done along the line of investigating horse breeding and the feeding of steers with a view to giving information as to the relative value of the different breeds of cattle and of feeding in profitable and profitable. Small herds of Holsteins and Jerseys have also been added to the list of breeds maintained so that representatives of all the best-known dairy breeds of cattle kept in Canada are now to be found at the Central Experimental Farm. By these additions to the staff it is hoped that valuable work will be done along lines of agriculture of interest and value to the farmer generally.

Better Facilities. At some of the experimental farms it was found that important branches of agricultural work had not been taken up owing to the lack of facilities. For instance, live stock is an important industry in Alberta, and yet it was found at the Lacombe farm there were no facilities for carrying on any work in this connection. An additional tract of land has been secured, and from now on the necessary aids will be given to live stock.

At Keatville, N.S. New buildings are being erected at the experimental farm at Keatville, N.S., and splendid work has been done under the new Superintendent, W. S. Blair, formerly professor of agriculture at MacDonald College. It is expected that the work done at this farm in fruit growing and other branches of agriculture will be of the greatest benefit to the people not only of Annapolis and Cornwallis valleys, but in the other districts where fruit growing is not a specialty.

In St. John Valley. The land for a new experimental farm has been acquired at Fredericton, N.B., and the preliminary work has been outlined. This farm will particularly serve the St. John valley and will no doubt do much to promote the welfare of all branches of agriculture.

Dated Sept. 30th, 1912. S. R. ARMSTRONG, Clerk.

A communication was received from Mr. T. Hurley, asking the council to pay Mr. P. Moncrief's bill, for $8.40 for grading Ford Ave. This the Council refused to do, it not being a public highway. The council then adjourned until the call of the next meeting.

LED AN EVENTFUL LIFE; DIES AT 102

Stolen in London When a Child, Man Finds Parents in Texas. Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 3.—An unusual life story is brought to light here by the death Tuesday afternoon of Rufus M. Westbrook, aged 102. Stolen from the London docks when a child, he finally drifted to Tennessee, where, hearing of a couple named Westbrook in Maury county, he visited them to see if they could be related. They were his father and mother.

He served in the early Indian wars, the Mexican and Civil wars, receiving a medal from congress for bravery in the Mexican conflict. In times of peace he was a steamboat man on the Mississippi, Ohio and Cumberland rivers, finally retiring at the age of 94. At one time he was on the Boston.

PRICKLY PEARS.

Est Them as Indians Do If You Like Their Peculiar Placen.

Nobody but an Indian knows how to eat a prickly pear. The fruit grows on the edge of a thick green leaf and bristles with myriads of closely set thorns, sharp as needles and line as hairs. Though they cannot be seen with the naked eye, they can certainly be felt, as any one who has tried the usual method of picking them with a pocket handkerchief can testify. The fine thorns penetrate the fingers, and the flesh swells, festers, becomes itched and, if neglected, often develops into a serious case of blood poisoning.

When an Indian wants to eat it he cuts a small stick, sharpens it and thrusts the point into the ripe fruit, slicing off the pear with a sharp knife and holding it on the stick, he peels it, taking care to avoid touching the rind with his fingers. He drops the peel on the ground to the bitter sorrow of any barefoot boy who happens to step on it.

A liking for cactus fruit may be acquired, like the taste for olives, but it is not likely to rival the cantaloupe or even the humble grapefruit in popular favor. It resembles cracked walnut shells mottled with water, mixed with mawd and cork and sprinkled with brown sugar, a little lemon juice and a dash of quinine. Any one who tastes it once is satisfied to let the Indian gather the entire crop.

Cycle in War.
The British authorities are beginning to take serious notice of the possibilities involved in the use of the cycle in war. A great advance has been made of late in its employment for purposes of defense at home, in proof of which is only necessary to refer to the increase in the number of purely cycle battalions maintained in the Territorial Force. But abroad and beyond that is the information contained in the new "War Establishments," which shows an increase in the number of bicycles in the regular army, and a greater recognition of the motor cycle. A cavalry division has now 16 motor cycles and 871 ordinary bicycles, as against 118 of the latter hitherto. All this is very encouraging to those enthusiasts who have hitherto not with a somewhat cold reception from the military authorities in the advocacy of the cycle.

Queen Had Confidence in Him.
Queen Victoria showed her confidence in Sir Dighton Probyn by appointing him Keeper of her Privy Purse. He was also Comptroller and Treasurer to the late King Edward, when Prince of Wales, and in recognition of the present King, Sir Dighton, in accordance with a special desire, attached himself to Queen Alexandra, and is always in attendance on her on state occasions. Few men can boast of such a record of service, and were the venerable courtier to write the story of his "Life" it would prove one of the most interesting documents on record.

In Boston.
"No doubt she is very charming in her way, but I can't remember when I've seen a person of pretensions so lacking in culture."
"Dear me, what has she done?"
"Why, she persistently and invariably neglects to sound the 'r' in 'food'."
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Summer's Bright Luncheon.
This is the summer time's happy place, "O'er tonight and tomorrow."
After a brace of unseasonable days "O'er tonight and tomorrow."
Then, though my bed is beginning to balk, O'er in the hope of the morrow, I take me to my couch, and I find when I wake "Warmer, with southern winds."
—New York Mail.

Ah, Yes, Too True!
"I can't understand why you wish to lavish your affection on a dog. Why don't you adopt a child?"
"Oh, I should be afraid to become fond of a child. If it should die one couldn't have it stuffed and put in a corner of the library, you know."
—Judge.

A Good Memory.
I remember, I remember, The first where I was born, Where all collectors came around From the first peep of morn. The landlady was a funny man. He used to wait his pay, And so when I was three months old We had to move away.
—Pittsburgh Post.

Swordsmanship Against a Tiger.
Mr. James Outram, known as the Bayard of India, was a "mighty hunter" and an accomplished swordsman. He once performed the hazardous feat of killing a tiger with his sword and from the back of his horse. General Wiseman performed a similar feat. He rode round and round the tiger at a gallop, gradually narrowing the circle until at last he was near enough to deliver his blow. He had only the one blow and if he had failed would have been slain. The explanation of the feat is that the tiger does not spring upon the hunter from the side, but from the front, because he is watching his opportunity. As the circle drew closer and closer upon him he became bewildered by the strange maneuver, so unlike that of any hunter he has ever encountered.

Wellington's Integrity.
The Duke of Wellington was noted for his right integrity. Here is an instance which occurred in reference to his large estate. Some time ago he was negotiating for the purchase of a house. Having concluded the purchase, he went to the duke and told him he had made a capital bargain. "What do you mean?" asked the duke. "Why, your grace, I have got the farm for so much, and I know it to be worth at least so much more." "Are you quite sure of that?" "Quite sure, your grace, for I have carefully surveyed it." "Very well, then; pay the gentleman from me the balance between what you have already given and the real value of the estate."

An Earl and His Limb.
"The late Lord Dufferin," says W. H. Ridding in "Many Celebrities," "came to us to luncheon very late one day, and after he had apologized to the hostess he whispered to me that he had been detained by the late Earl of Kimberley. 'A wonderful man—a fascinating man! It is amazing how much he knows. He knows everything—everything—all the corners of the earth and all the men in it. Except a pause—except when to stop.'"

THE MARKET

Liverpool and Chicago Wheat Futures Close Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Estimates that the United States this season had produced next to the largest wheat crop ever grown, cooled bullish ardor today in regard to trouble in the Balkans. Nevertheless, the market closed steady at 46c to 46c advance over last night. Corn finished 1/2c to 1/2c up, oats with a gain of 1/2c to 1/2c, and provisions closed by 1/2c to 1/2c.

The grain markets were strong yesterday, being influenced by the Balkan war scare. Wheat futures at Liverpool closed 1/2c to 1/2c higher than on Tuesday. Antwerp 1/2c higher, Budapest 1/2c higher, Paris 1/2c higher, and Berlin 1/2c higher.

Y.W.C.A. NOTES.

The prospective is out, and anyone who is interested in the classes to be held during the winter will receive a copy if they call at the office between 9:30 a.m. and 9:30 p.m. The classes are to be varied and highly instructive, and it is hoped they will be taken advantage of by the young women of Peterborough. The first Mission Study class will be held on Friday, Oct. 4th, at 8 p.m. Subject "The Incoming People."

Old Resident of Asphodel Gone

A life-long resident of the township of Asphodel, in the person of Mrs. Mary Kerr, passed away at the age of 80 years. She was unmarried and is survived by her mother, three brothers and four sisters. The brothers are Michael, James and John, of Asphodel, and the sisters Mrs. Thomas Booth, of Westwood, Mrs. Michael McManus, of Down, Mrs. J. J. Davis, East City, and Mrs. Henry Kellott, city. The funeral proceeded to St. Paul's Roman Catholic church, Norwood, on Saturday and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Bridge Did Not Break the Main.

It now seems that the big Lindsay water main, at the bottom of the Bengo River, which was broken last week, was evidently not damaged by the Government dredge as at first intimated in the Lindsay press. A diver located the break, but nothing as yet goes to show that the break was caused by the dredge. Possibly one of the stumps striking that classic stream became unmoored and drifted across the pipe.

Well Known Society Lady is Leaving

Mrs. H. D. Burnett who has occupied Mr. D. W. Dunlop's splendid residence and grounds for some time past expects to leave on Monday to join her husband. In the interim Mrs. Burnett expects to stop at the Snowden Home. This lady, whose departure from Peterborough will be generally regretted, shipped a car load of furniture per C.P.R. to Montreal yesterday.

Local Man's Nephew and Lord Milner.

Lindsay Post: "Prof. Ed. Kyle, of Toronto University staff, left for St. John, Newfoundland, on Wednesday, to meet Lord Milner, who is expected to arrive in that port this week. He will then start on a tour through Canada, accompanied by Prof. Kyle. The object of Lord Milner's visit has not been made public. Prof. Kyle is a nephew of Mr. John Kyle, the Hunter street shoe dealer of this city."

Barwood Leaves Save the Grass.

Mr. Maguire, caretaker of Victoria Park, informed the Times that this breathing spot will be kept open for another month. He noted incidentally that keeping the fallen leaves raked up is not altogether for preventing a tidy appearance. He remarked that the leaves, particularly of the tall barwood trees, keep the blades of grass cutters from doing their work as effectively as though the grass sward were covered with carpets or cloth. This park has been well kept during the past summer.

Local Option to Be Tried Here.

Peterborough is to go through the throes of a local option campaign this winter. This is the final verdict of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance. Below is given a list of the municipalities in which local option is to be tested, viz.: Arthur township, Arthur village, Aurora, Bannock, Bastard and Burgess, Bayfield, Blyth, Brock township, Brunsell, Burleigh and Anstruther townships, Clinton, Drummond township, Dutton, Easthope North, Easthope South, Elms Township, Essex Front, Exeter, Fergus, Fitcher township, Glenora, Kincardine, King township, Lindsay, Markdale, McKillop township, Menford, Montague township, Morris, Mount Forest, Newboro, Nicol township, North Gower township, Okawa, Peterborough, Port Stanley, Springfield, Stephen township, Walkerton, Westport, Whitby, Wingham, Oakville, Orville, Georgetown.

FUNERAL AT OMEECE OF M'CAFFREY FAMILY

On Monday, the little village of Omeece was practically a place of mourning. The funeral of the unfortunate M'CAFFREY family, drowned in the Omeece river on Saturday, was held from the family residence to the family cemetery in one long grave. Rev. P. Wilkinson, rector of St. Peter's church, Carlton and Blecker streets, Toronto, where the M'CAFFREY family worshipped, assisted in the service. A number of friends of the family from Toronto were present. Mrs. Seager, mother of Mrs. Wm. M'CAFFREY, was reported at 16 South Drive as progressing favorably under the circumstances. Mrs. Seager has been suffering from heart trouble for several months, and it was on this account that Mr. M'CAFFREY did not take his family to his former home during the summer. When Miss Salter, a trained nurse and daughter of Mrs. Seager, who is now in attendance on her mother, was able to come to Toronto, the M'CAFFREY family were able to go to Omeece.

POWERS MAY TAKE REVENGE ON CHIEF.

London, Oct. 1.—With reference to the loss dispute, the Pekin correspondent of the Times Wednesday predicts a demand by the powers for the resumption next year of the indemnity payments and a settlement of the arrears, amounting to $28,000,000. Failing in this, they may insist on taking over the administration of the salt tax.

Isolation Hospital Board Meets.

A meeting of the Queen Mary (Isolation) Hospital was held on Tuesday afternoon. Those present were Mayor Bradburn, Ald. Duncan and Dr. Halliday. Some accounts were ordered paid. Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., submitted a report for September, and recommended that the salary of Miss Wray, nurse in attendance, be increased $5 per month. The report also referred to the damp condition of the basement of the hospital, and stated that it was unfit for sleeping in, and that the help were now occupying the diphtheria ward. There are at present five patients in the hospital.

TIMBER FOR SALE.

TENDERS will be received up to and including the first day of October 1912, for the right to cut white and red pine and spruce, on two timber tracts on the upper waters of the Joeko River east of the townships of Garrow and Lockhart, in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, the tracts being designated "Joeko No. 1" and "Joeko No. 2," each containing twenty-five square miles more or less.

For maps and conditions of sale apply to the undersigned.
W. H. HEARST,
Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines
Toronto, July 17th, 1912.

SEALED TENDERS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Harbour Improvements at Whitty, Ont.," will be received at this office until 4:00 P.M., on Tuesday, October 22, 1912, for the construction of a Stone Concrete Esplanade Wall at Whitty Harbour, in the Township of Whitty, County of Ontario, Ont.

Plans, specification and form of contract, can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this department and at the office of J. G. Sing, Esq., District Engineer, Consolidated Life Building, Toronto, Ont.; H. J. Lamb, Esq., District Engineer, Windsor, Ont., and on application to the Postmaster at Whitty, Ont.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the contract. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

Desire—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption, six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate 50 acres arable.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $300.00.

W. W. CORY,
Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the Department will not be paid for it.

LADY ABERDEEN'S ARMY.

Her Forces Are Doing Great Work For Ireland.

This is an age of organized social reform, and there was never a time when women were doing more valuable work for the community. The Women's National Health Association of Ireland may be described as a social welfare army with her headquarters in the Continent of Aberdeen in command. Detachments are stationed all over the country. One hundred and fifty branches or battalions are engaged in teaching disease, poverty, misery, and dirt. Twenty thousand women are enrolled under the banner of health and hope, and it would be difficult to over-estimate the value to Ireland of these women's work.

Ireland, half a dozen years ago, was virgin soil in the sense that there was no definite philanthropic organization for tackling the problems of fever, infant mortality, and public health. Any remedies were merely palliative. Preventive work had not been started. The infant mortality and tuberculosis death rates were apalling.

So Lady Aberdeen started babies' clubs, and a pasteurized milk depot for supplying pure milk in Dublin.
In the poorest quarters of the city, places were named by the association to be used as "clubs." Voluntary helpers and trained nurses were obtained, and the good offices of the doctors were enlisted. Thus the preventive work for infant mortality was organized on a professional basis. The association begins with the babies and the mothers in its health campaign, and rightly too. By the education of motherhood and the protection of infancy this problem can best be solved.

But its energies are extended in all directions. Just lately the children's playgrounds scheme has come into being. Dervish spaces in the abandoned parts of the city are being transformed into garden playgrounds for the babies and the children with accompanying success. St. Monica's Playground was opened a little while ago by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and the children of that neighborhood are happy to regard Lady Aberdeen as their friend.

The part now is to be the formation of a boys' camp on the site of Vineyard Market, at present a place of dumping refuse, building houses, crooked lamp posts, huge heaps of stones, tin cans, and refuse of all kinds. Lady Aberdeen has secured it at a nominal rent. It is to be entirely cleared and made into a camp where destitute boys from crowded homes will live and sleep, going by day to their work or their schools and returning in the evening to a veritable boy scout's paradise. The effect of a multiplication of such camps upon the questions of juvenile crime, hooliganism, and delinquency is surely self-evident.

A great deal has already been said and written about the tuberculosis campaign of the Women's Health Association of Ireland. People are fairly familiar with the propaganda of the association. They are aware that sanatoria have been constructed; that traveling health caravans tour all over Ireland, teaching the laws of health and hygiene to the people. The association also provides nurses for the treatment of consumptive patients in their homes under a system of voluntary notification.

As a result of the work, the deathrate from tuberculosis is the lowest recorded since 1864, when the registration of deaths was introduced.

I haven't got much filthy cash,
A lone two dollar bill,
But I shall send it to the wash
And put it through the mill.

Any Headaches Cured, Tired Systems Re-Toned

When You're Tired, Restless Day and Night, Something is Wrong in the Stomach.

A Prominent Publishing Man Says
the Quickest Cure is Dr.
Hamilton's Pills.

Headaches never come to those who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and this fact is vouched for by the Assistant Manager of the Poultry Success Magazine, of Springfield, O., Mr. J. H. Caldwell, who writes: "No better medicine than Dr. Hamilton's Pills. We use them regularly and know of marvelous cures that resisted everything else. They cleanse the whole system, act as a tonic on the blood, enliven digestion, help the stomach, and make you feel strong and well. For headaches, indigestion and stomach disorders I am confident that the one prescription is Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Being composed of natural vegetable remedies, Dr. Hamilton's Pills possess great power, yet they are harmless. They aid all organs connected with the stomach, liver and bowels. In consequence food is properly digested, the blood is pure and nourishing, the body is kept strong and resists disease. All druggists and storekeepers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box, 5 for $1.00, or by mail from the Cataract House Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Local Schools Will Celebrate.
To commemorate the centenary of Sir Isaac Brock, who fell at the bat-

13, 1812, a Provincial wide celebration has been decided upon and the occasion will be observed in the

He says he would sooner live on a

Organs Removed from St. Andrew's.

of removing the old organ from St.
Andrew's church. This is preparatory to installation of the new organ that it is expected will be in use by the first Sunday in December.

Nose Broken by Kick of Horse.
Mr. L. Bennett is in the surgical ward of Nicholls Hospital suffering with a broken nose and fractured cheek bone. The damage resulted from the kick of a horse. It seems that Mr. Bennett, while ploughing, stooped to pick something from the ground when one of the horses lashed out with its foot.

A Correction.
In our issue of Monday, in the police court news, by mistake, the name of a delinquent arrested for being drunk was given as "Charles" Armstrong of Havelock. The name should have read William Armstrong.
It is only due to Mr. Armstrong to make the above explanation and to offer our apologies to that gentleman for the error.

Signal Corps Inspected.
The annual inspection of the signalling corps of the 57th regiment was concluded Wednesday night at the armouries. Lieut. Stroud of the permanent force Signalling Corps, stationed at Kingston, was the inspecting officer for the occasion.
Lieut. Brichman was in charge of the corps, which passed a most satisfactory inspection.

Better Prepare for Trouble.
This fall, the Peterborough householder who wants stove pipes put up had better read a few chapters of the Book of Job and reconcile himself to sweating and fuming over abraded points that will not join. Local hardware men and tinmiths are so busy that at least two of them will not have a man available for such work for weeks to come.

Police Station Nears Completion.
The police sergeants' quarters have been removed to the renovated station on Water street, where the improvements are rapidly approaching completion. The furniture and telephone are installed and the heating is already in working order. The cages for the prisoners are also in the cells and for the past few days offenders have been placed there.

Minden Boy Gets Leg Broken.
A serious accident occurred at Minden on Saturday when Percy, a young son of Mr. John Kellett, in some way got his leg caught in the wagon wheel. Before the horse could be stopped the little lad's leg was badly jammed. A doctor was summoned and it was found that the bone of his thigh was broken in two places.

Spring Maid at the Grand.

Last night a large audience at the Grand Opera House was delighted with the dainty production of the famous Viennese operetta "The

A Local Athletic Record Broken.

The jumping events in connection with the P.C.I. annual Field days were held on Wednesday afternoon at Riverside Park. Only one record was broken, and this was accomplished by Meredith Huycke, who raised the record for the senior running hop, step and jump from 37 ft.
6 in. to 38 ft. 6 in. All of the competitions were closely contested and an interesting two hours was afforded the fifty Collegiate students present.

Water in Stoney Lake is High.

Reports have been industriously circulated throughout the city that the water in Stoney Lake is at present very low, in fact so low that an evident hint of lack of proper conservation is noticeable. In view of those reports, The Times called upon Superintendent McCallan yesterday and made enquiries. As a result we find that the water in Stoney Lake is today nine inches higher than the average depth during the past few years and nineteen inches higher than at the corresponding season of last year.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear.
There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing,
and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out, and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars catarrh) that cannot be cured by culars, free.

A Fishy Arrest at Lindsay.
Constable Thornbury of Victoria County, made a plucky arrest, just outside the city limits of Lindsay, on Wednesday. It seems that a man named Sherman had quit the House of Refuge and had decided to return to his old status of "vag."
This man had once been the best of former Chief of Police Vincent of Lindsay, when that officer tried to arrest him. Acting Chief Short on learning that Sherman was on his way to Kilmount, and that the farmers feared for their barns, got into communication with Constable Thornbury. That officer arrested Sherman single handedly. Sherman was given six months in the Central

Every Little While There's Going to be a Mellon Cut

The public seldom has a chance to invest in the stock of a garage company.

Garage companies are generally closed corporations, the stock in which pays enormous dividends.

There is splendid profit in the sale of automobile parts, lubricating oils, gasoline, carbide and tires, and in repairing, washing and polishing cars, accessories, replacing parts, etc.

The storage of cars is "found" money—nearly all profit.

The Automobile Livery business pays handsome dividends and is good the year round.

We are going to have an automobile company in Toronto that will make money, filling a long-felt need. For a fair charge your car will be called for, kept replete with supplies and brought to you just minutes after your request by telephone. Your car will no longer be subject to the ravages of dust, heat or rain, or the danger of accident of police fines for standing too long at the curb.

This Company is going to pay big dividends, and every little while there is going to be a Mellon cut. Here is your only chance of being on the books for the regular allotment of dividends.

We are Sole Selling Agents for the stock of the CENTRAL GARAGE & SUPPLY CO., LIMITED, OF TORONTO, and we have for you now in this the company that you might want before purchasing stock. The names of the Directors are given, as well as facts regarding the forming of the Company, its plans for a new building on Temperance and Sheppard Streets, the purposes of the Company, its possibilities and assurances. To rouse your interest and to give you an abundance of confidence RIGHT NOW, let us tell you that the CENTRAL GARAGE AND SUPPLY CO., LIMITED, have been appointed the Ontario General Agents for all lines of Abbott-Detroit Motor Cars, which are now being demonstrated and sold at temporary premises, 269 King

There was a Man In Our Town and he was wondrous wise--

You couldn't fool him, Oh no!

He had drank coffee for years. Coffee didn't hurt him.

But the Bump Came

Many a man is pretty sure that while coffee may hurt others it don't hurt him--till the bump comes.

But when headache, frazzled nerves, an irritable heart, indigestion, and sleeplessness begin to "get him" he's apt to look around for a reason.

The reason is plain when a change is made from coffee to

POSTUM

This pleasant table drink much resembles real Java coffee in flavor, but is free from "caffeine" (the drug found in coffee) or any other harmful substance.

POSTUM, made from choice Northern wheat, and the juice of Southern sugar cane, has put many former coffee drinkers on the Road to Wellville.

COMES A TIME

When Tea and Coffee show what they have been doing

"Of late years coffee has disagreed with me," writes a friend from Boston, N.Y.
"Its highest punishment being to make me 'foggy' and dinky, and it seemed to thicken up my blood. (Tea is just as harmful as coffee, because it contains caffeine, the drug found in coffee.)"

"The heaviest was when it upset my stomach completely, destroying my appetite and making me nervous and irritable, and sent me to my bed. After one of these attacks in which I nearly lost my life, I concluded to quit the coffee and try Postum."

"It was right to the spot! I found it not only a most palatable and refreshing beverage, but a food as well."
"All my ailments, the 'foginess' and dizziness, the nervous condition of my blood, my uneasiness and irritability disappeared in short order and my sorely afflicted stomach began quickly to recover. I began to rebuild and have steadily continued until now. Have a good appetite and am rejoicing in sound health which I owe to the use of Postum." Name given by Canadian Postum

OBITUARY.

William Strain.

There passed away at Toronto, on Wednesday, an old and respected resident of Peterborough, in the person of Mr. William Strain. The funeral takes place from his residence in Toronto to-day, the remains will be conveyed to Whitby and interment will take place in the Whitby cemetery. Those left to mourn his loss are his sorrowing wife and daughter, and also three sisters, residing in Toronto.

WEDDING BELLS.

Dugan-Nagant.

All Saints church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday night. This charming event was the marriage of Miss Mary Laranda, Na-gant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas.
Nagant, Peterborough, who was united to Mr. Wm. Dugan, of North
Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R.
Dugan. Miss Gertrude M. Nagant, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and the groom was attended by her brother, Mr. Harry Nagant. The ceremony was performed by the Rev.
R. Grobb, rector.

Mr. and Mrs. Dugan will reside with the latter's parents, North Smith.

All accounts due and owing the Es-

MR. GEO. GRAHAM WINS THE SUIT IN TORONTO

Special to The Times.
Mr. Geo. Graham, proprietor of Mr. Graham won this case in the lo-was claimed. At yesterday's court, at Osgoode Hall, Mr. Graham again won his case, and it is understood, will thus be in possession of the Oriental until the present House, at least expires, on May 1st next.

SHOCKING MARINE DISASTER

Boat Cut in Halves

END OF TURKISH-ITALIAN WAR

Turkey Agrees To Italy's Terms

FELL TO THEIR DEATH

WAR WITH ITALY IS OVER, IT HAD LASTED FOR 388 DAYS

Report of Signing of Peace Agreement in Switzerland—Was a One-Sided Affair Over the Laxity of Turkish Rule in Tripoli

New York, Oct. 4.—War between Italy and Turkey came to an end by the signing of peace articles in Switzerland yesterday. Italy's campaign against Turkey has been one of almost unbroken successes for the former country and of reverses for the latter since the Rome Government declared war, Sept. 11, 1911.

The fighting was necessarily by sea. Italy had a formidable navy. Turkey's few ships were obsolete and dilapidated. Naturally the conflict was one-sided.

Within a few hours after the declaration of hostilities, a torpedo boat squadron under the Duke of Abruzzi had sunk all the Turkish war craft in Provenza Harbor. The bombardment and occupation of the coast towns of Tobruk and Tripoli speedily followed. Then Italian troops landed at Tobruk, Derna, Benghazi and Homs.

The advance into the interior was slow but steady. There was considerable fighting, but the Italians uniformly won. Here and there more Turkish warships were sunk. The entrance to the Dardanelles was temporarily closed by the Turks. Several Turkish islands were captured. The Sultan retreated by expelling all Italians from Turkey.

Arabs May Fight On.

At present the Italians control the entire Tripolitan coast, but there are considerable forces of Turks and Arabs still in arms in the interior. It is understood that under the reported peace agreement the Sultan will withdraw the Turks and use his influence with the Arabs to submit to Italian rule.

Italy has conducted the war from the national savings without increasing taxes or borrowing abroad. The campaign has cost Italy 1000 lives. Hostilities were declared on the ground that the laxity and corruption of Turkish rule were retarding the Italian development of Tripoli.

BD. OF WORKS STILL IN BUSINESS DISPUTE---ITS LACK OF FUNDS

The City's Board of Works met last night with Chairman Ald. Buller presiding. There were also present Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Gillespie, Duncan and Graham. During the session Ald. Buller stated that the additional $1500, granted the Board by Council for this year's needs had already been spent. Whether the chairman was in earnest or not is an open question. Ald. Buller further stated that he could quite conveniently spend the year's original appropriation of $19,000 a second time this season were he to prosecute the work needed from his department.

On suggestion of Alderman Buller, the flag will be half-masted over the city buildings to-day in memory of the late Mr. Peter Hamilton, whose funeral takes place this afternoon.

The road on Concession street, where a sewer was recently laid, will on suggestion of Ald. Gillespie, be put into passable shape at once.

The Bell Telephone Co.'s request for permission to erect a pole on Douglas street, was referred to the engineer to report. Their request for two poles on Sherbrook street was granted.

The engineer was instructed to report on Chas. C. Nixon's demand that the water which flows from the Mooghan road to Rivier street, and thence to his property, must be provided for, so as to remove the nuisance.

Mr. Beattie's request that the ditch on Concession street, East City near the C.P.R. track, be filled in to abate present nuisance to his property, again came up before the Board. No money being forthcoming to warrant doing a good job in this connection, the matter was left over till next spring in the interests of all concerned.

The engineer reported in regard to repairing sidewalk on Hunter street, south side, immediately west of the bridge. Mr. Deakman, manager of the Quaker Oats, had consented to defray the cost of lowering the grade to the necessary level both sides of the sidewalk. This proposition was accepted and the board will prosecute the work.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee build the Board of Works with $293.50 for home. This account was side-tracked for the present. Ald. Buller hopes to have a contrary account of $400 against the Fire, Water and Light Department, for rent of the Board of Works' horse monopolized by the fire department. Dated, Sept. 20th, a letter from Mr. Duncanson, of the G.N.W. Telegraph Co., stated that work on removing their poles from George street would be started in a few days. Board decided to again write Mr. Duncanson enquiring what has caused the further delay from Sept. 20th to date.

Mr. Lynch, of the Grand Trunk, will be corresponded with in regard to the delay in the company's laying a drain pipe beneath their Port Hope track at Romine street, to permit of the city providing adequate surface drainage in that locality.

SLEW BEST FRIEND TO SAVE OWN LIFE

Atlanta Policemen Fight a Duel to the Death.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 4.—When J. W. Camp, a bicycle policeman, and S. A. Belding, a patrolman, roommates became angered this morning over a trivial matter, both reached for their loaded revolvers lying on a bureau in their room. Camp was the quicker by the finger of an eye and ended the quarrel with a bullet, killing his friend instantly. They had roomed together four years.

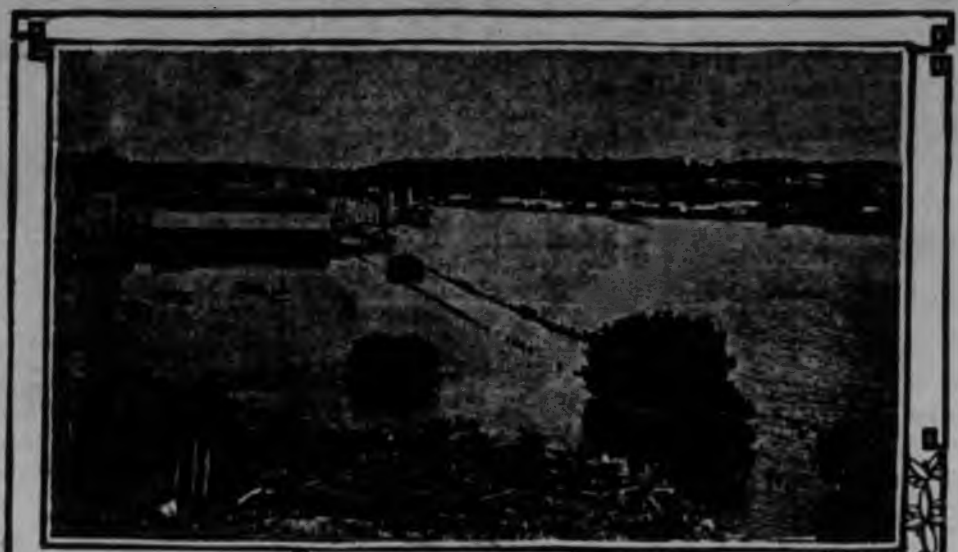

A patrolman on the beat found Officer Camp sitting by Belding's body. "It's all right," said Camp. "I've just been forced to kill my best friend. It's awful, isn't it? But I had to kill him to save myself."

Camp said Belding has asked him to move a piece of furniture, and that when he did not comply quickly enough Belding became angry.

PRESIDENT TAFT ORDERS AMERICAN MARINES TO SANTO DOMINGO

Santo Domingo Harbor.

In its role of policeman of Central America the administration is now advancing to Santo Domingo. President Taft ordered 750 marines and a commission of inquiry to Santo Domingo.

The revolutionists have captured custom houses on the Haitian-Dominican border which are administered by the American customs receiver appointed under the American-Dominican treaty of 1907. The marines will if necessary land, retake and protect the custom houses. The border patrol, established when the United States first created a fiscal protectorate in Santo Domingo, will immediately be resumed.

With the marines will go Brigadier General Frank McIntyre, chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, War Department, and W. T. S. Boyle, chief of the Latin American division of the State Department, under instructions to report on the entire Dominican situation. The United States is again on the brink of intervention. At Washington it is believed the administration is correct, tyrannical, inefficient and unpopular with seventy-five per cent of the citizens of the republic.

OATS HIGHER IN CANADA

Peterboro Firm Buys in States Because Canadian Farmers are Receiving More Than American—Reciprocity Would Have Caused Slump in Canada

"The Quaker Oats Company have been buying oats in the United States for some time," said Mr. T. H. G. Danne, the grain buyer, to a representative of The Toronto News, "purely because the grain so purchased is cheaper than it is in Canada."

"Two weeks ago a train load was received at the local factory.

"At that time September cash oats were selling in Chicago for 34 cents per bushel of 56 pounds, while Canadian October oats were quoted at 37 cents for 54 pounds at Fort William."

The freight rates between these two points and the seaboard is practically the same. The company has just received another train load of American oats.

The market quotations at the time of the interview, were:

Cash oats, Winnipeg 46 cents
Cash oats, Chicago 34 cents.

Does this indicate in any way that the Canadian farmer is suffering for a "wider" market? Does it not prove conclusively that he has the best market in the world right at his own door?

ANNUAL SPORTS OF COLLEGIATE

Balance of Collegiate Institute Sports Were Most Successful

Yesterday afternoon, under the golden rays of an October sun some three hundred people turned out to Hiverside Park to see the balance of the annual sports of the Collegiate Institute. The audience included many of the fair sex who took much interest in the proceedings. Every event was carried out promptly and without a hitch or dispute. The young men participating in the various events are all sturdy specimens of husky young Canadians, some of whom, as the years pass by will undoubtedly be heard from in athletic circles. The events were held under auspices of the P.C.I. Athletic Association. The committee are indebted to the following gentlemen:

GIANT ATLANTIC LINER CUTS A SUBMARINE IN TWO PIECES

Accident Happened Near Dover, When Six Submarines Were Manoeuvring—S.S. America Threw Out Lifebuoys in Vain—Sixth Submarine Tragedy in the British Navy

Dover, Oct. 4.—The British submarine "B2" was run down by the Hamburg-American steamer America here to-day. It sank at once, drowning fourteen of the crew. The officer in charge was rescued.

The disaster in which the "B2" was sunk occurred while the third patrol flotilla of submarines, consisting of six vessels, was manoeuvring off the south foreland on the coast of Kent.

The liner America appears to have cut the submarine completely in halves.

Only One Survivor.

Lieut. Richard I. Pulleyne, who was second in command, was the only man among the crew of fifteen who was saved. He was found floating in the sea, too exhausted to say more when he was rescued than:

"THE SUBMARINE IS CUT IN TWO. I WENT DOWN A MILE."

Nothing has been heard from the America up to the present. The "B2" had left Dover harbor at 5 o'clock this morning to participate with the other submarines in a series of manoeuvres. The accident occurred just an hour later although none of the other submarines knew anything about it until Lieut. Pulleyne was picked up from the sea.

The young Lieut. collapsed after he was taken from the water and conveyed to the parent ship.

Searched Sea for Hours.

The liner America stood by after the collision and threw lifebuoys overboard while a number of torpedo boats after being informed of the accident by wireless telegraphy searched the sea for hours. None of the other members of the crew, however, was found and no sign of the less mass. Howland landed on top of wreckage was discernable in the distance.

ity. The America then proceeded on her voyage to Southampton and Cherbourg on her way to New York. This is the sixth disaster to British submarines, each of them involving the loss of from 11 to 15 lives. Lieut. Percy B. O'Brien was the commander of "B2."

FELL 500 FEET TO THEIR DEATH

Tusculum, Ala., Oct. 4.—a dangling rope from a balloon caught the leg of Lorenzo Howland, fifteen years old, as it ascended, manned by H. G. Petty, who was making his first flight here yesterday. The boy hung on until 500 feet up when both fell to their death with an unopened parachute.

The boy was enmeshed several feet above Petty when the bag righted for its ascent and several hundred spectators heard the noise of the parachute as it opened and saw the boy and the balloon pitching and losing, got down to the trapeze on the parachute. Immediately after he gained a hold on the rope Petty cut loose and the two shot downward.

Anxious friends of the boy had watched his perilous manoeuvre on the side of the balloon expecting momentarily to see him fall from the ropes and they took hope for a moment after the parachute left the balloon. But the big parachute never opened and the two occupants were dashed to the ground a mass of bones. Howland landed on top of Petty and both met instant death.

A STINGING REPLY

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., Answers Hon. Geo. P. Graham.

(Editor of the Morning Times)

Sir.—The Examiner gives a full account of the speech of the Hon. George P. Graham here the other night, when he was along with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on the Marriage question. According to The Examiner, Mr. Graham said that the Conservative and the Laurier Governments arrived at the same conclusion in the Marriage question, which is absolutely false as anybody can see who will take the trouble to read Hansard, the official parliamentary report, which can be got at the Public Library. If they will look up the index they will find exactly where the debate and the vote which resulted in the reference is. The truth is that the Laurier Government absolutely declined to consider the question at all, and did everything in its power to snuff out the attempt of the people of this country to get common justice, without reference to the tyrannical laws of any Church. The answer given by the Laurier Government to the question as to whether the Dominion Parliament had the right to enact marriage laws was absolutely in the negative. The answer given by the Horden Government and read to the House by Mr. Borden himself was absolutely in the affirmative, and when the time came to vote on the question as to whether the question should be referred to the Courts or not for decision in the matter, every Liberal in the House voted against submitting it to the Courts, but the Conservative majority prevailed, and it went to the Courts. Of the two important questions submitted, the one as to the power of Parliament to pass a Federal Marriage Law, was answered in the negative by both the Supreme Court and the Privy Council of England. The one which asked if Clergymen of all denominations had the power to marry people of all denominations in Quebec was answered by the Supreme Court in the affirmative, as everybody will remember, and was never considered by the Privy Council of England which, it will be remembered said they had nothing to do with it. It did not refer to the constitutional right of Parliament to pass a Federal Marriage Law, and therefore they refused to consider it. The net gain of the Horden Government's action has been that the people of Canada know exactly where they stand and exactly what their constitutional rights are which will enable them to agitate for the further freedom of the people from the dictation of any one class, in this respect at least.

The point which concerns Quebec is of such far reaching importance that no one can tell what the result will be. That result remains yet a hidden mystery, but the fact is that the law of Canada at the present time as interpreted by the Supreme Court, the highest Court in Canada, (and since the Privy Council will have nothing to do with it the final Court of resort) is that no one class of people in Quebec has a monopoly of marriage, or in other words, that anybody going before any clergyman, Roman Catholic or Protestant, is married, notwithstanding the faith of any of the parties. As it happens this last point is the very essence of the Lancaster Bill, and in so far as the Lancaster Bill was carried. How then can Mr. Graham or any other slanderers go about charging people who are asking for the common freedom of a common citizen with being mere whispering the bonds off for good and all. Unconscionable charge, and his description of affairs in the House is absolutely false. He wasn't there at the time, but that has made no difference to him, evidently, and on top of it all we have Mr. Sidney Fisher's "statement in the ink the other night that Sir Wilfrid Laurier acted as a "good Catholic Canadian" in his vote against the extension of Manitoba's boundaries, unless she bowed the knee to the religious authority. If Manitoba is to be governed in this way so in all Canada, I suppose, and the next thing we will hear is, if Sir Wilfrid Laurier should be returned to power, that being "a good Catholic Canadian," he deems it his duty to govern Canada in the interest of that body.

As a free man, I protest against the turn that things are taking in this country. If Canadians can't live in this young and broad country without being governed by any Church there will be a new French Revolution here which will result in tearing the bonds off for good and all.

Yours truly,

Throat Becomes Diseased From Neglecting Colds

Then Catarrh Sets in, Necessitates Drops into the Stomach, Coughing, Headaches and Debility Follow

That the best method of curing Catarrhal diseases consists in using Catarrhose is now freely admitted. Catarrhose is infinitely superior to cough medicines, tablets, sprays and emulsions, which for the most part are of no practical value except to ease the cough for the time being. Often liquid cough medicines contain opium, morphine and cocaine. With Catarrhose you take no drugs—you employ Nature's way—just inhale Catarrhose's soothing, healing vapor and relief and cure follow promptly.

Weak Throat, Racking Cough Cured.
"For five years I suffered from a severe bronchitis. A harsh, dry racking cough kept my throat in a raw condition from one year's end to another. Before going to sleep at night I always had a bad attack, and in the morning before each breakfast I suffered greatly. My voice was harsh and raspy, and sometimes I found it difficult to make myself understood. Catarrhose seemed to soothe and heal from the first day. It cured me and now I wouldn't think of being without a Catarrhose Inhaler—it means life to me."

The above experience is related by Mr. Alexander P. Savary, of Hamilton, Pa., and proves the effectiveness of Catarrhose, which will cure every cough, cold, bronchitis or catarrhal attack. The dollar size of Catarrhose contains two months' treatment and is guaranteed. Smaller size 50c, sample size 25c. All dealers or the Catarrhose Company, Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Oh, feel Mr. Post, Lindsay may yet be in the swaddling clothes of future growth, but those who attend its admirable fair, don't go for country air.

WOMAN AND TOWN PLANS

If there is one commission more than another on which would be useful, it would be a town planning commission, despite the opinion of some of the males who may have sat in Peterborough's town planning parlor. The ultimate ideal of the town planner is the home, and in the conduct and arrangement of that desirable institution the woman is the larger voice, except where she is interfered with by some officious and perspiring male.

WHY LAURIER ABANDONED HIS WESTERN TRIP.

When some time ago it was announced that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was planning to go west immediately and take that section of the country by storm his followers and the Liberal newspapers took heart, and acclaimed with great glee that the height of the White Plains would have the west at his feet before the moon had changed. A little later, when it was announced on behalf of Sir Wilfrid that he had abandoned his trip "for the time being," we were gravely told that the reason of this was that this is the busy time for the western farmers and that it was deemed advisable, therefore, to choose a "more opportune time." As though it were a new thing that the West was busy at harvest time.

The real fact of the matter is, says the Kingston Standard, that Sir Wilfrid's western trip was called off because in truth the time was decidedly "not opportune," the reason for this being that for some weeks past and continuing up to date cash wheat and cash oats in Winnipeg have been selling anywhere from 5 to 8 cents a bushel higher than in Minneapolis and Chicago, whose grain markets Sir Wilfrid insisted to the Canadian farmers in his reciprocity arguments would be of such inestimable value to them. For instance on Tuesday last, taking a fair average, September cash oats were quoted in Chicago at 32 cents for 32 lbs., and Canadian October oats at 37 cents for 34 lbs. in Fort William, the freight rates between these two points being practically the same to the seaboard. On the same day the Quaker Oats Company in Peterborough consigned a consignment of a solid train of freight cars loaded with oats—these oats, by the way, being American soft which, according to an official of the company, were brought in because it was wholly a matter of price, the statement being volunteered that, in order to keep the mills operating to take care of export business, it was necessary to buy the American product, since it was so much cheaper than the Canadian. More than that, it develops that another large American shipment is on the way and that the total of the two cargoes will be upwards of a quarter million bushels.

And that, putting it plainly, contains the explanation of Sir Wilfrid's Laurier's abandonment of his western trip—not, we mean, the incident of the purchase but the reasons leading to it, namely, the lower price of the American grain as compared with the Canadian. Fancy, Sir Wilfrid going west and telling the Canadian farmers what a Heaven-sent blessing the American market would be to them, when at the very moment the Canadian farmer is reaping in his own market from five to eight cents a bushel more for his product than the American farmer in this "desirable" American market!

And yet if Sir Wilfrid had had his way the Canadian market would have been thrown wide open to the American farmer, who would then have sold at whatever figure he might and cut the very ground from under the Canadian farmer's feet—have, in fact, taken the Canadian market away from its rightful owner, the Canadian farmer.

It is no wonder Sir Wilfrid abandoned his western trip.

THE ENGLISHMAN'S CRIMINAL FACTS.

Editor Morning Times.
Sir,—Because the Englishman voted against Laurier this is the worst of all the Catholic Register is giving him whenever it gets a chance. "What with Dr. Forbes Ross' statement about the Englishman's criminal fact, and the Star's fearful pun—the Englishman's house is his castle," poor John Bull has reason to cry out these days. "Save me from my friends."
The Register will find that if Sir Wilfrid treated Manitoba as a "good Catholic Canadian," that there are others and don't you forget it.

THAT EASTWOOD WALL

Editor Morning Times.
Sir,—I have no interest, directly or indirectly in the property on Hunter street, owned by Mr. I. Eastwood, which, some months ago was added to at the rear. You will remember that the Council stopped building operations because the contractor, Mr. Rutherford erected a wall not strictly in accordance with the specifications in the building permit. As I understand it, City Engineer Hay reported favorably. Now why should the Council not settle the matter right off the bat? Why should a building, right in the centre of the city look like a structure in some deserted village? What must the travelling public think of our town? Let the Council either order the wall torn down or let the owner complete the job.

A CHANCE FOR YOUR CHILDREN

All May Share in the Advantages Offered by the Times.

It matters not whether you are rich or poor, your children are deserving of the best education that is possible to give them in this land of free schools.

The Times is now offering to its readers in this great educational distribution a book that is acknowledged to be the foundation of all learning. This is Webster's New Illustrated Dictionary—a book for the school and for the home—a book of daily use to teacher and pupil alike. Other books will be cast aside when school is over, but this book will last forever.

A gentleman who has a national reputation in educational circles recently said: "There is extreme difficulty in securing any moderate degree of perfection in the use of correct English among school children. The teachers say that the incorrect use and spelling of words is the great set failing that they have to contend with among their pupils. In a recent canvass among business men, to determine what should be taught in the business course at high school, the majority of the men interviewed said, 'Teach English.' This is being done by the syndicate of newspapers that are distributing Webster's New Illustrated Dictionary.

Many questions are daily arising at home that should be answered at home in order to help the pupil at school. Every school child should have a copy of the Times wonderful book and every pupil should be permitted to secure one. A book that is the actual property of the one securing it, has a greater value than one that is only more or less temporarily in his possession. Let every pupil secure this book on the corner case explained on another page of this issue.

KILLED AGED MAN IN JEALOUS RAGE

Led of Seventeen Shoots Down Man Biting With His Girl Wife

Newport, Ark., Oct. 4.—Jack Austin, a timber worker, who was about sixty years of age, was shot and killed on the public road near the Coates place at about 9 o'clock Saturday morning by one Doc Cook, a seventeen-year-old boy, and son of W. O.

Make This the Test.

Eventually you will clean your house from top to bottom with the magic cleaner, RE-NU-ALL. Why continue to plod along with broom and duster and soap and water and lots of hard, tiring work, when you can easily test the merits of RE-NU-ALL. Risk 25 cents in a bottle of RE-NU-ALL.

Prepare a cheese cloth duster (as directed on the bottle) and make this test. Take a section of hardwood floors that hasn't been cleaned for some time. If there is dirt stuck fast to the varnish, so much the better—RE-NU-ALL will unfasten it. Give a few rubs with your duster.

Look at your duster—see the dirt it has absorbed! Look at your floor and study the difference. That rub of RE-NU-ALL has scooped up all the dirt, dust and grease, and has left it shining like a ballroom floor.

When you're satisfied with your floor, test RE-NU-ALL on your furniture, on your painted walls, on your mirrors, on your staircase—give it a thorough test.

RE-NU your enameled bedsteads and the brass ones; RE-NU your linoleum and oilcloth, and then go and celebrate the new era of easy house cleaning.

Your grocer or hardware dealer sells it—25c. to $1 sizes. Send for a bottle right now.

REAL MERIT IN THE "LIGHT ETERNAL"

Last night at the Grand Opera House the citizens were afforded an opportunity of witnessing a play, which, from whatever standpoint viewed cannot fail to be interesting and impressive. The action of the play is given as falling in the time of one Diocletian Caesar, Emperor of Rome. Roman period plays have ever been a happy hunting ground of scenic artists, affording them opportunities in the way of contrasts and studies in historical detail denied in modern plays. In "The Light Eternal" this important part of the production has been treated with the lavish hand. The opening scene, the roof of the house of Luciana, mother of Marco, is a magnificent panorama of Rome in the early days, and the whole city set out upon the bosom of the seven hills is beautiful in detail and pleasing to the eye. The play opens on this scene, where Luciana is anxiously awaiting the return of Marco, who, at the games, has been triumphant in election. The news of his triumph has been joyfully received, but the joy is tempered by the further information that a captaincy in the Emperor's body guard is a sine qua non to the acceptance of the prize. The test of faith has been betwixt the Christian and the heathen, Corvus, and present rival for the affections of the Princess, by himself, in the abandonment of the given hills is beautiful in detail and pleasing to the eye. THE GNU IS A PUZZLE.

It seems to be a cross between the Horse, Cow and Deer.

Did you ever hear of a horned horse? It is called the gnu and is a native of South Africa. The gnu is a puzzle. We have called it a horse, but it is more like a cow. It really seems to be a cross between the horse, the cow and the deer. It has the head and horns of a cow, the tail, the mane and withers of the horse and the legs of a deer. Altogether the gnu is one of the most singular creatures on earth.

The gnu inhabits the hilly districts of South Africa, roaming all over the country in vast herds. As far as travelers have yet penetrated it is found, and it is fortunate that it is so, for the flesh of the gnu forms excellent food. Gnu are, however, extremely wild and, being very quick in their movements, are difficult to shoot. Upon the first alarm the whole herd scampers away in single file, following a leader. When seen from a distance they look like a troop of horses.

Their speed is very great, and when first disturbed they do not start it, but kick out their heels and begin hitting at anything that comes in their way, exhibiting the greatest fury. Unless hard pressed they seldom show fight, but when brought to bay they will defend themselves desperately. They dash forward upon their enemy with great fury, and unless he remains cool and collected he probably will not escape.

Average Amount of Sleep.
Usually the amount of sleep is in inverse ratio to the strength and development of consciousness. Thus children need more sleep than adults. Some men need very little rest, and the same may be said of women. However, eight hours is the average amount required by the human body to restore its vitality by complete rest. If less is taken one's health is apt to be impaired. A good night's sleep will do more toward building up general health than all the tonics known.

A LAUGH THAT SPREAD.

It Saved Farrant's Reputation and Fooled the Critics.

One evening Charlotte Farrant sang in a large town. Just as Farrant, the belle, was leading her out of the door upon the platform some one in the audience behind cried out to him that his coat had burst at the seam in the back. It was too late to go back, for the audience had seen him, and the two singers advanced to the footlights. The knowledge of this mishap took all the fun out of Farrant, and the scene which was sung in Italian, was so decidedly devoid of its usual humor that Farrant noticed it before they were half through, and, dropping the rest of the duet, she fitted the following words to it, in Italian: "What is the matter with you tonight? I don't understand your nervousness. Nobody laughs at you!"

Whereupon Farrant, in the middle of the Italian, responded: "By the saints, I have burst my coat! Everybody will laugh when I go off the stage if they don't now!"

At this unexpected interchange of personal feelings Max Harwood and his orchestra began to laugh. Then the people in the front seats, seeing the orchestra and the artist laughing, joined in themselves, and the movement promptly broke out into applause all over the house.

"Ah," said one of the papers next morning, "there is always something amusing in Farrant's singing of that song! Though here he goes without another without being able to pull 'em!"

Giving Men Credit.
"I don't believe any man is really good," she said. "When you find one who doesn't go wrong it is because he is afraid."
"Oh, I don't always believe they are afraid," replied her friend, who was married. "Very often it is because they haven't the price."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Stolen in London When a Child, Man Finds Parents in Texas.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 3.—An unusual life story is brought to light here by the death Tuesday afternoon of Rufus M. Westbrook, aged 102. Stolen from the London docks when a child, he finally drifted to Tennessee, where, hearing of a couple named Westbrook in Maury county, he visited them to see if they could be related. They were his mother and mother.

He served in the early Indian wars, the Mexican and Civil wars, receiving a medal from congress for bravery in the Mexican conflict. In times of peace he was a steamboat man on the Mississippi, Ohio and Cumberland rivers, finally retiring at the age of 94. At one time he was on the Boston.

Local Schools Will Celebrate.

To commemorate the centenary of Sir Isaac Brock, who fell at the battle of Queenston Heights, on October 13, 1812, a Provincial wide celebration has been decided upon and the occasion will be observed in the schools of the city. A definite program will be announced.

Police Station Nears Completion.
The police sergeants' quarters have been moved to the renovated station on Water street, where the improvements are rapidly approaching completion. The furniture and telephones are installed and the building is already in working order. The cages for the prisoners are also in the cells and for the past few days offenders have been placed therein.

Minion Boy Gets Leg Broken.

A serious accident occurred at Minden on Saturday when Percy, a young son of Mr. John Kellett, in some way got his leg caught in the wagon wheel. Before the horse could be stopped the little lad's leg was badly jammed. A doctor was summoned and it was found that the bone of his thigh was broken in two places.

TIMBER FOR SALE.

TENDERS will be received up to and including the first day of October 1912, for the right to cut white and red pine and spruce, on two timber berths on the upper waters of the Jocko River east of the townships of Garrow and Lockhart, in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, the berths being designated "Jocko No. 1," and "Jocko No. 2," each containing twenty-five square miles more or less.

For maps and conditions of sale apply to the undersigned.

She Snubbed Napoleon.

Mme. de Chereuse, a representative of one of the noblest families in France, declined the honor which Napoleon wished to confer on her, that of being maid of honor to his sister-in-law, the queen of Spain. The afterward became Josephine's dame de palais, but always affected to look down on the imperial court. One day she went to a reception at the Tuilleries blazing with diamonds. "What splendid jewelry!" remarked Napoleon. "Are they all real?" "Yes, Monsieur, I really don't know, but at any rate they are quite good enough to wear here!"

LORD MILNER NO SUPPORTER OF THE LAURIER NAVY

Sir Wilfrid Quoted Only Part of His Views at the Peterboro Meeting—Dominion Fleets Should Serve Imperial, Not Merely Local, Purposes—Direct Contribution May be Desirable

On Tuesday evening Sir Wilfrid Laurier endeavored to defend his naval policy by attributing to Lord Milner the assertion that "a Canadian navy was the best way by which Canada could come to the assistance of the Mother Country." Continuing this address the leader of the Opposition is reported in the Examiner as follows:

"In 1900 had come the formulation of his naval policy, which proposed that Canada should establish a naval service of her own, under the control of the Parliament of Canada, and the people of Canada, and placed at the disposal of England in times of need. It had been claimed by the Opposition that this was not a sound policy, that the navy thus created should come automatically under the control of the British Admiralty. It was easy to create suspicion, but in the statement of Lord Milner, that the construction of a Canadian navy was the best way to solve the problem, he felt that he could claim justification for the course adopted. After that testimony, no man would be able to say that the Liberals were disloyal."

This statement by the ex-Premier led the Mail and Empire to communicate with Lord Milner at Montreal. Lord Milner telegraphed the following reply, which gives his view on the defence question more fully than did Sir Wilfrid:

"Believe Sir Wilfrid was alluding to my speech in Toronto four years ago. I then advocated a Canadian navy, but specially emphasized that it should be for imperial, not merely for Canadian purposes. What I said to the reporters at Halifax during my recent visit was substantially as follows: 'Best ask me what form Canadian assistance in imperial defence should take. This is a question for Canadians. The British people will welcome anything Canada may decide to do, and appreciate the spirit in which she has taken the matter up. Personally, I favor Canada and the other self-governing dominions creating their own navies, though this would be of little use if, when established, they did not act as one. Meanwhile as it will take time to build up a Canadian navy, a direct contribution to the British Navy may be desirable—provisionally at ships, not money. But any share the dominions take in imperial defence should involve a share in control of policy. They are not tributary States, but partners in the Empire.'"

(Signed) "MILNER."

STRENUOUS SESSION IS NOW BEFORE THE BRITISH HOUSE

Parliament Will Resume on Monday, and Home Rule Looms Large—Closure Mentioned, But Compromise Suggested Too—Lloyd George's Immediate Future Arouses Speculation

London, Oct. 5.—Parliament resumes on Monday, when an unusually strenuous session is anticipated. The Government's supporters, despite their overwhelming majority, are somewhat jaded and dispirited, and the Opposition is growing daily more confident. The young bloods of Opposition are credited with the intention of systematically creating disorders in the House this autumn, with the view of making Parliamentary business impossible and forcing dissolution.

Home Rule Live Issue.

Interest centres mainly around the final passage of the Home Rule bill through the Commons, and Lloyd George's future development. Government speakers declare that Home Rule will be forced through without wavering, and the threat of the closure freely and drastically made is being uttered, but many voices are heard, both among Irish politicians and English Liberals, urging further attempts at compromise.

C.P.R. TO DOUBLE TRACK THE WHOLE FAR WEST LINES

Work Will Cost $30,000,000 and Construction Will Be Finest in World—Four Times Present Traffic

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 5.—The survey is completed for the double-tracking of the C.P.R. between Calgary and the coast, and work will be commenced at twelve points on the route within six months. The construction will be rushed as quickly as possible and there is a prospect that the line will be completed almost as soon as the Panama Canal is open to traffic.

The second line will be approximately parallel to the present main line of the C.P.R., but the grade through the Rockies will be one of the lowest on the continent, and will provide facilities for freight transportation westward, that will outrival any line connecting the Middle West with the Pacific Seaboard.

The double line will accommodate more than four times the present traffic to the coast.

The cost of the undertaking is estimated at about $30,000,000, the expenditure in some districts exceeding $100,000 per mile. It will be one of the most expensive railroads, of its length in the world.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Four American marines were killed and six were wounded yesterday when the American forces took the town of Coyotepe, from the Nicaraguan rebels, according to a cablegram received early today by minister Castillo from Chamorro, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Nicaragua.

Early to-day neither the State Department nor the navy had received any word of the fight at Masaya and Coyotepe or the death of the American marines.

Officials were shocked at the news contained in Minister Castillo's cablegram.

WOMEN DISLOCATED JAW HOLDING CLOTHESPIN

Camden, N.J., Oct. 5.—While hanging out clothes yesterday, Mrs. Martha Hunt, 40 years old, living at Cheshurst, put too many clothes pins in her mouth. As a result she was under an anaesthetic for a half an hour in the Cooper Hospital while surgeons were trying to reduce the dislocation of her jaw.

TRYING TO AMEND HOME RULE BILL

London, Oct. 5.—The correspondent at Dublin of the Times, says he learned that Lord Macdonell, the Earl of Dunraven, and other influential men are making a gallant effort to save the Irish Home Rule Bill on the basis of radical amendment of the clause most objectionable to the Irish Unionists. The correspondent adds that he believes that William O'Brien, leader of the Independent Nationalists, is greatly interested in the movement.

SENT GREETINGS BY WIRELESS

Seventy Sons and Daughters of Ulster Send Fraternal Greetings to Sir Ed. Carson

Toronto, Oct. 5.—That even the briny deep fails to dampen the ardor of the Ulster Loyalists, was shown on the afternoon of Ulster day, September 28th, when a party of some seventy sons and daughters of Ulster, most of whom were on the deck of the C.P.R. steamship Lake Champlain and had their picture snapped with the flag as their background. In the evening they assembled in the dining room of the steamer to repeat the words of the "Solemn Covenant and hearty unite in 'God Save the King.'" Their fraternal greetings were then transmitted by wireless to Sir Edward Carson, who was addressing the Unionists in Belfast, while the Rt. Hon. Walter Long was appearing before a crowded gathering at Massey Hall, Toronto.

Mr. Alex. H. Gordon, of Toronto, a delegate from the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario West to the Orange Triennial Council held at Glasgow, Scotland, has just returned on the Lake Champlain after a three months visit to the British Isles.

POWERS MAY DIVIDE IN EFFORTS TO AVERT WAR

Neither England Nor Austria Have Announced Their Attitude to Negotiations—Russia and Germany Ratify French Suggestion of Intervention in the Balkans

Paris, Oct. 5.—Neither England or Austria has yet announced adherence to France's project of intervention in the Balkans. It is thought here that the point on which the powers may be divided in their effort to avert war is the exact form intervention is to take.

France's suggestion has been ratified already by Russia and Germany. It includes a collective representation of the Balkan states toward Turkey and expressing the determination not to permit territorial changes while themselves the realization of the Macedonian reforms.

Premier Poincaré and Sergius Sazonoff, the Russian foreign minister, conferred lengthily to-day and later the ministers of Bulgaria, Greece and Serbia participated in the conference.

M. Sazonoff in discussing the situation during an interview afterwards summarized it as "perhaps a little less sombre than yesterday. He added that there remains no doubt in case war breaks out that it will be restricted to the Balkans."

War Preparations.

London, Oct. 5.—Despatches received here from Adrianople and Mustapha Pasha to the north of that city, describe the preparations of war. Every train reaching Adrianople is filled with weather-beaten reservists coming to join their regiments. Not only men, but war material fill the streets.

All the horses have been requisitioned in Mustapha Pasha, where it is regarded as likely that the first battle will be fought.

Signs of the imminence of war are also plentiful in the surrounding country, where the inhabitants are packing their possessions and seeking greater security in Adrianople.

LUNATIC ATTEMPTS TO KILL SIR DONALD MANN

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 5.—It was reported in the corridor of the Hotel Vancouver last evening that an attempt had been made by some crank to assassinate Sir Donald Mann. It was related that a man fired a shot from a revolver at Sir Donald, but owing to the activity of the latter's valet in attacking the man, Sir Donald escaped injury. That some unpleasant incident occurred was quite evident, but exact details were not obtainable and no arrest was made. It was learned that when the would-be assassin was last away he was threatening to kill not only Mann but a number of other prominent Canadians.

THE POWER QUESTION

Prominent Manufacturer, in a Letter to The Times, Points Out the Duty of the Council in the Matter of Securing Unlimited Supply of Power For Peterborough.

A correspondent points out the opportunity the city has to gain unlimited power without liability for investment.

In order to discuss the power situation as it affects Peterborough it is necessary to take a comprehensive view of the entire power situation as it affects the entire district of this Province, lying between the Town of Oshawa and the City of Kingston, and also to consider some of the very important recent changes that have and are taking place in this district vitally affecting its transportation facilities both by water and rail.

Consider for a moment the transportation facilities along the lake front. In former days the Grand Trunk was the only Railway that served Kingston, Napanee, Belleville, Trenton, Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Oshawa and Whitby and for manufacturing purposes this service was bad and indifferent. The town of Oshawa was one mile and a half from the Railway. The town of Bowmanville was one mile from the Railway. Belleville was side tracked and Kingston was placed at the end of a three mile Railway siding, off the main line.

Great changes have recently taken place. To-day the Canadian Northern Railway has built its line along the lake front tapping at convenient points of the cities and towns along the lake front between Kingston and Whitby. To-day the Canadian Pacific is busily engaged in building its main line between Smith's Falls and Toronto and is tapping every one of these important towns between Belleville and Toronto. Instead therefore of the cities and towns along the lake front being dependent upon one Railway they are suddenly receiving the great boom of competition and service of the three great transcontinental railways.

Within this last few years the harbor of Cobourg has been greatly enlarged and increased in order to give ample accommodation to large freight barges, ferrying freight cars between Cobourg and the American ports south of the lake. In the immediate future other lake port towns will obtain and demand equally favorable harbor facilities. What do these changes mean to these various cities and towns? Cheap coal, cheaper iron and steel and cheaper raw material of all kinds from the United States for manufacturing and other purposes. Not only that but these cities and towns will enjoy the advantage of being on the main lines of the three great transcontinental railways, some of which are now and all of which will be completed transcontinental lines traversing every part of the Dominion from the Atlantic to the Pacific and thereby affording the very best possible distributing facilities for manufacturing and to this must be added their advantage of being on the great highway of Commerce by lake and river extending over two thousand miles from Lake Superior to the mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

Within this last few years have been built the finest branch line of the whole system of the Canadian Pacific Railway between Port McNicol and Bethany Junction and upon which it is capable of hauling a greater train load of grain than on any other branch line in the Dominion, and this branch line is heading straight for the new main line of the C.P.R., along the lake front. Over this new line will be carried enormous tourist and passenger traffic and freight and express traffic between Eastern Canada and the Great Northwest via the Great Lakes. But how it may be aimed do all these great changes in railways and lake transportation facilities affect the power situation in Peterborough? Look for a moment at the Power situation as it exists to-day. The Seymour Power Company own and control upwards of one hundred thousand horse power on the Trent Canal, system between Burleigh Falls and Trenton. Upwards of four or five million dollars have already been spent in such power development and in the construction of costly transmission lines. These transmission lines to-day are transmitting power to Belleville, Trenton, Cobourg, Port Hope, Whitby and Oshawa, and also to villages between these points. A new transmission line is also being built by the same company to transmit power to Napanee and Kingston. This same company have also built a Transmission line tapping their main line at Port Hope and extending north through Millbrook and Lindsay as far as Peelton Falls.

All the advantages therefore that Peterborough formerly enjoyed from her own peculiar water powers and situation upon the Trent Canal

Why Suffer And Sneeze With Catarrhal Cold?

By Breathing the Healing Vapor of Catarrhosone You Get Relief in Ten Minutes.

Every second person that you meet seems to have a sneeze and stuffed feeling in the forehead and nostrils. To cure promptly, say, in half an hour, there is nothing worth using except Catarrhosone. You inhale it, balm vapor, and feel as if you were among the Norway pines. This is because Catarrhosone contains a healing medicine, light as pine air, which is breathed straight into the lungs and bronchial tubes. Away goes the cold, sneezing and catarrhal cough. Cough, bronchial irritation stops; in short, you are cured of catarrh by a pleasant, simple, remedy, free from sedatives and irritants.

That Catarrhosone is a swift, certain means of destroying colds and catarrh is proved by the following statement of Mr. Pulos, one of Brockville's best known merchants: "It is the fall of 1902," writes Mr. Pulos, under date of June 10th, 1910 "I contracted a very severe cold which developed into Catarrh. At the time I was living in New York state and treated with four different physicians, who afforded me no relief. On coming to Brockville I was advised by a friend to try Catarrhosone. I bought the dollar outfit and was gratified by the results. I was completely cured by Catarrhosone, and have used it since to check a cold with unerring results. It is the greatest medicine in existence, and I hope my testimony will be of some use to other fellow sufferers." (Signed) GEORGE PULOS.

An ideal protection for the chest, lungs, nose and throat is the frequent use of Catarrhosone. Two months' treatment (the large size) costs $1.00 medium size 50c; at all dealers or the Catarrhosone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

lure of London town and returned to the village on the Thames.

And as the curate thought and pondered, his own daughter danced by in the sunlight outside the study window, happy in her youth, staid in her love, and the curate started from his reverie, a prey to his own doubts.

Straightaway, in haste, he sent for his wife and demanded that forthwith she instruct Effie as to those impulses which enter seriously into the lives of all girls, but the mother's mother had never instructed her and no doubt the mother's mother's mother would have stood aghast at such a proceeding as the curate's wife rebelled.

Then there arose an incident which set all the curate's doubts into the fury of action; denunciation arose to his lips and there was bitterness in his heart. The big-mindedness which sent Mary Ann away with her prayer of salvation was singularly missing, until it was shown to the Curate that his doubts were without real foundation.

Then there came from the Curate's heart a great prayer for the mother who avert life's real issues; for the fathers who delude themselves and for the unutterable piteousness of the Blindness of Virtue.

THE POSITION OF ULSTER.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In view of the fact that Ulster appears very large on the map just now it is interesting to note that statistics show that 48 per cent. of the population in Ulster are Roman Catholics. A despatch from New York to-day quotes John Redmond as saying that many Protestants are in favor of Home Rule. Granting that this may be so, and for the sake of argument, let us say that 17 per cent. of the Protestants of Ulster together with the 43 per cent. of Roman Catholics all want Home Rule—what about the remaining 40 per cent.?

Every one knows that it is from the minority that Ulster's thrust, energy and industry springs. Why should this very peculiar state of affairs exist? Have not the Roman Catholics the same opportunities in education, etc.

In spite of the fact that the number of pupils attending the national schools is on the decrease the expenditure for education for Ireland is always increasing and in 1901 amounted to $1,500,000. Three-fourths of this huge amount went to Roman Catholic schools, or to be more explicit, schools wholly with Roman Catholic teachers and with Catholic managers. We might well ask, where are the results?

Under the Reformatory and the Industrial School Act upwards of £200,000 is expended, nine-tenths of which is paid to institutions controlled by Roman Catholic priests and nuns.

It is no doubt a fact that the Protestants and their Roman Catholic fellow countrymen could unite and govern themselves as well as we, but if 90 per cent. of the Roman

nal Sys. are being extended to every city and town along the lake front. With what result? The town of Oshawa is rapidly increasing in population and is attracting new industries. Baymanville Port Hope, Cobourg, and Belleville once so dead are rapidly taking on a new lease of life and the awakening influence of electric current will cause even the limestone of Kingston to "blossom as the rose."

But how does this affect the power situation in Peterborough? In order to ascertain this it is necessary to consider the power schemes that are in the back of the heads of our short sighted City Council. It is proposed to confiscate the two hundred thousand dollar transmission line and plant of the Peterborough Light and Power Company operating in Peterborough for the modest sum of $58,000.00. It is further proposed to refuse to renew the Otonabee Power Company's pole line franchise and have the Hydro-Electric Power Commission appropriate the Otonabee Power Co. Power plant. What effect will this scheme have upon Peterborough? Look for a moment on the water powers that are left. The Locks Bridge Power would only develop about 900 horse power and the cost of its development does not mean cheap power. The Quaker Oats Company already owns and will shortly use the entire quantity of its own power plant. The Canadian General Electric Company is to-day using all the power produced from the Water Works dam and its Nassau Dam. The Lakeside Portland Cement Company use all the power produced at Dam No. 3 and at Young's Point. Dam No. 2 South of Lakeside would be equally as expensive to develop and operate as the Locks Dam and cheap power cannot be counted on from that source. Berlegh Falls Dam is already owned by the Seymour Power Company. All that is left therefore is Dam No. 4, the development of which by itself would not mean cheap power but to develop it in conjunction with Dam No. 5 would furnish a reasonable amount of cheap power. But the Power that can be developed from Dam No. 4 and No. 5 combined under one head would not supply the citizens of Peterborough with all the light and power now required if the surplus power developed at the Quaker Oats and the Auburn Dams were excluded. Consider the madness of such a scheme from a Peterborough standpoint. The Seymour Power Company who own and control the Auburn Dam and the Peterborough Light and Power Company would be completely shut off from distributing power in competition with the city council's new pet scheme. This power from Auburn would have to find a market and that market is right in the very hands of the Seymour Power Company who already have a transmission line built from Peterborough to tap its line that connects with its lake front trunk Power line thereby giving them ample opportunity to supply power to the lake front towns from the power developed right in our own city.

Under these circumstances therefore and as a direct consequence of the City Council's short sighted power scheme there would be no surplus power left in Peterborough to attract new industries. But what would be the result to Peterborough if the City Council were to negotiate a fair and reasonable agreement with the Seymour Power Company? Dams Numbers four and five could be immediately developed under one head and produce its maximum amount of power. A new transmission line could be built by the Seymour Power Company between Campbellford, Healey's Falls and Peterborough. This city then would be in direct touch with all the Power development upon the Trent waterway and could offer to incoming manufacturers not one thousand horse power but ten thousand horse power or more if industry required it.

It is a well known fact that many of our factories have to close down or partially close down at short intervals because of low water, anchor ice, sleet storms, and lightning storms. But these evils could be avoided or greatly mitigated by having this city connected up with the circulating transmission lines of the Seymour Power Company. Anchor ice and lightning storms might seriously affect one or two power plants but it could not paralyze at the same time one tenth of the whole system. If the Hydro-Electric Power Commission were to take over all the water powers on the Trent Canal system between the mouth of the Severn River and the mouth of the Trent River and spend nine or ten million dollars in power development and transmission lines then there might be some merit in the City Council's scheme because all the accumulated advantages that the Seymour Power Company offer could then be acquired from the Hydro-Electric Commission. Any power scheme that falls short of that and especially the one-horse power scheme of the city council is merely the dream of incompetents. Such being the serious situation in the power development of this city it is not important that our city council should open up negotiations immediately with the Seymour Power Company with a view of ascertaining the very best proposition that the company is prepared to offer for a constant and continuous supply of power at fair and reasonable and permanent rates.

Would it not be better for the city council to co-operate with the Seymour Power Company which has unlimited money behind it for any feasible scheme of development. Would it not be better for the City council to co-operate with the Seymour Power Company in order to obtain suburban extensions to the street railway system with a view of enabling the farmers in the surrounding district to more cheaply market poultry, eggs, butter and garden products and thereby make Peterborough more attractive as a cheaper place in which the working man may live.

Instead of promoting a useless power scheme could not the city council better spend its time in making representations to the C.P.R. to have its seaboard line from Port McNicol pass through Peterborough on its way to the Atlantic Coast. Representations might also be made to the Canadian Northern Railway to have its seaboard line pass through this city as well and thereby offset some of the advantages that the cities and towns on the lake front have acquired over Peterborough.

MANUFACTURER

Catholics are subservient to the Church, where is the 40 per cent. in Ulster and the minority in the rest of Ireland to "get off at"?

From the 19th century to the beginning of the 18th century the Irish Roman Catholics proved themselves to be enemies of the United Kingdom, and yet they are treated as equals by their Protestant fellow countrymen and receive 90 to 98 per cent. of the public monies. What more do you want?

The Lord Mayor of Dublin in 1904 sent the following: "The Lord Mayor of Dublin on the day of his inauguration, 17th March, on behalf of citizens and friends, tendered his profound and dutiful homage to His Holiness Pope Pius the Tenth, and wishes him a long and glorious reign." The reply was: "To the Lord Mayor of Dublin—His Holiness graciously accepts the dutiful homage of the Lord Mayor of Dublin, citizens and friends and sends them his apostolic blessing—Cardinal Merry Del Val."

From where could such a message go forth save from Ireland or Quebec? It appears to me that discussion of the real cause of the trouble in Ireland is carefully avoided, and this weakness is taken advantage of, and we are charged with raising religious and racial differences. Nevertheless, the whole matter had to be faced, if not by ourselves by future generations.

Ireland had had and may still have real differences, but during the last decade the English Government has surrendered itself right and left to the Irish church party, and no one familiar with the real situation in Ireland would recommend giving up the entire control of affairs to the church.

THE BLINDNESS OF VIRTUE

A Four Act Play by the Wm. Morris Company of English Players. Will Appear in Grand Opera House for One Night Only—Thursday, October 10th.

An old, old story: Once upon a time there lived a girl whose name was Mary Ann. She was the daughter of the owner of a large barge which plied between London and the villages along the Thames. Mary Ann was a beautiful girl and was admired by the people of the several villages where her father's barge would stop for freight.

The barge was tied up every Saturday night, and the three, mother, father and daughter, would go to church twice every Sunday, for they were good people and Mary Ann was taught to tread a righteous path.

Now Mary Ann had her dream, and they were full of the dashing heroes and beautiful maidens of her novels, and when the day came that one of these dashing heroes seemed to step from the pages of her choicest book and held up the lure of London town, with its lights and music and the promise of bright, fresh hopes, Mary Ann cast all behind her and went away.

In one of the villages where Mary Ann's father's barge lingered there lived a curate who also had a beautiful daughter, loved as was her father, by the whole community. This daughter, Effie, had been carefully educated, safe from contact with the outside world, and in the course of events gave her heart to Archie, another youth from London town.

Now the curate was so loved by his parishioners and was such a broad-minded, big-hearted man that when Mary Ann, her house of cards tumbled down, the tinsel gone, her romance dead, crept back to the village, the broken-hearted mother led her to the curate for advice. In the quiet of the Curate's study she sobbed out her story, crying that she had not realized the harm—that she didn't know—that she had never been told.

A great light dawned upon the curate. It was not Mary Ann's fault that she had been led away. It was not Mary Ann's fault that she had dealt her so severe a blow and that the future looked very, very black for her.

DRUG MANIA IN PARIS.

"Abstention of the Rich" Which Menace the Future of France.

That "cocaine and opium are rotting the heart of Paris society" is the startling assertion made in a recent newspaper article by Alfred Edwards, founder of Le Matin, whose grief over the tragic death last summer of his beautiful wife, Mme. Lantelme, the actress, aroused the sympathy of even the most frivolous Parisian.

"These drugs," he states, "are now in full vogue, especially among the gifted youth of the capital, on whom they are working frightful havoc mentally, morally and physically."

The writer adds that he was induced to sound the cry of alarm in consequence of the statements of a number of medical friends, who say by day a procession of victims, more or less irremediably injured.

Cocaine, he points out, from being the greatest benefit to humanity in minor surgical operations, has now become one of its most frightful scourges—in Paris at all events. The facility with which it is taken has caused it to displace morphine altogether as a means of obtaining "Artistic dreams." Young persons of both sexes, says M. Edwards, hoping to install a minor paradise of Mahomet at home, take cocaine in larger and larger quantities without any knowledge of its effects on the system.

The result in fatal accidents of daily occurrence, while if those who become its slaves, are not killed at once, they become in many cases utterly demoralized or brutalized.

"To-day in Paris the opium mania also reigns among society folk of the younger set. Enthusiastic young men have turned their bachelor apartments into opium dens of the latest fashion and there is hardly a night restaurant where one does not hear the question put among the diners, 'Where shall we smoke to-night?'"

The 3 o'clock tea, it is asserted, is completely supplanted and displaced by the 10 o'clock opium.

Some of these drug fiends, M. Edwards concludes, are in the habit of taking opium and cocaine alternately. The article has caused a strong feeling that steps must be taken immediately to prevent the sale of these "abominations of the rich" in view of the terrible menace which they form for the future of France.

They Never Go Out.

Many remarkable examples of fire kept burning for long periods of time are recorded in histories and books relating to the past. The best known instance is that of the pagan people who keep up perpetual fires as a religious custom.

The oldest known fire in the world is that in a Buddhist temple near Bangkok, Siam, which has been burning without interruption for two centuries. A priest is always on guard to watch the sacred flame. Every four years a new flame is kindled, and the old flame is then transferred to the new one.

The life of a Grand Viceroy in Persia was once saved by a Persian trader, who discovered and exposed a plot to kill the royal official. In spite of the fact that the Persians are Mohammedans and hold fire-worshipers in contempt, a single flame has been kept burning continuously for 70 years at Sarhad in honor of the trustful trader.

A Choice of Places.

"Some of the Emerald Isle," says Mr. William Harvey in "Irish Life and Customs" (Boswell Mackay), a collection of tales from "Scottish Life and Character," "have much faith in the practice of proving an alibi."

An Irish barometer, who was evidently prepared for every possible contingency, is alleged to have addressed the presiding judge as follows: "Your honor, I shall first absolutely prove to the jury that the prisoner could not have committed the crime with which he is charged. If that does not convince the jury I shall show that he was insane when he committed it. If that fails I shall prove an alibi."

The warden could not say a word in answer from a verdict of "not guilty" in such circumstances, and yet it is probable that if the trial had taken place in Edinburgh the verdict would have been no more than one of "not proven."

Was It a Hiding Place?

A secret chamber in which were the remains of an unfinished meal has been found at the Farm Farm, near Mold, Flintshire, built in the early part of the 16th century and once the Manor House of the Harlewell family. Some workmen were engaged in repairing an ancient fireplace and chimney, when they discovered a revolting scene, which, upon being moved, revealed a secret chamber.

The apartment contained oak furniture of antique design, including a table on which lay antiquated brasses and tending utensils, and the remains of a meal, reduced to dust. It is surmised that the chamber was utilized as a hiding place by Royalist fugitives during the Civil War of the reign of Charles I. from which time it had remained undisturbed.

FAR DISTANT URANUS.

Odyssey a Visit to This Gigantic Planet Would Disclose.

If Uranus, which is a star of about the sixth magnitude, were a planet like these little ones called asteroids, which are little discovered by the dawn every year, it could not have much claim upon popular attention, but Uranus is really a gigantic world, more than sixty times as large as our earth.

Its vast distance, about 1,700,000,000 miles from the earth, is what causes it to look so small.

Uranus has four moons, which revolve backward in their orbits—that is to say, they revolve from east to west around Uranus, while Uranus goes, like all the other planets, from west to east around the sun. It is believed that Uranus rotates backward on its axis.

Moreover, the axis of that great, strange globe lies in such a direction that in the course of the year, which is equal to eighty-four of our years, the sun shines almost perpetually first upon one pole and then upon the other.

Measured by our time standard, there are forty years of constant day or night on Uranus, and the sun rises in the west and sets in the east there, but the sun looks very small when viewed from Uranus—only one-fourth as large as it appears to us. Full light shines upon that planet 1,000 times as much as the full moon sends to the earth, so that daylight upon Uranus, while faint compared with the blaze of a terrestrial noonday, is nevertheless a very respectable kind of illumination.

THE MARKETS

Liverpool Wheat Futures Close Lower, Chicago Higher—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Balkan war rumors brought about a substantial advance in the wheat market. There was a strong gain with prices 1-1/2c and higher. In corn the outcome varied from 1-4c decline to 7-8c advance; oats gained 3-8c to 5-8c, and provisions wound up more expensive by 1/2c to 3/4c.

The Liverpool market closed today on wheat 1/4 higher to 1/2 lower, and on corn 1/4 lower. Paris wheat closed 1/2 to 1/4 lower. Berlin, 1/4c lower.

IF ITS PRINTING YOU WANT THEN THE TIMES JOB ROOMS IS THE PLACE TO HAVE IT DONE

Any kind of a job won't suit the 20th Century business man—it must be set up and printed in such a manner that it possesses an individuality that cannot fail to make an impression on the person who reads it.

In the Times Job rooms the general appearance of the finished job is carefully studied, for it is that which counts when it comes to satisfying the customer.

Phone 164 and ask for our representative to call on you.

It pays the purchaser to get perfect printing.

Le-von Has More Drunks.

Drunkennes seems to be on the increase—especially in London. "For the first time since this series of statistics began," says a blue-book for 1911, issued recently, "the total number of convictions for drunkenness in England and Wales shows an increase over the previous year—and an increase which takes the total to a height which has not been reached since 1908."

The figures rose from 161,992 in 1910 to 172,130 in 1911—an increase of 10,138, or 6.28 per cent.

Although women shared in the general increase for drunkenness in 1911, they did so at a lower rate and show a lower proportion to the total than in previous years.

Some interesting relations between drunkenness and the weather are touched upon in the report.

Fine outdoor weather is inimical to drinking, for the fine and warm months of July and August, 1911, when heat, one might think, would naturally begot excessive thirst, show a sharp fall in convictions for drunkenness.

In December, on the other hand, which was exceptionally wet, the returns were exceptionally high.

Point Worth Noting.

Although Sir W. S. Gilbert has passed away it must not be assumed that his plays are everybody's property. An amateur dramatic club in Brisbane, the metropolitan of Queensland, has just been prosecuted by Lady Gilbert for producing "Pygmalion and Galatea" without permission. She was awarded $100 and costs. The defence was that "the play was so old that it was thought the copyright had run out," and that the proceeds of the performance were given to charity. Governor Lord Chelmsford, Chief Justice Sir Pope Cooper, and other prominent persons gave their patronage to the performance, and there was laughter when the judge called them "aiders and abettors."

"The fact of the matter is I never attended to anything before I was married."

"Then you give your wife credit for awaking your ambition?"

"No; for making it necessary for me to get out and bustle."—Chicago Record Herald.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Examining Warehouse, Calgary, Alberta," will be received at this office until 4 p.m., on Friday, October 25, 1912, for construction of the building mentioned. contract can be seen and form of contract can be seen and form of tender obtained at the office of Mr. H. E. Matthews, Superintendent Architect of the Dominion Public Buildings, in the Province of Manitoba, Winnipeg, Man., Mr. W. T. Mallard, Clerk of Works, Regina, Sask., at the Post Office, Calgary, Alberta, and at this Department.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Two Handles.

Everything has two handles—the one soft and manageable, the other such as will not endure to be touched. If, then, your brother does you an injury, do not take it by the hot end, but, by representing to yourself all the aggravating circumstances of the fact, but look rather on the soft side and extenuate it as much as is possible by considering the goodness of the relation and the long friendship and familiarity between you—obligations to kindness which a single provocation ought not to destroy. And then you will take the soft end by the manageable handle—Epictetus.

Exceptions.

Hardy—She may be well educated, as you say, but she has very singular expressions.

Tardy—She does?

Hardy—Yes. Yesterday, for instance, she spoke of a musical concert.

Tardy—Wasn't that correct?

Hardy—Certainly not. It wasn't necessary to say "musical" in speaking of a concert. A concert must be musical.

Tardy—Must, eh? Well, I've been to some that were not.

WOMEN AND CARD GAMES.

In Chile Such a Combination Would Create a Sensation.

A woman who is a native of Chile was talking recently about the difficulty she had in accustomed herself to card playing among women when she came to this country. She said:

"In Chile card playing among women is undreamed of. Perhaps it is not too much to say that a Chilean woman would no more play cards than a New York woman would enter a Broadway saloon. It isn't that it is exactly or wholly a matter of morals with us. It just isn't the thing to do. It is not conventional."

"When I came to New York I brought my daughter-in-law with me, a Chilean girl. She and I were both horribly shocked to receive an invitation to a bridge party in the daytime. It was too much for us, and we declined. Other similar invitations came and kept coming. Finally our curiosity got the best of us, and we went to one of these affairs. Even after we got over our sense of outraged convention the whole thing seemed enormous."

TIMBER FOR SALE.

TENDERS will be received up to and including the first day of October 1912, for the right to cut white and red pine and spruce, on two timber tracts on the upper waters of the Joeko River east of the townships of Garrow and Lockhart, in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, the tracts being designated "Joeko No. 1," and "Joeko No. 2," each containing twenty-five square miles more or less.

For maps and conditions of sale apply to the undersigned.

LEGEND OF ALUMINUM.

Story Told by Pliny of Tiberius and a Metal Worker.

If a certain incident in Roman history, as related by Pliny, be given full credence, then it would seem that aluminum was derived by means of a secret process long before our time.

The story is this: During the reign of Tiberius there one day appeared at the emperor's palace a worker in metals who displayed a magnificent cup made of a brilliant white metal, that shone like silver. In presenting it to Tiberius the artificer purposefully dropped it. The piece was so bruised by the fall that it seemed hopelessly ruined, but the metal worker took his hammer, and in the presence of the court quickly repaired the damage.

It was thus evident to all that the metal was not silver, though it presented an appearance as brilliant as that metal. Besides, it was more durable and much lighter.

The emperor, so Pliny relates, interrogated the metal worker, from whom it was learned that the mysterious metal had been extracted from an antediluvian earth, in all probability the clay known to modern chemists as alumina. Tiberius then asked whether any one but the metal worker knew of the process, and received the reply that the secret was known only to the worker and Jupiter.

The answer was unfortunate, for reasoned the emperor, if it were possible to obtain such a metal from so common a substance as clay, would not the value of gold and silver be reduced? Tiberius, it would seem, was determined to avert such a calamity, for he commanded the work shop of the discoverer of the new metal to be destroyed and the luckless man himself to be decapitated, so that the secret might die with him. Did the cruelty of Tiberius deprive the world for centuries of the use of the metal aluminum?

The combined stores of Peterborough can easily out rival any two city departmental stores in the stocks carried, the prices offered, and the quality of goods sold.

Investigation will prove this point beyond dispute.

When you have ALL the big store stocks here to choose from you have more variety than any city departmental can give you in any one line.

By trading here you have the opportunity of inspecting the goods and comparing values on the spot.

You save the time, trouble, postage, express, and disappointment.

You have immense stocks of new goods to choose from.

You have the reputation of business men who are here all the time to back up the quality of what you buy.

You are not trading eight unseen. You see the goods you buy, and buy the goods you see.

It Will Pay You to Trade in Peterboro

Just make that comparison once or twice and convince yourself. In the meantime, read the advertisements in this issue; there are some great bargains offered. See the goods, get the prices, examine the stocks, and the rest may safely be left to your good judgment.

Read The Times each day and week. It contains the frank, bright store news of all the leading advertisers in Peterborough. You will get up-to-date news about stocks, goods and prices. In addition you will get all the news of the district, a summary of the world's doings, special pages for the farm and the home. The Times costs only $3.00 a year daily and $1.00 weekly. The Bark of the Dog.

Wild dogs do not bark. They whine, growl, howl, but the true bark is never heard among them. The explosive bark which we all in the bark of the domesticated dog is undoubtedly an acquired faculty. In a word, the barking of the domesticated dog is an effort on the animal's part to speak, which he derives from his association with man. The dog's bark is, of course, varied (according to the sympathy) and he tells the difference between the bark of welcome that the dog gives his master and the bark of defiance that he offers to the stranger who falls under his suspicion.

Surprised Himself.
A man of the name of MacDonald was being taken home by a friend Patterson. In a wheelbarrow one night, and as they were trudging along Patterson tried to offer his friend this good advice: "There is no use in your trying to drink the whisky in the world." MacDonald said soberly but reflected some time, and finally, noticing that they were passing a well lighted distillery, he said: "Well, Patterson, I never thought I would start them working nights."

Piling It On.
Deeds—That man called me a liar, a scoundrel and a puppy. Would you advise me to fight for them?

Old Blunt—By all means. There's nothing nobler in this world than a man setting for the truth.

"She is the most inconsistent woman I ever knew."
 "Never does what she ought to or what you expect, eh?"
 "That is just it. Sometimes she does. She is inconsistently inconsistent."

Silence is Golden.

"Of course," said the beginner, "to be successful in politics one must know how to speak."

"Better still," replied the old hand, "he must know how not to speak."

Stomach Always Banked Had Constant Indigestion

Small of Cooking Made Him Sick—Suffered Two Days a Week.
Cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Clemmons' experience is not an unusual one. Nowadays poor stomachs are more the rule than the exception. But the proper treatment is sure to make a quick cure. You can always depend on Dr. Hamilton's Pills, they reach the trouble at once, go right to business, work while you sleep and have you feeling better, if not cured, next morning. "My food seemed to decompose in my stomach," writes Mr. Ralph Clemmons, of Newbridge, P. O. "I had a stomach that failed in some way to perform its work. Digestion seemed more or less arrested and I grew thin, yellow, nervous. The stomach became distended and impeded apparently the action of the heart, for often at night it would vomit great stews. At times I would vomit a mucous mass, and at these times my head ached most terribly. A friend who had been cured of a similar condition advised me to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly, which I did. The result in my case was simply marvelous. Dr. Hamilton's Pills removed the cause, strengthened the stomach, excited the liver to normal action, the kidneys were released of excessive work. Health soon grew within me. I can now eat, sleep and live like a free man."

Be advised—use Dr. Hamilton's Pills—they are sure to do you good. Six per box, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers or by mail from the Cataract Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Four More Immigrants Arrive.

Four young Englishmen called on Mr. Finch Miller on Saturday in search of employment. They had been consigned here by the College Employment Co. of London, Eng. Mr. Miller obtained employment for two of them with nearby farmers. The other two seemingly preferred the joys of life in this country to a hard or chasing a plough.

Campbell Milling Co. Tenders.

The awarding of the contract for additions to the Campbell Milling Company's present premises, near the C.P.R. station, will not be a week yet. It was originally supposed that the tenders were to have been opened Friday night. The company, however, decided to withhold opening of tenders. After they are opened they will have to be submitted to the head office in Toronto.

Challenged Pickpockets and Lost.

Pickpockets operated successfully at the Millbrook Fair on Thursday. One visitor to the fair was the subject of a challenge. The pickpocket had been operating there. He had a roll of bills and defied the light fingered gentry to get his money. Alas and alack! The pickpocket must have heard the challenge as they quickly proved that nimble fingers and quick wit were too much for the farmer.

Handsome Horse for the Army.

Yesterday afternoon greater interest was added to the services in the local Salvation Army temple, when one of the city aldermen presented a handsome brass horse to the admirable band of that estimable organization. The purchase price was $250 and was made possible by assistance of the $200 grant made by the city for band concerts in Victoria Park.

A Yellow Story Contradicted.

An evening contemporary on Saturday had a sensational story of a young woman living on Stanley avenue, whom this enterprising sheet claimed had left her two small children and fled with a young man who had lived at her house. The Times ascertained that there is no truth for the story and that in all probability the alleged absence of the woman, yesterday, was the child's milk, and possibly the children too, when too noisy.

Good Attraction for Concert.

Miss Katherine Borland, the well-known sketch reader and entertainer, will be the star attraction at the grand concert being arranged for by the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Church. Mr. J. Coates Lockhart, the English tenor, has also been secured. Miss Borland's Scotch readings have made her very popular and she is equally at home in English and Irish work, her well chosen repertoire being replete with classic and humorous selections. Mr. Lockhart is widely known as a well-trained and attractive singer.

Whipped Horse Ran Amuck.

On Saturday evening a man who resides at Nassau street in the yard of the Munro House, after visiting other places, to get his horse and buggy. As soon as he had climbed into the vehicle, he made muffle with the merry whistling of the whip. The horse did not seem to be musical and broke for freedom. The man from Nassau was thrown out of the rig to the hard surface. That little God that is said to look after certain people prevented a catastrophe. However, the horse and buggy went west on Hunter street at a 21½ mile until stopped by rocks from the beginning of the night.

Opening of Football Season.

The fall sporting season began on Saturday with football games all over the province.

Varsity of Toronto, won from McGill on the Varsity stadium by a score of 25 to 13.

Queens of Kingston, played Ottawa College on the latter's grounds, the game ending in a dispute and it was called a draw.

In the Inter-Provincial League, Ottawa beat the Tigers of Hamilton in a close game. The score 21 to 17.

Argonauts of Toronto beat Montreal at Montreal by the score of 20 to 17.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

New Garbage Collection Schedule.

The winter schedule for the collection of garbage has been slightly changed, and the following timetable now in force until further notice, is printed in detail:

Mondays—Dalhousie, King and Sherbrooke; Reid, Rubidge, Stewart, Bethune and Aylmer from Dalhousie to Charlotte; Also Louis street.

Tuesdays—East side of Water street, east of that district lying east of Water to the river.

Wednesdays—The whole of George street, west side of Water, and all between George and Water.

Thursdays—Charlotte, Simcoe and Hunter from George to Reid; Reid, Rubidge, Stewart, Bethune, Aylmer from Charlotte to Hunter.

Fridays—Brook and Murray from George to Reid; Reid, Rubidge, Stewart, Bethune and Aylmer from Hunter to Murray.

Saturdays—All north of Murray to Smith, Hotels, fruit and fish stores and restaurants will be served as before, three times a week, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

All accounts due and owing the Estate of the late Dr. Marshall are required to be paid on or before the 15th day of October, either at 248 Hunter Street, or at the office of G. N. Gordon.

MORE MEN REQUIRED.

To Harvest Western Canada Crops—$10.00 to Winnipeg, Oct. 14th.

On account of the urgent appeal from the West for additional farm laborers, the Grand Trunk Railway have decided to run another excursion on Monday, October 14th, from all stations in Canada. $10.00 to Winnipeg via Chicago and Duluth, plus half cent mile from Winnipeg to destination, but not beyond Montreal, Calgary or Edmonton. Returning half cent a mile to Winnipeg, plus $10.00 to destination in Eastern Canada. The farmers along the Grand Trunk Pacific pay the maximum wages and this is an excellent chance for young men to visit the West. The route via Chicago is an attractive one, as many large cities and towns are passed on route, which breaks the monotony of the journey, as there is something new to see all the time. The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is the shortest and quickest route between Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton. Ask nearest Grand Trunk Agent for full particulars, tickets, etc., or write A. E. Duff, D.P.A., Toronto, Ont.

Every Little While There's Going to be a Mellon Cut

The public seldom has a chance to invest in the stock of a garage company.

Garage companies are generally closed corporations, the stock in which pays enormous dividends.

There is splendid profit in the sale of automobile parts, lubricating oils, gasoline, carbide and tires, and in repairing, washing and polishing cars, accessories, replacing parts, etc.

The storage of cars is "found" money—nearly all profit.

The Automobile Livery business pays handsome dividends and is good the year round.

We are going to have an automobile company in Toronto that will make money, filling a long-felt need. For a fair charge your car will be called for, kept replete with supplies and brought to you just minutes after your request by telephone. Your car will no longer be subject to the ravages of dust, heat or rain, or the danger of accident of police fines for standing too long at the curb.

This Company is going to pay big dividends, and every little while there is going to be a Mellon cut. Here is your only chance of being on the books for the regular allotment of dividends.

We are Sole Selling Agents for the stock of the CENTRAL GARAGE & SUPPLY CO., LIMITED, OF TORONTO, and we have for you now in this office a prospectus of the Company. It is given all the information about the company that you might want before purchasing stock. The names of the Directors are given, as well as facts regarding the forming of the Company, its plans for a new building on Temperance and Sheppard Streets, the purposes of the Company, its possibilities as an assurance. To rouse your interest and to give you an abundance of confidence RIGHT NOW, let us tell you that the CENTRAL GARAGE AND SUPPLY CO., LIMITED, have been appointed the Ontario General Agents for all lines of Abbott-Detroit Motor Cars, which are now being demonstrated and sold at temporary premises, 269 King Street West, Toronto.

AGENTS WANTED

ADDRESS ALL COMMUNICATIONS TO

R. B. HALEY & CO. TEMPLE BUILDING, BAY AND RICHMOND STS.

Toronto, Ontario

The last mortal remains of the late Mr. William Drummond were laid to rest yesterday afternoon.

In the Lindsay jail, those in charge have actually got the vag, Sherman, to purr. At the business end of a broom and brickbat Sherman has got rid of even stored up during a decade of idleness.

Toronto Sunday World of yesterday contains a picture of Hon. Col. Sam Hughes at the launching of H. M.S. Audacious. With the gallant Minister of Militia and Mrs. Laird, Mr. Ritchie and the Countess of Lytton.

Why don't these small towns, when advertising their fall fairs note that Detectives of Peterborough will be present. It's a shame the way pickpockets have picked up the hard earned dollars of the rubes.

Funny, isn't it, that whilst every current newspaper contains reports of that no such trouble was experienced here? Probably Peterborough's reputation for dealing harshly with such pickpockets operating at fall fairs, crouches settles the matter.

The flag was hung at half mast at the City Buildings on Saturday, out of respect for the late Peter Hamilton, who served the city in the capacity of alderman.

On Saturday a local undertaker met a well known citizen and asked the latter "How's your cold?" The citizen replied: "Oh, you go on the—, I'm not for you yet aw!" The undertaker remonstrated saying "That's the trouble with our business. One can't enquire after a friend's health without him thinking we're after business."

WEDDING BELLS.

Gladwin—Lina.

On Saturday afternoon a pretty wedding was solemnized in All Saints Church, when Miss Alice Lina, of London, Eng., became the bride of Mr. George Gladwin, of Peterborough. The Rev. R. B. Grobb officiated.

The bride was Miss Gertrude Downes, and the best man Mr. John Goodwin.

The bride was married in a suit of cream serge, and was given away by Mrs. Serventy, of London, Eng. The bride was the recipient of a large number of useful and beautiful presents.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was held at the future residence of Mr. and Mrs. Gladwin, 129 Rubidge street.

BY-LAW TO AID THE NEW FACTORY PASSED COUNCIL

Will Go To The People On October 30th—Trent Canal Contracts From Here To Lake Ontario All Let—Open In 3 Years

The by-law to aid the De Laval Dairy Supply Company, passed the City Council last night, and will go to the people on the 30th of this month.

A copy of this by-law will be found on page 5 of this issue. The City Fathers met in regular monthly session last night. His Worship Mayor W. H. Bradburn, presiding. There were also present, Aldermen Graham, Johnston, Duffus, Gordon, Duncan, Buller, Anderson, and Gillespie.

Messrs. Peck, Kerr & McDermid, on behalf of the township of North Monaghan wrote that unless provision is under way for some other disposal of the city's sewage than that existing at present, proceedings against Peterborough will be instituted. Referred to the Board of Works.

COMPLETION OF CANAL.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., wrote that the contracts for the completion of the Trent Valley Canal from here down to Lake Ontario are all let, and under present arrangement with the Government will be in running order in three years time. He advised, however, that the city authorities act jointly with those of other interested localities in assuring its completion by the contractors within the time specified in their agreements.

His Worship thought pressure should be brought to bear upon the department to provide for opening up the northern end into Georgian Bay at the earliest possible date.

Ald. Duffus advised cooperation with other municipalities along the line in sending a strong deputation to Ottawa to urge the northern end's speedy completion. "It would be money well spent," he urged, "as the canal's operation will affect Peterborough's best interests."

Ald. Buller agreed with Ald. Duffus. "The Canal will cheapen freight rates."

Ald. Gordon—"On coal?"

Ald. Buller—"Yes, on coal and wood; but not on lawyer's fees; they will be as high as ever."

Ald. Gillespie offered a letter from Council to Government might answer the purpose as the Government is practically committed to finish this work as quickly as possible.

This latter view was acquiesced in.

SCRIVER'S ACCOUNT.

The Property Committee reported that no action be taken in regard to Charles Scriver's account, for the collection of garbage, when the garbage by-law first came in force last May.

It will be remembered that after a couple of weeks' work collecting garbage, Scriver threw up his contract without a moment's notice; hence Council did not think he was entitled to any monetary consideration.

Mr. Walker was present and pointed out that Scriver owes him for the garbage boxes he made. These boxes were passed as satisfactory both by the Property Committee and Sanitary Inspector Spence. His (Walker's) account is over a $100, and unless Scriver gets some financial consideration from the city, he (Walker) can see no way of collecting his account from Scriver.

Ald. Johnston reiterated his contention that Scriver should get paid for the work he had actually done, and moved that Property Committee again take this matter into consideration.

Ald. Johnston's motion was lost, and the Property Committee's report that no action be taken in regard to Scriver's claim adopted.

TO WIDEN BABB'S LANE.

A by-law to authorize the borrowing of $4,550 with which to purchase the land necessary for widening Babb's Lane was passed.

Ald. Duffus placed himself on record as favoring the extension of Walton street in preference to widening Babb's Lane. This might cost a little more, but was, he thought, the best proposition.

Ald. Gordon thought the widening of Babb's Lane will finally work out to the benefit of the Cox property, more than furthering the interests of the other citizens. He could not see the wisdom of widening Babb's Lane, any way.

Ald. Anderson thought the price for the land in question high; hence he had expected the committee to report on the extension of Walton street, which report, however, had not been forthcoming.

Ald. Buller supported the by-law because it is the cheapest proposition. "No matter what streets are widened or extended, some particular citizens will be benefited," he remarked. "It would be a pity to let the widening of Babb's Lane, and would like to see the by-law stand for further consideration of this question."

The by-law carried its three readings, however, and Babb's Lane will consequently be widened.

REQUEST NOT GRANTED.

Mr. Parrott's request for permission to erect a stand at the corner of Hunter and George streets was turned down.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

An eminent scientist, the other day gave his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or a sore, such injury is inured against blood poisoning! Not one speck of microbes has been found that Zam-Buk does not kill!

Then again, As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a sore, or a cut, or to skin diseases, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They are nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again, As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed worked up to the surface and thereby heals the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures all sores.

Only the other day Mr. March of 101 Dufferin Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Company and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to sores. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. To-day—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the sores!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or we will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

FAMOUS DRIVERS WILL PILOT CARS IN THE GRAND PRIX AT MILWAUKEE.

First of the events of Milwaukee's speed carnival, the Grand Prix race, will be run September 24 over a course of 8.3 miles in length. The circuit, which was improved at a cost of more than $25,000, has proven itself to be one of the speediest of road courses in America, and the race drivers, who have tried it out, are of opinion that some new road race records will be hung up. Practice has been going on all during the last week. That the race for the Grand Prix Cup of the Automobile Club of America will be a fine contest from start to finish is made certain by the character of the drivers who are entered in it.

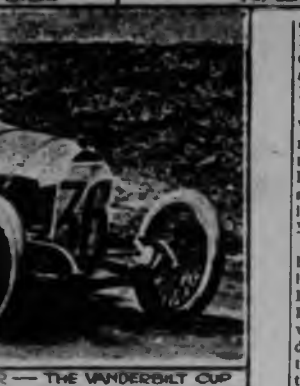

David Bruce-Brown, the two time winner of the Grand Prix race in America, will be seen at the wheel of a monster Fiat machine. Ralph De Palma and "Hurricane" Hughes, the drivers who captured the highest honors at Elgin, are entered. De Palma will drive a Mercedes, and Hughes will be seen at the wheel of his wire wheeled Mercer.

"Teddy" Tetzlaff, the best known of Western drivers, who averaged 78.5 miles an hour in the Santa Monica road race, will be a team mate of Bruce-Brown, and Caleb Bragg will also drive a Fiat. Bragg alternated with Tetzlaff in the 550 mile race at Indianapolis last May, and scored second place with him.

"The speed king," "Bob" Burman, who has beaten everything but a bullet, will be at the wheel of a team machine. Erwin Bertrami will be a team mate of Burman, as will also "Joe" Dawson, the winner of the last 500 mile race at Indianapolis, provided he is reinstated by the contest board of the American Automobile Association.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC BY-LAW AT PRESENT IN ABEYANCE

Alderman Gordon Thinks Power Companies Should be Invited To Make Propositions—Ald. Anderson Wants to Know what is to Prevent Their Doing So?

Ald. Johnston introduced to Council last night a by-law to authorize entering into a contract for municipal owned power on the Hydro-Electric power company, or do they not? If they do, they won't get it from the Seymour Power Company. And if your arguments have any weight with the ratepayers, Ald. Gordon, and they vote the by-law down, we'll be so worse off than now as our agreement with the Hydro-Electric power holds good for 25 years.

Ald. Gordon's motion that the power companies be invited to submit a proposition was turned down. Ald. Gordon urged that in all fairness, the Seymour Power Company, or any other company, be invited to submit a proposition for selling the city power for comparison with the Hydro-Electric power proposition.

Ald. Gordon here moved, "That the clerk write the companies interested in power plants in Peterborough, asking them to send along a proposition, quoting prices, at which they are prepared to sell power and light for municipal, manufacturing and domestic purposes under a perpetual agreement with the city. Or at what price they will sell their plants to the city."

Ald. Gordon went on to say that personally he believed in Hydro-Electric, but from a business point of view he would like to see the propositions from any power company interested, before the people together with that from the Hydro-Electric Commission, so that ratepayers could judge intelligently where their best interests lie—Hydro-Electric or otherwise.

Ald. Duffus—"What is this? Is there to be dilly-dallying for another year?" The people want Hydro-Electric and the by-law should be submitted at the earliest moment.

Ald. Buller—"This matter has been up now for years. The power companies had previously stated that they could not sell power cheaper than the present rate, then what is the good of asking them now for prices?"

Ald. Gordon reiterated his contention that the people should know, at exactly what price any power company is prepared to guarantee power either to the city for distribution, or delivered to homes and factories, and for municipal purposes. In fact, he urged, unless some proposition is invited from the power companies, the by-law will come up again before Council at an early date.

MEETING OF WOMAN'S ART ASSOCIATION

The truth of the old Latin expression "ars longa vita brevis est" was proven last night by the attendance and evident interest of the Woman's Art Association of Peterborough, as shown by their annual meeting held in the Public Library. Those present demonstrated by both their daily pleasures and pursuits and by their remarks last night that art in Peterborough should be spurred with a capital "A." The secretary's report showed that the Association is thriving in every respect. The officers for the coming year are:

President—Mrs. Aymer.

1st Vice-Pres.—Miss Bennett.

2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Duncan Walker.

3rd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Vincent Eastwood.

Treasurer—Miss Maud Rush.

Executive committee—Mrs. Huxley, Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Goodwill, Mrs. Buchanan, Miss McCarthy and Miss L. Hall.

The first of a series of Twilight Musicals will be held on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the Conservatory of Music Hall.

ZOO MONKEYS GIVE OPERATIC NUMBERS

Philadelphia, Oct. 7.—Visitors at the zoo were surprised at the sounds of music that came from the monkey-house. To some it seemed that there was a rehearsal of some Italian opera, but to the more experienced, it was evident that some new species of something had arrived.

Investigation showed that the Hain gibbons or singing monkeys, that Mrs. Charles B. Pearson and Thomas Biddle brought from Europe were having their first Sunday morning concert in America.

FIVE WOMEN GAMBLED.

New York Police Raid Establishment—Fisher the Game. New York, Oct. 7.—Five well-dressed women arrested in a hair-dresser's establishment were held Saturday in $1,000 bail on a charge of gambling. Detectives who raided the place testified the women had been playing poker with Albert Trebits, the alleged proprietor, for 40 minutes. The other women who looked on also were released later.

One of the women had $537, another $101, while a third lost all her money except 21 cents. Scores of their friends volunteered to furnish their bail.

NAVY YARD HEROINE IS NOW A BRIDE

Berethy Heiler Becomes Mrs. Harold L. Dahl of Los Angeles.

Boston, Oct. 7.—Miss Dorothy Heiler, one beautiful young woman who was the central figure in the Charlestown Navy Yard sensation three years ago which led to the court-martial of Dr. Assey, H. Robinson, U. S. N., and Paymaster George P. Auld, U. S. N., was married in Evanston, Ill., yesterday, to Harold L. Dahl, whom she has known for many years.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Frederick Heiler, 1612 Lake avenue. The couple will go immediately to Los Angeles, where the groom is in the hardware business.

DIES FROM RESULT OF BULL'S ATTACK

Mr. Daniel Nill, the Cavan farmer, who was gored by a bull a week ago, has succumbed to his injuries. The nature of his injuries was serious, as he was being pierced, in addition to several ribs being broken. The late Mr. Nill's passing on Saturday, will be a distinct loss to the community. He was a member of Cavanville Methodist church, and was a prime mover in the inauguration of a young men's Bible class. Deceased is survived by a sorrowing wife and one son, William, who resides on the homestead.

WHEN ARE EGGS BAD IN LEGAL STANDPOINT

Important Case Involves contradictory Evidence by Food Stalls.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 7.—Is a decomposed egg, within the meaning of the pure food and drug act of 1906, the same thing as a "rotten" egg under the common law?

Upon the early decision of this question by the Supreme Court of the United States is said to hang one of the most far-reaching disputes in regard to the federal pure food law since its enactment. Egg on are attacking the Department of Agriculture as seeking to enforce the law according to arbitrary and unreasonable standards, while officials of the department are defending their course as involving the most valuable features of the legislation against improper food.

The controversy arose over the seizure in Jersey City, N.J., of 443 cans of frozen egg product, packed in Topeka, Kan., by the Seymour Packing Company upon the order of the H. J. Keith Co. The pure food law provided that an article should be deemed adulterated when "decomposed." In the trial that followed the government called a number of government chemists who testified that the correct method of telling whether an egg was decomposed was to count the bacteria in the egg substance. The Keith Company contended Congress had not defined what it meant by "decomposed," and so the courts must go back to the common law for a definition. Under the common law it contended a decomposed egg was a rotten egg, and so Congress must have meant to legislate against rotten eggs, or eggs "unwholesomely decomposed."

PETER HAMILTON LAID AT REST

The last mortal remains of the late Peter Hamilton were laid to rest in Little Lake Cemetery on Saturday afternoon. Rev. Robert Porges officiating. Mayor Bradburn and a number of the city council attended, as did also representatives of the school board, of both of which institutions deceased was a late member. The pallbearers were Mr. Wm. Irwin, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Messrs Wm. Savigny, J. Gillespie, Thos. Distin, Wm. Barrie, R. Mulligan and A. R. Nicholls.

CONVICTS FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

One Guard Was Killed and Another One Was Wounded

BURGLAR WAS WOUNDED

Long Term Men Did Not Get the Liberty they so strenuously Struggled For—Guards Make a Plucky Resistance.

Vancouver, Oct. 7.—A sensational affair took place here on Saturday afternoon when Prison Guard E. Johnson was killed and two other guards injured while attempting to frustrate a desperate attempt of two long-term burglars, H. Wilson and Joe Smith, to escape from the New Westminister Penitentiary. Wilson was wounded during the struggle.

Wilson and Smith were in a stone-breaking gang, and as Edward Craig turned at the end of his parade Smith struck him on the head with a hammer, knocking him down. He jumped up and grappled with Smith, getting him down, but Wilson rushed in and together they overpowered him and took his pistol. Then they ran towards the vestibule with Craig after them, but they secured a good start.

Holding Up Guards.

Guard Round, in charge of the vestibule, was standing in such a position that they were able to get right behind him before he noticed them, and when he turned the stolen revolver was in his face. They took his pistol and marched him through the tunnel leading from the vestibule under the wall to the brickyard, and with two pistols at his back compelled him to walk across the brickyard as if they were being taken to some place to work. In that manner they succeeded in approaching Guard Morrison, and they were close up to him before he noticed there was anything wrong. This guard was in charge of an excavating gang.

Using the captured guard as a shield, they forced Morrison at the point of their revolvers to turn his back. The convicts walked both the guards along the back fence to the brickyard, where Guard Elson was stationed on a long elevated running along a wall at an elevation of twelve feet above the ground. Again snatching themselves behind the two guards, they covered Elson with their revolvers and demanded that he throw down his rifle and keys. He threw down his rifle.

Guard Johnson was killed while firing on the convicts, but reinforcements came and they were captured.

BLACK BANNER ORDERED DOWN

Quincy Police Refuse to Allow "No God" Legend to Head Line.

Boston, Oct. 7.—"No god, no God." This was the inscription on a black banner which headed a line of 1,000 Quincy granite and paving cutters, strikers for 24 hours in the I. W. W. demonstration when a line of march was formed at 2 P.M. yesterday in front of the Finnish school on Fairfield street, Quincy.

Chief of Police Burrell and a squad of patrolmen swung in front of the marchers, and told the leaders that unless that banner was removed these would be no parade. I.W.W. leaders hotly protested that they would carry the banner, but when they saw that Chief Burrell was determined in his stand they yielded, and the parade started without that banner snapping in the breeze. There were several red flags, though. One was carried beside the American flag at the head of the procession.

It's often the case that food does not contain the certain elements which Nature requires to meet the demands of the rapidly developing body and brain.

One food which can be depended upon is

Grape-Nuts

It is made of wheat and barley and contains true tissue-building elements including the Phosphorus of Potash especially needed for promoting healthy brain growth.

Adam's Bridge Survey.

The Ceylon Observer says: The first step toward bridging the reef connecting India and Ceylon has been taken by the authorization of a survey of the reef between Dambukhodi and Talaimannar by the South Indian Railway board. While the average depth of water across this reef for about sixteen miles is only two to six feet, there are stretches of about a quarter of a mile each where the depth of water is no less than thirty feet, with heavy shallow sand bars just outside on either side of the reef. The real problem of any railway over the reef will centre about these two deep sections—according to a Jaffna paper. A railway over the reef is bound to come, and the opening of the Mannar line through to India, with the troublesome delay at Talaimannar, will undoubtedly accelerate the decision to have through connection by rail even though the cost will be well over £2,500,000. It is most interesting to note that the pier of the bridge now building at Pamban are being made wide enough to take the standard Ceylon gauge instead of the South Indian metre gauge.

The First Skates.

As late as the sixteenth century skates in England were very primitive, for we learn that the London apprentices used to tie the bones to their feet and under their heels. Writing in 1881, Evelyn speaks of "the strange and wonderful dexterity of the skaters" in St. James' Park, "performed before their Majesties by divers gentlemen and others with skates, after the manner of the Hollanders, with what witnesse they pass, how audaciously they stop in full carriage upon the ice."

"Well," replied the Laboratory, "we have a large family, the Obopy, who have all worked at it, and we have a good idea of it. As we are all of the same family, we all think we can get it. And I really do think so."—London Advertiser.

SAVING LABOR.

A Machine That Sorts Diamonds Invented by a Youth.

When the negro laborers descend into the diamond mines at Kimberley they blast and pick out the hard diamondiferous earth, and put it into wooden tubs, which are hauled on stout wires to the surface, where the earth is spread over the ground to undergo for several months the softening influence of heat and cold. When it is soft enough it is shoveled into the washing machines, where the dirt is separated from the rough diamonds and other large mineral substances. The mixture of minerals remaining is known as concentrates. It was formerly necessary to go carefully over these concentrates, to pick out the genuine and many other foreign substances, until nothing remained but the rough diamonds. This was a slow and laborious operation, but it was an essential part of the mining industry until it was superseded a few years ago.

Among the employees in the sorting room was a young fellow named Eerton, who quietly went to work to find a way to separate the diamonds from other stones more quickly and easily than could be done by the slow progress of hand-picking. He was not discouraged by his many failures. One day, by the merest accident, he made the discovery he was after. A rough diamond and a garnet happened to be lying on a small board on the bench where he was working. He raised one end of the board. The garnet slipped off, but the diamond remained. This was worth investigating. He found that there was a coating of grease on the board which had retained the diamond, but not the garnet. He procured a wider board, coated one side of it with grease, and dumped a few handfuls of concentrates on it.

Then he found that by holding the board in a slightly inclined position and vibrating it, all the concentrates except the diamonds moved to the lower end and fell off, while the diamonds remained in place. Then he invented a machine by which his discovery might be utilized. Considerable study was required to perfect the apparatus, but at last the machine was completed, and the big diamond men were invited to witness the new method of separating diamonds from the rest of the concentrates. The invention was an entire success. A more simple and complete device for saving time, labor, and loss of diamonds could not be imagined. The entire work is now done by machinery; hand-picking has been wholly superseded, and both the inventor and the mine-owners have profited handsomely by the labor-saving device.

His Composition.

"Now, Johnny," said the teacher after she had explained the meaning of the word, "I wish you would write a sentence containing the word 'defect'." After a struggle which lasted for about twenty minutes Johnny announced that he was ready to be heard. "Please read your composition," the teacher directed. "When you get about that's too late," Johnny read, "it's hard on de feet."—Chicago Record-Herald.

His Craze for Whiskers.

King Alfonso, who recently spent an enjoyable holiday in this country, has not of late been indulging in any new whisker effects. Three years ago, during an absence from Spain, His Majesty, in order to relieve the monotony, or create a sensation, or for some occult reason, grew side whiskers and had his hair cut short. It was said that the King thought this arrangement made him look like a British admiral, but Queen Victoria soon dispelled this simable delusion by telling her august spouse that he looked "more like an English butler." Straightway King Alfonso went and had a shave.

Burmese Women Vets.

Although the right of the Burmese women to vote also carries with it eligibility to sit on the Burmese council, no woman has yet availed herself of this privilege. Mrs. Hla Oun, a prominent Burmese woman, widow of the late comptroller of the treasury, however, proposes to stand as a candidate.

Origin of the Orange.

It is to India and to the Arabs in middle ages that Europe, and through Europe America, owe the orange. The orange crossed from Africa to Spain with Mohammedanism, while probably the crusaders are to be thanked for bringing it to Italy and western Europe among their trophies of the east. The very name is really Arabic—"narang"—and of eastern origin, though the legend that it comes from two words meaning "elephant" and "be ill," because elephants eat oranges to make themselves ill, is absurd. Probably in French the initial "n" is dropped off from narang with the final "n" of the indefinite article, just as "an apron" represents "a napron," and the spelling with an "e" points to false association with "or" (gold).

Origin of Gloves.

The origin of gloves is traced to the time of Amon, of the twenty-first dynasty, by M. Dureau in an article in the Egyptian Review. Mittens are among the dress accessories found with the mummies of priestesses dating from that period. They were made of the same material as that of the upper garment. It is probable that actual gloves were also worn to correspond with the foot covering of this pink or red kid, which was more than mere stocking, for it was so made as to separate the big toe from the others. This insured the safety of the white leather sandal, which was fastened by two straps, one of which passed between the first and second toe, the other going over the instep.

The End of a Career.

"Why have you given up the idea of going in for a professional career?" asked her friend. "Because I have met a perfectly splendid man who thinks I would be a lovely ornament to a bungalow that has his eye on."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Ideal Protection Against Inroads of Catarrh

By Breathing the Rich, Balsamic Vapor of Catarrhose You Prevent and Cure all Head, Nose and Throat Disease.

Remember this: You don't take drugs when using Catarrhose; you simply inhale a healing vapor that cures every type of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, throat and nose soreness and irritation.

No medicine brings such prompt relief as this. It is a powerful, invigorating, soothing, and speedily cures throat troubles, as "Catarrhose" Doctors, hospitals, universities, all say that for those who suffer from changeable weather, for those who are predisposed to catarrh, lung trouble, deafness, or bronchitis, no treatment is so indispensable as "Catarrhose".

Victim of Chronic Catarrh Cured. "I contracted a severe cold while following my occupation of furniture travelling and eventually it developed into Catarrh. The desultory mode of life I was following gave me very little chance to improve my condition, and at last I became a victim of chronic catarrh. I bought a large package of Catarrhose, used it as per directions, and have never been bothered since. I will be only too glad to give any information I possess to any person suffering from the disease that was the bane of my life two years."

A. H. SWARTZ, Brockville, Ont.

For certain cure, for relief in an hour, use Catarrhose, the only direct, breathable medicine. Two months' treatment guaranteed, price $1.00, smaller size 50c; as all druggists, or the Catarrhose Company, Kingston, Ont., and Buffalo, N.Y., U.S.A.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is time for the recall of summer underwear and the appearance of backstreet cakes.

An Italian restaurant in Brooklyn advertises "Spaghetti all the day long." There is certainly some length to that spaghetti.

The weather man is promising a few slight frosts. If he can use them to stave off the everlasting rain he is welcome to try. Anything for a change.

It rather looks as though a chief concern at Ottawa just now is whether they can get Mr. Monk transferred to the bench before he cuts loose against his leader again.

The theory that some people have a hoodoo is strengthened by case of the Massachusetts girl who married twice and each time discovered that she had looked up with a bigamist.

If the French surgeons were to play in an ape the stomach of any one of a number of men we know the stomach of any one of a number of men we know the animal would go on a prolonged bat as soon as got out of the hospital.

A Missouri Judge has decided that a woman has a right to a divorce if her husband chews tobacco in bed. This great family journal is of opinion that it will only be a question of time when a man's privileges will be so curtailed that he will not be permitted to do anything but provide the family with meal tickets.

It has been discovered in Toronto that there are drunkards and thieves among newboys. Shocking, indeed. The newbies have hitherto been considered immune from two tendencies that are fairly well developed in most other welps of life. There must be something in these stories of the degeneration of the press, after all.

A political correspondent who was with Presidential candidate Wilson on his Western campaign tour says the Democratic candidate for President "grew mellow and mellow" as he crossed the State of Michigan. It was fortunate that the State was not Kentucky because the public would have immediately jumped to the conclusion that the Governor had been saying "Here's looking at yer," too often to his admiring friends.

NEGRO ACCUSED BY WHITE GIRLS

Hammond, La., Oct. 7.—Joe Snacks, colored, was arrested Saturday night by Chief of Police Meyers on a charge of loitering, based on the facts that he has of late been in the habit of following young white girls, and otherwise annoying them. FRUIT WASTE WILL BE GREAT

Growers Cannot Get Men To Pick It, or Baskets in Which to Market It

ROTTON ON THE TREES

Abundance of Peach and Grape Crops Greatly Exceed Expectations

St. Catharines, Oct. 7.—Fruit growers in this section state that thousands of baskets of grapes and peaches will not be marketed because of the scarcity of baskets. Those men who have plenty of baskets are making as high as one hundred on the money they invested in baskets early in the season by reselling now. Hardly a fruit grower has enough baskets. In the early season the grower goes round his orchards and vineyards and makes an estimate of about how many baskets will be required. Usually he is able to "gure" very closely about how many baskets he will need, but this year the rains increased the fruit crop 50 per cent. more than was estimated, and as a result 50 per cent. more baskets are required. The basket manufacturers sold most of their supply early in the year, as they regulated their quantity according to the growers' estimates. Now the pinch is felt. The factories have resumed operations but fruit is being left on the trees which should be picked. The wine manufacturers are favored by the change, as they are not dependent on baskets for their supply of grapes.

Pickers are scarce, too, for reasons similar to those regarding the scarcity of baskets. The farmers underestimated the crop and didn't hire enough help, and now they can't get it. One grower told a reporter yesterday that the rains increased the crop 50 per cent., and he never remembered when there were so many big, juicy peaches as there are this year. Grapes are also abundant. The railroads, boats and radial cars are taking out hundreds of baskets and barrels, but the fruit keeps piling up at every siding. It is said that there will be far more good fruit wasted because of lack of facilities for getting it to market than ever before.

Another remarkable feature of the fruit this year is the very low number of baskets marked number two. They are all firsts, and even those marked second would be firsts in present working overtime, but with a scarcity of help, a scarcity of baskets and poor transportation facilities there is bound to be a big waste.

SUICIDE TELLS OF MALADY IN NOTE

Biloxi, Miss., Oct. 7.—Probably the most enlightening circumstance explaining the suicide of O. M. Reynolds, the Seashore Camp Industrial School Professor, whose remains were shipped to his old home at Taylorsville for interment Saturday, was a note in Reynolds' handwriting, written on the flyleaf of a notebook, found in his pocket, as follows: "I am subject to spells of dementia."

The Fatal Niches.

Canterbury Cathedral, like most great cathedrals, is decorated with innumerable niches for statues. At Canterbury a series of these niches is occupied with statues of Kings and Queens of England, and there are only four niches left unoccupied. An old tradition has it that when all the niches are filled the throne of England will come to an end. Queen Victoria was approached with a view to a statue of herself being placed in one of the four remaining niches, but her late majesty was aware of the tradition, and refused. One wonders whether in the future there will be four monarchs of England sufficiently indifferent to superstition to deny the tradition and allow their effigies to fill the unoccupied spaces.

London's Famous Bow Bells.

Bow bells, the peal of bells belonging to the Church of St. Maryle-Bow, Cheshide, London, number twelve, not ten, as reference works state, and are rung officially by the Ancient Society of College Youths, founded about 1877, who are probably the oldest guild of bellringers in Europe. The College Youths, some of whom are promising lads of fourteen, have never rung a complete peal on Bow bells, because with twelve bells there are 479,001,600 possible changes and to ring these would take nearly thirty-eight years. Their peal on twelve bells—technically called a "maximum"—is thus never more than a fraction of what it might be.—London Family Herald.

This Was in 1808.

Says The London Times of May, 1808: "A decently dressed woman was last night brought out into Smithfield for sale, but the brutal conduct of the bidders induced the man who was or pretended to be her husband to refuse to sell her, on which a scene of riot and confusion highly disgraceful to our police took place."

A GOOD MAN'S SON.

Cromwell on his death-bed had nominated his son Richard for succession to the Protectorate, but he must have known better than any man that that "transient and embarrassed phantom" was all unfitted to take up and lead a burden which he himself had latterly found no easy one. True, the succession passed easily and quietly from father to son. But it was a barren and fleeting succession nevertheless.

Richard Cromwell was crushed between the Parliament and the army, and was soon dismissed by the latter. He disappeared into obscurity, or, as Monk said, he "forsook himself," though in truth he had no great self, none worthy of his great father, to forsake, and, surviving until 1712, he was hardly ever known by his friends to refer to the great station he had once occupied. To Dryden he was "the foolish Ishboeth," J. E. Green says that he was "weak and worthless," which is true enough from the point of view of high politics, though it does not seem to be true that he was "lax and godless in his morals" as the same historian also says. Kindler and more to the point is the verdict of the saintly Mrs. Hutchinson—"Gentle and virtuous, but became not greatness."

It was in the roller that ensued on Richard Cromwell's fall that England found in Monk a great, silent, disinterested soldier, who, having no axes of his own to grind, as the modern phrase runs, was ably impelled by the force of circumstances and his own shrewd judgment of their bearing to do, for such a restoration was never mentioned in any history, ancient or modern since the return of the Jews from the Babylonian captivity; nor so joyful a day and so bright ever seen in this nation, this happening, when to expect of effect such it was past all human policy.

We all know how the king was restored, with what immeasurable rejoicing and welcome. "I stood in the Strand," says Evelyn, "and beheld it, and said to myself, 'And all this was done without one drop of blood shed, and by that very army that rebelled against him; but it was the Lord's doing, for such a restoration was never mentioned in any history, ancient or modern since the return of the Jews from the Babylonian captivity; nor so joyful a day and so bright ever seen in this nation, this happening, when to expect of effect such it was past all human policy.'"

Such was the sentiment of the time. If the two sons of Charles I. had been other, better, and wiser men than they were, it might have been the sentiment of to-day. But the revolution came in due course, and the House of Stuart never to rise again.

Tel. to spite the faults and follies of the later Stuarts, personal loyalty to their House and Dynasty long survived the expulsion of James II. from the throne. It runs as a thread of glowing romance throughout the otherwise drab texture of early Hanoverian times. It inspired some of the most winning pages of Scott, and lives still in many a plaintive Jacobite ballad which fills us all with tenderness.

Such is the touching persistence of "lost causes and impossible loyalties."

In so far as you approach temptation to a man you do him an injury, and if he is overcome you share his guilt.—Johnson.
A Wide Acquaintance.
A nouvelle riche dowager has afforded much amusement while clambering up the slippery roads of Washington's social ladder. One day after she had returned from circumnavigating the globe she contrived to entertain a drawing room with a beautiful account of her travels. She had been everywhere, and her flow of eloquent homely English was augmented by frequent borrowings of her belated French and several borrowings of her French words.
"Did you see the Dardanelles?" asked a brightly debonair.
"And the Himalayas?" inquired another.
"I dined with them in Paris," replied the dowager triumphantly.
"And the wonderful why everybody studied."—Chicago Tribune.

Whispering Council Secretaries.
Whispering enough is the subject of these quiet speculations in England that almost any other person, in the same position, is believed that if a small quantity of hair is cut from the nose of the sick child's neck, rolled in a piece of moist and given to a dog the whispering cough will be transferred to the animal. In Cornwall the child is laid with bread and butter which has been passed three times under the belly of a piglet. In Lancashire they still tell you that whispering cough will never attack a child that has ridden on a horse.—London Answer.

Well Worth It.
An American lawyer very well paid for his do not call upon them, merely for their own sake, but for the sake of their own pocket.
"Didn't that man complain when you charged him for a broken appointment?"
"No," replied the dentist. "He said breaking an appointment with me is worth every cent it costs."

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Examining Warehouse, Calgary, Alberta," will be received at this office until 4 p.m., on Friday, October 26, 1912, for construction of the building mentioned.

Earthquakes.
The worst shaken countries of the world are Italy, Japan, Greece, South America, Java, Sicily and Asia Minor. The lands most free from earthquakes are Africa, Australia, Russia, Siberia, Scandinavia and Canada. As a rule, where earthquakes are most frequent they are also the most severe. But to this general statement there are exceptions, Indian shocks, though less numerous, being often very disastrous. Loss of life, however, in many cases, depends on density of population rather than on the intensity of the earth movement.—New York American.

Her Secret Service.
"Mrs. Whitely impresses me as one who had something in her past life to make her unhappy. I never can look at her without feeling that she is the bearer of a secret service of some kind."
"Well, she is," she said to me, "and she could never be quite happy again because she used to be the wife of a man who later married another woman with whom he appeared to be living in a state of bliss."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Learning His Father's Business.
"What?" exclaimed the wealthy Cleveland papa who had put his son to work in order to teach him a few things. "What? First after working one week?"
"Yes, dad; I was discharged."
"What was the trouble?"
"They said I was too green for them."
"What was your mistake?"
"I paid a bill the first time the waiter called."
"Ah! And now you see how foolish you were?"
"Yes, dad. I'll never do it again."
"My son, you have served your apprenticeship and learned your lesson. You may now come into the office with me."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Plans for Every Day.
All-time inquiries were subject of a long list of names. Here are a few of them: A shilling for arriving at the Home later than eight in the morning; for a day's absence from duty, say, for being present at prayer, 12.1 and the same penalty for the speaker stirring out of his place, speaking to another, whispering, or reading any other book.—London Answer.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN HOMESTEAD WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 16 years old, may homestead a quarter section of arable land in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Land Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.
Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.
In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption, six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate 50 acres extra.
A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $300.00.

COURTSHIP IN SPAIN.

A Difficult Business in Which Speaking Tubes Play a Part.
In Spain, as is well known, a rigorous etiquette governs the business of love-making. A young man cannot interview his sweetheart without her parents' consent, and indeed all conversation openly carried on between the couple must be in the presence of the fair one's mother.
Many subterfuges are adopted by the lovers to overcome this difficulty, and the "ruse"—the ornamental ironwork on the windows of Spanish houses—has become one of the favorite trusting places. Modern life, however, has imposed fresh barriers. If a young man's sweetheart lives on the third floor of a city building he cannot very well meet her at the "ruse."
In this as in other spheres of life necessity is the mother of invention, and some ardent lovers have brought speaking tubes to their assistance. The result, at the appointed hour, lowers this to her lover below, and they are thus able to carry on their love affairs with the assurance that they are not overheard by the people on the intervening floor, as would be the case if the conversation were carried on without such aid.—London Answer.

The Fortune Teller.
The fortune teller of today does not possess the old time way. He has no strange and mystic air. He hums no pack of cards with each. He gives no crystal globe. The secrets of the earth to probe. Nor takes the somewhat thrilling chance of going off into a trance. He simply gets a good snub. And as your wandering eyes you rub. Fate flutters down with still as swift. You haven't time to catch their drift. Whatever candidate you choose, He'll show you that our man can't lose. —Washington Star.

The combined stores of Peterborough can easily outstrip any two city departmental stores in the stocks carried, the prices offered, and the quality of goods sold.

Investigation will prove this point beyond dispute.

When you have ALL the big store stocks here to choose from you have more variety than any city departmental can give you in any one line.

By trading here you have the opportunity of inspecting the goods and comparing values on the spot.

You save the time, trouble, postage, express, and disappointment.

You have immense stocks of new goods to choose from.

You have the reputation of business men who are here all the time to back up the quality of what you buy.

You are not trading sight unseen. You see the goods you buy, and buy the goods you see.

It Will Pay You to Trade in Peterboro

Just make that comparison once or twice and convince yourself. In the meantime, read the advertisements in this issue; there are some great bargains offered. See the goods, get the prices, examine the stocks, and the rest may easily be left to your good judgment.

Read The Times each day and week. It contains the fresh, bright store news of all the leading advertisers in Peterborough. You will get up-to-date news about stocks, goods and prices. In addition you will get all the news of the district, a summary of the world's doings, special pages for the farm and the home. The Times costs only $2.00 a year daily and $1.00 weekly. Any Headache Cured, Tired Systems Re-Toned

Headaches never come to those who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and this fact is vouched for by the Assistant Manager of the Poultry Success Magazine, of Springfield, O., Mr. J. H. Callender, who writes: "No better medicine than Dr. Hamilton's Pills. We use them regularly and know of marvelous cures that resisted everything else. They cleanse the whole system, act as a tonic on the blood, soothe the digestion, help the stomach, and make you feel strong and well. For headaches, indigestion and stomach disorders I am confident that the one true prescription is Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Being composed of natural vegetable remedies, Dr. Hamilton's Pills possess great power, yet they are harmless. They aid all organs connected with the stomach, liver, and bowels. In consequence, food is properly digested, the blood is pure and nourishing, the body is kept strong and resists disease. All druggists and storekeepers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box. 5 for $1.00, or by mail from the Catarthozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

May Form Co-Operative Association.

A proposal to form a Workmen's Co-operative Association in the city was discussed at a meeting on Saturday evening. A committee was formed and the matter will be further looked into.

Prisoners in Local Jail.

During the past year there were 237 prisoners confined in the local jail, of whom 20 were females. Those sentenced to jail committed the following breaches of the law: Larceny, 10; Seduction, 3; Rape and assault with intent, 1; Vagrancy, 20.

Motor Cyclists Here Saturday.

On Saturday of this week some of the star riders of the Toronto Motor Cycle Club will be in the city with their 70 miles an hour racing machines. Bob Barton, of England, will be among the visitors. Good sport is expected on Saturday afternoon at the driving park.

Burke's Sakeaten Store Entered.

The Sakeaten, Sask., Branch of Messrs. Thos. Burke, Ltd., was entered last Thursday. Four telegraph bags, containing between $5,000 and $6,000 worth of furs were found in the store ready to be taken away when Constable Thompson caught one of the men, who gave his name as Thompson.

Fall and Get Head Hurt.

Mr. John Doherty of Hastings was yesterday evening moving his goods and chattels to a house he had taken in Driscoll Terrace. As Mr. Doherty was getting off the wagon, he fell, sustaining a severe sprain in his left hand. A Times representative took up the injured man's hand for him.

A Canine Loretta Borgia.

Mr. "Bill" Bailey, that ubiquitous correspondent to the local press is fairly sorry. His handsome collier has departed to the happy sheep-fold. Mr. Bailey brought the dog from England and thought a lot of it. It was probably poisoned. If Mr. Bailey can only find the name of the deceased Loretta Borgia, the latter's name will be "Dennis."

Walked to Kewee.

A local citizen walked to Kewee to take in the fall fair in that village. The return fare by rail was only 20c, and he decided to save 15 cents of the amount by footing it. He was very much surprised and disgusted when coming home to find that he

Y.M.C.A. Boys Had Good Time.

Those boys of the Y.M.C.A., under direction of Mr. J. J. Thompson turned out in large numbers and certainly had an enjoyable outing. A bazaar was held at Little Lake where primitive but appetizing cooking of dinner was performed. After playing at "Squirts" the lads had a swim and found the water just right. Mr. J. A. Middleton kindly supplied the boys with apples.

Local Hebrews to Have Synagogue.

Now that the local Jewish colony has grown so rapidly in numbers, they have decided to build a synagogue in Peterborough. Heretofore, these religious services have been held in the Knights of Pythias hall. The purchase of a lot for this purpose is now pending. It is understood that land under consideration is situated on Murray street, but a meeting will be held shortly to decide on this score.

A Temporary Crack at Waseil.

At yesterday's police court, James Jordan was charged with not sending his son to school. The defendant pleaded that whooping cough had been in their family. He was discharged with a warning. James Sadler who has been on the "Idiot Law" for a year, got a D.P., and as it was shown that his temporary tampering with the waseil has succeeded a year of sobriety and good behaviour he was let go.

Girl's Auxiliary Y.W.C.A.

The first meeting of the Girl's Auxiliary of the Y.W.C.A. was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Grace Reinhardt, when the following officers were elected:

President—Miss Reinhardt.
Secretary—Miss Elmer Collins.
Treasurer—Miss Mattie Robertson.
Convener of Library Committee—Miss Gladys Crane.
Convener of Gymnasium Committee—Miss Lena Deane.
Convener of Junior Work—Miss Marie Gladman.

Big Find of Mushrooms.

Mr. Arthur Johnson and some friends, including a local barber, yesterday took a walk out past Napan in quest of "Morels," an edible mushroom. They searched with indifferent success for some time in a field. The Knight of the Banner remembered once finding morels near the canal, after climbing fences and crossing about a mile of ploughed fields, he found three baskets. These he brought back in triumph to show Mr. Johnson. The party simply smiled and pointed to a later gentleman and the rest of the big basketful they had found and harvested shortly after the barber had set out for the canal.

St. Paul's Guild Elect Officers.

The members of St. Paul's Guild met last night and appointed their officers for the ensuing year. The following was the result of the election:

Treasurer—Mr. Baptie.
Organists—Miss B. Stark, Miss G. Davidson, Miss McGearrie, Miss Edith Hall.

Former Local Man Killed.

A Schenectady, N.Y., despatch says that Mr. George Baguley, a real estate dealer of that city, but formerly of Peterborough, was instantly killed near Rector's, a village about three miles from Schenectady on Saturday afternoon, while on route in his automobile from New York City to Toronto. Mr. Baguley was driving and was accompanied by his chauffeur, S. Hogg, also of Toronto. He attempted to pass a machine traveling in the same direction. Apparently one of the wheels of his car caught in a rut. Baguley lost control of the car, which went into the ditch, turned turtle, throwing the chauffeur clear but pinning Mr. Baguley under the front of the car. He sustained a broken neck.

The West Calls for Help.

Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation, the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion Monday, Oct. 14th, $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg $10.00.

When Brothers-in-Law Fell Out.

A row over the rental of a house by Patrick Tobin from Charles Kovaleski culminated in a police court case for assault on Saturday.

Tobin, in the witness box claimed that after leaving Kovaleski's house, he returned to get some pipe. Kovaleski and his wife met Tobin and the former struck him several times, whilst the defendant's wife struck Tobin's wife and threatened to do the same to Kovaleski's wife. Cross questioned by Mr. Moore the witness stated that he owed a month's rent and had only paid $2.00 out of a hundred dollars lent him by defendant some fourteen months ago. The magistrate fined Kovaleski $5 and costs of $2.60. The two men are brothers-in-law.

OBITUARY.

John Wilson.

On Sunday evening Mr. John Wilson, an old and highly respected resident of the city died at the venerable age of 91 years. The late Mr. Wilson had resided with his son, Mr. Robert Wilson, 584 Charlotte street, for the past eight years and it was at his residence that he passed away. For sixty-five years Mr. Wilson was a consistent Orangeman. He leaves to mourn his loss two sons, Robert of Peterborough, and one daughter, Mrs. Samuel Coulter of Saskatoon.

All accounts due and owing the Estate of the late Dr. Marshall are required to be paid on or before the 15th day of October, either at 245 Hunter Street, or at the office of G. N. Gordon.

MONTENEGRO STOLE MARCH ON POWERS BY STRIKING AT TURKEY

Heavy Fighting in Progress Along the Frontier—Forms of Declaration Delivered to the Porte This Morning—Broke Off Diplomatic Relations

Cettinje, Montenegro, Oct. 8.—War on Turkey was declared by Montenegro this morning.

The declaration of war was delivered to the Porte by the Montenegrin Charge d'Affaires early today.

Heavy fighting is already in progress along the frontier.

Nine battalions of Turkish troops which were proceeding from Scutari to Tuzi, along the Montenegrin frontier, were attacked late yesterday by a detachment of Mahisori tribesmen.
The fighting began just outside Tuzi and continued all night, with vigor. The battle was still in progress this morning.

London, Oct. 8.—The outbreak of war in the Balkans caused no surprise in London, but the quarter in which it started was unexpected.

Joint action by the allied Balkan nations and Greece was looked for instead of the initiative being taken by Montenegro, the weakest among them.

The official world here now awaits
the announcement that Bulgaria, Serbia and Greece have also broken off diplomatic relations with Turkey.

It is assumed that they have chosen today for launching the war so that they may reply to the protest which Austria and Russia are serving upon them in behalf of the powers that it comes too late. Should a general state of war be declared today, experts consider that no important engagements can be expected before October 15 and perhaps another week from that date will be required for the Bulgarian and Turkish armies to come into contact in the region of Adrianople where the first clash of arms, on a large scale, is considered most probable.

ONCE A BELLBOY, NOW MINING PROMOTER AND WORTH HALF A MILLION DOLLARS

HENRY A. CRANKSHAW

From bellboy to financier! That, in brief, is the spectacular career of Henry A. Crankshaw, who ten years ago was carrying bags and glad to get a ten cent tip, but who today is stopping in a sumptuous room at the Waldorf Astoria, in New York, the hotel in which he was once a bellboy. Crankshaw is worth at present in the vicinity of half a million dollars. The former "bell boy" amassed this great fortune in buying and selling mining claims throughout the West.

The globe of Oct. 8, 1912, in its report of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech at Mount Forest, says: "In Ontario the farmers could dispose of their produce in the open market, which was the best for them."

Where does reciprocity come in,
Sir Wilfrid, where does the Free Trade come in, if this is the case?
Truth will out. If this is so with Ontario, as it certainly is, why cannot the West look forward to the same thing?

The next speaker on the program was Mr. E. A. Breckinridge, manager of the Goulley, Winter & Leming Piano Co. Mr. Breckinridge is a most eloquent speaker and his words were full of inspiration and fortification.

He recalled the past of the Brotherhood; its troubles, its foundation, and now after years of faithful work the scaffold had been removed, with the result that nothing, but a most admirable future was in store for the movement. "Thank God for this great movement," he said, "It has the essential element of a good foundation."

Finally he paid a beautiful tribute to the Brotherhood for its work in Toronto, and hoped to see Fatherhood in the very near future with a prosperous and up-lifting Brotherhood.

Mr. Downey then introduced, Rev.
H. A. McPherson, of Chalmers church, Toronto. "The Church minus the Brotherhood, loses a great deal indeed," he said, "I'm here as

London, Oct. 8.—Parliament met

Asquith's time-table gives thirty-two days for the discussion in all

This, with the time already consumed

Chatham, Oct. 8.—The trustees of school sections No. 3 and 7 in the Catholic parish of Pain Court, in Dover Township, have sent a letter to Sir James Whitney and Hon. Dr.
Fyfe complaining of the school regulation that permits French to be taught only in the primary grades of the separate schools of those sections.

They wish both French and English to be taught in all grades of the schools, and they strongly object to the appointment of a Protestant Inspector.

The letter states that they "absolutely refuse to enforce those laws in their schools," and if they are deprived of their grants on that account they will undertake to educate their children themselves without Government assistance. The letter also states that if a Protestant Inspector is appointed, "the children have received orders to vacate the school as soon as the Protestant Inspector walks in."

The trustees ask these concessions
"in the name of God, for peace sake and for the welfare of the people."

man's Paradise.

Mr. Frank Montgomery of the

from a three weeks' trip to the far

Franks brothers and others west as far west as Saskatoon, Sask.

Mr. Montgomery is a large property owner in the farming portion of Saskatchewan. In fact the summer before last Mr. Montgomery invested $10-000 in farm lands. He could have disposed of his purchase, during his recent trip for $25,000. Mr. Mont-gomery's property is immediately adjoining a half section, 320 acres belonging to Mr. Fred Staples, formerly of Cavan, Mr. Staples, in addition to his own property, operates that of Mr. Montgomery. As an illustration of the way farming is carried on in that part, Mr. Montgomery noted that Mr. Staples out of three small loads of oats, as cut, got 85 bushels. At one place, some 30 miles from Saskatoon, from where he stood, Mr. Montgomery saw nine threshing outfits at work. He also saw seven binders besides at work, drawn by one traction engine. As soon as the days work is done, the traction engine is used, with a fresh gang, for ploughing by aid of artificial light. Mr. Montgomery has such faith in the wonderful opportunities of Saskatchewan, that he invested $2000, in addition to his former purchase, during his recent trip.

Good Sport.

Asked by The Times as to sport in that country, Mr. Montgomery became enthusiastic. He said that no country in the world can be surpas-sed for wild turkeys, prairie chickens, wild geese, ducks, quail, etc. He remarked that he and two friends in three hours shot 32 wild turkeys. On another occasion, he and a companion shot 80 ducks and 2 geese in half an hour.

about or ridiculous escapes her at-

as a mild stimulant, she persuades her two grandsons whom she adores, into all sorts of extravagance, and acter for a dinner, is the climax of her adventure. Of course Gramum,

BROTHERHOOD AT KNOX CHURCH

Large Gathering of Men Listen to Splendid Addresses Given by Prominent Toronto Men

There was a very large attendance last night at Knox Church, at the meeting of the Brotherhood of St.
Andrew and Philip, of Toronto, who came down from that city by special train. There were 125 of the Brotherhood present, which also furnished most excellent music. Mr. R. F.
Downey acted as chairman of the gathering and acted in that capacity in a most pleasing manner.

Mr. Downey, after a few preliminaries introduced Rev. J. H. Stewart, President of the Council of St. Andrew and Philip. He said he knew something of the men of Peterborough, for he had come in contact with them from time to time in Toronto and from them learned the urgent need of Peterborough taking hold of this up-lifting movement.

The organization, he continued, is undenominational. "We should stand shoulder to shoulder, determined to lift up the man."

"No man for self, every man for the world," that's what the Brotherhood represents. This sentiment found great favor to his hearers, who showed their appreciation by loud applause. He spoke of men, feared by his personality, went out into the world—not for holiday, but to fight for the great standard—the Cross. Men are bonded together for one purpose; the Brotherhood is to propagate the Gospel of Jesus Christ.
Men ought to give up a lot to lift up the world—that is the object of the Brotherhood.

The next speaker on the program
was Mr. E. A. Breckinridge, manager of the Goulley, Winter & Lem-

MISS WYLIE HERE, SHE SAYS TO WAKE CANADIAN WOMEN

Will Ignore Sir James Whitney and the Other Provincial Premiers and Conduct a Whirlwind Campaign Across the Dominion in Behalf of Militant Methods
For the Fair Sex

Toronto, Oct. 8.—Miss Barbara Wylie has not been exaggerated. She is a fact, and Toronto unfolds her Last night she sat on the sofa up at the Suffrage headquarters and was very patient with a light-minded press. She is one of these tall, intellectual, aristocratic-looking En-glishwomen with the real thing in the way of accents and a Made-in-England hat. A stone-thrower and a hunger-striker by her own confession the militant missionary would throw with precision and strike after due consideration. Personally, I would bet on her aim being as good as her intentions.

She doesn't raise her voice and she doesn't gesticulate. Her gloved right hand rested on her lap throughout the interview and didn't even clench itself when a morning paper man expressed sympathy for Asquith.
Her gloved left, with the big blue stone on the first finger, was used a little to indicate the size and scope of the Suffrage agitation, but the gestures were languid, a little weary perhaps, of having to explain the obvious.

To Wake Canadians Up.

In reply to a question as to what had brought her Peter-the-Hermiting across the Atlantic, Miss Wylie said that this was an Imperial issue, and if the women of Canada didn't realize it they must be made to wake up.

"You are sleepier than I thought," remarked the Suffragette, "why there are ten Chinese women in the present Parliament of your country."

"You seem to imagine I'm interfering with the Canadian organizations," Miss Wylie accused us, in reference to certain questions. "It's true there has been no official invitation, but I've received plenty of private requests. Besides this is an Imperial issue. We aren't concerned with any class or society; we want world-wide freedom for women."

"You say I'll have to conduct a whirlwind campaign to get all this in two or three weeks. Quite so. The W.S.P.U. has done miracles in the past, and it will continue to do miracles."

CANADIAN BOY IS EXPELLED NOT SALUTING U.S. COLORS

New York, Oct. 8.—When the exercises of the Cedar Grove, New Jersey, Public High School opened yesterday morning Leoric Temple, the seventeen year old son of Frederick L. Temple, who is an auditor in New York, was not present.

The school board of the village had taken action in regard to the boy's refusal to announce his allegiance to the American flag, and as the boy refused to reconsider, acting under his father's orders, he was expelled.

One of the members of the Board of Education said last night: "This Temple boy has caused us trouble before. About a year ago he probably insulted the flag, and he was asked to apologize, which he did. Now, he is expelled."

Young Temple precipitated the trouble by putting his hands in his pockets last Monday morning, when the other pupils saluted the flag and repeated a formula pledging allegiance to it. Principal Hutchinson asked him why he did it.

"I am acting under instruction from my father," answered the boy.

DUKE'S INTEREST IN THE WEST PLEASES BRITISH COLUMBIANS

Kootenay Landing, B.C., Oct. 8.—
The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Princess Patricia, and the other members of the Governor General's suite across Canada touring party returned to the Royal train last night after spending four delightful days on the Okanagan, Arrow and Kootenay Lakes in lower British Columbia.

The Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, who joined the Royal party, at the invitation of the Duke, remained with them until yesterday afternoon, Mr. Burrell also accompanied the party from Nelson to Balfour, B.C., where Mr. and Mrs.
Burrell lunched with the Royal tourists at the beautifully situated Kootenay Lake Hotel.

"The Duke's unflinching courtesy, his unfailing interest in everything connected with the industries and the progress of the West."

Sergeant-Major Under General French

Veteran of Boer War Who Lost His Health on the Veldt Tells Experience.

Used Advice for All Who Have Indigestion or Stomach Disorders.

In his home at Walbridge, N. S., no one is better known than Sergeant-Major Cross, late of the 4th Queen's Own Hussars. Speaking of the ill-effects of a campaign upon a man's constitution, the Sergeant-Major writes: "I served under General French during the late Boer war, in the capacity of Sergeant-Major. It was perhaps a continued diet of bully beef, hard tack, and bad water, but at any rate my stomach entirely gave out. I was in such a state that I could eat nothing without the greatest suffering. The army doctors did not help me much, and since leaving the service I have been very miserable. Some few months ago a friend told me he had been a great sufferer from indigestion until he tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they cured him. I confess it was without much faith I bought a box, but the first dose made me feel better than I had been for a long time. Dr. Hamilton's Pills completely cured, and now I can eat everything and anything. I have recommended them to others and in every case the result has been similar to mine."

Quick, sure results attend the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They cure disorders of the stomach, correct indigestion, make you feel uplifted and strengthened. To renew or maintain health, Dr. Hamilton's Pills always prove a good prescription. 25c. per box, five boxes for $1.00, all dealers, or the Catarthosene Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

In Sir Wilfrid Laurier's entourage, there are discovered five members of the Cabinet who seem to stick closer than a brother to the leader himself. Caesar had once very dear friends but personal ambitions under the guise of patriotism brought forth a Brutus and a Cassius.

Another British submarine gone to the bottom with her crew of fifteen—the sixth calamity of this sort in the British navy. What will death under water and out of the air, the total sacrifice of life in preparing for war is not far short of the death-toll from war itself.

In Halifax three men are to be hanged for the murder of one. This seems to be exceeding even the "life for a life" limit of earlier if not more barbarous times. If fifty had killed the one, should the fifty have died? Or is it not time that the law of revenge gave a place to a kindlier and a juster law?

The other day a pathetic story was put on the cables, telling of the inability of Lord Wenlock's heiress to live in the ancestral home because the death duties took so much of the estate. English papers just received show that the gross value of the estate is £519,487, and that after the death duties are deducted £452,000 will remain.

Probably the best paid piece of labor the world has ever known was that performed by Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, when he twisted a screw one-fourth of a revolution and thereby invented the telephone and made a hundred million dollars. It is likewise interesting to know that the invention was made by accident, and that Dr. Bell did not realize that it was of any commercial value for months afterward.

A. J. Drexel Biddle, of Philadelphia, has organized a Bible Class movement that is taking on extraordinary proportions. There are forty-five classes in Philadelphia, numbering 3400 persons, and many in other cities. Mr. Biddle has just given the use of his magnificent country home at Lansdowne, Pa., as a summer vacation home to members of these classes.

Delinquent: "Many a father does not know how to treat the young man who comes courting his daughter. The first thing to do is to find out whether he has money enough to support her in all the discomforts of life in the suburbs, or in a city flat. Then ask him frankly what sort of a man he is. If his answers are satisfactory tell him you'll be glad to see him any evening he feels like calling on your daughter." Don't ask him personally though about his financial position. Get that from his tailor, laundries, landlady or some outside source, or else take a course in jui jitsu if he's a husky suitor.

THE WOMAN QUESTION.

Boston Herald: "A student of human nature, who abides on the western coast, that Eden of feminine emancipation, desires to know how we can discuss with gravity the 'condition of women,' when all those possessed of any knowledge of the sex are aware that there is no such thing as 'woman.' There are only 'women,' and of the needs and desires of these it is impossible to obtain any adequate knowledge. This conclusion is arrived at by one who has interviewed them, for an estimate of what they are looking for.

The writer finds that there is no 'woman question' any more than there is such thing as 'woman,' but there are as many 'women questions' as there are members of the sex, and each one requires a separate answer. He thinks it would be quite impossible to legislate for more than one at a time if he desired to give general satisfaction.

He points out of his study window at women arrayed in the up-to-date skirts which make walking a labor, raising a tragedy and going up stairs a melodrama, and he concludes with the remark: 'Can we reasonably expect large intellectual strides in those that voluntarily hamper their legs?'

"If she wants emancipation from the imaginary tyranny of man, let her show herself worthy of it by overthrowing the active despotism maintained by herself."

THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

Imperial Parliament has resumed work after an eight weeks' recess, and the sitting is expected to extend well into the New Year. Previous to the adjournment, on August 7th, the Welsh Disestablishment, Reform of the Franchise and Trade Union Bills had all been read a second time and the Home Rule Bill has entered upon its committee stage, and the first clause passed. Other Government measures such as the Scotch Temperance Bill, the Mental Deficiency Bill and the Criminal Law Amendment Bill are also in a fairly advanced stage. In the normal course, therefore, there should be substantial results at the completion of the session.

The chief interest of the sitting will, of course, centre in the Committee Stage and third reading of the Home Rule Bill. It is unlikely that the views of the Government have undergone any change owing to the events in Ulster during the past week.

It has been assumed in some quarters that a declaration of his policy in regard to the land question may be expected from Mr. Lloyd George. The remaining portion of the session, however, will be extremely busy, and it is unlikely that any further complication will be introduced by the Government. Any action, too, would probably be taken through the Budget of 1913 by means of an increase or extension of existing land taxation, and in this case, a definite announcement is extremely unlikely.

Towards the close of the session, after the various first-class measures have left the Commons, interest will centre in the probable action of the House of Lords in regard to them, in view of its new position towards Liberal legislation created by the passage of the Parliament Act. Its composition is, of course, still overwhelmingly Conservative, and the question to be decided will be one of policy—whether it will be of greater advantage to the Opposition, for instance, for the Home Rule Bill to be allowed to come into operation in 1913 with a view to embarrassing the Government in Ireland or whether it will suit them better to delay its passage, along with that of the other chief measures, in the hope that the defeat of the Government may be compassed before it can pass them over the heads of the Lords.

"THE THIRD DEGREE."

Grand Opera House, Saturday Oct. 12th, Matinee and Evening Performances.

Mystical, mysterious, misunderstood, the Third Degree takes a vague shape in many minds as a shadow something of horror, to which fainting wrong-doers are subjected by inhuman police officials, and night as an ally, in the evil smelling jail cells of a forbidden station house.

The Third Degree, indeed, has been termed the police inquisition. This would not be a bad definition if it be understood that the victim's torture is of the mind, the heart, the soul, rather than of the body.

There used to be in days when American cities were the scenes of shocking physical brutality practiced as part of the third degree. There are stories, part truth, part exaggeration, known to those brought into contact with police tradition, of defiant suspects who have been beaten senseless, who have had their teeth knocked out, who have been starved until so ravenous they would eat anything for food, who have been kept without sleep until on the brink of madness.

But such is not the Third Degree of today. In the worst days of the third degree physical violence was not used as a generality. It was a distinct exception. But to-day physical torture has been almost abolished, largely due to the exposure and scandals resulting from some flagrant cases of third degree application.

NATURE OF THIRD DEGREE. What, then, is the third degree of 1900? It is the merciless, brutal, ingenious, incessant, order of cross-examination, with the aid of information secured by "digging" on the case with colossal "bluffing" by the police officials, which is forced upon a suspect with no friend present, absolutely in the power of the police. A bit of French method of "reconstruction" of a crime is sometimes employed as an adjunct to the application of the third degree. The object always is to make the suspect either confess to the crime or divulge such guilty knowledge as he has of it.

"Make him tell," is the watchword of the degree.

Analysed the third degree shows on one side police prestige and power, police knowledge of crime and criminals, judgment of men and motives, harshness and inventiveness, directed against suspects.

TORONTO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Six Splendid Concerts Arranged To Take Place During Fall And Winter Months.

The Toronto Symphony Orchestra has issued a notice of their series of Toronto concerts during the coming winter. They will give six Symphonic Recitals under the direction of their capable leader, Frank S. Warran, and will be assisted by artists of the first rank at each concert. They will also give a series of Saturday "pops" at which they will have the co-operation of local talent.

The artists engaged to assist the Orchestra are Miss Louise Homer, the leading contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, New York; Leo Slezak, the gigantic Czech Tenor, whose fame for heroic roles in Vienna, Berlin and New York is unsurpassed; Xavier Scharwenka, the eminent German composer-pianist, who will conduct the Orchestra in one of his own compositions, besides appearing in the role of performer. Eugene Yeaye "pops" at which they will have the co-operation of local talent.

These concerts will be held on Thursday evenings, spread over the fall and winter, the dates being Oct. 17th, Nov. 14th, Dec. 5th, Jan. 23rd, Feb. 13th and Mar. 5th.

This live organization is annually spending $50,000 in the cause of good music, but their plans for this year are even more ambitious than ever before announced. In fact it is said by many that the coming season will be the finest in the history of the organization.

In addition to the Toronto concert the Orchestra has been negotiating with many of the large towns throughout Ontario, and a busy season is in store. It is also proposed that the Orchestra will give a series of concerts on tour next spring, extending from Quebec to the Rockies.

In connection with these concerts, Peterborough people can leave on the 4:19 C.P.R. train, attend the concert and return on the midnight.

Harry Winch Prefers a Horse.

Mr. Harry Winch, the veteran horseman, when asked by The Times yesterday if he had not decided to give up horses and take to an automobile, replied: "No, sir, horse is good enough for me. Why the other day, as I was out driving an auto behind me started to back, warning me to get out of the way. However, as my horse can do it in 20 I kept right on and the gasoline that auto used up to pass me must have cost money."

COME AND SEE, HEAR AND HELP

UNDERTAKER TO THE AGES.

No One Knows How Many Great Cities Lie Buried Under the Dust.

As dust was the beginning, so shall it be the end of all things, writes J. Gordon Ogden. It is the cosmic undertaker of the ages, and silently, relentlessly and earnestly it has performed its function. The proudest monuments built by man, the Sphinx, the Pyramids, the Colossus of Rhodes, the Gardens of Babylon and the glories of Grecian art, have either crumbled to the dust whence they sprang or have been buried in its winding sheet. So far as human grandeur is concerned, even "Imperial Caesar, dead and turned to clay, might stop a hole to keep the wind away!" No one knows how many Londons or Jerusalems there have been. Excavations into the dust on which these cities are built reveal the relics and remains of former cities which once flourished and were mighty, but were finally engulfed in the course of untold centuries by the gradual but immense deposits of dust and debris. When Macaulay's New Zealander shall muse in profound melancholy upon the shattered remains of London Bridge, he will behold a vast battlefield, where half-buried columns and desert sands shall proclaim the final sovereignty of dust.

The mighty Himalayas, whose snowy summits have as yet defied the foot of man, are slowly crumbling into dust, and the lofty peaks of the Andes are splintering, fragment by fragment, until they, too, shall become clods of the valley. Every wind that blows "soft o'er Caylon's Isle" carries away in tiny dust particles some of the beautiful hills and vales. Every brooklet trickling down the rugged mountain side bears part of a continent to the sea. Every year the Mississippi river carries down to the gulf little motes of matter, river-worn pebbles amounting to more than 7,000,000,000 cubic feet. In 5,000 years the Mississippi cuts down its entire basin one foot, and as the mean height of the continent is only 2,000 feet, were the process to go on uninterrupted, North America would be reduced to the sea level in about 7,000,000 years. When we stop to consider what the other great rivers of the globe are doing, such as the Nile, the Yang-tze-kiang, the Yukon and the Danube, we can appreciate in some measure the everlasting waste that is eating away great continents and forming the inevitable supremacy of the kingdom of dust.

An Important Order.

A rural postmaster tells this story of one of the persons of his office, a boy of thirty not to say peripatetic school. When the lad comes into the postoffice he will thrust his wisdom face up close to the window and in his low Yankee drawl enquire most earnestly:

"How ya got any postal cards?"

"Yes," the postmaster replies.

"How much be they 't'day?"

"A cent apiece."

Then the boy, screwing up his eyes in the intensity of his thought over the question he has to decide, always stops for awhile to weigh the consequences. Finally he will reply solemnly:

"Well, I'll take one."

Fame's Brief Life.

One thing is certain in regard to fame—few of us will be very brief in it; for all of us it will be brief in its enjoyment of it. When death has dropped the curtain we shall hear no more applause, and, though we fondly dream that it will continue after we have left the stage, we do not realize how quickly it will die away in silence while the audience turns to look at the new actor and the next scene. Our position in society will be filled as soon as it is vacated and our name remembered only for a moment, except, please God, by a few who have learned to love us not because of fame, but because we have helped and done them some good.

Henry van Dyke.

Origin of Oxtail Soup.

During the reign of terror in Paris in 1793 many of the nobility were reduced to starvation and beggary. The abattoirs sent their hides fresh to the tanneries without removing the tails, in cleaning them the tails were thrown away. One of the noble beggars asked for a tail, and it was willingly given to him. He took it to his lodging and made (what is now famous) the first dish of oxtail soup. He told others of his good luck, and they annoyed the tanners so much that a price was put upon them.

The Pigmy Hippopotamus.

One of the animals least known to the outside world is the pigmy hippopotamus of West Africa. It is just what its name implies, a pigmy hippopotamus. It is much smaller than the common hippopotamus, being no larger than an ordinary fair-sized hog. It differs somewhat from the common hippo in the character of its teeth, and instead of spending its time in the rivers and lakes in large herds it wanders about through the jungles singly or in pairs, much after the manner of swine in search of mast.

Perfectly at Home.

"Is your bride blind and backward with your people?"

"Not a bit. She has already begun to teach sister how to look stylish and mother how to cook."

A Curious Yarnspinner.

Upon, near Peterborough, one of the smallest parishes in England, numbering only fourteen houses, there once a tumbleton of black magic, which becomes damp in patches whenever rain is about to fall. It is a small village in an island, the name of which is not known.

A PRESIDENTIAL TRAGEDY.

Haiti's Recent Uprising is Only One of a Long Series of Outrages.

Whether the gunpowder which blew up the Haitian National Palace and killed President Cincinnatus Leonie, was touched off by accident or by design, the fault was the administration's.

The police authorities were unable to clear up the mystery immediately after the explosion, and while the enemies of Leonie were suspected, there was no evidence enough uncovered to justify the arrest of anybody.

A paper draws the conclusion that an administration palace containing a powder magazine and large stores of arms is in itself a confession that Haiti is a Government which derived its powers from some other source than the consent of the governed. This bit of recent history in which Leonie figured conspicuously is well worth reading:

Leonie was Minister of the Interior under President Nord Alexis, whose bloody reign of tyranny came to an end in exile. But for the protection he begged from a foreign warship Nord Alexis would have been torn to fragments in revenge for his savage and summary executions of citizens on the mere suspicion of disloyalty.

President Leonie was the man who often carried out the orders of Nord Alexis. Upon the downfall of that petty tyrant he was compelled to seek safety in exile. President Simon, who obtained his title to the Presidency by the overthrow of Nord Alexis, was subsequently challenged by Leonie, who, from his refuge in Jamaica, plotted, and a German consul saved him from death.

He promptly went about another revolution, and next time he succeeded in overthrowing Simon. Following the long-established precedent, he declared himself President pro tem, and ordered an election. The people who took the trouble to vote at all, voted unanimously for President Leonie, for any other choice would have been an invitation to face the firing squad.

The voters of Haiti, like those elsewhere who bow to the machine, all were "vote right." In consequence of this cowardice in the face of a military despotism their Government is as corrupt and as oppressive as the Presidents know how to make it.

It is not a matter of race that makes Haiti a political pestle on the face of the earth. It is the lack of education. The term education is here employed in its larger and best sense, for the primary most important purpose of education is not to make scholars, but to make exemplary citizens who will be educated to proper standards of morality and of patriotism.

When the average citizen grows up with the idea that government is merely grafting privilege whereby the officials in power are licensed to levy tax and tribute, public and private, without authorization of any law but the law of greed, government necessarily becomes a travesty and the subjects of government merely slaves.

This is a very common condition for Haiti. The early white colonies quickly exterminated the aboriginal inhabitants of whom they made slaves, and Africans were imported to take their place. Again the greed of the rapacious white man overreached itself, for soon the black population was several times larger than the white.

It is a tragedy of the race that the slaves were not to be sold to the plantations of the United States, but were left to the mercy of the white man. They were thousands of them should be the slaves or cattle of hundreds of whites and be denied all privileges as men and women.

They appealed to France, which became owner of the island by the treaty of Ryswick, but France had problems at home that absorbed her energies and the French slavers had no time to spare for the negroes. In one of an inclination to consider the petition. There being no hope of help, the slaves rose in rebellion in 1791 and at last their taskmasters with fine enthusiasm.

Easy to Carry.

There was an old Scotchman in Glasgow who was moving from one house to another on the same street. Being of an economical turn of mind, he had moved his bits of furniture on the wheelbarrow himself. The last thing left for him to carry was one of those old grandfather's clocks. It was rather heavy and awkward to handle.

As he tottered up the street to his new home with grandfather's clock over his shoulder he met a friendly Scot who had been "bumping." "Talk man," said the temperate one, "buy yerse!"

A Perpetual Sacred Fire.

In the peninsula of Abershore, formerly belonging to Perth, but now a part of Perthshire, there is a perpetual fire, which the natives call an eternal sacred fire, which is known to have been burning continually for more than 3,000 years. It rises from an irregular orifice of about twelve feet in depth and 120 feet square. The flames, which are constant, rise to a height of from six to eight feet, unaccompanied by smoke or disagreeable odors, and are said to be the wind like a field of golden grain.

Men and Children First.

The Chinese point of view of maritime disasters is peculiar. The duty of a Chinese sailor is well defined. He is to save the men, and then the children and finally the women. This is on the theory that men are most valuable to the state, that adoptive parents can be found for children and the women without husbands are destitute.

Two Ways.

"Joe says Mao treats him like a dog."

"Ah, but is the treatment general or particular?"

"What do you mean?"

"Does he treat him like her dog?"

Human Nature.

All boys think they will be richer than their fathers, and all girls think they can keep house better than their mothers. They continue to think this until they are fathers and mothers themselves.

Why He Sees Double.

The reason that a man sees double when he gazed too long on the wine which is red is that the nerve centers are changed by the action of the alcohol. There is a want of harmony in the action of the muscles which move the eyeballs. Consequently instead of both eyes being focused simultaneously on an object one eye receives an impression independently of the other. The two impressions are communicated to the brain, and the object is therefore seen double.

Induced Condition and Loss of Memory in the brain centres from overaction of alcohol also account for the staggering gait of an intoxicated man.

THE PRETTY SAKADO.

Two Empress of Japan becomes a Goddess, Deified and Sacred.

The twentieth century, and a man and a woman are being made, all alive and breathing, into a god and goddess. Millions of people believe it, and a good many of them are right. The right of her spouse to take a dozen other women to his heart.

But the man who is now Emperor of Japan, who is in theory, if not in practice, the source of all authority in the island empire, has hitherto been a model husband along the lines of the monogamous west. And, since he has been enough to the throne, it may be that the good destiny which has thus far guided pretty Sakado up to goddess-ship may have her happiness in its kindly keeping during the years to come.

When the Kaiser Was Peevish.

Pinaro's Art.

Sir Arthur Wing Pinaro, whose clever comedy "The Mind the Pains" (see page 10) is still drawing large London audiences, is recognized both in this country and on the continent as one of our greatest playwrights. In his comedy, there is a certain amount of fact that explains his wonderful mastery of stage-craft.

Sir Arthur Pinaro has made a fortune by his pen, and his plays have been produced in all parts of the globe. His plays are "The Mind the Pains," "The Gay Lord Quesz," "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," and "His House in Order," are familiar to millions of playgoers, and as Sir Arthur Pinaro is still in the fifties, his next success may be expected from his pen.

Dainty Dishes of the Papuans.

The Papuans eat extraordinary things. A particular delicacy is the white larvae of a beetle found in the decayed wood of a tree trunk. They split up the log with their mighty stone axes and cut up the fragments with sharpened shells in the quest of the larvae. Sometimes they eat them raw, but usually roast them first.
"There are two kinds of water tortles which they like to eat, and rats, lizards, frogs and snakes and the eggs of crocodiles they devour greedily."
Their meat is the wild pig, the wallaby and the cassowary, all of which they hunt with dogs—"Pygmies and Papuans."

When Men Were Bustles.

"Bustles were ridiculous," said an antiquary. "Do you remember the bustle of 1880? It shot straight out from the waist, a broad nest on which, honestly, an adult could have sat.
Yes, bustles were ridiculous, but no more ridiculous than the tournures of Francis II. The tournures were worn by men. They were bustles—front instead of rear ones. Yes, in the time of Francis II. portliness was considered stately, and men tied on tournures, or false buttocks, in order to achieve an air of dignity."BE WISE!*ADVERTISE YOUR

CURES OLD FOLK'S COUGHS

Doesn't Disturb the Stomach, Ease at Once and Cures Thoroughly. "CATARRHOZE" A BOON TO MANY THOUSANDS.

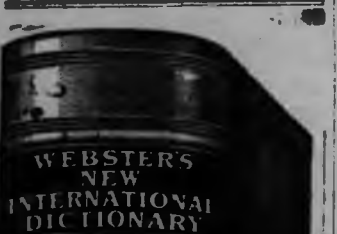

Because you are old is no reason for suffering with overhauling coughing—those terrible chest troubles and difficult breathing can be thoroughly cured with CATARRHOZE. You simply breathe the healing vapor of Catarrhoze, and instantly the rich balsamic fumes are carried by your breath into the tiniest recesses of the nose, throat, chest, bronchial tubes and lungs.

Just think of it—a direct, breathable medicine, full of soothing antiseptic pine essences that reaches every sore, congested membrane in two seconds. No drugs to take—nothing to harm or sicken the stomach, because Catarrhoze is the purest, safest cough, catarrh and cold remedy ever devised.

"For many years," writes Richard McCallum, Stirling, Ont., "I have suffered from Catarrh, and continual hawking and coughing, so that my throat was always in an inflamed, irritable condition. "Doctors' medicine did not help me in the least, and all other remedies I used were quite useless. In one case it was wasted in snuffing powder up the nose; in another using a greasy ointment, and so on. Not one of them was the least bit of good."

"I heard Catarrhoze favorably spoken of, and tried it. Really it benefited me more in a few hours than years of treatment with doctors and other so-called remedies. "Receiving such immense benefit, I continued using Catarrhoze, and in a few weeks I was completely cured of Catarrh and throat trouble."

Get Catarrhoze to-day. Large size costs $1.00, and lasts two months. Smaller sizes, 25c, and 50c. All dealers, or The Catarrhoze Company, Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

Small Amount for Ontario Bank
It will be pleasing news to more than one Peterborough citizen or citizen to learn that the liquidators of the defunct Ontario Bank have realized $200,000, which will be divided pro rata among shareholders. Those who did not pay the whole of the last call on them will have the amount of the shortage deducted from such share as might be coming their way.

Y.M.C.A. To Run Thanksgiving Day Races.
The Y.M.C.A. has decided to hold two races on the morning of Thanksgiving Day, Monday, Oct. 28th, a five mile race for the seniors and a three mile contest for junior runners. The Examiner will contribute the prizes for both events, as the paper has done in past Thanksgiving Day races under its own auspices.

"Eye-Opener" Again in Trouble.
Mr. R. C. Edwards, proprietor of that spy sheet, which is distributed by express instead of through the mails and known as the Calgary Eye-Opener, is defendant in a libel suit. This time Mr. E. P. Davis, of Vancouver, is the plaintiff. Whilst it will be contempt of court to predict which side will win, its a dollar to a cent that the Eye-Opener will still be issued and be as popular as usual with its readers, even if sometimes "off-color" comments. Mr. Edwards is a first cousin of Mr. W. A. Edwards who formerly conducted the Crystal Theater in this city.

For Terrier as Match-Maker.
Yesterday afternoon a smartly grown young lady led a dog along Hunter street. The dog, held by a nickel-plated chain was of the fox terrier breed. It was that kind of dog that reminds every one but its owner of an animated chapter from "Daniel's Inferno" or "How the Waters Came Down at Ladore." When near the bridge the dog and its mistress met a young man of martial splendor. The dog seemed to suddenly get an attack of canine "D.T." and use an inviolable rat circling round the young man's legs. It gave chase. In 17 seconds the chain was wound tightly round the young fellow's lower extremities. He tripped and fell heavily on the roadway from the pavement. Indignation flashed from his eyes and strong language arose to his lips. However, before he could get through his first denunciation of an appealing pair of blue eyes. "What a cute little fellow your dog is. It must be a thoroughbred, etc., etc." Mutual introductions were exchanged, and now—Look out!

Miss Gertrude McCallan, who recently completed her nursing course at the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, spent Sunday and part of Monday in town the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McCallan, Gilmour street. Immediately on her return to Toronto, she left for Detroit, where she will take a post graduate course at one of the large hospitals in that city. Her many friends in Peterborough will be pleased to learn that she has been a very successful student, and has passed all her examinations with credit. They will all join in wishing her continued success in her chosen profession.

Little Local Lines
The opening game in the World's Series was won yesterday by Boston 4 to 3 against New York.

The Spanish prisoner friend has now been sprung on a Liberty man. The letter was similar to that recently received by Pete Simons.

The lecture room of Knox church was beautifully decorated last night for the neighborhood meeting by Mrs. J. J. Turner & Sons.

A New Orleans paper notes that a "bumper berry crop" is in sight there. Wish we could announce a cheaper coal crop for Peterborough.

Word was received in the city yesterday that Mr. Fred (Kitty) Stenson had shot an immense black bear at Gold Lake.

Dr. Buchanan's handsome new residence on the corner of Water and Murray streets is rapidly approaching completion.

The question that naturally suggests itself to the thinking Peterborough Tory or Grit, is this: Who is putting up for Sir Wilfrid and party spell-binding trip and why?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier whilst in Peterborough talked of being "whispered" out of power. Now he is asking what Canada will do with her wheat. Isn't it funny what a difference locality makes?

Stock—Exchange yesterday. The stock ruling strong in price.

The man who owns or has an option on property south of the city will welcome the De Laval factory.

Mr. Bruce Lee, formerly of this city, but now of Wabash, was in the city yesterday hiring a lot of men to work for the Hydro-Electric.

Mr. William Stevenson of Port Hope, who was in the city yesterday told The Times he was astonished to see the leaves on Peterborough trees as yellow. In Port Hope the frost has not touched the leaves.

The average local housewife who kicks over paying 35 cents for strong butter and 32 cents for doubtful eggs may reasonably herself to high prices of living. Even the maintenance of prisoners in Peterborough jail costs half a cent a day more than it did last year.

WEDDING BELLS.
Wing—Red.
The wedding took place in Mount Pleasant Methodist church, Vancouver, to-day, of Mr. Daniel Oscar Wing and Myrtle Eliza, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Reid, formerly of Peterborough. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Wing will reside in Vancouver.

Deans—Hope.
Yesterday a well known local citizen, in the person of Mr. Warren Waller Dean, at Perth, led to the altar a charming bride, Miss Jamie Hope of the latter named town. The nuptial ceremony was celebrated in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hope, parents of the bride. Rev. D. Currie of Perth, tied the nuptial knot. Mr. Dean is the popular accountant of the Bank of Ottawa in that city. After the ceremony, the happy couple left by train on a honeymoon trip to Montreal and other eastern points, and on their return Mr. and Mrs. Dean will reside at 358 Hunter street, city.

Graham—Choate.
Yesterday afternoon at two o'clock St. Mark's church, Warsaw was the scene of a pretty wedding when Miss Julia Grover, daughter of Mr. A. F. Choate was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. W. H. E. Graham, of Rosetown, Sask. The ceremony was performed by Van. Archdeacon Warren, of Toronto, assisted by the Rector, Rev. C. V. Brown. Miss Major Choate, sister of the bride played the bridal music. The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her father. She wore her traveling suit of navy serge and velvet hat with touch of tan. At the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Graham motored a few days in Toronto and Winnipeg prior to taking up residence in Rosetown.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.
We will give One Hundred Dollars by local application as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to the normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; also cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

CANADIAN PACIFIC HARVESTERS EXCURSION.
More Farm Laborers needed in the Canadian Northwest.
An excursion will be run from Peterborough to the West on Oct. 14th. Going fare to Winnipeg, $10.00, returning from Winnipeg, $12.00. Half cent per mile each way west of Winnipeg.

For further particulars and tickets see W. McIlroy, City Passenger Agent, Peterborough.

The West Calls for Help.
Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation, the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion Monday, Oct. 14th, $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg $12.00.

Full particulars from any C.P.R. Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

VOL. XXXIX. NO. 238.

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, OCT. 10, 1912.

PRICE, TWO CENTS

TENDERS SHOULD BE INVITED FROM ALL PARTIES FOR PETERBORO'S LIGHT & POWER

The Power Companies are Willing to Offer Definite Prices For a Definite Power and Lighting Service if but Given the Opportunity—Not Afraid of Competition With Hydro-Electric

In regard to the power by-law under consideration by the City Council, and awaiting an opportune date for submission to the people, but the ratemakers, the majority of our worthy Aldermen appear to be so Hydro-Electric bound that they fight shy of any suggestion that the established power companies must certainly be prepared to offer such prices for power and light as would create considerable uncertainty of the Hydro-Electric proposition meeting with public endorsement at the polls. The initial motive for inviting Hon. Adam Beck's activity in this city was to assure citizens of the best possible light and power service at the lowest possible price. And it has been advanced that this result is only attainable through the Hydro-Electric Commission's medium. But another factor appears upon the scene in the shape of the Seymour Power Company, who claim that they have an inviting proposition to submit, if only given an intelligent basis upon which to work. And in all fairness, this company or any other company, or any individual, should be allowed to compete, even if such competition coincides with the Council's pet scheme of municipal-owned power. The people generally want cheap power, THE MAJORITY OF THE PEOPLE are clamoring for CHEAPER HOUSE LIGHTING, and the Seymour Power Company some months ago asked Council for some definite basis to work upon, in which case, the writer is advised, they would submit prices not only for power, but also for domestic lighting. But this company's request has apparently been ignored. Council evidently assuming that it is impossible for any company to compete with the Hydro-Electric plan. Council, however, has no right to advance such a hypothesis. The Seymour Power Co. controls here 28,000 electric horse power, have many interests at stake, and might offer prices that would not citizens thinking. In some instances astonishing bargains accrue from big operations. Most all manufacturing and business concerns have profits to about zero on certain outputs for reasons best known to themselves, and the consumer does not stop to enquire into the cause for his thus reaping a benefit in certain lines. Then why not give our electric consumers an opportunity for judging whether the Seymour Power Company, or any other concern, can discount municipal-owned power in bargain prices or not?

"ALL IS NOT GOLD THAT GLITTERS."

And municipal-owned power at cost may also prove disappointing. At any rate its initial cost will run the ratemakers in debt to the tune of $60,000 to acquire the scheme. $65,000 for the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant, and extensions and improvements thereto—approximately, of course; the appropriation board may judge that figure, and they are occasionally guilty of disappointing judgments—and $30,000 for an underground conduit system. What does the Hydro-Electric Commission offer for this? The somewhat indefinite figure submitted last year, as follows:

|----------------------------|---------|
| 2,500 Horse Power at | $17.55 |
| 2,750 Horse Power at | $18.95 |

Only this, and nothing more! The more we buy the less we pay and vice versa. BUT NO DEFINITE PRICE IS GIVEN FOR DOMESTIC AND STREET LIGHTING; the public must figure that out for themselves. And, in fact, the figures given are more or less of an unknown quantity, hanging upon the ultimate cost of expropriating a company's property, and applying the same municipally.

When voting on the Hydro-Electric scheme, the ratemakers will not know what his house lighting would cost him with municipal-owned power until a distributing plant is installed and cost of operating and maintaining same arrived at.

Now, the foregoing is the Commission's proposition, in a nutshell, upon which ratemakers will have to vote. The City Council, His Worship, in particular, the writer is advised, left no stone unturned all this year to secure from the Hon. Adam Beck more definite figures, but to no effect. In fact it is safe to say THE CITY COUNCIL IS DISAPPOINTED IN THAT THEY HAVE NOTHING OF A MORE CONCRETE NATURE TO SUBMIT FOR ENDORSEMENT, HENCE THE DELAY.

WHAT THE SEYMOUR PEOPLE WANT!

A FIGHTING CHANCE to give the people DEFINITE FIGURES for power for motive, street lighting and DOMESTIC PURPOSES, based on a specific proposition. And Ald. Gordon says they should have it; so does Ald. Duffin, while the City's Finance Minister, Alderman Anderson, declares he has no objection to any company coming in a proposition. These gentlemen lean to Hydro-Electric, but are anxious to be fair. Well, fairness is the spirit of the age let it prevail in this instance. The Seymour Power Company own the Peterborough Light & Power Company's plant proposed to be expropriated by the Commission for the city; it is part of their big system, and, may-be, rather than break into that system they are prepared to sacrifice dividends. At any rate give the company opportunity to bid it in. What does the Seymour Power Co. ask? A reasonable request as follows: A proposition from Council upon which the company can figure on supplying a fixed or a scheduled number of electric horse power, either under an agreement covering a number of years, or one perpetually in force. Admittedly, it is understood they are prepared to give actual prices for delivering power to a municipal distributing plant, or power AND LIGHT direct to the consumer—manufacturer, business man, or householder—and also for street lighting. All this company is asking is an intelligent basis for tendering upon, when they will reply with definite figures, clothed in no atmosphere of uncertainty whatever. Then why not give them their fighting chance? It will not affect the submission of the Hydro-Electric scheme, only in so far as giving the ratemakers his choice of two propositions—one by the Hydro-Electric Commission of an ambiguous nature; another by the Seymour Power Company (and possibly other power people), including definite prices for light to the consumer. The bulk of our citizens expect cheaper house lighting from municipal-owned power; but municipal power means present-day consumers assuming the burden of a huge debt, not to be retired until the most of us are peacefully resting without any care for the cost of illumination. Of course, Peterborough citizens, with commendable inherent philanthropy, will not mind easing up the cost of living for the next generation; but perhaps they would not object to debating for themselves which proposition they prefer—the Hydro-Electric and $60,000 initial cost, or whether the Seymour Power Company has to offer if but given a reasonable chance to make one. In any event, let there be more light and cheaper light, and let all interests be considered before any decisive step is taken. The consumer is not committed to Hydro-Electric, or any other power source, but he wants the minimum price for an up-to-date service and until a proposition is received from any or all companies prepared to bid, how is he to judge who can most advantageously cater to his wants in the matter of both light and power.

SENSATIONAL RESULTS EXPECTED IN LAST REGATTA OF YEAR.

MONARD HART, DON, IRA J. EMERY, STROKE, METROPOLITAN ROWING CLUB

The Columbus Day regatta, which is to be held on the Charles River in Boston, October 12, will be the last regatta of the year. With the New York crewmen, especially those of the Metropolitan Rowing Club and the New York Athletic Club, competing against the favorite Boston clubs, what will virtually be an inter-city meet, is attracting considerable attention.

Howard Hart and Ira J. Emery, the crack double of the Metropolitan Club, are regarded as hard men to beat. They won two hard races in a double this year, the first in the New York Bay regatta, and the second in the Middle States regatta in Washington. In the New York Bay regatta they won by a spurt, and in the Middle States regatta they trailed second to a Philadelphia crew until within three hundred feet of the line, when by a sensational spurt they won by a few feet.

TURKEY IS CALMLY CONFIDENT, WAR IMPROPERLY COMMENCED

Constantinople, Oct. 9.—The Turkish Government awaits coming events with calm assurance, according to Noradundghian Effendi, the Ottoman Foreign Minister. In an interview given to the Associated Press to-day he said: "We face the future with perfect confidence. I should like to point out however, that the declaration of war by Montenegro was made contrary to the practice adopted by all civilized States. It went against the stipulation of the Hague convention, of which Montenegro was a signatory."

WAR WILL BE UNEXAMPLED IN ITS HIDEOUS FEROCITY

New York, Oct. 9.—A cable from London this morning to the Tribune, says: "Expert military opinion is divided as to the probable course of the Balkan war, but it is agreed on all sides that the struggle will be one of hideous and perhaps unexampled ferocity. Moreover, whichever side is successful, the peace of Europe will be imperilled. Austria is resolved not to permit any territorial expansion by Serbia or Bulgaria, while in the event of the Turks sweeping their armies before them and trampling the Balkan underfoot, the sympathies of the Russian people with the conquered Slavs will be aroused, and the Russian Government forced by popular passion to take an active part in the game."

DOCTOR'S ARREST FOR ASSAULT

Winnipeg Practitioner Accuses Fellow-Physician of an Attack

A PECULIAR AFFAIR

Winnipeg, Oct. 9.—Dr. E. R. Griverson, a well known medical practitioner, was arrested at midnight on a charge of assault sworn out by Dr. A. H. Silverman. Silverman says he was seated in his office when Griverson and another man entered and looked the doctor after them. He says that Griverson then seized a heavy fist and struck him in the face, knocking out two teeth, and that then Griverson seized him by the throat and pointed a knife at his breast, and compelled the latter to write a retraction of a statement Griverson apparently claims Silverman had made in connection with an illegal scandal.

HIS THROAT CUT AND A KNIFE BY HIS SIDE

Toronto, Oct. 9.—With his throat dabbly cut and a pocket knife lying at his side, William Martin, aged 27, a C.P.R. brakeman, was found in a dangerous condition in his bedroom by his mother at the family residence, No. 237 Somerset avenue, in the North Downcourt Road district, at 11.30 this morning.

Tenders for Plumbing and Heating

Tenders for the plumbing and heating of the East and West Ward Schools will be received until 12 o'clock noon, Oct. 20th, 1912. Plans and specifications may be seen and all information may be obtained at the office of the Architect, F. Bartlett, 65 Murray St. A marked cheque to the value of 10 per cent. of the amount of tender (made payable to the Board of Education), must accompany tenders. Tenders to be addressed to the Secretary of Board of Education. G. H. THOMPSON, Sec., Board of Education.

BULGARIANS ARE MOVING SOUTHWARD NOW ON TURKEY

Rapture of Diplomatic Relations Between Serbia and Bulgaria With Turkey Is Unofficially Announced—Greece May Break Off Tomorrow

London, Oct. 9.—The first encounter between Serbian and Turkish troops is reported to have occurred in the Javir district of the Sanjak of Vevitassar, according to a news despatch from Belgrade. The Serbian Premier declared to-day that the action of the powers had been taken too late. Confirmation of the rupture of diplomatic relations with Turkey by both Bulgaria and Serbia has been received in Paris, according to a news agency despatch from that city.

Greece Prepares to Make War. Constantinople, Oct. 9.—The members of the Greek legation at Constantinople have been ordered to prepare for word to depart, and this may foreshadow a declaration of war by the Balkan League either to-day or to-morrow.

CHEERED THE KING. Cetinje, Montenegro, Oct. 9.—King Nicholas, with his second son, Prince Niko, left the capital at noon yesterday for the army headquarters at Podgoritz, to the accompaniment of guns thundering, bells pealing, and crowds cheering.

CITIZENS' MEETING TOMORROW NIGHT

The City Council has called a citizens' meeting, to be held in the Council Chamber to-morrow (Friday) night. Its object to discuss the proposition to aid the De Laval Dairy Supply Co. who under agreement with the Council are to locate in South City. It is hoped that a large number of influential citizens will put in an appearance and cooperate with the Council in adopting any measure calculated to assure the passage of the industrial by-law which goes to the ratemakers on October 30th. The securing of this new industry is much to be desired and in evidence of the company's good faith building operations on the lot the city will purchase for them are already underway.

$1000 YET TO THE GOOD

In the Financial Standing of the City Fire, Water and Light Committee.

The City's Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night. There were present His Worship Mayor Bradburn, Chairman Ald. Gillespie, Aldermen Buller and Anderson. An item of business will be placed on Carleton avenue and one on Concession street, also two on Down street between Brock and Hunter.

One hydrant has been installed on the south side of Princess street. The Committee has yet out of its appropriation $1,000 on hand.

The proposed extension of the fire limits and amendment of the building by-law was left in abeyance until the Committee is in the humor for an all-night session.

The Committee recognizes the cry for a fire sub-station in South City where many of our factories are located and where incoming industries will locate. His Worship advised that this proposition be provided for by next year's Council in the estimates.

On motion of Ald. Buller and Anderson a suitable location for a sub-station in South City be acquired later.

ZIEPE MURDER CASE OPEN YESTERDAY IN HAMILTON

Crown Will Not Try to Use Wife's Evidence Against Bruce—Newspapers Warned

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 9.—The trial of James Bruce, charged with murdering Rose Ziepe, who died after eating poisoned candy was begun shortly before noon today. Most of the morning session was taken up selecting the jury, many of those called being challenged. Herman Opperman refused to act on jury because he said his mind was prejudiced. Before the Crown Prosecutor began his address to the jury, C. W. Bell, counsel for the prisoner, drew Justice Kelly's attention to the sensational article in a local paper yesterday, claiming the police found who purchased the strychnine. Mr. Bell said story was most unfair to his client.

Judge Kelly again issued a warning to the jurors not to be influenced by such stories and to consider only the evidence. He also warned the newspapers of the risk they took in publishing such stories.

Crown Prosecutor Crowfoot informed the jury that he would not call Mrs. Bruce as a witness because a wife could not testify against her husband, although the defense had the right to call her.

A BIG LIQUOR FIGHT IS ON

Dealers in Montreal of All Classes Want More Freedom—Let Big Hotels Stay Open

OTHERS ARE OPPOSED

Montreal, Oct. 9.—When the Royal License Commission meets in Montreal on the 30th inst. there will be witnessed an interesting line-up of antagonistic forces. The several sections of the liquor trade will be represented by legal counsel, some of the most eminent members of the bar having been retained for the purpose. Mr. L. T. Marchal, K.C., it is stated, will represent a group of leading hotels, and will make strong appeal for preferential treatment of the hotelier. What is termed "classification of licenses" will be argued in behalf of this section. By this phrase is meant the extension of the big drinking places from the operation of the "early closing law," and placing of more severe restriction on the less reputable classes of barrooms. The Licensee Victualers Association, in which the restaurants and smaller hotels are associated, and which have Mr. L. A. Rivet, K.C., as its counsel, will ask for a number of amendments designed to improve the position of the liquor dealers.

THE WEATHER.
To-day—Not much change in temperature.

The Ministers of the allied Balkan States saw him off. Before his departure the King received the Russian and Austrian Ministers, who jointly made a last effort for the maintenance of peace. The advance of the Turkish army seems to be the immediate reason for the declaration of war by the Montenegrins, who seek to prevent Turkey from occupying a strategic position near the Montenegro frontier.

Rager To Fight. The news of the declaration of war was received at Belgrade, the capital of Serbia, with unexpected calm. The enrolling of volunteers has been stopped. Instead of the required 300,000 men, 400,000 responded to the mobilization summons.

Baron Adam Roenne, a well-known ship and naval engineer, has taken out a patent for an invisible ship. Invisibility is to be achieved by making the outer case or envelope of chromium, a metal capable of receiving a high polish, which will be permanently maintained by means of a covering of transparent enamel. All the details of the ship, all its plans, all its intentions, will be converted into a mirror, and the theory is that invisibility will be achieved by reflection. The baron claims that there will be no recurring delays shown at the bottom of this invention, and that the matter shall remain a point. The ship will then always take the color of the surrounding elements, and though larger than the biggest steamer, it will be invisible at any height above the water. Fifty-five hundred feet. Special attaching devices are proposed for the

A Bad Heart, Its Cause and Cure

Many, Firmly Convinced They Are Dying of Heart Trouble, Have Often the Strongest Hearts.

Sometimes you wake you wake up at night, heart throbbing like a steam engine. Your breathing is short and irregular; pains shoot through the chest and abdomen, and cause horrible anxiety.

Your trouble isn't with the heart at all. These sensations are the outcome of indigestion, which has caused gas to form on the stomach and press against the heart.

Just read what happened to Isaac Malloux, of Belle River, Ont.: "Three months ago I was a weak, sickly man. My appetite was poor, food fermented in my stomach, I had sour risings and indigestion. At night I would often awaken with gas in the stomach and heart palpitation."

"I consulted my doctor and used remedies that my friends advised. Nothing helped."

"One day I received a sample of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and my cure commenced. To-day I have a vigorous appetite, strong heart action, and no sign of indigestion. I feel younger and healthier than ever before."

Your druggist or storekeeper sells Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from The Cataract Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Those Balkan states appear to have an ambition to become Turkey gobblers.

Andrew Carnegie has been made a count, but unlike most counts the bills he owes will not have to be collected by the sheriff.

One French aviator was killed while hunting, and another met death while riding in an automobile. Aviators ought to know better than to take chances with such dangerous things as guns and devil-wagons.

The latest fad is never-nag brides. But no bride ever nags. That comes later when the bridegroom has ceased to be seen with a halo and has destroyed the illusion about himself.

It is said that a number of Peterborough Socialists are in favor of municipal barrooms. The next thing we may hear will be a demand that they will be asking the city to cut their hair.

Just because that woman in Camden, N.J., dislocated her jaw whilst holding a mouthful of clothespins, is no excuse for local husbands to hang a clothespin tied with pink ribbons on the coming Xmas tree.

Our local contemporary, the Review, prints a paragraph stating that people should eat mutton. This is a scheme the base old protectionist journal has for raising the duties on wool in order to encourage the infant mutton-raising industry.

Apparently the interest taken by the Toronto Globe in the C.P.R. melon-cutting issue of stock is confined to the extent to which it will discredit the Borden government and the effect which it will have on the election in Macdonald, Man.

Montreal Star editorially says Sir Wilfrid is telling some jocular stories about how the Borden government got into power by fighting reciprocity. In Peterborough the veteran leader's pet joke was that the Borden Government got out of power by "whippers." What a difference locality as well as climate makes!

The police of Kingston are perplexed over a drunk found sleeping in a hay loft in the Limestone City. It was neither the hay loft nor the drunk that puzzled them. The drunk was dead to the world. What puzzles the cops is how a man so drunk measuring about 180 inches round the waist climbed up a shabby ladder about fit for a canary cage.

A GREAT MARITIME NATION

We are in the habit of looking upon Canada as a great agricultural country, and whilst this is profoundly true, Canada is also a great maritime nation.

Canada's seaboard is much greater than many a European country at present supporting a pretentious navy.

Canada now occupies the ninth place among the mercantile marines of the world, Japan being eighth and Italy seventh on the list.

Canada's position on the sea carrying list will undoubtedly strengthen very considerably in the next few years. In the course of a vigorous development, the Dominion will find many avenues to commerce opening similar to that just arranged between this country and the British West Indies.

Another recent move in the development of the Canadian marine is the placing of the British consular service at the disposal of Canadian business men, which will help to bring Canadian exports into touch with the world's markets and lead to the establishment of bigger sea-going fleets under our own register.

IMPROVED IMMIGRATION

Improved methods of immigration to South Australia have been found so satisfactory to all concerned that improved methods of immigration nominated friends and relatives for assisted passages. This privilege has been found to operate as an efficient source of encouragement to land settlement and in the provision of surroundings that recall the home life of the mother country—the real basis of intelligent emigration.

The latest policy of the Southern Australian states the scheme promises great things, in the introduction of British boys for the purpose of training as farmers. On their arrival the lads will be indentured for three years with selected farmers, under close supervision, and initiated into the various departments of farm work. The state will act as guardian, retaining part of the lads' wages and handing over the amount with accumulations on their attaining the age of twenty-one years, or earlier, at disposition, and in this way it is anticipated the state wards will at the close of their apprenticeship receive from $350 to $500 and be enabled to become share farmers and ultimately land owners.

Canada's NICKEL KEY TO PEACE

The press of Canada has been giving much attention to the article quoted from the last copy of the "Observation," in which it was shown that Canada, by reason of the fact that she had in her possession six-sevenths of all the nickel in the world, has also within her hands a key to world peace. It was but natural that such a fact, though not now stated for the first time, should at this particular point arouse such interest. At a time when rumors of war are in the air, and battleships form one of the chief topics of world consideration, it is strangely significant that Canada, dreaming of the goodly land of peace, should suddenly be awakened to the fact that she herself holds the key of the gates.

The responsibility of any nation is always in strict ratio with its power. Duty can only be conceived in terms of ability to achieve. Importance can have no imperatives. But with great opportunity responsibility becomes equally great. To be able to prevent a crime is to become particularly responsible.

At any rate, Mr. Borden has now courageously led the way towards a satisfactory solution of the whole problem. Instead of suggesting that Canada may abstain herself from the first line of imperial defence he declares that all parts of the Empire must be united in self-protection and that in contributing to the Empire's strength at sea we have a voice in Britain's foreign policy so far as it involves the issues of peace and war. This means that in the long run the overseas Dominions instead of being neutral colonies, shall become full partners of the Mother Country with all which that means in the way of both privilege and responsibility. This ideal has the support of Liberals as well as Conservatives all over the Dominion. No matter how many fleets we have in the Empire they should all work with the Royal navy.

clapatory in it. To stand idly by when the rope one holds might save a man from drowning, is to be guilty of nothing less than murder. Not by what is done, but by what might and should have been done, is every man to be rightly judged.

To nations this applies with equal force, and to Canada in this instance. If she holds the key to peace and refuses to use it for the interests of the highest principles, it is not difficult to estimate her blame. If war cannot be waged without battleships, and battleships cannot be built without armor plate, and armor plate cannot be made without nickel, and nickel cannot be secured without the consent of Canada, it is evident that the official rate of the Kingdom of World Peace is situated on the banks of the Ottawa river, 112 miles north-west of the city of Montreal.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION

The movement on foot to postpone the date of the municipal election until the third Monday in January has much to commend it. There can hardly be any doubt that to have it so close to the holiday season, when the accustomed tasks are set aside for social and family pleasure, does not afford the best opportunity for the full expression of public opinion.

There are instances beyond number where private interests directly conflict at that time with public interests, and when one feels naturally that one's first duty is to the home circle.

The first week in January is a period of recovery from vacationing. The Christmas glamor still faintly remains. Hard facts of civic life are equally hard to face. It is, therefore, wise to allow such time to elapse as shall allow the citizen to square himself with the normal world, and also to discover if the denuding of the Christmas tree necessitates a reforestation of his finances.

Every possible opportunity to vote, and to vote right, ought to be given to the citizens at this most important time, says the Ottawa Citizen. The consequences involved are so far-reaching that the most favorable date suggested is the best possible, but that it is better than the present date seems quite certain. The city council may at least discuss the matter with profit, and take such action regarding the suggestion as shall permit the fullest expression of sentiment at the next civic election.

AN EMPIRE NAVY

A Liberal newspaper asserts that "the navy of the Empire will be one." Of course it will be one, replies the News, but that desirable consummation will be realized despite the Laurier naval policy. It has always been impossible definitely to place Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the defence issue.

In Parliament two years ago, he said that when Britain is at war Canada is at war. Not long after he startled the Empire by enunciating the bizarre theory of "colonial neutrality." He then took the ground that Canada might declare itself a non-combatant in any British war.

The doctrine was so absurd that it drew ridicule from different parts of the Empire, and it certainly was not accepted by thoughtful Canadian Liberals, who saw that we cannot honorably stand aside when England is in trouble. For a hundred and fifty years under the protection of British prestige and the British navy we have developed on this continent a great, free and prosperous commonwealth. Now that we are strong enough to provide for our own defence we cannot afford to shirk the obligation.

The probability is that by this time Sir Wilfrid Laurier has forgotten his unfortunate disclaimer of responsibility to participate in Imperial defence. He is under pressure from patriotic Liberals all over the Dominion to support an adequate defence policy, and judging from his recent public utterances he may rise to the occasion.

At any rate, Mr. Borden has now courageously led the way towards a satisfactory solution of the whole problem. Instead of suggesting that Canada may abstain herself from the first line of imperial defence he declares that all parts of the Empire must be united in self-protection and that in contributing to the Empire's strength at sea we have a voice in Britain's foreign policy so far as it involves the issues of peace and war. This means that in the long run the overseas Dominions instead of being neutral colonies, shall become full partners of the Mother Country with all which that means in the way of both privilege and responsibility. This ideal has the support of Liberals as well as Conservatives all over the Dominion. No matter how many fleets we have in the Empire they should all work with the Royal navy.

A PIPE BAND

Editor Morning Times.
Sir,—I would suggest to the music loving citizens of Peterborough, of Scotch nationality, that a band of bagpipes be organized in Peterborough. It would prove a big advertisement for the city. I understand there are a number of pipers living here, and all that is needed is for someone to make a start.
Let all who know anything about bagpipes or are interested in the foundation of a pipe band send their names and addresses to the editor of The Times. And if any one should know of a piper, they will help by sending his name likewise. We would in this way be able to know how many pipers there are in Peterborough.

—Alex. Stewart.

THAT TRENT VALLEY DEPUTATION

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see by your report of the last council meeting that Ald. Duffin advised that the city send "a strong deputation to Ottawa to advocate an early completion of the Trent Valley Canal." This local parliamentarian is rightly anxious, in the city's interests, that this big ditch be finished. I would endorse the worthy city father's idea of a city deputation to, say, Chicago, to see how often the street car wheels go round, or to St. Louis to get personally samples of water from the Mississippi River for comparison. Still, Mr. Editor, do you not think these city junketings are worked to death, or at least worked to the detriment of the taxpayers' purses? The city could, as suggested by Ald. Gillespie, send an official letter to the Government. Not even a postage stamp will be required. Of course, such action would deprive the aldermen from a few days' fun at public expense. Still, look at the fun the present council will have when the next municipal election is on.

—Tas.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

(Published by Request).
I've wandered to the village, Tom, I've sat beneath the tree.

Upon the schoolhouse playground that sheltered you and me, But none were left to greet me, Tom, and few were left to know.

Who played with us upon the green, some twenty years ago.

The grass is just as green, Tom, hard-footed boys at play, Were sporting, just as we did when, with spirits just as gay.

But the "master" sleeps upon the hill, which, coated o'er with snow, Afforded us a sliding-place some twenty years ago.

The old schoolhouse is altered now, the benches are replaced By new ones, very like the same our peakknives defaced.

But the same old bricks are in the wall, the bell swings to and fro.

It's music's just the same, dear Tom, 'twas twenty years ago.

The boys were playing the same old game, beneath the same old tree.

I have forgot the name just now,— You played the same with me, On that same spot: 'twas played with knives, by throwing so and so.

The looper had a task to do,—there twenty years ago.

The river's running just as still; the willows on its side Are larger than they were, Tom; the stream appears less wide.

But the same old vine swing is ruined now, where once we played the bean.

And some our sweethearts,—pretty girls,—met twenty years ago.

The evening that huddled 'neath the hill, close by the spreading beech,

In very low,—'twas then so high that we could scarcely reach; And, kneeling down to get a drink, dear Tom, I started so.

To see how badly I am changed, since twenty years ago.

Near by that spring, upon an elm, you know I met your name. Your sweetheart's just beneath it, Tom, and you did the mine the same.

Some heartless wretch has peeled the bark, 'twas dying sure but slow Just as the died, whose name you cut, some twenty years ago.

My lida have long been dry, Tom, but tears came to my eye: I thought of her I loved so well, thenceforward broken ties.

I visited the old churchyard, and took some flowers to strew Upon the graves of those we loved, some twenty years ago.

Some are in the churchyard laid, some sleep beneath the sea; But few are left of our old class, excepting you and me.

And when our time shall come, Tom, and we are called to go, I hope they'll lay us where we played, just twenty years ago.

Every Little While There's Going to be a Mellon Cut

The public seldom has a chance to invest in the stock of a garage company.

Garage companies are generally closed corporations, the stock in which pays enormous dividends.

There is splendid profit in the sale of automobile parts, lubricating oils, gasoline, carbide and tires, and in repairing, washing and polishing cars, accessories, replacing parts, etc.

The storage of cars is "found" money—nearly all profit.

The Automobile Livery business pays handsome dividends and is good the year round.

We are going to have an automobile company in Toronto that will make money, filling a long-felt need. For a fair charge your car will be called for, kept replete with supplies and brought to you just minutes after your request by telephone. Your car will no longer be subject to the ravages of dust, heat or rain, or the danger of accident of police fines for standing too long at the curb.

This Company is going to pay big dividends, and every little while there is going to be a Mellon cut. Here is your only chance of being on the books for the regular allotment of dividends.

We are Sole Selling Agents for the stock of the CENTRAL GARAGE & SUPPLY CO., LIMITED, OF TORONTO, and we have for you now in this office a prospectus of the Company. It is given all the information about the company that you might want before purchasing stock. The names of the Directors are given, as well as facts regarding the forming of the Company, its plans for a new building on Temperance and Sheppard Streets, the purposes of the Company, its possibilities as an assurance. To rouse your interest and to give you an abundance of confidence RIGHT NOW, let us tell you that the CENTRAL GARAGE AND SUPPLY CO., LIMITED, have been appointed the Ontario General Agents for all lines of Abbott-Detroit Motor Cars, which are now being demonstrated and sold at temporary premises, 269 King Street West, Toronto.

The Company offers some of its stock to the public for the very good purpose of having stockholders everywhere boosting the business. Already this has proved effective. Use this coupon if you prefer doing so, rather than calling or phoning Main 412.

A SOCIETY JOURNALIST

"MARMADUKE" OF TRUTH LAYS DOWN HIS PEN.

Charles Edward Jennings, One of the Most Remarkable Figures in London Journalism, Decides After Twenty-Two Years of Ceaseless Activity to Retire—He Has Never Betrayed a Confidence.

"Earnestness, Energy, Enterprise—these are the Dreads that England most needs."

This is but one of the countless aphorisms of Mr. Charles Edward Jennings, "Marmaduke," who knows more of Society—with a capital S—than anyone else in London, and who has just relinquished his writings for "Truth," after contributing to that journal for twenty-two unbroken years.

"Earnestness, Energy, Enterprise," Practice has been wedded to preaching in the case of "Marmaduke." For twenty-two years he has never missed penning his "Letter from the Linkman." In sickness or in health, the "copy" was never late, nor upon a single occasion was it even mislaid.

An interviewer called upon "Marmaduke" on the eve of the latter's retirement, and found him ensconced in a quaint old house in a Kensington crescent that seems to reflect the mid-Victorian aristocracy that Mr. Jennings loved so well.

Short in stature, grey, with kindly eyes and a brisk air, the philosopher of modern society carries his fifty-eight years as though they formed but a light burden.

"Yes," he remarked, in answer to a question, "I am retiring from the literary staff of Truth because I am tired. The weekly letter has been a great strain. I made have I made fewer than forty pages of more notes for each of the Letters, and I have frequently written and re-written the 'copy' a dozen or fourteen times."

"No, Truth was not my first adventure in journalism. I was once society editor of The Times, but my chief trouble in that direction was the insufficiency of work."

"I well remember my first day in The Times' office. I occupied an enormous room, and having little to do, badly wanted to smoke. Before venturing to do so, however, for fear of transgressing, I sent for one 'Thomas,' a venerable, Blumarchian doorkeeper, who, in those days, was a kind of major-domo, commissioner and janitor. Putting a sovereign in the man's palm, I asked:

"'Thomas, may I smoke in here?'"

"Thomas looked first at the sovereign then at me; then he scratched his head in bewilderment."

"Well, sir," he remarked solemnly at length, "nobody has ever smoked in the office before, but—coming closer to me—'If anybody says anything to me tell them that I gave you leave.'"

On one occasion at a dinner at which Mr. Jennings was himself present, the conversation turned on the subject of Truth, and eventually to the "Letter from the Linkman."

About that time "Marmaduke" had scored a particularly brilliant hit in making a portentous announcement, and this was naturally mentioned in the course of conversation.

Just then a gentleman sitting opposite Mr. Jennings joined in the discussion, and, with a most modest smile and perfect effrontery, announced quite naively:

"It was in giving advance intelligence of impending events that Mr. Jennings achieved his greatest gloomiest. He knew everybody in Society; he became familiar with the skeletons lurking in their cupboards in high life; he is a member of fourteen or fifteen clubs, and has the entire society where. He may indeed be referred to as a Sir George Levis among journalists, for he has disclosed no secrets, has given way to no indiscretions, and has made no enemies."

"If you want to obtain news," said "Marmaduke," "you must first give it. Paradoxical as this may sound, it is invariably true. You advance a piece of information, and the receiver, if he is better informed, corrects you. It is sheer human nature to do so."

"A few days before the close of Queen Victoria's long and illustrious reign, I happened to meet a man who was particularly well informed at court, and who had been at Osborne quite recently. I asked him if it were true that the Queen was very ill, and, in reply, by way of amplification, he gave me the real facts."

"By a peculiar instinct—an instinct that has good me in good stead all my life—I felt that the information was sound. The result was a paragraph in the following Wednesday's Truth—a dignified, reserved paragraph, pointing out the great age of her majesty, her worries in connection with the Boer war, and so on."

"I was thus the first journalist to suggest that the Queen was seriously ill, and before Truth had been on sale an hour I received a telephone message from the manager of a newspaper firm."

"What is this information worth?" he asked, without preface, meaning, to what extent was alarm felt at the state of the Queen's health."

"Unfettering him for a moment, and thinking he referred to the monetary value of the intelligence, I replied, equally bluntly, but laughingly: 'One hundred pounds! I then gave him the full knowledge I possessed.'"

"That very day an evening journal came out with the first tragic announcement that her majesty was very ill, and a few days later a newspaper in London carried a sensational story through Truth was inspired from high quarters, but not once did 'Marmaduke' attack an individual."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

EDUCATION IS MOTION

THINGS ARE MOVING FAST THESE DAYS. Science change over night. Discoveries are of last week. Inventions of yesterday. The man or woman who is progressing is keeping abreast of the times. 'Tis not enough that you graduated from this University or that College. The world asks: "What do you know to-day?" Education is motion. You move with the tide of events or you find yourself huddled up on the mud-flats. Encyclopaedias that served you well within the last decade are now practically obsolete. They know nothing of the Titanic disaster, the Discovery of the South Pole, the Monorail, Wireless Telegraphy, the Airship, the Turko-Italian War—or Hundreds of other subjects of to-day or to-morrow. The one Encyclopaedia that keeps up with you, and you up with the times, is built and perpetuated by Thomas Nelson & Sons on the Loose-leaf Principle.

NELSON'S PERPETUAL LOOSE-LEAF ENCYCLOPEDIA

Nelson's Patent Loose-leaf Binding Device has revolutionized the whole world of Encyclopaedia making. It has made possible a work that is right on the heels of history.

Nelson's contains upwards of 70,000 subjects, treating over 1,000,000 topics; has 7,000 illustrations and 500 maps. It is the only absolutely new and dependable reference work because the Loose-leaf Binding Device makes it possible to keep the work always up-to-date.

Read these Letters:

J. A. Macdonald, Managing Editor of The Globe, Toronto, writes:—

"I have had occasion to resort quite frequently to your perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia for information of many sorts, and have found it exceedingly helpful. This remark applies especially to history and its allied departments of knowledge; Chronology, Biography and Geography. There is a decided advantage in the loose-leaf method of keeping the Encyclopaedia up-to-date over the yearly supplemental volume method, and one that is not un-to-date is worse than useless."

H. J. Silver, Montreal, writes:—

"In November last the Protestant Board of School Commissioners supplied a copy of Nelson's Perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia to each of its High Schools, to the Superintendent's office, and to one of its Public Schools. The Principals of these schools have expressed their hearty approval of the work and its usefulness to their pupils. Personally, I have found the work and the Bureau of Research particularly useful to me."

F. E. Wey, Librarian Grand Trunk Railway Literary and Scientific Institute writes:—

"The name of 'Nelson' and the list of editors and specialists, is sufficient guarantee to make us feel that we have a perpetual reference work in keeping with the demand for information desired by all who are interested in a progressive Encyclopaedia."

"Your Bureau of Research for Special Information will be of great help to the members generally."

ANARCHIST TRICKS.

Few People Are Aware They Are All

Smart Envelope Makers.

Nearly every anarchist can make envelopes. Set the average long haired terror of monarchs at a table with a sheet of paper and a bottle of gum, and you will be surprised at the skill and rapidity with which he will turn out a "superfine cream-aid" envelope.

Not it is not a practice of the bomb-throwing fraternity to make envelopes as a sort of spare-time industry with the proceeds of which to buy dynamite. They do so because the home-made envelope is the only kind that the most scientific detective cannot open without some trace of the operation.

In nearly every country where the possibility of armed rising or bomb outrage has to be reckoned with, there is a special department attached to the postoffice whose sole task is to open all the correspondence of revolutionaries and other political suspects.

The result of this is that leaders of the different revolutionary movements simply dare not correspond with each other direct. Private messengers over huge distances being too expensive, they generally make use of comrades whom they believe to be unknown to the police.

The chief difficulty is to be quite sure whether the intermediary is really free from police surveillance. And this can only be done by the daily dispatch of test packets. The ordinary seal has been proved useless as a means of testing whether the packets is opened, because the authorities long hit on the idea of affixing an inserted strip of a package and sealing the paper together by a special process, leaving the seal unbroken throughout.

But the special process involves the use of bees' wax and the gum that the anarchist uses to make his envelopes is of such a kind that, when heated, it turns red and remains so. He takes care that the gum shall lie all around the joint edges of the envelope so that it cannot possibly be opened and revealed without his knowledge.

The average peaceable citizen finds it hard to realize the enormous difficulties of the revolutionist who is compelled to use the post. It would be easy enough, one thinks, to arrange all allied for the recipient, while the sender could simply slip his missive in one of the many pillar-boxes in the city during the busiest hours of the day.

But a known revolutionist in a place like Russia is practically never out of sight of the police. And a detective follows him or any of his family or servants as they come out of the house. If the suspects post a letter the detective immediately drops a plain scarlet card in the pillar-box. This catches the eye of the authorities and tells them that the contents of that box are to be searched.

Secret codes are practically useless. A systematic code has never been invented that an expert cannot unravel with comparative ease.

Naturally, the postal police are not exactly popular with anarchists and exactly popular with the result that the latter makes a regular hobby of causing their enemies as much trouble as their considerable ingenuity can devise.

Thus a favorite trick, when a man knows that his letters have been opened, is to stuff forth with a number of letters in his pockets, the police following. He posts one letter—slyly—then the scarlet slip—A little further on and another letter is posted; likewise another scarlet slip. By the end of the morning some hundred or more pillar-boxes will have to be searched by the police.

After much tedious work they will find, in each bundle of letters, one letter apparently written in code. It will take their expert hours to make quite sure that the "code" is a mere meaningless jumble of figures, jotted down by the revolutionary for the sole purpose of causing trouble.

The West Calls for Help. Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation, the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion Monday, Oct. 14th, $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg $12.00.

In the course of her first call upon one of her husband's parishioners young Mrs. Gray spoke feelingly of his noble, generous spirit.

"He is as nearly an altruist as man may be," she said proudly and affectionately.

"Is he an altruist?" said her hostess, with mild surprise. "I thought from the tone of his voice that he probably was a beast."

"Folks all well this morning, Tommy?" asked a friend of the family.
"Yes," replied Tommy.
"I am glad to hear it. The last time I heard from them your papa was suffering from rheumatic gout and your mamma had neuralgia."

"Oh, yes, they're still got 'em. I thought you meant was any of us sick?"

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

We will give One Hundred Dollars by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; since cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

"One of the Emerald Isle," says Mr. William Harvey in "Irish Life and Character," "has much faith in the notion of proving an alibi."

"An Irish barrister, who was evidently prepared for every possible contingency, is alleged to have addressed the presiding judge as follows: 'Your honor, I shall first absolutely prove to the jury that the prisoner could not have committed the crime with which he is charged. If that does not convince the jury I shall show that he was insane when he committed it. If that fails I shall prove an alibi. One wonders how a jury could get away from a verdict of 'not guilty' in such circumstances, and yet it is possible that if the trial had taken place in Edinburgh the verdict would have been no more than one of 'not proven.'"

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p. c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fails to complete the work contracted for. If the tender is not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the highest or any tender.

COMEDY IN A BOOKSTORE.

Good Experiences in an Attempt to Buy a Rare Book.

A correspondent of the Glasgow Herald contributes the following amusing account of an attempt to buy a rare book:

In his "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" Oliver Wendell Holmes mentions a curious book called "The Key to Myself" as having been written and published in England by a person of quality about the beginning of the last century. Some time ago, among a number of second-hand books exposed for sale outside a shop in Glasgow, I noticed one in a display box under the name of "The Key to Myself."

It was "The Key to Myself" in two thin volumes. The first volume took my fancy: "I was born of very worthy, honest and respectable parents—at least I think so."

I went into the shop with the volumes and asked the old man of the counter, "What is the value of these?" He turned them over carefully and said: "These are of no use to me; they're just so much waste paper."

This struck me as an original way of selling books, and I gravely responded, "Very well—how much for them, then?"

"Seven shillings," he replied. "The second volume?" I asked. "For the two," he replied, whereupon I put the books into my pocket and handed him the money.

He looked at me wonderingly and inquired, "Where did you get them?" "Bought at the door," I replied. "I thought you were selling them!"

"If you don't stop buying and selling, I shall about myself this very minute."

"Zen, that's just like you, when you know how nervous I am when I buy a book," London, The Bazaar.

MORLEY AND JOURNALISM.

Has His Criticism to Make Regarding the Modern Press.

What Lord Morley called "a remarkable gathering" met at the Hotel Cecil recently, when Sir Edward Cook was entertained by his fellow-journalists in commemoration of the honor of his name, which Lord Morley has lately been pleased to confer upon him.

Journalists of all schools of thought gathered under the chairmanship of Lord Morley on whose right hand sat the guest of the evening and on whose left was Viscount Illingworth.

In the course of his speech proposing the health of Sir Edward Cook, Lord Morley said: "I met Ruskin once, and then my idol was Mill. I need hardly say that I never met Ruskin again. (Laughter.) I have often wondered, when looking at what came later, whether we journalists were not happier, and whether it was not an advantage to know where we really were."

"In these days," said Lord Morley, "the narrator, as apart from the leader-writer or publicist, has grown into enormous prominence. That is a very delicate subject for me to touch upon—but we are now in the Palace of Truth. (Laughter.)

"It is a question whether the new editor or is not making an advance on the writer of leading articles. And I would suggest that what we call the 'street' of the age—whether some of it does not arise from the flaming and garish colors, from the emphasis, from the Brodignagian type of a kind in which our news is displayed.

May it not be that the tremendous mechanical improvements in news production are in themselves responsible for some of this? Some of us, however, in these days of grammars and magazines, still reserve our admiration for Beethoven and Mozart.

"Fletcher of Saltoun has" once talked about making the bellows of the people. I am sometimes tempted to say I don't mind who writes the leading articles if you will give me full control of the black type and the big headlines.

We are all living in times of enormous difficulty. I do not care what party you belong to but everybody knows that in every Chancellery of Europe there are misgivings as to the future. One cause of this difficulty—I may say the main cause—arises from the press.

"The prime duty of the press all over Europe is to abate, assuage, and minimize, and, so far as we can, remove international susceptibilities. Instead of warming these hateful things into a hateful life.

A Quaint Epitaph.

The following quaint epitaph is to be found in Newham Churchyard:

To the Memory of Thomas Tipper who Departed this life May 14
1780 Aged 44 years.

Reader with kind regards this grave survey
Nor heedless pass where Tipper's ashes lay Honest he was ingenious blunt and kind And dared do what few dare do speak his mind
Philosophy & history well he knew
Was versed in physics & in surgery
The best old stings he both brewed and sold
Nor did one knavish act to get his gold
He played through life a varied comic part
And knew immortal Hudibras by heart Reader in real truth such was the man
Be better wiser laugh more if you can.

Mastor of the Commons.

The home rule debate has brought to the front a remarkable personality in Mr. Samuel Young, the member for East Ovan. Not that the Mastor of Parliament needs any introduction to our House of Commons, but he is seldom obtruded on public notice that he is apt to be eclipsed by more illustrious members.

Mr. Young was born near Belfast in 1822, and he has enjoyed the unusual distinction of having lived through the reigns of five monarchs. He did not embark on a Parliamentary career until he had attained his three-score years and ten, and he was successful at his first election, defeating the Unionist candidate by no less a majority than 3,000.

Though he has attained the ripe old age of ninety, Mr. Young has the buoyancy of youth. He is neither a boresome nor a non-smoker, and he looks at the maxima which are supposed to conduce to old age.

Mistakes of Authors.

The author of "Don Quixote" makes the party at the Crucet tavern eat two suppers in one evening. Most in one chapter of "Ivanhoe" gives the Christian name of Malvoisin as Richard, subsequently altering it to Philip. Pope makes a woman eat corn. Kingsley makes John Bramblecombe read the prayer for "all sorts and conditions of men," though in the time of Elizabeth the prayer book did not contain it. Mr. Arrishead Allford speaks of "Mr. Peregrine Pickle" when he means Mr. Peregrine Quill and, the same author translated "snit de timber" as timber duty. "A bowler," which is only equaled by Victor Hugo's translation of "Firth of Forth," "premier de quatra."

Lions as Watch-Dogs.

A Rhodesian farmer is reported to have trained two African lions to protect his premises. They act as night patrol, and are usually on the alert to every sound. For a considerable time he had employed dogs, but they were invariably poisoned. He tried the experiment with lions as the result of his knowledge that the "king of the forest" will not touch poisoned food.

Threats.

I consider it a mark of great pride in a man to abstain from threats or any contemptuous expressions, for the threats make him more contemptible, and the other extreme has hatred and a desire to revenge himself.—Manchester.

The Wedding Ring.

Why should the wedding ring be placed on the third finger of the left hand? The custom has existed for ages, and the reason therefor has been given as follows: Our ancestors found the left hand more convenient for such exercises than the right, for the reason that it is a less employed than the latter.

For the same reason they chose the third instead of another finger. The third digit is not only less used than the others, but it better adapted to guard a ring against bruises, since that finger has this quality peculiar to itself—it cannot be extended but is company with some other finger, whereas the rest may be singly stretched to their full length.

BRITAIN'S CABINET

It Really Has No Legal Warrant For Its Existence.

YET IT RULES THE NATION.

This Most Powerful and Important Committee in the World is Without a Statute, a Secretary, a Seal or a Minute Book and Has No Fixed Home.

Sidney Low, the English writer, called attention to the fact that the British cabinet has really no standing in law, though it is actually the body which rules England. He makes several interesting statements in describing the situation.

The British cabinet has long been one of the mysteries of that greater mystery, the British constitution. To be quite exact, indeed, it is not correct to call it a part of the British constitution, for strictly speaking it is unknown to the constitution. The cabinet rules the country, but it has no legal status of its own. It was not until 1801 that the word "cabinet" appeared on the notice paper or other official document.

A cabinet minister takes the same oath that every privy councillor takes. To be a true and faithful servant unto the king's majesty is one of his majesty's privy council, and to keep secret all matters committed and revealed unto you or that shall be treated secretly in council. The entire body of the privy council is supposed to advise the sovereign on affairs of state, but to be a privy councillor is not to be a privy councillor in any sense of the word. It is regarded as a high compliment, but if a privy councillor is not a member of the cabinet he hears no secrets and performs no official functions.

All the executive and political functions of privy council have passed into the hands of those of them who form the cabinet, which is really a secret committee of the king's servants who in practice collectively rule the country so long as they remain in office.

"But," as Sidney Low writes in an article in the London Daily Mail, "no act of parliament ever gave them these powers, which could not be asserted or defended in any court of law. They are due to prescription, accident and custom."

"Technically the cabinet as a cabinet is not a legal body. It cannot write a letter or issue a signed order. It has not indeed the means of doing so, for it does not keep a clerk or a typewriter; it has no office, nor has it any money wherewith to buy a sheet of note paper. The most powerful and important committee in the world is without a staff, a secretary, a seal, a minute book or a fixed location."

"When a cabinet council sits it has no agenda before it, nor has it any record of what was done at its last meeting. No one keeps a minute book, and it is still necessary for a privy councillor to etiquette for any minister to take a note of the proceedings or indeed to say anything at the meetings at all."

"In fact, the cabinet council is still treated as if it were nothing more than a casual private conversation between a few of the great men of the hour, the friends of the monarch, for it was born over the dinner table."

"It originated in the reign of Queen Anne in those famous Saturday dinners at which a select group of the privy council assembled to discuss the affairs of their country. They were one of the queen and of colleagues whose presence was not desired. The cabinet has always kept to the tradition. It is a secret committee of government and a secret committee of the dominant party in parliament, and where the one function begins and the other one ends no one can ever say."

"All its members are collectively responsible for its acts of one of them, but there are no means of knowing what the decisions of the cabinet are at any moment till they are embodied in action, or have many of the members may dissent from the opinion of the majority, or whether indeed it is the majority or a minority that really directs the policy."

The promotion of Sir Rufus Isaacs, the attorney general, to the cabinet was a double severity. Not only was there no precedent for the promotion of a lawyer to the cabinet, but Sir Rufus Isaacs was a member of the cabinet, but never before had the official announcement of the performance of cabinet rank mentioned, as it did in the case of Sir Rufus Isaacs, the attorney general's cabinet. This appointment therefore marks a further development in the acquisition of a corporate existence by the cabinet.—New York Sun.

Strangers in Spain.

"The people of Fuen are charming," declares J. E. Legard in the Fuen Magazine. "During our walk or rides through the town it is quite the exception to be met at, as is often the case in other older-Mohammedan towns, and the crowd is, on the whole, merely smiling and inquisitive, like a crowd in Naples or any other Italian town. Now and then some fanatic—generally an epileptic—will try to raise a disturbance and will be gently removed by his friends. The Moors are kindness itself in the face of poverty or affliction—least, except for those and a few casual curses from the old and scared, the Christian dog may pursue his way in comparative peace, provided he does not attempt to enter a mosque or pass the barriers placed in front of those streets leading up to the tomb of Moula Mrid, the founder and patron saint of Fuen."

The Wedding Ring.

Why should the wedding ring be placed on the third finger of the left hand? The custom has existed for ages, and the reason therefor has been given as follows: Our ancestors found the left hand more convenient for such exercises than the right, for the reason that it is a less employed than the latter.

For the same reason they chose the third instead of another finger. The third digit is not only less used than the others, but it better adapted to guard a ring against bruises, since that finger has this quality peculiar to itself—it cannot be extended but is company with some other finger, whereas the rest may be singly stretched to their full length.

ness are undoubtedly possessed, according to the investigations of Dr. and Mrs. Talbot, of considerable powers of an occult nature. They can, for instance, produce, whether by hypnotism or some other means, the appearance of a rainbow in the sky. Following is carried by the active part of the body being married. The smell of the back the design shades off to a point which is never finished by the tattooer till his bill has been paid. As the incomplete design is public evidence of the wearer's indebtedness, the artist seldom has to wait long for his money.

Bulgaria, Serbia, and Greece Have Not Begun Hostilities, and, While Not Very Hopeful, Diplomats Strive to Avert a Serious Conflict

St. Petersburg, Oct. 10.—Austria is mobilizing four army divisions, according to the Novoe Vremya to-day. Presumably they are for service in the Balkans. Determined to protect his own interests there, the Czar, the Novoe Vremya adds, has 1,000 cars ready to begin moving 80 regiments at the first sign of Austria intervention.

Greek Irregulars Skirmishing.

Salonica, Turkey, Oct. 10.—Greek irregulars, one thousand strong have attacked the Turkish posts near Dikata, and been repulsed with heavy loss, according to a report here to-day.

Balkan States Put Off Powers.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 10.—Bulgaria, Serbia, and Greece notified the powers to-day that they intend to delay answering the latter's note concerning peace for a few days, since they need time for further exchanges of telegrams between Sofia, Belgrade, and Athens.

London, Oct. 10.—Bulgaria, Serbia and Greece have not yet followed the example of Montenegro in declaring war on Turkey. Until these three countries do so diplomats refuse to give up entirely the hope of maintaining peace.

WANTS TEN THOUSAND JEWS FOR SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatoon, Sask., Oct. 10.—Jacob Sklover, the well known resolution author and journalist, spent Tuesday in the city. He is interested in securing ten thousand Jews to come to Saskatchewan for the purpose of settling the lands of the Province, and it is expected the vanguard will arrive about the first of the year.

THIRTEEN CATS CAUSED ROWS PRECEDING OSHAWA MURDER

Whitby, Oct. 10.—That one of the causes of quarrels in the Bateman home preceding the killing of the aged wife of John Bateman was due to the presence of 13 cats in the house, was testified to by witnesses at the trial of the husband for murder yesterday.

Bateman is alleged to have attacked his wife with an axe, and afterwards to have set fire to the house to cover the crime. The defence is pleading insanity. Bateman formerly

LOCAL OPTION WILL BE SUBMITTED ON JAN. NEXT

As there has been some doubt in the minds of our citizens whether the advocates of local option would submit the law of that name at the next Municipal elections, The Times last night ascertained that the committee which met during the evening in the Y.M.C.A., finally decided so to test the feeling of the people on this question of local interest. It was decided by the committee that local option would be submitted to a test vote, this time the election will be held under a citizens committee.

DUKE'S TERM IN CANADA IS TO BE EXTENDED A YEAR

London, Oct. 10.—It is almost certain that the Duke of Connaught's term in Canada will be extended another year, says Truth, which is generally reliable in such matters. "It is very desirable that he should be at the head of the Canadian Government when the Prince of Wales and Prince Albert visit Canada in 1914," says the paper. "Extension of the Duke's term will be very popular in Canada. The Duchess and Princess Patricia are returning in April for a few weeks, and will visit the Crow, Prince and Princess of Sweden at Stockholm. Probably the latter will visit Canada next autumn."

THE C. P. R. STOCK ISSUE

Certain newspapers, some actuated by political motives, and others seemingly inspired by an Hibernian desire to crack somebody's head, have made a great outcry against the recent issue of $60,000,000 of new stock by the C.P.R. Such papers, even though influenced by sincere convictions are absolutely mistaken in their premises and belief. The men who control the world's greatest railroad and who daily face mighty problems are not financiers who would undertake so vast an issue without due consideration and certainty, so far as human mind can grasp a sense of right and law. In August last the Company applied to the Dominion Government for authority to issue an additional $60,000,000 of stock. As we understand it, the Government did not deal with the matter or dictate any arrangement as to prices or terms on which the issue was to be placed on the market. At the time the last issue was made an order-in-council was passed whereby $50,000,000 of stock could be issued provided the price was not less than par. At that time the stock stood at about 240 and the issue sold at 150. There is no doubt but what the C.P.R. had the right, given them by Parliament, to issue ordinary shares of capital stock in lieu of consolidated debenture stock. In fact the Company had the right to issue $60,000,000 of four per cent. consolidated debenture stock in addition to that already disposed of. Instead of doing this, the power to do which seems to have been automatically dissolved, the Company has exercised its moral and legal right and decided to issue $60,000,000 of ordinary shares.

The legislation under which the new stock is being issued is contained in chapter 35, 55-56 Victoria (1892) the clause being as follows: "The company being first authorized so to do so by a vote of at least two-thirds of its shareholders present or represented at a special general meeting duly called for the purpose may at any time issue ordinary debenture stock for any purpose for which it is at the time authorized to issue consolidated debenture stock and whenever it shall do so then the right to issue consolidated debenture stock shall cease."

Those who are prone to eternally carp and bark at every action taken by the greatest bond of union between the widely divided parts of our great Dominion, the parallel lines of steel forming the C.P.R. should go slower in their animadversion of the road and its directorate. Whilst only repeating what is a self-evident fact to every sane man in Canada, the C.P.R. has been a constant factor in opening up the world's granary for exploitation by tens of thousands of lusty Canadians. Not only has the C.P.R. opened up limitless sources of food stuffs for the British Empire, but has provided a short cut for the Mother Country, should she need to hasten troops and supplies to the far east. In view of these undeniable facts, it ill-becomes critics to cast aspersions against this issue of stock which lies strictly within the legal and moral prerogative of the C. P. R.

MAN WHO BOUGHT POISON HAD HANDWRITING LIKE BRUCE'S

W. H. Shaw, the Hand-Writing Expert, Testified That the Same Man Wrote Two Signatures—James Bruce on Trial for Death of Miss Ziepe

Hamilton, Oct. 10.—The signature of "J. Brown" in the poison book of a Hamilton druggist was written by the person who signed "J. Bruce" in the wage book, was the evidence given yesterday by W. H. Shaw, a Toronto writing expert, at the trial of James Bruce for the murder of nineteen-year-old Rose Ziepe.

Miss Ziepe came to her death by strychnine poisoning on Sunday evening, Aug. 11, a few minutes after she had eaten some chocolate candies given her by the prisoners' wife, a patient at the city hospital, whom she was visiting when she was taken ill.

What Decided Expert.

Mr. Shaw described the process by which he had arrived at the conclusion that the signature of Bruce in the cartage company's book, on the shipping bills, and on the signature of "J. Brown" on the "poison book" were all written by the same hand. All the signatures were first photographed from the words with which they had been written, and from them a composite photograph had been made. The letters taken from the three different sources had been arranged in a line for comparison. The general appearance of the signature, said the witness, indicated that they had all been written by the same hand.

Characteristic uniformity of style of letters was another important factor considered by the witness. The similarity of the signature was striking in the comparison between the signature of "J. Brown" on the wage book and "J. Bruce" on the poison book. The portion of the two signatures composed respectively of "J. Br" in the Bruce signature, and "J. Brw" in the Brown signature were almost identical.

Looked Like Strychnine.

Dr. Edgar, of the City Hospital staff, told of being called to attend Rose Ziepe after she had eaten the candies. He thought it looked like a case of strychnine poisoning.

ATLANTIC LINER IS BADLY DAMAGED

Montreal, Oct. 10.—The Government signal station at Point Amour this morning reported that the wrecking tug Lord Strathcona with the Bengore Head passed there from Forteau Bay en route for Quebec this morning. The Bengore Head, which belongs to the Head Line and was bound for Dublin, went ashore on Sunday on Flower Light Island, and got off by jettisoning some of her cargo. It is presumed by her return that she was badly damaged.

HOUSE MAY MEET NOV. 14 BUSINESS WILL BE ADVANCED

None of Interminable Delays Which Marked Laurier Regime—Rushing Work at Printing Bureau

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—A denial was given this morning to the story that Parliament will be summoned on Nov. 21st. No date has as yet been fixed. The Cabinet is planning to call the House for November 14th and unless it is found within the next few days it is impossible to get the legislative programme ready by that date, this plan will be adhered to. It is customary, although there is no law on the matter, to give 30 days notice before summoning Parliament, so that if this rule is followed the Cabinet will fix the date between now and Monday.

The Government is determined to have none of the interminable delays which marked the session of Parliament under the Laurier regime and notices have been sent out from the Premier's office to the various departments asking that legislation be prepared at once. The estimates also in response to requests from the Finance Minister are being prepared. The annual reports and departmental blue books are being rushed at the printing bureau, and were never so far advanced as the present year. The Auditor-General's report is already under way and will be ready by the opening of Parliament.

COAL $6.45 PER TON IN A SMALL TOWN NEAR TORONTO

Toronto, Oct. 10.—Sixteen miles from Toronto, in a little town, a householder just the other day bought a supply of hard coal for $6.45 a ton. His city cousins at the same time, for the same grade of coal, were paying $8. and $8.25 a ton. This difference of price makes it seem that the cost of living is lower in the country than in the city as regards more than house rent, taxes, and fresh vegetables. It also excites some curiosity as to how coal can be sold at this price near Toronto while in the city dealers have not quoted this year a price less than $7 a ton.

The rural dealer who supplied his customer with $6.45 anthracite is not a coal baron. That is the chief reason why he doesn't want to see his name in print.

JUDGE WINCHESTER NOT STICKLER ON ETIQUET

"I am ready to go on with my case, your Honor, but I haven't my gown," S. H. Bradford, K.C., explained to Judge Winchester when the County Court opened this morning.

"That's all right," said his honor, "perhaps you'll work harder without it."

Just then, however, a boy arrived with the gown and the case went on.

RIVETER SENT A WORKMAN HURTLING THROUGH THE AIR

Edmonton, Alta., Oct. 10.—While changing his footing on the top tier of the immense steel bridge of the C.N.R. over the Pembina River at Entwistle, Joseph Johnston, structural iron worker, accidentally touched the trigger of the pneumatic riveter which rebounded, striking him on the forehead, and he was sent whirling through the air and a terrible drop of 170 feet to the river below. The falling man struck an out-jutting beam on the lower deck of the bridge and the body's drop was deflected from the open water on to a raft, upon which he fell, lighting on his head and being instantly killed.

WITNESS AFRAID TO STATE PLANS

London, Oct. 10.—Thomas Coupe, the former night clerk of the Elks Club, New York, and eye-witness of the Rosenthal murder, who has so far declined to return to America and give evidence in the case, arrived in London to-day from his home in Preston, Eng., and had a conference with his legal representative and assistant district attorney DeFord, of New York.

Coupe, when asked what his plans are, replied: "I cannot say. If I did it might endanger my life."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Said the ant to the elephant, "Who are you shoving?" Must have been said prophetically regarding Montenegro's invasion of Turkey.

The negro thief who was shot in the jaw recently by a policeman is recovering. Such a wound, however, would put a politician out of business.

It will keep some of our local editors busy to spell the names of some of the Montenegrin generals. They look like a bale of barbed wire struck by lightning.

Lieutenant Becker desires to be tried by a jury of native Americans who have blue eyes because he himself is a native American and has blue eyes. The wonder is that he doesn't demand to be tried by a jury of New York gunmen or policemen.

How the little fellows do love to get a crack at the C.P.R. The command that company acquiring the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship line was on a par with the carpings against the recent $60,000,000 stock.

Some of the young public school teachers who have been vaccinated find it difficult to climb up stairs. It is not necessary, of course, to say where they were vaccinated, because everybody knows they don't walk on their hands.

An Englishman charges that the Canadian farmer does not know how to live and his wife does not know how to cook. But a farmer's life in this country gives him an appetite that adjusts itself to his wife's cooking accomplishments without the slightest trouble.

Mahometans in India are excited over the Balkan trouble because Turkey practising their belief, is threatened with war. Still there are some Peterborough men who stay home and read novels on Sunday whilst their wives are off to church, dressed a little better than Solomon in all his glory.

Premier Borden will soon have to appoint eight new Senators. We hope he will remember that Peterborough city or county is not represented in the Upper Chamber, and will be inclined to give our esteemed fellow townsman, Mr. James Keady, an M.P., the call.

REVOLUTION IN NEW YORK.

The slaying of Jack Zelig, one of the chief witnesses for the prosecution against Lieut. Becker, and the police grafters of New York, reveals a condition of affairs which is tantamount to revolution. The most significant feature is the fact that could appear in the most unlikely quarter, as well as the most dangerous. There has been grave fear of revolution among the so-called lower classes of the great cities, similar to that which caused the streets of Paris to flow with blood. Every strike riot has been pictured as a more or less faithful representation of the French Revolution spirit.

But in modern American days and affairs, this riot of violence is found in close proximity and intimate relationship to the very police themselves. It is discovered that vice in New York is in partnership with the powers established to repress it. The police has been doubly paid, first, for repressing vice, and second, for protecting it. And from this shameful alliance and double dealing there has arisen a condition of chaos and violence hardly equalled in the primitive days of the Wild West.

It is not to be wondered at that the people of that city should feel a sense of alarm as great as though a revolution had broken out in some quarter. A horde of alien strikers, marching down Broadway with firearms in their hands, could hardly cause more consternation than the insidious power that shoots down its victims on the very streets. Without discussing the details or speculating on methods of reform, it is a matter of right good fortune that New York should have a man like Whitman to track the conspirators to their lair and to use all power available to establish law and order, and to so change conditions that a street murder will not suggest police complicity, as it inevitably does today.

CO-OPERATIVE STORES.

Considerable interest is being aroused in railway circles over the project to establish a co-operative store in North Bay for railway employees. The company already has two stores in operation, one at Mimico and one at Allandale, two Grand Trunk points, and intends to have a profit sharing store in every railway divisional point outside of the larger cities. Mr. E. W. Kidd, of Toronto, representing the National Railway Association Limited is undertaking the task of placing stock among the employees. Each store is controlled by a subsidiary company and that at North Bay will be capitalized at $30,000, of which two thirds is said to have been already subscribed. Stock holders are to be entitled to five per cent. discount on purchases upon a cash basis. No credit will be given except to shareholders and then only in proportion to their paid up shares. It is not thought that the store will be in a position to do business before spring as it is supposed to purchase a lot and erect a building.

WHERE SIR WILFRID IS RIGHT.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is for a Canadian Navy, but adds that, "If England were in danger or even on trial, all Canadians would assist upon our navy going to her assistance." To which the Montreal Star replies by asking if Sir Wilfrid is confident on this point, why not have the "Canadian Navy" always where it would be of the greatest assistance—not to "England" especially—but to the British Empire. Surely that is where danger threatens.

Now what danger threatens Canada? Does Sir Wilfrid believe that we have any enemies on this Continent who are likely to attack us before the British Navy could steam across "the pond" and come to our assistance? If so, he ought to name them. Is he afraid of the Navy of the Argentine or of that of Chile? If he is, we may tell him that the four pitiful cruisers he proposed to buy would prove no more than a mouthful to the Navies of either of these nations. Or, perhaps, he fears attack by his friend, President Taft? But, if so, what would his cruisers do against the splendid American Navy?

The truth is that we have no naval enemies in this hemisphere. If we can keep clear of entangling commercial alliances, such as Reciprocity, we will keep our independence. But there is a real and imminent danger to the British Empire—and, incidentally, to our independence—in Europe which has gathered the entire Imperial Navy in the North Sea. Now surely if Canada is so wholly ready to "go to the assistance of England" if she were even "on trial," she would insist upon keeping her navy—if she had one that could fight—alongside the Imperial Navy

Liquid Cough Mixtures Can't Cure Bronchitis

But the Healing Fumes of Catarrhoxone, Which are Breathed to the Farthest Recesses of the Bronchial Tubes, Bring Quick Relief and Safe Cure.

Every sufferer from coughs, colds, bronchitis and all throat and chest ailments needs a soothing, healing medicine which goes direct to the breathing organs in the chest and lungs, attacks the trouble at the source, disperses the germs of disease, and cures the ailment thoroughly. And this medicine is "Catarrhoxone."

The germ-killing balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure, medicinal essences, whereas, with a syrup the affected parts could not be reached, and harm would result through clogging the stomach with drugs. "I have been a chronic sufferer from Catarrh for the past eight years. I think I have spent four hundred dollars trying to get relief. I have spent but six dollars on Catarrhoxone, and have been completely cured, and, in fact, have been well for some time. Catarrhoxone is the only medicine I have been able to find that would not only give temporary relief, but will always cure permanently. Yours sincerely (Signed), WILLIAM RAGAN, Brockville, Ont."

For absolute, permanent cure, use Catarrhoxone. Two months' outfit costs $1.00; smaller size, 50c., at all dealers, or the Catarrhoxone Company, Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

at the admitted point of danger? Why should she keep it a week's steaming away from the danger point? What good would that do anybody? A week's steaming might make it fatally late for Armageddon. Our Navy might only arrive in time to be gobbled up after the Germans had crushed the Imperial fleet.

If Sir Wilfrid, and his "naval strategists" who helped him buy the "Niobe," think that "a week's steaming" is too short to affect the matter, they should consider the case of Malta. Certainly it would be quite as easy to steam from Malta to the English Channel as from Halifax to the North Sea. Yet Britain dare not keep any of her battle-ships at Malta. She moved them nominally to Gibraltar, and it is well known that they are more apt to be found near Portsmouth than under the Rock. She did this, though it utterly destroyed her naval power in the Mediterranean and brought Lord Kitchener in alarm from Egypt. And she is still doing it. But if she is so seriously afraid to permit any of her battle-ships to lie so far away from home as Malta, what would she really think of having them tied to the Canadian coast until war finally broke through the blue?

Sir Wilfrid is right in saying that all Canadians would insist upon going "to the assistance of England," even if she were only "on trial." She is on trial to-day; and all Canadians will insist that any fighting ships we get sent to her assistance at once. They will be as Canadian in every way as possible. We will pay for them; our lads will man them as fast as they can; we can recall them on proper notice. But they will be every hour where the danger is thickest, and where our people will be most content and proud to have them.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

WHERE ARE THE CHIEF'S EYES?

Editor Morning Times.
Sir,—I may seem to be interfering into your personal affairs but I consider that the cause justifies a complaint. I have frequent occasion to pass the lane leading south from Hunter street immediately to the west of your building. This lane or alleyway is always lined on the west side with packing cases, boxes, barrels or other rubbish. On Tuesday there were piles of most inflammable cases, egg cases enclosing cardboard divisions, and straw, piled to a great height. This lane is frequently invaded by young men of an evening, most of them cigar or cigarette smokers. Suppose one of them absent-mindedly threw a lighted cigar butt into the straw and papers among these boxes. It would smoulder possibly for hours, until a passing breeze fanned the smouldering fire into a blaze and George street, as well as all the central business part of the city would be endangered. I would like to ask you where Chief Howard's eyes are that he cannot or will not see the fire trap.

KITCHENER ON EGYPT.

Reforms of the Past Nine Months Bring Order Out of Chaos.

During the nine months which Lord Kitchener has already spent in Cairo as British Agent he has accomplished a task the value of which it would be difficult to over-estimate. That value is becoming daily more evident. Lord Kitchener has inaugurated a series of reforms which must eventually revolutionize the whole financial, economic, and agricultural systems of Egypt and introduce an era of peace and prosperity such as this country has never seen before.

There was those that believed that a civil post was not in keeping with the talents and capabilities of the conqueror of the Sudan. Lord Kitchener's career during the last nine months must do away with all such apprehensions. No human being could in such a short space of time have more endeared himself to every class of Egypt's population. Lord Kitchener's smiles have done more to conquer Egypt than all the guns and troops together.

A distinguished feature of Lord Kitchener's nine months' reign has been the opening of the gates of the British Agency to Egypt's population. When, notably, alshikha, pashas, boys, d'fendia, and the common cause to congratulate Lord Kitchener on his first arrival from England, they were told that the gates of the Agency would be open to any person who needed counsel, advice, or help, so long as these were asked in the interest of the public and general good. And the people took advantage of the invitation; they came to the Agency whenever trouble befell them. Their complaints, needs, and interests were laid before the Agent and men went away confident of the results. The British Agency, in fact, has become the Mecca of an Egyptian social, political, commercial, industrial, and agricultural renaissance.

Then, again, when the people could not come to him Lord Kitchener went to them and visited them in their own homes and provinces. Nothing helped more towards the conciliation of the Egyptians to the Occupation than these tours in the provinces. They rallied the masses, they discomfited the spirit of Nationalism which was rampant, and they created between Lord Kitchener and Egyptians a bond of good-will and understanding which must prove a great factor in the process of reform.

The first question to occupy the attention of the British Agent in Egypt was the question of drainage. Vast tracts of land in Lower Egypt became so swamped, during flood-time particularly, that nothing could grow. For a long time past the Government had intended to construct drainage works, but lacked the energy to undertake such a huge scheme.

With his usual determination to do things when he deems them necessary, Lord Kitchener ordered the scheme to be studied and reported on, and then the fiat went forth that the project should be accomplished. The large provinces—Sharabia, Bahariya, Bahariya, Bahariya—will have been saved these annual losses, and next year two others—Sharabia and Bahariya—will follow suit. By this operation some 3,000,000 acres of land under cultivation, and something like $15,000,000 will be added to the Government's annual revenue.

ARIZONA BRONCHOS.

Like the Little Girl With a Curl in the Center of Her Forehead.

When the Arizona broncho wishes to be safe for you and for himself he is the safest thing in the world, and when he wishes to be unsafe he is a merry chance.

I went up and down trails in Arizona which were almost perpendicular and rough and steep as stairs too. But there was little danger, for the broncho has, not the "leg pump," but the "thunder pump" look. He now is to the ground, his eyes fastened on the trail, his nostrils the most beautifully careful thing the mind can conceive. One foot placed before the other and he preserves the balance, adjusts the weight for another, and all the wonderful machinery of equilibrium, stability and safety you feel working under you like a delicate machine.

Yet this sage pioneer of the trail, with his meticulous care of you and himself, was just a wild range pony, hunted down by the range rider, driven, coast or doped into a corner, broken, maddled, bridled and ridden all in one hour; wrenched out of his wildness, having his heart broken and made into a slave while you would eat your breakfast.

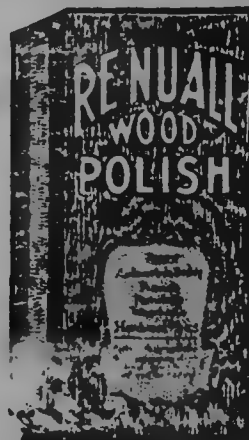

He is not a beauty; he is just a mongrel, but his legs and feet are made of iron and steel, and the work he does over awful trails, in a rough and rugged country, strewed with stones and flints and bowlders and lava and scrub, week after week, month after month and year after year, would spoil the legs of a thoroughbred in three days.—Gilbert Parker in August Metropolitan.

A FORTUNATE BLUNDER.

The Result of Putting a Couple of Wires in Wrong Terminals.

A large number of the world's greatest inventions have been the result of some accidental union of forces, the nature of which the person who started them neither understood nor suspected. The working of dynamite at long distances apart when properly connected was discovered by accident.

A scientific journal says: "Soon after the opening of the Vienna exposition, in 1873, a careless workman picked up the ends of a couple of wires which he found trailing along the ground. He fastened them in the terminals of a dynamo to which he thought they belonged, while they were

RE-NU-ALL POLISH

Works Wonders in My Home

"I read the advertisements with scepticism but I invested 25 cents in a bottle of RE-NU-ALL just to see if the claims made for it could be true."

"I prepared a cheese cloth duster according to the directions on the bottle, and tried it on this mahogany table—just gave it the merest run over, and I was astonished at the results! Not only had every speck of dust vanished, but unsightly smears that I thought were permanent disappeared as if by magic. When my husband saw it he thought it was a new table."

"I was delighted, I used RE-NU-ALL in every possible way. I RE-NU-ED my hardwood floors—just wiped them over and they shone beautifully. I RE-NU-ED my furniture—I RE-NU-ED the enamel bath tub and wash basin, and all the painted walls and woodwork."

"It was scarcely any trouble and the house looked brighter and cleaner than it had ever done before."—(Name on Request.)

Don't confuse RE-NU-ALL with the ordinary wood polishes or dusting compounds. It is in a class by itself entirely. It scrubs up dirt, dust, and grease, disinfects everything it touches, and RE-NEWS all polished surfaces.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—War news overshadowed everything else in today's wheat market. In consequence there was a net advance of 1-4 to 1-3 to 1-2-3, with the feeling at the close strong. Corn finished 1-4 to 1-4 up, cane at a gain of 1-4 to 1-4 and prevailing dealer by 1-4 to 1-4.

The Liverpool market closed today 1/4 to 1/4 higher on wheat, and 1/4 to 1/4 higher on corn. Berlin wheat closed 1/4 higher, Budapest 1/4 higher.

MONTREAL, Oct. 9.—There was a good demand for European wheat from Manitoba and the further rise in the Winnipeg market, based on the closing figures, were the demand for Manitoba wheat for export continued good, but owing to the shortage in making purchases in Winnipeg the volume of business doing in small.
The local demand for wheat was good on account of the late season of crops on spot buyers find it impossible to fill their orders. The local trade in wheat continues fairly active at firm prices, but the foreign demand is limited.

Among the Cannibals.

News has reached Great Britain that Mr. David James, the leader of the Oxford University anthropological expedition, has reached his destination in Ferguson Island, where he intends to study the natives. The members of the party are making journeys from their headquarters along the coast, gaining knowledge in this way of the people and the language, and the inhabitants are proving very hospitable to the travelers. Cannibalism is not practiced so much as was expected.

Very little is known of the Ferguson Islanders, and Mr. James intends to remain on the island for another year, during which time he will endeavor to throw some light on the origin of the various tribes, about whom there has been so much controversy. Some authorities believe that the Ferguson Islanders are an intermixture of the Melanesian and Polynesian races, while others hold they are Papuan, and the expedition hopes to settle these points beyond doubt. When Ferguson Island has been exhausted the expedition will move on to Ross Island, about 180 miles eastward, and continue explorations there.

Railway Gives Scholarships.
Four free scholarships, each covering four years' tuition in the faculty of applied science of McGill University, are offered by the Grand Trunk Railway System, subject to competitive examinations, to apprentices and other employees of the company under twenty-one years of age, and to many cases of employees. The competitive examinations, which will be the regular entrance matriculation examination provided for in the annual calendar of the university, will be held at the university, Montreal, and other centres, beginning June 18, 1913. The four candidates making the highest average and complying with the requirements of admission will be awarded the scholarships and have the option of taking a course in any department of the faculty of applied science.

Friendship.
It is a common observation that differences of taste, understanding and disposition are no impediments to friendship and that the closest intimacies often exist between minds each of which supplies what is wanting in the other.—Lord Macaulay.

"Good morning, Mrs. Smithers. This is the first opportunity I have had to congratulate you since your marriage. I—"

"My name is not Smithers; it is Jones."

"Why, Smith told me you were getting married, and when I asked him who the lucky man was he said it was Dick Smithers!"

"Mr. Smithers is the name of the man I rejected. And you may tell—"

"Oh, excuse me!"

A Mean Dig.
Maude—Mr. Willing asked me to accompany him to the opera to-morrow evening.

Clara—And you accepted the invitation?

"Certainly!"

"Strange!" He asked me also.

"There's nothing strange about it at all. I told him I wouldn't go unless he provided a chaperone."

Fellow Feeling.

"The children need something new every week. You have no children; hence you can't understand."

"I understand, old chap. I have an enormous stock of children."

Not What He Expected.

Harold—Suppose you and I were all alone on a deserted island. Elsie, what is the first thing you would do?

Elsie—Thank the good Lord that I know how to swim.—Twa Topics.

Hard Work.

FRENCH PRETENDERS.

Proposal to Repeal Exclusion Law and Allow Them to Live in France.

A movement has been started to repeal the law passed 26 years ago which excludes from France the descendants of families who have reigned in that country or who have pretended to the throne. A bill of repeal has been introduced in the Chamber of Deputies. Its author has specially in view the case of Prince Victor Napoleon, who, he says, has expressly recognised the republic and has shown his faith in the elective principle and in a republican form of government. Prince Victor issued a manifesto to his followers this spring in which he declared: "Shake hands loyally with all Frenchmen of every opinion who put in the first place respect for the national will and the safety of the fatherland." On the other hand opponents of the repeal recall the fact that Louis Napoleon, on his inauguration as President, in 1848, swore fidelity to the existing institutions. He rendered himself absolute in December, 1851, and the following year assumed the title of Emperor.

Prince Victor is a grandson of Jerome, that brother of the great Emperor who was, for a time, King of Westphalia, and who repudiated his early marriage with Betty P. person of Baltimore. He is styled by his followers Napoleon the fifth, the fourth of the name being the Prince Imperial who was killed in Zululand in 1879. His prestige was increased considerably by his marriage to Clementine, youngest daughter of the late King Leopold of Belgium, and a great-granddaughter of Louis Philippe, the "Citizen King."

Victor is a most commonplace pretender. He is the son of Pion-Pion, who was a prominent figure in the days of his cousin, Napoleon the Third. His brother, Prince Louis, an officer of the Russian army, living mostly in Paris, is more presentable and would suit the French character and temperament far better than the fat dog-faced, heavy-lidded man who seldom finds his tongue, and whose recent feat of hearty laughter at a whispered remark of his wife's at the Brussels race course was flashed throughout the world as an unbecoming happening. He would make as sorry a figure on horseback as did Napoleon the Third, when his cheeks were rosy before the battle of Sedan. His galvanised activity does not disturb the repose of the republic. A fat, philosophical man of 50, comfortably married, is not likely to be troublesome.

The other pretender to the throne of France, the Duke of Orleans, is one of the most royal looking men in Europe. Full-faced, bearded, broad-chested, he is a genuine, likeable, adventurous and loves the ladies. He is descended from Philippe Egalite, who voted in the convention for death of Louis XVI. He has, however, the unpleasant and unfortunate habit of putting his foot in it, whenever he opens his mouth, and recently was given a hint by King George to end his stay in England on account of some impertinent and decidedly ungrateful strictures on the English people. He does not keep the French authorities awake at night, although he has lavished the fortunes of many of his devoted women followers on the attempted attainment of his ambition.

A MASTER OF DETAIL.

Paintings to Suit Abbey Had to Be Historically Correct.

One of the strongest characteristics of Abbey was his terror of anachronism. He detail of a great canvas was small enough to escape his subtle precaution in this regard, no research too exhausting that yielded the correct answer to some archaic matter of dress or armor. Because of this scrupulous care his studio at Morgan hall, itself an ancient building, more than 800 years old, became a veritable museum of heraldic shields, coats and caques. Whenever he wished to paint a certain detail of complicated armor he purchased or borrowed a whole suit as a model. Once, so the story is told, when Abbey had completed a large painting depicting an ancient court scene he discovered that the quarterings in the heraldic shield were in a woman's skirt were incorrect. He painted out the skirt and corrected his error.

His masterpiece is oil, the "Quest of the Holy Grail" which he did for the Boston Library, has been pronounced perfect in every detail of architecture, of dress and heraldry. His "Coronation of Edward VII" has been praised by antiquarians because of its perfection and accuracy of detail. It was this painting which won Abbey his greatest fame in England.

Though Abbey spent nearly all of his working years in England and on the continent, he did not consider himself an expatriate, and he was always keenly American in his sentiment. Baseball was with him a consuming passion. When he discovered that there was none to play his favorite game in England he took up cricket as the next best thing, and cricket was his favorite pastime.—New York Sun.

HARDY SERRI INDIANS.

They Can Outrun a Horse and Go Fast Days Without Food.

From an ethnological standpoint and of the strange peoples in the western hemisphere is that tribe known as the Serris Indians, living in the western part of the state of Sonora, Mexico, along the shore of the Gulf of California and the island of Tiburón in that gulf.

From time immemorial Serris has remained practically unexplored, partly because it lies behind a desert barrier and partly on account of the warlike reputation of its fierce and blood-thirsty inhabitants.

These Indians are of superb physique, able to run down a gazelle and to capture half wild Mexican horses without rope or projectile; able to run across the desert, waterless and foodless, so rapidly as to escape pursuing harem; able to abstain from food and water for days; able to maintain a pace heretofore through centuries and over jagged rock slopes without thought of discomfort.

They speak a distinct language and strictly practice monogamous marriage. Their hatred for alien people is hereditary. The remains of ancient ruins in Serris indicate that the inhabitants have always kept their country free from foreign invasions and that for centuries their customs and arts, which are crude and simple have remained unchanged.

JAVA'S ISLAND OF FIRE.

It is Really a Lake of Boiling, Bubbling Mud and Slime.

The greatest natural wonder in Java, if not in the entire world, is the justly celebrated "Geko Kamdia Gunko," or "Home of the Hot Devil," known as the world as the Island of Fire. This geological singularity is really a lake of boiling mud situated at about the center of the plains of Grobogan and is called an island because the great emerald sea of vegetation which surrounds it gives it that appearance.

The "island" is about two miles in circumference and is situated at a distance of almost exactly fifty miles from Solo. Near the center of this geological freak immense columns of soft, hot mud may be seen continually rising and falling like great timbers thrust through the boiling substratum by giant hands and then again quickly withdrawn. Besides the phenomenon of the boiling mud columns there are scores of gigantic bubbles of hot slime that fill up like huge balloons and keep up a series of constant explosions, the intensity of the detonations varying with the size of the bubble.

In time past, so the Javanese authorities say, there was a tall spiraling column of baked mud on the west edge of the lake which constantly belched a pure stream of cold water, but this has long been obliterated, and everything is now a seething mass of bubbling mud and slime.

FAR DISTANT URANUS.

Odyssey a Visit to This Gigantic Planet Would Disclose.

If Uranus, which is a star of about the sixth magnitude, were a planet like those little ones called asteroids, which are being discovered by the dozen every year, it could not have much claim upon popular attention, but Uranus is really a gigantic world, more than sixty times as large as earth. Its vast distance, about 1,700,000,000 miles from the earth, is what causes it to look so small.

Uranus has four moons, which revolve backward in their orbits—Ost to say, they revolve from east to west around Uranus, while Uranus goes, like all the other planets, from west to east around the sun. It is believed that Uranus rotates backward on its axis also. Moreover, the axis of that great, strange globe lies in such a position that in the course of its year, which is equal to eighty-four of our years, the sun shines almost perpendicularly first upon one pole and then upon the other.

Measured by our time standard, there are forty years of constant daylight, followed by forty years of broken night, around the poles of Uranus, and the sun rises in the west and sets in the east there, but the sun looks very small when viewed from Uranus—only one four-hundredth as large as it appears to us. Still it sheds upon that planet 1,600 times as much light as the full moon sends to the earth, so that daylight upon Uranus, while faint compared with the blare of a terrestrial noonday, is nevertheless a very respectable kind of illumination.

An Object Lesson.

"Johnny," said Mrs. Bobbs severely, "I am going to punish you. Please open the window."

"What for?" said Johnny, beginning to cry.

"I heard our next door neighbor say that I had no authority over you, and I want her to hear you getting a spanking. Come here, sir!"—Tulsa Blade.

A FRIEND OF THE FAMILY.

It Was Highly Priced as a Wonderful Money Saver.

When Miss Ann Pickett dropped in on her neighbor, Mrs. Spicer, and found her moping over the fragments of a gift vase Miss Ann sympathized generously. "It must have been rather a costly vase," she said, looking admiringly at the pieces.

"No, it only cost six bits," Mrs. Spicer acknowledged. "Tain't that I feel so bad about."

"Maybe it was a gift that you prized because of associations?"

Mrs. Spicer shook her head. "Jim and I bought it over in Tennessee a long time ago. I prized it because it was such a saving to the family."

The first year we had it I kept it on the front shelf for a general ornament. Then when Jim's birthday came and I hadn't anything else handy to give I gave him the vase for his own. Next Christmas, instead of paying out good money to buy something new, he gave it back to me for a Christmas present."

"I gave it to Jim junior on his birthday, and he gave it to Sue Belle on hers."

"The next spring all the kids got up a birthday party for old Aunt Belle Spicer, and we took her the vase. After she'd say 'it's a good bit she gave it to Jim's sister Jane for a wedding present, and afterward Jane gave it to me and Jim when we had our child wedding.' I was countin' on givin' it to Jim again on his next birthday, and now here it is smashed to flinders."

"I tell you, Miss Ann, it most makes me cry to think of losing such a useful family article—so near Jim's birthday too!"—Tulsa's Companion.

Daisy's Diagonals.

"Would you think me too bold if I thought you a kisser?"

"Well, I think I'd be a kisser if you would kiss me."

"Just simply and directly kiss?"

—Casson Courier.

Unworthy.

A woman lately wrote an editor of the personal column and said:

"I have lost three husbands and now have an offer of a fourth. Shall I accept him?"

The reply came: "If you have lost three husbands I should say you are too careless to be trusted with a fourth."—Harper's Magazine.

A Choice of Evils.

Ladladly—Would you advise me to send my daughter to a cooking school or to a music school? Boarder truthfully—Well, I think I'd send her to a cooking school. It may be more fatal in its results, but it's not anything like so noisy.

Gathering the Remains.
A good woman's husband was dismembered and eaten by an African tribe. She, desirous of giving him Christian burial, was left no other alternative but that of exterminating with the assistance of certain accommodating friends armed with the destructive weapons of our advanced civilization, the tribe in question, which had shown such a receptive attitude toward her husband. The bodies of the savages were brought back to civilization by the avenging expedition and were placed in one grave, surrounded by a modest slab placed there by the widow and bearing the following inscription: "The remains of the Rev. —, beloved husband of —."

Fishes and Memory.

Do fishes remember? A scientist who has been investigating the question found that by placing a red cylinder containing food and also an empty green cylinder in the aquarium with a single fish the latter soon learned to enter the red cylinder each time it was immersed and avoided the other one. Moreover, the fish went into the red vessel and waited until some crumbs were dropped into it, which he then ate. At other times the fish entered the baited red vessel even though he did not appear to desire food, seeing that he did not eat at such times. The factor of hunger was therefore eliminated here, and the existence of a habit or a reflex action was proved.

FIRE DANGER AT SEA.

How Flames Can Sweep the Inside of Even a Metal Ship.

The danger from fire on a transatlantic liner is more serious than is generally believed. It is much greater than the danger from collision and is becoming more and more dangerous with the increased outlay upon luxury and display. The main structure of the ship and most of its essential parts are of metal, but many of the fittings, nearly every feature of ornament and every trapping of luxury, are highly inflammable.

No one who has not been aboard the Spanish wrecks at Santiago can comprehend the danger. A sweep the inside of even a metal ship. Admiral Cervera described to me the experience on board the Torpedo in these words: "The second shot that came on board set us on fire. The fire main was damaged.
Soon we were unable to cope with the fire. It swept through her from bow to stern. There was not a space as big as the palm of your hand where life could have been sustained. An insect could not have lived on board. We had to get overboard or be burned."

It is true the Spaniards had not cut out their woodwork and thrown overboard all unnecessary inflammables, as we had in the American fleet, but the inflammability of one of their warships was much less than that of a luxurious ocean liner.—Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson in Engineering Magazine.

PINEAPPLE PLANTS.

They Do Not Die After Fruiting, but Regenerate Themselves.

Pineapples do not grow on trees. Imagine a plant four feet in extreme height from the ground to the tip of leaves, a single stalk at the surface, but dividing at once into swordlike blades or leaves, fifteen in number, from the center of which appears a stiff, upright stem, at the top of which is the fruit. This stem is short, and the crown of the fruit when fully grown is a foot or more below the points of the leaves.

At the end of a year and a half from planting each plant produces a single fruit, even as a cabbage plant produces a single head. But the pineapple does not die after fruiting once. Down on the stem below the fruit and among the long, narrow leaves a sucker appears. If allowed to remain this will soon become the head of the plant, and within another year it will yield another fruit. This process will go on for a term of years. In the meantime, however, other suckers will make their appearance.

These are broken off, and when stuck into the ground they put out roots and become other plants. Thus a single pineapple plant will produce a dozen or more others while it is yielding fruit from year to year.

The Intruder.

A certain boat coming up the Mississippi one day during a flood lost her way and bumped up against a frame house. She hadn't more than touched it before an old darky rammed his head up through a hole in the roof, where the chimney once came out, and yelled at the captain on the boat: "Where you going wid dat boat?
Can't you see nothin'?" First thing you knows you gwine to turn dis house over, spill de old woman an' de child'en out in de flood an' drown 'em. What you doin' out here in de country wid your boat, anyhow? Go on back yander froo de confidins an' get back into de river whar you belongs. Ain't got no business settin' miles out in de country follin' roon' people's houses nowho!" And the boat backed out—

BURIED LIVING PERSONS.

Horrible Custom of Japanese Prior to Year 646 A. D.

Prior to the year 646 A. D. the Japanese had one of the most horrible barbaric customs that can be imagined—that of burying all the immediate friends and retainers of a prince or other person of note in a standing position around the potentate's grave and leaving them in the earth up to their necks to perish of thirst and hunger.

The custom cannot be said to have been general as late as the date given, for the Japanese records prove that in the time of the Emperor Suinin (57-59
B. C.) the burial rites of royal personages were so modified as to partially abolish former cruelties. Speaking of a young brother of Suinin, who died and had his retinue buried standing around his grave, the record says:
"For many days they died not, but wept and cried aloud. At last they died. Dogs and crows assembled and ate off their heads. The emperor's compassion was aroused, and he desired to change the manner of burial.
When the emperor died, soon after, the misdeed inquired of his officers if something in the way of a change could not be suggested, and one proposed to make clay figures of men and bury them as substitutes."

That this did not entirely do away with the former custom is proved by an edict issued in the year 646 A. D., the date given first above, which forbade the burial of living persons and provided a penalty for further adherence to the awful rite.—St. Louis Republic.

The Cabinet.

Technically the Cabinet as a Cabinet can do nothing. It cannot even write a letter or issue a signed order.
It has no seal, indeed, the means of deciding so, for it does not keep a clerk or a typewriter, it has no office, nor has it any money wherewith to buy a sheet of notepaper. The most powerful and important committee in the world is without a staff, a secretary, a seal, a minute book, or a fixed location. When it assembles it has to depend on the hospitality of the Treasury or the Foreign Office, or it may meet at the private residence of one of the members. Mr. Gladstone occasional held his Cabinets in the suburban mansions near London lent to him by his friends during the Parliamentary session. When a Cabinet Council sits it has no agenda before it, nor has it any record of what was done at the last meeting. No one keeps the minutes; and it is still deemed a little contrary to etiquette for any Minister to take a note of the proceedings, or, indeed, to write anything at the meetings at all.

SOURCE OF SHELLAC.

East India Insects and Trees That Produce the Substance.

India is the home of the Coccus lac-ca, the insects that produce the resinous substance known as shellac. The female punctures the twigs of several different kinds of trees, among them the bo, the bihar and the butea, and the twigs become incrustated with a hard, nearly transparent, reddish, resinous substance that serves the double purpose of protecting the eggs and furnishing food for the young insects.

The incrustated twigs are broken from the trees before the young insects escape and are thoroughly dried in the sun. These dried twigs are called "stick-lac," and from them shellac and a dye analogous to cochineal are prepared. "Seed-lac" is the resinous con-cretion separated from the twigs, coarsely pounded and triturated with water in a mortar, by which nearly all of the coloring matter is removed.

To prepare shellac the seed-lac is put into oblong cotton cloth bags and warmed over a charcoal fire. When the resin begins to melt the bags are twisted, and the pure clear resin is allowed to flow over fig wood planks or the smooth stems of the banyan tree and cools in the thin plates or shells which constitute shellac.

Pure shellac is very valuable. It is much harder than colophony and is easily soluble in alcohol.

They Have an 'Arbor.'

A member of the London county council was regretting the lack of art sense displayed by his fellows when they placed an open space at the disposal of the people. He pleaded violently for fountains, goldfish in ornamental basins, fountains and urns in stucco and emerald green garden seats.

"Why," said he, in a splendid per-oration, "we want something homely and countrylike—a little arbor here and there. If a foreigner came to this country and asked to see one we've never an arbor worth showing to show him."

Then up and spoke another member, who, prior to attaining the height of his civic ambitions, had been a petty officer in the navy.

"Oh, we haven't 'arbor' we? And what about Portsmouth 'arbor'?"—London Strand.

Easiest and Cheapest Way to Procure

Government Publications.

No doubt most people interested in useful reading matter will thank us for information, obtained through official sources, as to how public documents can be procured with least trouble and at trifling expense.

The idea that prevails most generally—that this class of literature may be secured through the courtesy of members of congress—is correct only in so slight a degree that it had best be corrected. There are nearly 600 senators and representatives; hence an edition of several thousand copies, if distributed pro rata, gives to each only a few copies. Some of these the senator or representative needs for reference, the few left over are soon estripped, and these consequently who then write for them are necessarily disappointed, through no fault of the public men whom they have addressed.

Now, as a general proposition, the reader who is interested in a government publication will serve himself best by addressing the official knowing the superintendent of documents, government printing office, Washington, who is authorized to have reprinted any government publication for which there is a demand, and sell the same at cost to all applicants. He will mail price lists, divided by subjects, free upon application, and, resistance can then, as required by law authorizing such sales, accompany the order.—

HOW TO WASH LINEN SUITS.

An Expert Laundress Describes the Best Method.

"For washing linen suits," said an expert laundress, "use only the best white soap and never rub the soap on the cloth unless there is a lot of hard dirt to be taken out. In the majority of cases the suits soak for an hour or so in soapy water, putting them in when the water is quite hot. By the time it is cool enough to permit washing freely the soiled parts are sufficiently soft to admit of cleaning without very much scrubbing. Rub in several waters, always until the last water is perfectly clear, then pass the garment through the stiffening water, after which it is pressed as dry as possible in the cotton sheet."

"Some stiffening is necessary to give the linen the appearance of freshness which it has when it comes to you from the tailor. On the other hand, the greatest care should be taken not to have too much stiffening. That ruins the appearance of what would otherwise be a perfectly washed suit.
You want just enough to give the linen body and yet not take away from its suppleness."

"In washing colored linens, excepting tans and browns, color all the waters and try always to avoid putting soap on colored linen, and also do not use water hotter than blood heat, allowing the linen to soak only a few minutes before washing it out and patting it in a second water of the same temperature and colored. Three waters are generally enough for a colored linen suit. Where the suit is not much soiled two will be enough. The stiffening water must be colored just as was that in which the washing and rinsing was done."

"After wringing in the cotton sheet care must be taken in hanging both coats and skirts for drying purposes.
Fresh air for colored linen and sun for the white—that is the ideal drying process. House drying never gives the satisfaction that a good laundress wants for her work. Steam drying should be a last resort. It injures the texture of the goods and leaves the colors less brilliant."

"The figures on which suits get their final shaping are the kind used by good dressmakers and tailors. I have all sizes and covered so that the suits get as nearly as possible the shape of their owners. I keep the figures arranged in fresh petticoats and shirt waists, and when the freshly washed suits are on them I'm not ashamed for any one to walk into my shaping rooms. Each suit is taken from the figure and placed in its box for shipment. Great care is taken to see that every part of it is perfectly dry."

Weak, Tired Folks Given New Vigor

Strength Returns, Health Renewed, Vitality of Youth Re-created.

Exhaustion and Bodily Tiredness Every Day Being Turned Into Vigor and Amities by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

From Chabouge, Pa., N.S., comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Raymond: "A year ago my health began to fail. I lost appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down, I became thin, hollow-cheeked, and had black rings around my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me and when springtime arrived I was in the 'blues.' I read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills and got five boxes at once.

"Within a month my appetite and color were good. I gained strength and felt like a new woman. New life and vigor returned, and my friends scarcely knew me. A medicine that will do this should be in every home."

Good health means much to you. Success and happiness depend upon it. The maintenance and source of health is found in Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.50, at all drug stores and grocery stores, or by mail from the Catterhouse Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Fire Brigade in Early Run.
Early yesterday morning the Fire Brigade were given a run from the corner of Wolfe and Stewart streets, where a transformer was blazing fiercely. Except for the destruction of the transformer, no damage was done.

Case of Non-Support Enlarged.
Robert Glover was charged at yesterday's police court with non-support of his wife. The case was enlarged until this morning. Robert was a talker and came near talking himself into trouble over what he would do after the case was over.

No More Shanty Blankets on Meat.
Sanitary Inspector Spence seems to be very much alive. He latest pronouncement in the public interest is that people bringing meat in signs to the city for sale, must not cover said meat with dirty clothes or even blankets that may have seen a winter in the shanties.

St. Paul's W.F.M.S. Meeting.
The annual thanksgiving meeting of St. Paul's W.F.M.S. will be held this afternoon (Friday), at 3:30 o'clock in the school room of the church, there will be a good program and a cordial invitation is extended to all interested.

Presentations to Mrs. G. B. Miller.
At the regular quarterly meeting of the Murray street Baptist church, on Wednesday night, Mrs. G. B. Miller, who has been actively connected with the church for some years was made the recipient of a beautiful gold watch and chain, presented to her in recognition of her services to the church.

Auto Upset, But No Damage.
As Mr. Bart Kelly and party were returning by automobile from Norwood Fair, the driver to escape a mudhole, turned out, and the machine skidded. The party had a narrow escape from death as the auto turned completely over. Both car and its living contents miraculously escaped injury.

Clean Up Your Alleysways.
The back lane problem still continues to be a bone of contention between the Sanitary Inspector and the parties responsible for the filthy condition of private roadways. Refuse of all kinds and inflammable material is deposited in them. This gives carters and others much trouble and is provocative of fire and disease.

Break Day in Local Schools.
The 100th anniversary of the death of Sir Isaac Brock, at Queenstown

Highlights will be celebrated throughout the public schools of the city this afternoon. The flag will fly and the teachers will address their classes on the death of General Brock or else teach the scholars on the subject. Patriotic songs will be sung also.

Water Commissioners Met.
Yesterday afternoon the Water Commissioners held a special meeting. The main topic of consideration was the McLaughlin Pump (of Montreal), concerning which there has been some misunderstanding for some time past. The members of the Board journeyed out to the station and made a careful and critical examination of existing conditions. No definite action was taken.

Deer Woman Breaks a Leg.
As Mrs. Bartholomew Condon of Douro stepped from her house door early yesterday morning, she stepped on a stool which toppled over, and she fell heavily to the ground, sustaining a fracture of one leg just below the knee. Dr. Frederick was summoned. The injured lady was conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital. Although latest reports has it that she is doing as well as can be expected.

Evangelistic Services in St. Johns.
On Wednesday evening an interesting service was held in preparation for the coming evangelistic effort in St. John's church. After the service a conference was held to forward arrangements, and it was announced that two eminent Toronto preachers had been secured to conduct the evangelistic campaign, which will be brought on in the near future in St. John's church.

Trades and Labor Council.
The Trades and Labor Council held their regular monthly meeting Wednesday night. Among other matters discussed was that of the alleged local coal combine. Mr. J. M. Galbraith, the secretary of the committee that had charge of the program on Labor Day, presented a report of receipts and expenditure. Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather of the day, there will be a nice balance in favor of the treasury.

Lindsay Man's Bad Accident.
A most regrettable accident occurred in the Lindsay round house on Wednesday. Samuel Trotter, a boiler maker, was doing some repairs on an engine, when a big "mogul" coming up behind him, knocked the unfortunate man down and crushed his leg, above the knee to a pulp. He was taken to the Ross Memorial Hospital where everything is being done to save the leg.

Death of Lady Related Here.
The death occurred at Montreal on Monday of this week of Mrs. A. R. Allan, sister of Mr. W. R. Travers, manager of the local branch of the Montreal. Mrs. Allan's maiden name was Miss F. Travers, and she was the only daughter of the late John Nicholas Travers, in his day a prominent banker of Eastern Ontario. General sympathy will be extended to Mr. Travers.

The West Calls for Help.
Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation, the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion Monday, Oct. 14th, $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg $18.00.

Pochochous and Barber Pole.
Pochochous Doghouse or Worry McGinnis may have been his name. He is about a full blooded Indian and was a very full Indian; so full that he neither knew his name nor cared. McGinnis, should that be his name, was ignominiously ordered out of a local hotel before his equine nose and alcoholic breath had passed the threshold. He staggered down the street, uttering guttural sounds something like the bass string of a cello played on by a blunt buck saw. Suddenly Pochochous saw a red, white and blue barber pole standing on the sidewalk. Whether he took it for a totem pole or a sacrificial stake is not known. He flung his arms around the pole, and with it came heavily to the pavement. This seemed to partly sober him for fishing a quarter out of his pocket. He went in for a shave. McGinnis seated himself somewhat unsteadily on the footrest of the barber's chair and demanded a shave. Again he was ordered out into the chilly, wet, other air. It is thought he came from Rama.

Blindness of Virtue at Grand.

Last night a fair sized audience, attended the four-act play at the Grand Opera House, entitled "The Blindness of Virtue." This play, by Cosmo Hamilton, is a strong one and was well acted. The cast, composed entirely of English players, was unusually efficient.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

We will give One Hundred Dollars by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine out of ten cases are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

We will give One Hundred Dollars by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine out of ten cases are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

CITIZENS MEETING WAS WELL ATTENDED AND ENTHUSIASTIC

Ward Committees Formed to Advocate Passage of De Laval Dairy and Supply Co. and to Get Out the Vote On October 30th

Last night despite the drizzling rain a large number of local prominent residents turned out to the Citizens meeting, called to discuss the proposed De Laval Separator by-law. Shortly after 8 o'clock, the chairman Mayor Bradburn, noted that the citizens had called the meeting to discuss the De Laval by-law. The latter is a Canadian company with head offices in New York. The speaker described the introductory work done by the committee to get this factory as against Lindsay, Bradford and other towns. He said the terms offered included 15 acres of land and free taxation for 10 years, except for education improvement, and to pay $3,500, the expense of bringing their machinery, etc., from Montreal and St. John, Que. The amount to be spent by the company is fully explained in the notice of the by-law. He noted how the C.G.E. Co., had many hundred fold exceeded their original requirements. The Mayor said the city clerk could get lots of factories if it would supply them with capital. The De Laval Co., however, does not ask this. Freeholders only can vote on De Laval plant.

Mr. E. G. Patterson thought the hands before 10 years. Mr. Crane moved that the meeting express the approval of what the council had done to secure the De Laval plant, seconded by Mr. Hartley. Carried with applause. Mr. W. H. Moore moved that the Mayor be chairman, and S. R. Armstrong secretary of a general committee. Carried. Mayor Bradburn in accepting suggested that the meeting dissolve and form ward committees. The Aldermen representing the various wards then formed committees according to ward. Among those present at this red hot business meeting were Messrs. John Crane, D. W. Dumble, B. Morrow, Geo. Elliott, B. Crossman, W. S. Dods, ex-Ald. Batten, Ald. Brown, R. C. Braund, T. Q. BIG WAR PREDICTED

Russia's War Minister Reported to Have Made Declaration

St. Petersburg, Oct. 11.—Bilateral predictions of a general European conflict were made in a speech by War Minister Sechouloff in a speech at the Automobile Club here, according to persons who professed to-day to have heard him.

"The Balkan outbreak is the beginning of a great European clash," he was quoted as saying, "into which Russia inevitably will be drawn."

OPPOSED TO BIGOTRY?

The Catholic Register, As Usual, Uses Strong Language Against Protestants.

The following, taken from the Catholic Register, the official organ of the Roman Catholic Church in Ontario, will be read with considerable interest by Protestants: Rector Powell, of Toronto, who has been praying in church for the United Protestants in their "afflictions," had better impetrate for them a little saving common sense, and a speedy deliverance from the plague of "United" which has fallen upon them to their undoing.

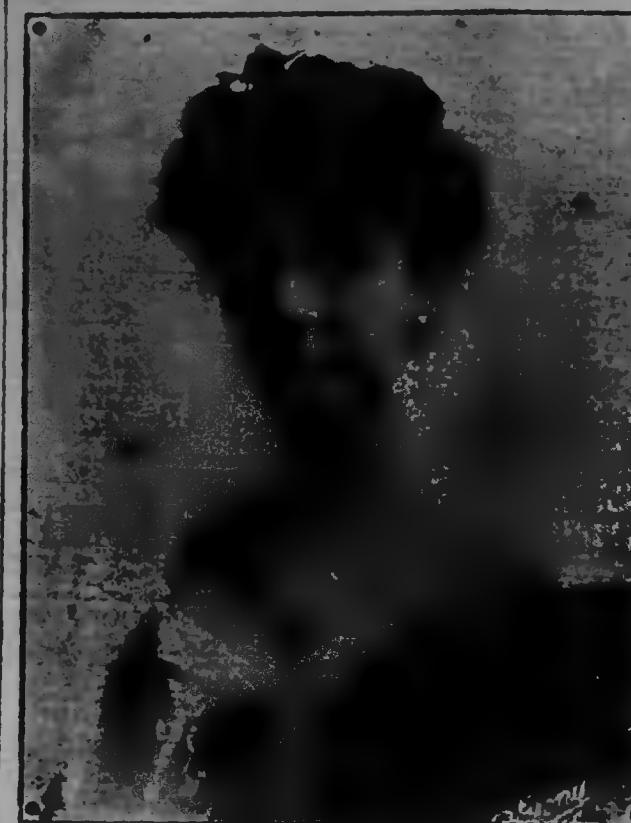

Hon. Mr. Graham complains that the "No Temperance" agitation injured him in Brookville last election. Shame on Brookville or any other constituency affected by such a cry! And so good can come of recalling such contemptible meanness on the stump now. Bigotry and discrimination against the Catholic Church is an old sin in the world, but too old to catch wise men much longer.

We read that "There was much enthusiasm also at Armagh, Enniskillen, Downpatrick, and Hillsborough, where the covenant was signed in the city where King William III. in 1690 signed the regium donum while on the way to the Boyne." "Regium donum" or so "regium donum," a city was the proper place to sign such a heinous document, and we congratulate the Orangemen on their taste.

Our Toronto Methodist brethren are now conducting three well-attended night-schools for the Italians of this city. These night-schools are, as all know, a sort of mission kindergarten, where education and proselytism are wisely combined, and the results must be satisfactory or the work would not be kept up. This night-school business is not an easy problem, but if the Methodists can solve it surely we Catholics can do something in the same direction.

The Catholic Standard, of British Guiana, pays its respects to a Rev. Mr. Williams, of whom it says that "he is suffering from a severe and chronic attack of the 'Roman fever,' which in its malignant stage deprives its unfortunate victim of the power of reasoning logically, of understanding the most elementary truths in connection with the Catholic Church and of discriminating between truth and falsehood." Here in Toronto we have a friendly number of Reverends whom this description fits to a "T," but they have come to be regarded as pulpit comedians, and the public, for many moons has ceased to take their utterances seriously.

THE WEATHER.
To-day: Southerly wind, warmer, with local showers, but partly fair.

MAY ROBSON

The extraordinary success of May Robson in depicting the humour and characteristics of eccentric old women, for which she is unequalled, encouraged several writers to submit their plays, but those received were not adaptable to the requirements, and therefore she determined to write down her views and ideas of the action and collaborate with an experienced dramatist. The result was entitled "A Night Out."

The character enacted by Miss Robson is that of a lovable old lady with a droll humour, who is supposed to be very much in love with her two grandsons, types of young men up-to-date, who visit a fashionable resort in New York, and in order to convince "Grammy" that it is more of a respectable, they take her with them. They pass the evening quite merrily, but on returning home rather late, they climb the vines of ivy and enter the window to avoid disturbing the family. The incident leads to an explanation, which Grammy is willing to sustain to avoid a lecture, no matter how absurd or impossible. The escapade forms the narrative developing many very funny situations in which Miss Robson is the principal feature. Miss Robson will appear at the Grand next Monday evening, Oct. 14.

THE PATH OF UNITY

(FROM THE ORANGE SENTINEL)

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been touring Northern Ontario, and his speeches, as reported in Liberal papers, show that he still cherishes the idea of an independent Canada. At Porcupine Sir Wilfrid advocated unity of the races, which is most desirable. There will be unity when one language—the English—dominates. So long as the French language is claimed to be on a par with the English as an official language, there must be something of a cleavage. Nationality is designated by language, and this being a British country, the language of Great Britain should be the only official language. So long as Quebec holds to the French language there will be division. One or the other must be in the ascendant, and who would think of English being set aside, to be replaced by French?

CANCER CURE CONDEMNED

German Professor Says Specific Remedy May Never Be Discovered

Munster, Prussia, Oct. 11.—Prof. Vinzenz Casary, surgeon and bacteriologist at Heidelberg University and a world-famous investigator of cancer, has sent a communication to the German medical congress dealing with the latest reported cancer cure. A specific remedy for cancer has not yet been found, he says, and possibly never will be discovered. The widely heralded chemotherapeutic treatment by metallic salts, the professor continues, has only rarely cured mice and the salts are too dangerous as yet to apply to human beings.

Prof. Casary in conclusion deploras the negligence of the various governments in financing investigations into the disease.

SPEED MARVELS FOR PETERBOROUGH

Local Stars are Shipping Fast Machines For Tomorrow's Motorcycle Meet—Johnson Returns.

Toronto, Oct. 12.—The Canadian Motorcycle Association decided late yesterday to issue a sanction for the race meet at Peterborough to-day, and accordingly a number of the Toronto track stars were making preparations yesterday to take part in the event. There will be six races on the car, and the scope of the sport will be the fine half-mile trotting track at Peterborough. Those who are going down include Harold Cole, the local champion; Bob Scott, Dan Davies, Miles, Barton, Amos, Pratt, Barnes, Newton, and several others of the good boys.

Chairman F. A. O. Johnston, of the C. M. A. will act as referee. A big meeting of the Toronto Motorcycle Club will be held at the club quarters, 266 College street, next Wednesday evening.

STRIKEBREAKERS WERE POISONED

Twelve Bookbinders for Collier's Taken Sick After Meal.

New York, Oct. 12.—Twelve strike-breaking bookbinders housed in a building on West Thirteenth street, occupied by P. F. Collier and Son, publishers, where a strike is in progress, were taken ill last night a short time after they had eaten food furnished by a restaurant in the neighborhood.

That some form of poison was given the men was the belief expressed by the police and physicians.

meeting. An offer has been made to the Dominion Government of running rights to the Intercolonial Railway from Montreal to Midland thus giving the Government road a much needed outlet out to the Lakes and providing them with the means of securing Western freight. The distance from Montreal to Midland by this road is 235 miles and the contract calls for four tenth grade which will insure a cheaper haul for Western grain from the Lakes to the seaboard.

The meeting passed a resolution approving of the project and undertaking to assist in carrying it through and authorizing the formation of an organization to secure the usual Dominion and Provincial subsidies.

PICKING UP IS PIPING.

WAR TO THE KNIFE DECLARED NO QUARTER WILL BE GIVEN

Ottoman Empire Will Have 400,000 Men in the Field Within a Week—Will Levy War Tax On All Christians

Athens, Greece, Oct. 11.—Princess Alice, the wife of Prince Andrew of Greece, has decided to leave at once for the frontier with a number of nurses. All the indications here point to war. A cabinet meeting lasting several hours was held this morning under the Presidency of the King. St. Petersburg, Oct. 11.—A dispatch from Podgoritz, Montenegro, says that the Montenegrin southern army under the command of General Marichovich, has crossed the river Neretva and captured several Turkish outposts at Taranoch, near the Turkish town of Scutari. The Russian Minister of War has postponed his proposed visit to Paris in view of the possible complications in the Balkan Sea.

IS THE TRENT WATERWAY BEING POORLY CONSTRUCTED?

The Attention of the Government is Now Called to a Very Serious Defect

The attention of the Times has been called to a matter in connection with the present mode of construction on the Trent Canal, by one of the experienced boat captains on these waters, and we deem it of such importance as to bring it to the notice of the Government.

Submarine channels (that is, channels cut in the river or lakes where the water is not of the required depth for navigation), are being made on all the contracts at present under way. There is, it appears, no protection on the sides of these channels to prevent barges or tows of barges from tearing out their sides against the ragged rock cuts, or grounding in the earth cuts; nor are the ends of these channels played so as to guide the barges into the channels. Our informant tells us that there are a number of these channels between Hastings and Rice Lake, and that the only protection that such channels have is a concrete pier at each end of the cut. What use are such piers to protect a tow of barges passing through the channel? If the channels are left like this the canal will be practically useless as a through route, as barges could never get through, or if they did the insurance rates would be so great as to render the route by the Welland Canal the cheaper and safer one.

The Trent Canal was always intended as a barge canal, and if it cannot be used as such a great deal of money is being uselessly thrown away. But such need not be the case, as the Trent Canal can be made the cheapest and safest waterway between the East and West. Now is the time to do it, when the contractors are at work and the channels should be properly protected on the sides by cribs, or better, by concrete walls, or by casting the excavation from the channels on the sides of the cut in order to form an embankment to prevent barges from drifting against the sides of the cut. This may cause some extra expenditure, but surely it will pay to incur a little extra expenditure when to do it will make the whole expenditure on the Canal a success. It will surely have to be done later on, and why not it now when it can be done more cheaply than later? This it seems to us, is a matter of the gravest importance and it should be acted on at once.

Our informant tells us that he was instrumental in having a petition sent to the Minister some two or three years ago. Such petition was signed by every boat owner and captain on the waters, but no attention was paid by the Minister of the late Government to this petition. It appears to us that such an important matter should be attended to without delay.

We will be glad to have any further communication on this or any other matter in connection with the Trent Canal. We may add that we are sending marked copies of this issue to steamboat owners along the route of the canal. We would urge on them to interest their respective Members of Parliament with a view to inducing the Government to take the suggestions up at once.

MONTENEGRINS WIN BATTLES TURKISH ARMY ROUTED

Important Positions Fall Into The Hands Of Their Opponents

London, Oct. 12.—The Montenegrin army followed up its success by capturing the fort guarding Tushi, thus opening the road for an advance on the Turkish town of Scutari. Further details of the fighting and lacking but an official telegram received by the Consul General of Montenegro in London says the military operations of the Montenegrin army continue to be successful. It adds that several important Turkish positions have been taken and the army is advancing.

Unless Turkish reinforcements have reached Scutari it is considered probable that the city will soon fall into the hands of the Montenegrins. While the way there has been opened, however, it is pointed out that it may not be passed without serious fighting, as the Albanian tribesmen in the vicinity have been aroused by Turkish emissaries and are expected to join the Ottoman troops.

News from other parts of the Montenegro frontier is more conflicting. The town of Borana being reported at one moment in the hands of the Turks, and at another in those of the Montenegrins.

In this district Montenegro is helped by Serbian insurgents who are always at war against Turkey. Constantinople, Oct. 12.—No fewer than 140,000 Turkish troops from Asia Minor will, it is estimated, be concentrated within a week in European Turkey. This will bring the effective force of the Turkish army there up to 400,000 men.

Turkish officials say that the day of trial has shown that all the money and the effort devoted to the organization of the army have been wasted. All the military depots are full of stores and the equipment is complete and of quality.

If the Bulgarians are counting on the superiority of their organization and the greater rapidity with which their army can be mobilized to them a material advantage they are according to Turkish officers, a disagreeable surprise.

The Turkish officers recognize the splendid qualities of the men in the ranks of the Bulgarian army and so of their junior officers, but they have a less favorable opinion of the commanding officers.

The reliability of the Christian army is one of the great problems of the moment for the Ottoman leaders. The Armenians are expected to behave loyally, but it is said that it would show ignorance of human nature to expect Greeks to fight against Bulgarians or Serbs against Bulgarians, or even many of those nationalities in Turkey.

Constantinople, Oct. 12.—No fewer than 140,000 Turkish troops from Asia Minor will, it is estimated, be concentrated within a week in European Turkey. This will bring the effective force of the Turkish army there up to 400,000 men.

TIMES BUILDING, PETERBORO

In West of England.

The western quarter of England has a set of literary associations second to no other district, not even the famous lakes of Cumberland and Westmorland. The "Quiller-Couch country," which is Cornwall; the "Blackmore country" which is North Devon; the "Kingsley country," which is all Devonshire; the "Hardy country," which is Dorset, will be found undervalued rather than over-rated in beauty and interest, which are greatly increased by their associations with "Lorna Doone" or "Tess of the D'Urbervilles."

The two great Devonshire towns, Exmouth and Dartmouth, are particularly beautiful, and offer a happy hunting ground to the artist. It seems strange that spaces of such richness exist within the restrained and highly cultivated boundaries of southern England; the casual visitor would find it difficult to believe that on these splendid rolling slopes, purple with heather in August, people go astray and die of starvation every winter. No visitor can afford to miss a visit to Devonshire, which in May is one of the most beautiful bits of country in Europe.

Sun and Fire Symbols.

There are to be found occasionally upon the walls of old brick houses in Canada, at about the line of division between the first and second stories, flat pieces of iron five or six inches in length and shaped somewhat like the letter "B." The use of these articles was clearly brought from England, where it is still continued, and there are a curious origin and meaning attached to them. The figure in question is an early symbol of the sun. It is still used in Herefordshire and other parts of England. There one is informed that the reason for the particular form of these iron is that they were made thus in order to protect the house from fire as well as from collapse.

A Poultry Nasty.

Included among the numerous poultry exhibits at this year's Royal Agricultural Show at Doncaster, England, is a novel variety of hen—a pure white bird. Experiments now progressing, it is believed, are likely to be successful in changing the color of the egg in another breed from white to brown.

THE CURIOUS SNAIL

This Creature Can Live Without Air, Water or Nourishment.

While the snail has lungs, heart and a general circulation and is in every respect an air breathing creature, it can nevertheless exist indefinitely without inhaling the least breath of air, the element that is usually considered the essential to existence in all creatures supplied with lungs.

"To all organized creatures," said Leppert, "the removal of oxygen, water, nourishment and heat causes death to ensue." When that statement was made Leppert did not appear to consider the snail as one among the great host of "organized beings," for experiments by Spallanzani have proved that any or all the usual life conditions can be removed in the case of the snail without terminating its existence or in any way impairing its functions.

The common snail retreats into its shell on the approach of frosty weather, and the opening or mouth of its shell is hermetically sealed by a secretion which is of a silky texture and absolutely impervious to air and water. In this condition it is plain that it is deprived of three of the four elements of life mentioned above—air, water and nourishment.—Harper's Weekly.

Byes on Bill.

Among the humorous memories connected with English judges is one of Justice Byes and his horse. This eminent jurist was well known in his profession for his work on "Byes," and as this gave a fine opportunity for alliteration his associates were accustomed to bestow the name on the horse, which was but a sorry steed. "There goes Byes on Bill," they took pleasure in saying, and as the judge rode out every afternoon they indulged daily in their little joke. But the truth was that the horse had another name, known only to the master and his man, and when a too curious client inquired as to the judge's whereabouts he was told by the servant, with a clear conscience, that "master was out on business."

The French Imperial Guard.

The Imperial Guard of France was created by Napoleon I. when he became emperor in 1804. It was formed by a merger of the "guards," the "convention," the "directory" and the "consulate." It consisted at first of 9,775 men, but was afterward considerably enlarged. In the year 1809 it was by the emperor's order divided into the old and young guards. In January, 1814, it numbered 102,700. It was dissolved by the Bourbon Louis XVIII. in 1815, revived by Napoleon III. in 1851, and was abolished by the government soon after.

Statue With Umbrella.

Some poor art is to be seen in this country in the shape of statues dedicated to the memory of great men, but so American enormity in this line quite equals that which is perpetrated by an English sculptor for the town of Reading. When the fellow townsmen of a certain George Palmer of that place decided to honor his memory they determined upon a bronze statue of Palmer, which should be not merely a portrait as to features, but a correct presentation of him as he appeared among them every day. Accordingly, the stranger in Reading is startled by the most unconventional of statues, with every crease and wrinkle of the homely attire of the original reproduced. To complete the effect the statue is habited with silk hat and umbrella in hand. It is thought that this is the only instance in which the necessary but not entirely beautiful umbrella has been reproduced in bronze.—New York Sun.

He Fooled Her.

"If you were asked to get ready to start next Thursday on a long journey do you think you could do so?" asked her rich employer, who was a widower.

"Oh, I—much would depend upon the kind of journey it was to be," she replied.

"I mean a pleasant journey—a journey that would last for a month or more."

"And should I have company on the journey?"

"Well, I hadn't thought of that. No, I don't believe you would. I should expect you to go alone."

"Then I don't believe I could get ready," she said, turning to her typewriter and making four mistakes in the first line of the letter she had begun.—Chicago Record-Herald.

In the days when Mrs. George Cornwallis West was Lady Randolph Churchill she mixed considerably among politicians and political affairs, and one story told of her shows how she scored off Mr. Joseph Chamberlain and the late Sir William Harcourt.

They were chatting her about some paintings she had done.

"But why not paint us?" one of them asked. "Where can you find more attractive models?"

"Impossible," Lady Randolph exclaimed. "I could never paint you black enough!"—London Tit-Bits.

Fifth Monarchy Men.

The fifth monarchy men formed a religious sect that sprang up in the days of Charles I. of England. They were so called from the fact that they asserted that in the last days the four ancient monarchies, the Assyrian, the Persian, the Babylonian and the Roman, would be restored, and a new world would be added a Christian monarchy, or fifth monarchy, of which Christ would be the king.

Washing Day in the Balkans.

"Washing Day, or rather washing week, is so important a period in the Balkan region that all family and social obligations retire to the background when it has to be considered," writes a traveler. "I have known a Cabinet Minister's wife to excuse herself from attendance at a court function because it collided with the appointment made with her laundress. This too, in spite of the full quota of servants, footmen, cooks, housemaids and old men. None of these was either privileged or efficient enough to meet the formidable laundress and satisfy her requirements. Therefore the lady played at home to fill the breach, and a sympathetic queen accepted the explanation with a readiness born of full understanding."

GIANT CATARACTS

Victoria Falls the Greatest of the Mighty Torrents

NIAGARA RANKS ONLY THIRD.

The Falls of the Iguazu River Hold Second Place, and These Three Are in a Class by Themselves—Their Electric Power Possibilities.

At one time waterfalls in large rivers were interesting only because of their scenic beauty, and their very existence was deplored because they obstructed navigation. But man has found a way to harness these mighty power producers and today they are of the greatest value to the commercial world because the millions of water horse power can be changed into electricity and transmitted for hundreds of miles to be used as a reliable substitute for our vanishing coal supply.

When it is remembered that two cubic feet of water, weighing 125 pounds, by falling a distance of only six feet will produce one horse power of energy, it is easy to comprehend that millions and millions of horse power are wasted every minute by the torrents of water tumbling over Niagara, the Victoria falls and the Iguazu river and many lesser falls throughout the world. This falling water is guided by steel and concrete penstocks to powerful water turbines which whirl great electric generators. The current produced in this way is easily transmitted for hundreds of miles over small copper wires to the cities and towns where it is used to haul the railroad trains to drive the great manufacturing plants and to give us light and heat.

Loyal as we all are to our country, we must admit that even the mighty torrent of Niagara ranks only third in size when compared to the waterfall of the world. The largest of the earth's waterfalls, the Victoria falls of the Zambezi river in Rhodesia, are 900 feet high and more than a mile wide, and were discovered by Livingstone in 1855. The water power of these falls is estimated to be fully 25,000,000 horse power, two and one-half times that of Iguazu and five times that of Niagara.

South America possesses a waterfall which exceeds Niagara both in width and in height and is actually the second largest waterfall in the world. This little known waterfall is that of the Iguazu river, tributary of the Parana, and like Niagara, is situated at the boundary of two states, each of which owns half of it. The total water power of the Iguazu fall, which is 215 feet high and nearly two miles wide, is estimated as about 14,000,000 horse power. This is approximately equal to the aggregate water power of all Scandinavia, which is rich in waterfalls, or about ten times the total water power of Germany.

There is no other waterfall in the world which is at all comparable in greatness with the Zambezi, the Iguazu or the Niagara. Asia, notwithstanding its colossal mountain ranges, is comparatively poor in large waterfalls, which are found most abundantly in Africa and North America. The largest African streams especially are interrupted by many falls of considerable height. The Congo has several high falls which owing to the great volume of the river, about sixteen times that of the Nile, may be counted among the most important sources of water power on earth. The Stanley falls, in the middle reach of the river, consist of seven successive falls, of a total height of 164 feet and a width of nearly 4,000 feet and offer an exceedingly rich source of power which probably will soon be exploited.

Still more important is the total water power which the Congo develops in the non-navigable section extending from its mouth to Stanley pool. Here the river, confined in a channel only a few hundred yards wide and with a depth of water of nearly 800 feet, flows with a velocity of forty-eight feet a second, so that at every point of the stream 25,000 to 30,000 cubic meters or about 1,000,000 cubic feet of water are hurled along with irresistible force, while thirty-two rapids and waterfalls lower the level of the stream by 820 feet in a stretch of 170 miles.

The lower Nile, in Egypt, possesses a series of rapids, the celebrated cataracts of the Nile, but no waterfall in the strict sense of the word. True, waterfalls occur on the upper Nile, the most beautiful of them at the point where the stream issues from Lake Victoria. Nyman, the highest fall is only a few yards in height, but the volume of water is so great that it presents a magnificent spectacle.

Comparatively few persons know which is the highest waterfall in Europe. The most voluminous of European waterfalls, strictly so called, are the Rhine falls, at Schaffhausen, but the highest are the Rjukan falls of the Mann-Eidfjord river, in the Norwegian province of Telemarken. The principal fall is 800 feet high, and the total height of the two chief falls with the intervening rapids amounts to 1,897 feet, while the average flow of water is fifty cubic meters, or 1,760 cubic feet a second. The Rjukan falls, with their total energy of 250,000 horse power, have been converted to industrial use.—Electric News.

Beloved of the Gods.

Miss Mary Anderson (Miss. Haverre) in the play of "Pygmalion and Galatea" once turned with outstretched arms toward the audience. She was supposed to be appealing to heaven. "The gods will help me," she cried. At once with one accord the "gods" of the gallery roared response. "We will!"

A Belt and a Bull.

Bergeant-Now, then, Murphy, what's the trouble? Murphy—I'm looking for me belt, ma'am. Bergeant-Well, man, you've got it on! Murphy-Then what's the trouble? If you hadn't told me I would have gone out without it—London Answers.

authorities," the oracle declared, "wedidn't have the ghost of a show to win that hand. It was my trumping your ace that made it possible—onwinking. I beg your pardon, if you wish, but I played fair, and we won.""In life it's exactly the same as in cards. Stick to the rules and you'll stick in one place. It's the wise man who knows when to break them. I don't mean breaking the rules of fairness and honesty. I mean the rules set up by the so-called authorities.""I'll bet you when Alexander conquered the world all the old wiseacres red men who wouldn't stand up and be shot in the open, but insisted on successful writer or adventurer or sol-dier or lawyer who didn't leave whole wastes of broken rules behind him in his progress. And when the conven-tional old wiseacres got a new set made to fit the new situation some-body else came along and spoiled them all over again.""Suppose you have a job where you don't need to think. Tradition has made it a rule that a man in that place shouldn't think. By and by youstick in the mud. The rule won't help you. You'll have to break it. The man who does the impossible, the man who gives us light and gas and printing presses and trolley cars and phonographs and such like things, are all rule breakers. They broke therule of precedent, of tradition, of the doubt, of fear. They wouldn't be stop-ped by what others had decided were limitations. They went ahead, and if the rules didn't fit the thing theywere seeking to accomplish the rule went by the board."

Peace and Lentils.

The word "pea" is derived from

Pisa, a Greek city of Elys, which seems to have been the center of the pea growing industry for years before thetime of Christ. The antiquarians aver that the "mess potage" for which Rosa sold his birthright, was a dishof peas. In those times they were called "lentils," and even at the pre-sent day the English common people of several of the English shires, nota-bly Middlesex as well as Oxfordshire, call these "lentils" dropping the "pea."In the time of Mary they were called "peasens," and in the time of Charles

I. "peasens."

When Kipling Was Hungry.

Had Mr. Kipling turned his attention to commerce instead of literature perhaps he might now be retained by some merchant millionaire as a writer of advertisements, at a colossal salary. After the siege of Kimberley he was staying with Mr. Rhodes at acharming little farm near that town. One morning it occurred toMr. Rhodes to take a stroll round the orchards for a little while beforebreakfast. As Mr. Kipling did not feel like walking he stayed behind.Tin went on and the idea came to the author that breakfast would be desirable. But there was no sign ofhis host. As a matter of fact, Mr.

Rhodes, as was usual with him, had become so interested in the matter inhand that he had quite forgotten the passing hours, and it was nearly teno'clock before he remembered his starving guest, and hurried home-wards.

"What's this, sir?" said the manager, suddenly pausing before a tree.

Upon it was pinned a sheet of paper, bearing in large black letters:

"Famine!" The next tree was also decorated: "We are starving; feed us." Nearer the house they came up on a large sheet with these words in huge type: "For the human race.

Breakfast. Purifies the mind; invigorates the system. It has sustained thousands; it will sustain you. See that you get it." Finally upon the frontdoor was an enormous placard: "Why die when a little breakfast prolongs life?"QUICKSILVER MINING.An Occupation That Quickly Dooms the Workers.The chief quicksilver mines in Europe are in the Spanish town of Almaden, which is an Arabic word, meaning "the mine of quicksilver." These mines were formerly worked by the Iberians and after them by the ancient Romans. Between 1645 and 1648 the Spanish government employed galley slaves in them, an occupation that soon ended in death. The fumes of the mercury produce constant salivati-on, and the system becomes permeated with the metal.At first the victim is seized with tremblings, and then the teeth drop out; pains in the bones follow and the death. The annual yield of mercury is 1,500,000 pounds, to produce which 1,000 men are engaged in this unhealthy employment.After Almaden so far as yield of quicksilver is concerned comes Idria, an Austrian town, twenty-eight miles from Trieste. These mines also were once worked by criminals, who, owing to the terrible qualities of the mineral, expired after about two years' service.

There are now nearly 500 miners engaged in the work at Idria. They are induced to enter the mines by high pay. A pension is allowed when they are disabled, and provision is made for their widows and children.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Wager Won.

The following story is told of J. P.
Morgan, and possibly of other successful business men as well. For three consecutive days the great financier carried an empty birdcage in his hand to and from his office. On the third day one of his managers ventured to ask why he carried that apparently useless article."To see," replied Pierpont Morgan,
"if any one would have the impudence to ask me why I did so."

"I beg your pardon," began the inquirer. "I—"

"You needn't do that," said the chief, smiling grimly. "I had a bet with aman that I had at least one employee with some curiosity. I've won the money; but in future don't ask ques-tions about things that don't concern you."

More Terrible Than Lions.

Miss Tenebrow, a lady lion tamer of Jassy, in Roumania, faints in the cage at a moment when the animals were perfectly quiet. She was removed before they did more than show signs of restlessness and on recover-ing consciousness exclaimed:
"Until the beetle crawling on one of the bars is taken off I am not going in again!"

Aluminum Powder.

To make aluminum powder very thin foil is first cut up into small spangles. These are ground in a mill, and the powder is then sifted through bolting cloth. The powder is used as a basis for metallic paint and is especially valuable for metallic surfaces that are exposed a great deal.
The powder is very soft and adhesive, like graphite.

A Fortunate Chance.

"What I don't catch on to," said Moss Witherby, "is how ye managed to miss that automobile party. I saw ye thirty dollars for spilling a gallon of oil of bad eggs. Ye can't spill a bad egg, kin ye?""Well, ye see," said Uncle Jabez, "it came about this way. When the smashup come 't' air got so full of that peaky gasoline that the condition of them there eggs warn't hardly pur-ceptible."—Harper's.

The Dangerous Germans.

One can never resist a good schoolboy "howler." Here is the latest of the teacher's been giving a les-son on elementary hygiene, explaining about cleanliness and germs, and soon, and the scholars were asked to write an essay on the subject.Said one youth: "Dust is a thing that should always be carefully got rid of,as it nearly always contains germs, which do a lot of harm."—London

Salt as a Disinfectant.

As a kitchen disinfectant salt has no equal. Pour the salt water from the ice cream freezer into pipes to disin-fect them. Salt cleans iron, makes a good dentifrice, brightens the carpets,removes egg stains from silver spoons, will cause fur stains to be more easi-ly removed from linen, combined with acids will clean brass, a pinch addedto coffee gives a better flavor and when used in boiling water will kill weeds and all insect life in the house.

To enamel the inside of the refrigerator use white enamel paint. If it is too thick thin with a little turpen-tine. Put on three coats. Let each dry twenty-four hours before putting on the next coat.

To utilize superheated furnace heat build around the edge on top of the furnace a ring of bricks, two or threebricks high, and fill the inclosed space with sand. This will check the im-mense amount of heat directly above the furnace, which otherwise goes towaste, and will cause it to circulate up to the rooms instead.

Breaking the Bank at Monte Carlo.

A distinguished steward of the Jookey Club is Lord Villiers. The son and heir of Earl Jersey. The family has long been connected in a prominent manner with the turf, for the Jersey colors were registered so long ago as 1807.

Lord Villiers first registered his own colors in 1904, since which date he has gained many popular successes.

He has also been responsible for a sensation at Monte Carlo, for playingon a system he converted a capital of $12,500 into $175,000.This popular racing man, who is not yet forty, can boast of royal blood, foran ancestress of his was a sister of Henry VIII, and Queen-Dowager of France. Lord Villiers is an excellent pole player, and is often found in the hunting field.Madame, This

You Can't Cure Catarrh By Swallowing Drugs

Cough Syrup Tablets and Sprays Micken the Stomach But Don't Reach the Terms of Catarrh, Hence Their Failure to Help.

To cure an ailment in the throat or chest, to root out Catarrh or Asthma, it is essential that the medicine be conveyed direct to the affected parts. No medicine which is merely swallowed can achieve such world-wide success as Catarrhoxone, which alone can be breathed in one second to every air cell in the breathing organs. The healing vapors of Catarrhoxone mis with the breath and descend through the throat down the bronchial tubes to the deepest air cells in the lungs—all parts are saturated with the rich piney essence that cures, heals and cures.

Catarrhoxone has entirely displaced the old-fashioned remedies such as cough syrups, sprays, tablets, and sedative powders. It contains none of the opium, chloral and drowsy narcotics so common in the cough and cold remedies. Catarrhoxone is a mild cough and catarrhal remedy. Don't Breathe "Catarrhoxone" Cured.

"No one ever contracted a more obstinate attack of nasal catarrh than I suffered a month ago," writes Mr. G. E. Root, a well-known resident of Bridgeport, W.I. "My head ached terribly, I sneezed about every three minutes, but still my nostrils were entirely closed and I couldn't breathe through them. Two minutes inhaling Catarrhoxone gave me a little relief, so I continued to use Catarrhoxone every hour, and before the day was out I had improved. Catarrhoxone quickly cured me. I am well ever since."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.
 We will give One Hundred Dollars by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

LAST NIGHT'S BAND CONCERT.
 Last night a large attendance was present at the armories and thoroughly enjoyed the splendid musical selections so admirably played by the 57th Regimental Band. Mr. R. Glendon and his musicians demonstrated not only that the local band is sustaining its good reputation for ability, but that a special effort had been made in preparing last night's concert.

Now Babygroves Man Died.
 George Gardiner Hunter, from Babygroves, under the name of George H. Gardiner arrived in Nepean, Man., on Sept. 25th, looking for work in the harvest fields. He had been engaged in the Clarendon Hotel, in the Prairie City, as bartender. It seems that Hunter had had family troubles. On Sept. 25th, at Nepean, in front of the Dominion Express office, he plunged a dagger several times into his breast and across his throat. A coroner's jury was called and the verdict was that Hunter's family resides at Babygroves.

MINICOLO'S BRONCHO RUNS AWAY.
 Yesterday afternoon a broncho ran up George street, at 4:30, without any rider attached. The horse seemed to be just getting steam up for further work when it was caught. It seems that Minicolo, the fruit dealer was having goods delivered in that box obstructed lane just west of the Times building. The broncho possibly remembering the freedom of its forays on the western plains and frightened by a falling shingle, "lit out" for any old place it might meet up with. As the horse sped up the alley he was followed by a crowd of boys, as usual on the west side caught the hubs and the broncho pulling the tags fire continued to run up the alley. The horse was caught in front of the Red Mill. Mr. Parrott, the merchant doing business in the alley, said the alley had a narrow escape from injury.

The West Calls for Help.
 Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted
 The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation, the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' excursion Monday, 14th, $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg $18.00.

Full particulars from any C.P.R. Agent, or write Mr. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

Where Does Glover's Money Go?
 Robert Glover said in yesterday's police court that he brought his wife home a pair of chickens last Saturday. His wife, in the witness box said that Robert earned $11 a week, but for years had not properly provided for her and her children. Her clothes and those of her four youngsters were given by friends.

Mr. Mann testified that food he had ordered for Mrs. Glover was not forthcoming. The woman was suffering for lack of proper nourishment. For the defendant, a grocer and a butcher testified to selling him groceries and meat to the value of some $4 a week. Mr. Glover's employer testified that Glover was a steady worker. The Magistrate ordered that Glover's employer pay $5 a week towards Mrs. Glover's support out of Glover's salary.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED
 NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.
 Confined to His Home for Weeks.
 "Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the swelling would come on and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me in no uncertain terms that unless I did something I would be a cripple. I tried several specialists, but none found out all they wanted was my money. One day my brother-in-law told me of a man who had been cured of his Varicose Veins. I wrote him and got him to send me the first month's treatment. I was somewhat disappointed. However, I persisted and after three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $15 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I can earn $100 a week and never know a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment."

BOTH MONTENEGRINS AND TURKS ARMY LOSE HEAVILY

Severe Fighting Between Turkish and Montenegrin Forces —Latter Are Badly Armed

Constantinople, Oct. 12.—The text of the collective note handed by the representatives of the powers to the Ottoman Government on Thursday, is as follows:

"The undersigned ambassadors of Austria-Hungary, Great Britain, France, Russia and Germany, have been instructed by their respective Governments to inform the sublime Porte that the five powers take note of the intention of Turkey, publicly announced, to introduce reforms, and they will immediately discuss with the Porte, in the spirit of Article XXIII of the treaty of Berlin and the law of 1860, the reforms required in the administration of European Turkey and the measures capable of assuring their realization in the interest of the populations, it being understood that the reforms will not affect the territorial integrity of the Ottoman Empire."

Severe Fighting.
London, Oct. 12.—The Turkish troops on the Montenegrin frontier are offering stubborn resistance to the Montenegrin advance on Scutari, according to the latest advices from Podgoritz. The fighting has been Lord Roberts visited Eastern Canada at the time of the Quebec Tercentenary, and the 1913 visit will take the venerable Field Marshal across the Dominion to the Pacific Coast.

GERMAN MILITARY MEN PICK THE TURKS TO WIN

London, Oct. 13.—German military critics almost unanimously maintain that Bulgarian soldiers stand no chance against Turkish soldiers, who are numerically superior and are the finest fighting infantry in Europe. English military opinion generally is

Young Couple Were Refused Matrimony in Montreal,
But Were More Successful in Quebec

Montreal, Oct. 12.—An exemplification of the fact that love still laughs at the no tamer decree in Quebec is provided in the marriage, against parental and church opposition, of Miss Claire Delisle, daughter of Mrs. Nolan Delisle, University street, and George Rowley, of Lake Edward, Que. Miss Delisle is a Roman Catholic and her fiancé a Protestant. When Miss Delisle first met Rowley here she was engaged to a young Winnipeg man. It was a case of love at first sight, and a few weeks ago Miss Delisle broke off her engagement with the westerner. She announced to her mother and friends that she was going to marry Mr. Rowley, and she met with determined opposition from the former and received a lot of advice against the marriage from the latter. However, the young woman persisted and informed her mother that if she could not gain her consent, she would go to the United States and get married. When Mrs. Delisle finally agreed to the wedding taking place, it was found that there was no chance of it being performed in Montreal on account of the rigid ordinance issued recently by Archbishop Bruchet against it. As no such opposition was to be met with in the city of Quebec, the young couple repaired to that city, where the knot was tied by a local priest.

THE DEVASTATED SECTION OF GHANOS FOLLOWING EARTHQUAKE

DEVASTATED SECTION OF GHANOS

These pictures show scenes in Thracian, European Turkey, near Constantinople, following the recent terrific earthquake there. As a result of this great catastrophe 3,000 persons were killed, 6,000 wounded and 20,000 left without homes. In the town of Ghanos alone 127 were killed, 202 wounded and 622 houses destroyed.

In the house, which is shown in the above picture as it looked following the earthquake, seven were killed and many wounded.

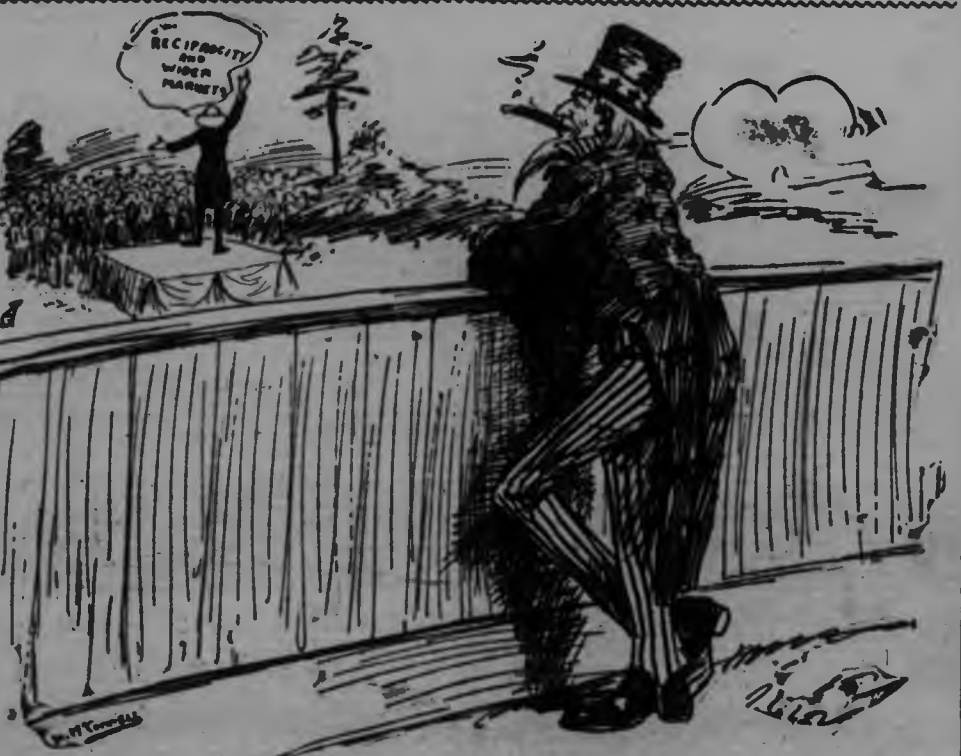

So destructive was the earthquake that little remains to be seen now of most of the quaint and unique, as well as in many cases, historic dwellings of this section. Friends of the sufferers, however, as well as others, were prompt in caring for those who were left homeless and penniless.

This is only one of many such catastrophes which have occurred in the last decade. Between earthquakes and floods during recent years so much damage has been done and so many lives lost that it would not be a surprise to many to see a similar occurrence at any time in their own towns and cities.

Man Who Challenged Thrice Says He'll Challenge Again for America's Cup if Wall Street Banqu Will Allow Fair Play

Southampton, Eng., Oct. 12.—Sir Thomas Lipton is headed for United States to challenge for the fourth time, for the America's cup—the trophy, which, owing to the unportsmanlike stand of the New York Yacht Club, is known through Europe as "the club that stinks." When I visited Lipton on the Erin he showed me 200 trophies—a priceless array—snatched from kings and emperors or offered by them for competition; loving cups from Americans, one purchased with five-cent contributions of school children from San Diego to New York, and two silk American flags, made by school children. "I know they like me," he said, "because I have been the tokens of their regard. You can't tell me Americans don't want to give me a fair chance at the cup." "Tell me why you don't get a fair chance. Who prevents you?" I asked. "Not more than 15 men prevent

MORRISON, CONSERVATIVE, WINS BY OVER 800 MAJORITY

Twenty-two Outlying Districts Not Yet Heard From Cannot Materially Change the Result in MacDonald By-election
For Federal House—Fought on Reciprocity

WINNIPEG, MAN., OCT. 12.—(8.30 p.m.)—FIFTY-THREE POLLS GIVE MORRISON (CON.) A MAJORITY OF 818. NINE POLLS TO BE HEARD FROM.

Winnipeg, Oct. 12.—(Special).—Returns from the city polls of MacDonald in the by-election for the House of Commons, caused by the retirement of W. D. Staples to a position on the grain commission, indicate that Alex. Morrison, the Conservative candidate, will have a large majority over R. L. Richardson, his Liberal opponent.

Forty polls heard from at six o'clock (seven o'clock Toronto time), give Morrison 2408 and Richardson (Liberal) 1894 a majority of 634.

There are 22 polls to hear from.

The by-election was fought principally on the issue of reciprocity, and, as two-thirds of the electors of MacDonald are farmers, the result is being watched with great interest by the whole country. The Liberal candidate was backed by a large contingent of Saskatchewan and Alberta speakers, while the Roblin government were generally active on behalf of Morrison.

Weather conditions for the polling were perfect, and a good vote was polled, notwithstanding the fact that the farmers are busy threshing. As many of the polls are remote from telegraph communication, it is not likely that the complete result will be known until late in the night.

FORTY SIX POLLS GIVE MORRISON 687.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 13.—(Later).—Forty-five polls give Morrison (Cons.) 2733 and Richardson (Lib.) 2164. St. Lawrence returns a majority of 38 for Morrison, without details. Forty-six polls therefore give the government candidate a majority of 687, with 16 polls to hear from, most of which will likely be very late.

FEW NOW LOOK FOR PEACE IN THE BALKAN STATES

Note From Powers Does Not Suggest That They Will Guarantee Reforms in Macedonia—Feeling in War Zone Not Allayed

London, Oct. 13.—Only the most optimistic now look for a peaceful outcome of the Balkan crisis. From all the capitals comes news of increasing tension and continued preparation for war, and this has spread now to Vienna and Budapest.

It is true that reassuring statements have been issued from several quarters, but these, without doubt, have the object of stemming the panic of selling on the bourses.

The text of the note handed by the representatives of the powers to the Turkish Government proves to be more feeble even than was anticipated, and as it contains no suggestion that the powers will undertake to guarantee the carrying out of reforms in Macedonia it is not likely to have any effect in allaying public feeling in the Balkans, which is all for war.

A Bad Feature.
The reported failure of the negotiations for peace between Italy and Turkey is another bad feature of the situation, as it is certain that it will encourage the Balkan States to and to return a defiant reply to their ignore the warnings of the powers' representations. This is particularly so with regard to Greece, to which the Italian fleet could lend material assistance. The reply of the Balkan States, like that of the Turkish Government, has not yet been delivered.

CAUGHT GOING THROUGH BARS AT KINGSTON

Life-Term in Kingston Insane
Ward All But Escaped—Previous Attempts Were Unsuccessful.

Kingston, Oct. 13.—Charles Chaitman, a life convict in the insane ward of the penitentiary, almost made his escape this morning. Guard Ryan caught him half way through the bars of his cell. Last spring he escaped and was caught in the penitentiary yards. He is serving a life term for shooting a policeman at Sault Ste. Marie.

His mode of breaking jail was ingenious. He had secreted pieces of emery stone and metal, with which he sawed through his bars. He has served 12 years in penitentiary and his mind seems bent on getting away if possible. His last escape was most sensational. He cut bars and replaced them with paper bars, painted the same color as the real bars.

OBITUARY.

John Robson.

A well known citizen of Peterborough in the person of Mr. John Robson, of 170 Dublin street, passed away yesterday morning near Toronto. The late Mr. Robson has been in failing health for a considerable length of time. He left Peterborough some months ago for medical treatment and his death, whilst regretted, did not come as a surprise. Mr. Robson for many years was known here as a successful contractor. He had many warm friends who will regret his demise. In religion, Mr. Robson was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, and in politics, a reformer. Mr. Robson leaves to mourn his loss a widow and two children, Irwin and Daisy. Interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery at a date to be announced later.

HATTERS' UNION FINED

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 12.—A verdict of $40,000, and costs was awarded for the plaintiffs, D. E. Lowe & Co. of Danbury, against members of the United Hatters' Union of North America in the United States District Court last night.

Under the Sherman Anti-Trust law this award will be trebled, making the total amount $120,000. Steps were immediately taken to appeal.

Greatest Invention of Age For Hoarseness, Weak Throat

Nothing So Far Discovered as Beneficial to Public Speakers, Ministers, Singers and Teachers as Catarrhones.

Because of its strengthening influence upon the vocal cords, Catarrhones cannot be too highly recommended as a wonderful voice improver. It almost instantly removes hoarseness or hoarseness, thus insuring clearness and brilliancy of tone. Catarrhones keeps the mucous surfaces in perfect condition, and its regular use absolutely prevents colds and throat irritation, thereby removing the singer's greatest source of anxiety—weakness of voice. The most eminent speakers and prima donnas are seldom without Catarrhones, and credit is no small degree their uniform strength and brilliancy of tone to its influence.

Singer Recommends Catarrhones.
"For many years I have been a sufferer from that terrible disease known as Catarrh."

"Being a professional singer you can readily understand that Catarrh would be a serious hindrance to my professional skill."

"One year ago I read in the Progress a convincing testimonial from one who had been cured of this disease through using your God-sent invention, Catarrhones."

"Believing in the merits of Catarrhones, I tried it."

"Catarrhones cured me and has been the means of my success."

"You are at liberty to use my name, if it will help relieve some from suffering, and I will always remain."

"Bob Bixley, New Glasgow, N.S."

Mr. Bixley is one of the best known singers and entertainers in the Maritime Provinces. Everyone knows him, and his testimonial for Catarrhones is the best sort of evidence of what great benefit Catarrhones is to those suffering with throat weakness or catarrh.

Complete outfit, consisting of a beautifully polished hard rubber inhaler, and sufficient liquid for recharging to last two months, costs one dollar. Sold by all druggists, or sent safely to your address by mail if price is forwarded to the Catarrhones Co., Buffalo, N.Y., or Kingston, Ont.

But the west, east of the Rockies, cannot do much better for Laurier in the next election than it did last year.

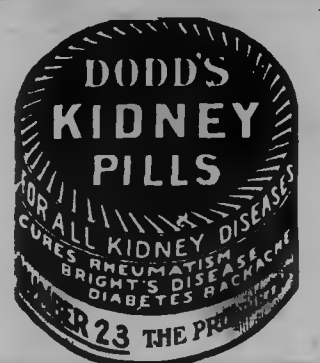

Christian Guardian: Our Roman Catholic contemporaries try hard to make themselves believe that Methodism is dying, and one of them, anticipating the funeral, declares: "When Methodism dies of sheer inanition one of these days its epitaph will be that, for a blatant and patent little heresy it fooled a good many people a long time." Strange, isn't it, that the Roman hierarchy are more afraid of this half-dead "blatant and patent little heresy" than of anything else? Ask the opponent of Peter's chair whether Methodism is dead? Doubtless the good man wishes it were!

CANADA'S LAND BOON.

Generally speaking Canada has experienced, during the last five years, an exceptional activity in land transactions. This activity has not been confined to any particular province although the western half of the Dominion has been chiefly notable as the field for investment. Some of the land corporations have exposed themselves to the severest criticism by the methods of exploitation adopted. Leading British and American newspapers have had caustic things to say about Canadian speculative land deals, and some of the Canadian journals of finance have been no less vigorous in their denunciations of the methods sometimes employed to exploit subdivisions as well as to sell really and intrinsically valuable suburban property.

The effort of these criticisms has undoubtedly been to direct the attention of investors and prospective immigrants to other parts of the British Empire. The Montreal Witness has a thoughtful review of the whole situation, because it is timely and because its wisdom applies in some cases to land exploitations in British Columbia is worthy of reproduction. The articles declare: "For some years past it has been hardly possible to invest money in Canadian lands without making money on the investment. It mattered not whether it was farm lands, city lands or outlandish subdivisions. All but the intentionally fraudulent land companies, not only made money in large quantities for themselves, but they made money for their investors as well. Canadian lands have been advancing in value both steadily and at a phenomenal rate. The advance has not stopped, nor does there seem to be any indication that the check that must come is in sight. On what is this new value based? To some extent it is solidly founded on the increase in our population. To a larger extent it is solidly founded on the discovery that a far larger proportion of the area of our country than was suspected is not only fit for agriculture, but of the best quality. To some extent it is founded on the extension of our railway systems. The increase in values has, however, in many cases, gone beyond what all these together warrant. It has gone far beyond its intrinsic value, or a value based on conditions that have material existence. In these cases the values are based on the common faith of the people in an even more rapid development of our country in the future than that which the last ten years have seen. Should anything happen to shake this faith, like the loss of a harvest or a defection of the stream of immigration that flows out of Europe to some other land of promise like Rhodesia, where the land prices have not gone so high or a staying of the stream at its source, there would be a fall of investment. Many of those holding, hold so precariously that a fall of a year or two would cause a break. In the meantime it is well to keep in mind that to a considerable extent certain classes of land are now at a figure only warranted by a belief in an unprecedented and continuous growth of the country for at least a decade."

NOMINGAN CAMP

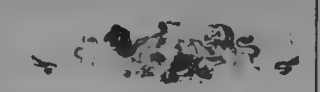

An innovation in connection with the accommodation that will be provided for visitors to the Algonquin National Park of Ontario next year is being made by the Grand Trunk Railway System in connection with a series of log cabin camps that they propose building in different parts of the lake. The first of these camps is on Smoke Lake, and is now under construction. It comprises a central lodge and a series of log cabins, all built of cedar logs plainly though comfortably furnished, and with modern conveniences installed. The name for this camp has been chosen, and it will be known as Nomingan Camp. The word Nomingan is derived from the Ojibwa language, and which is a dialogue of the Algonquin stock, and means a Balsam tree or any other most possessing medicinal and healing virtues. The Balsam tree is known among the Ojibwas as the quantity of gum which is so highly thought of as a great medicinal value, and they believe that the tree is so esteemed by the Great Spirit (Gitchi Manitou) that the bolts of the thunder will never strike it.

The reason of choosing this name is on account of the large number of Balsam trees that cover the point on which the camp is built, and the name is very appropriate. The pronunciation is as follows: nam-in-gan, the accent being on the third syllable.

The camp will accommodate about 50 people, and will no doubt be one of the greatest attractions of Algonquin Park next year.

THE NORTH AMERICAN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Is practically a mutual one, with the protection afforded by a guarantee fund upon which interest is paid. While such fund is only $50,000.00, the guarantors are liable for five times this amount; so that the policy admirably reflects the best points of stock and mutual companies. The Directorate is composed of both policy holders and guarantors.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Renewal of fear that the Turkish war might have a dangerous spread brought about a material advance today in wheat. Closing prices were nervous, 1/4c to 1/2c to 1/4c not higher. Corn scored a gain of 1/4c to 1/2c, and oats a rise of 1/4c to 1/2c. In provisions the outcome was an upturn of 1/4c to 1/2c.

The Liverpool market closed 1/4c to 1/2c higher on wheat, and 1/4c to 1/2c higher on corn. Antwerp wheat closed unchanged, Budapest 1/4c higher, and Berlin 1/4c higher.

The combined stores of Peterborough can easily rival any two city departmental stores in the stocks carried, the prices offered, and the quality of goods sold.

Investigation will prove this point beyond dispute.

When you have ALL the big store stocks here to choose from you have more variety than any city departmental can give you in any one line.

By trading here you have the opportunity of inspecting the goods and comparing values on this spot.

You save the time, trouble, postage, express, and disappointment.

You have immense stocks of new goods to choose from.

You have the reputation of business men who are here all the time to back up the quality of what you buy.

You are not trading sight unseen. You see the goods you buy, and buy the goods you see.

It Will Pay You to Trade in Peterboro

Just make that comparison once or twice and convince yourself. In the meantime, read the advertisements in this issue; there are some great bargains offered. See the goods, get the prices, examine the stocks, and the rest may safely be left to your good judgment.

Read The Times each day and week. It contains the fresh, bright store news of all the leading advertisers in Peterborough. You will get up-to-date news about stocks, goods and prices. In addition you will get all the news of the district, a summary of the world's doings, special pages for the farm and the home. The Times costs only $2.00 a year daily and $1.00 weekly. WE WOULDN'T EAT THEM.

Queer Dishes Popular With Folks in Other Parts of the World.

What won't human beings eat? For instance, served up whole and fried in bread crumbs, are consumed with a relish in Cambridge-shire and Norfolk, Eng. Doesn't sound especially tempting, does it? And why should only the legs of crabs be eaten? Why not the whole crabs? Many of us are fond of oysters, clams, crabs, lobsters and yet will not endure the thought of a meal, although the daily consumption by polite Parisians of snails, fed on green stuff, and on grass soaked in wine, sometimes reaching to loam. Truly this is a little world of great wonders!

In Central Africa they do not shoot "just the fly." They eat the fly. They pound the insects together in a mortar and bake them in little cakes which probably resemble our currant and fruit cake.

Captain Anderson, the explorer, found dog flesh palatable, though rather tough, and seal flesh as good as first-class beef. Explorers during the siege of Paris did not object to well-seasoned oysters. If we were only less squeamish, the problem of flies and rats would find a pleasant solution which would lessen household expenses, yet cost us no American shreds—there would soon be rat barons and a fly trust—and again prices would soar skyward. A traveler states that the Cape Bretoners eat spiders, grasshoppers, while ants, moths and grubs; that caterpillars are found in various parts of the world, while Australian natives eat snakes, and some one has said that the world should go to bed and eat the caterpillars. According to his testimony caterpillars taste like almonds, spiders like nuts and ants with butter and sugar are an exquisite sweetmeat. Arion Flig, an esteemed virtuoso, wrote a book entitled "Why Not Eat Insects." Burning of the Vanities.

Savonarola once marked his strong condemnation of luxury by collecting a large number of articles which he ordered to be burnt in the Piazza della Signoria, Florence, on Shrove Tuesday, 1497. In this "burning of the vanities" were included fancy costumes, carnival masks, false hair and rouge pots, cards and dice, books and pictures, together with costly and valuable sculptures of questionable character. Built up into a pyramid of seven stages, displaying the seven deadly sins, the pile was burnt by lighting fagots placed in the centre, while children standing round sang hymns before the assembled crowds.

First Encyclopedia.

The most ancient known attempt at what is called in these days an "encyclopedia" was Pliny's "Natural History." This old work, a very high authority throughout the middle ages, is really a remarkable production and well deserves the fame that for so many ages belong to it. Pliny, who died in 79 A.D., was not a naturalist, a physician or a statesman, but a man of letters, and his interest in knowledge that he devoted the leisure hours of a busy public life to compiling the work which did a vast amount of good in the world and served the way for the comprehensive encyclopedias of the present time.

Diminutive Action.

The feminine direct descendants of the famous Aztec are tiny creatures, especially formed and refined in features. They carry the head with the appearance of the full-blooded Indian; their skin is not red but a clear, smooth copper color that shines like gold in the sun; their hair is coarse and black as ebony, and they are decorated with bright feathers and gay ornaments. These women make the most wonderful pottery that comes to us from Mexico, for they have kept the old Aztec forms and decorations in their art, and they also weave wonderful baskets and do exquisite embroidery.

The Island of Rhodes.

Rhodes was the centre of the culture and commerce of the Aegean in the days when the Aegean meant the heart of civilization and the island was the battleground of mighty armies and formidable legions from the days of Alexander the Great to Mohammed. The island is the most fertile of the Aegean group. It is about forty-five miles long by about twenty-two wide. The island has been famous for its beautiful climate from the earliest ages.

Metaphorically Speaking.

"Let us slip this monster in the bed before it overwhelms us as an evening tidal wave" shouted the young politician. "Perhaps," said an experienced campaigner in the back of the hall, "it would be better to smother it out of its lair before it becomes a festering cancer."

'Tis an Ill Wind.

The western farmer with all his interests devoted to grain-raising very often is able to boast bigger crop returns to his old neighbors in the east who have continued to follow the rule of farming that gives live stock raising, fruit-growing, dairying and crop-growing each place, but occasionally disaster visits his part of the prairie, and he is forced to look east for relief. This spring, when many western farmers found themselves with thousands of bushels of frozen wheat on their hands, the folly of "carrying all their eggs in one basket" must have struck them forcibly, if not painfully. The damaged grain could only be used in one way for a profit. An Ontario farmer, who owns farms both east and west, was one of a number to appreciate the loss of his eastern farm buy up several hundred acres from the Barrie district and ship them to the prairie to convert the frozen wheat in high priced pork. Why did he not ship the wheat east? The reason is plain. There are a few mixed farmers in the west that the Winnipeg market maintains the highest price for hogs in the Dominion.

BY-LAW NUMBER

A BY-LAW TO AID THE DE LAVAL DAIRY SUPPLY COMPANY, (LIMITED.) PASSED THE DAY OF 1912.

WHEREAS the De Laval Dairy Supply Company (Limited) is a duly incorporated Company, at present engaged in the manufacture of Dairy, Creamery, and Cheese Factory Supplies and Silos in Montreal and St. John's in the Province of Quebec, but has become desirous to engage in business in the Province of Ontario, and being desirous of removing its said manufacturing establishments to this Province has proposed to the Council of the City of Peterborough to remove to and establish its said manufacturing business in the City of Peterborough, provided the City will agree to assist the said Company by purchasing as a site for the factory of the said Company those parts of Park Lots Numbers One, Two and Three in Township Lot Number Thirteen in the Twelfth Concession of the Township of Monaghan, now within the limits of the City of Peterborough, lying south east of the right of way of the Midland Branch of the Grand Trunk Railway, except the northerly fifty feet of said Park Lot Number Three, and to lay out and open the southerly forty-eight feet of said northerly fifty feet as a street, and by paying the cost of such street, not exceeding the sum of $500 in all of the removal of the plant and machinery of the said Company from Montreal and St. John's to and installing the same in the proposed factory at Peterborough, and until provision is made for the connection of said property with the City sewage system by constructing and maintaining on the said property a sewer pool sufficient for the purposes of the Company, the said City will grant the said Company exemption from Municipal taxes (except school taxes and local improvement rates) on the said land and building and the machinery and plant therein and the business and equipment in respect thereof for a term of ten years and in consideration thereof the said Company has agreed as follows:—

(a) To erect on said land a brick or concrete or brick and concrete building one story in height and at least 112 feet by 400 feet or its equivalent in size, and equip the same with suitable machinery and plant for the purposes of the Company, said plant, equipment, machinery and buildings to be equivalent in value to at least $75,000.

(b) To commence the erection of the said building as soon as possible after the conveyance to it of the said land and continuously carry on such erection until fully completed and have the same fully erected and equipped with machinery and plant and in operation before the first day of June, 1913. PROVIDED HOWEVER that if the erection and equipment of the said building as aforesaid is delayed by any cause beyond the control of the said Company longer than the said first day of June, 1913 the time for the erection and equipment shall be extended for a time equal to the time of such delay.

(c) In case default should be made in the provisions set out in clauses a and b, to repay on demand to the City the amount expended by the said City for the purchase of said land and the amount paid for the removal of its plant and machinery and the cost of erecting the said building and any other cost or expenses the said City is put to in carrying out the said agreement together with interest on the said amounts at the rate of five per cent per annum from the date of payment of same by the City to the date of repayment of same by the Company, and to furnish the said City a Bond of a sufficient Guarantee Company for the due performance of such provisions, such Bond to be cancelled and returned when the building referred to in the said clauses a and b is erected and manufacturing operations commenced thereon.

(d) As soon as the said building is ready for the purpose to process to concentrate the said City its manufacturing business and general offices, and to employ during the first year after operations are commenced at least fifty employees, and during the second year thereafter at least seventy-five employees.

AND WHEREAS there is at present in the said City no other manufacturing establishment carrying on the same business as the one carried on by the said Company and it is desirable and in the public interests in order to secure the location of the said factory the said City to accept the said property upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set out, the said Council has agreed to the same and in order to raise the money to pay the purchase price of the said land and the cost of removal and the construction of the said cesspool and the cost of the submission of this By-law it will be necessary to issue Debentures of the Corporation for a sum not exceeding the sum of $19,500 or such less sum as may be required for the purposes aforesaid which sum of $19,500 is the amount of the debt intended to be created by this By-law.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the Municipality, according to the last revised assessment roll is the sum of $9,172,790, and the amount of the existing debt of the Municipality, exclusive of local improvement debts payable by local special rates is the sum of $1,301,400.36 and there is no part of the principal or interest in arrears.

AND WHEREAS there will require to be raised annually for a period of twenty years the currency of the Debentures to be issued hereunder to pay the interest on the said debt, the sum of $926.36 and the sum of $654.56, to be raised annually for the purpose of providing a sinking fund for the payment of the said debt at the maturity thereof, such last mentioned sum being sufficient with the estimated interest on the investment thereof to discharge the said debt when the same becomes due, making in all the sum of $1,981.10 to be raised annually as aforesaid, by special rate on the whole rateable property of the Municipality.

The Corporation of the City of Peterborough, by the Council thereof, therefore enacts as follows:—

1. This By-law shall take effect on the final passing thereof.

2. It shall be lawful for the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to Encyclopaedia Making is NOW at an End!

For twenty years Encyclopaedia publishers have been trying to produce a Loose Leaf Encyclopaedia knowing this to be the only way to keep an Encyclopaedia always up to date and have a work that would NEVER GROW OLD. The great difficulty has been to invent a Loose-Leaf binder that would be appropriate for a library volume.

Nelson's Perpetual Loose-Leaf Encyclopaedia

And Research Bureau for Special Information Has Solved the Problem!

In 1907, Thomas Nelson & Sons—established for over a hundred years in Edinburgh, Scotland—perfected and patented a Loose-Leaf Binder, a volume so practical that by simply turning a nut the pages are loosened, when the old and obsolete pages can be easily removed and the new pages substituted. The publishing house to subscribers, twice a year, not less than 250 revised pages—in March and in October—thoroughly making Nelson's Encyclopaedia always new and abreast of the times. By means of the Loose-Leaf Binding Device, Nelson's Encyclopaedia contains the very latest information while other Encyclopaedias quickly grow old.

NELSON'S IS THE ONLY AUTHENTIC AND RELIABLE ENCYCLOPAEDIA, because it is the only one that is new and can be kept new. NELSON'S RESEARCH BUREAU is maintained entirely at the publishers' expense to supply any special information required. With NELSON'S LOOSE-LEAF ENCYCLOPAEDIA and the service of NELSON'S RESEARCH BUREAU FOR SPECIAL INFORMATION, you have at your command—positively guaranteed to you—all the available information and knowledge of the world to make Nelson's the supreme authority for those who know or who want to know. Nelson's has been approved and endorsed by an authority by Canadian Government Departments, Universities, Colleges, Libraries and School Boards throughout the Dominion.

And Nelson's contains a complete account of the discovery of the South Pole (2 pages) and the S. S. Titanic disaster (4 pages)—both articles prepared by experts.

IF YOU BUY NELSON'S YOU WILL NEVER NEED TO BUY ANOTHER.

Nelson's Perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia and Research Bureau is approved, adopted and used in the—

It is understood the Collector of Customs has asked the Department for an additional clerk, owing to the great increase of work at the local office.

The Dominion Council at their last meeting passed a motion authorizing a clerk to memorialize the officials of the Royal Bank of Canada, asking for a daily bank service in Windsor from Monday to Friday three days a week as at present.

A young woman is going about the city collecting clothing or coin as an alleged resident of Margaret Road. The woman living at the address given as the ultimate residence of the girl repudiates all knowledge of the young woman and her idle charity.

It has been decided to form a chess society, in connection with St. Joseph's Church. On Thursday night meeting was held and the following Executive appointed: President Mr. J. M. Goss; vice-president, Mr. T. Brown; 2nd vice-pres., Mr. J. N. Curry; secretary, Mr. Barton; treasurer, Mr. Callender; librarian, Mr. Pratt.

The program for the 16th annual conference of the Architecture of St. Luke's Church, which will be held at St. Luke's Church, on November 4th, 5th and 6th, has just been issued. The speaker Archbishop Warren, M.A. of Toronto, will preside at the conference, of which Rev. C. W. Holdsworth, B.A., of Havelock, is the secretary-treasurer. A special feature of the conference will be a public meeting on the evening of Nov. 5th, when Rev. W. H. Griffith Thomas, B.A., D.D., of Toronto, will give an address.

The De La Salle Superior Co., whose factory it is to be hoped, by help of the proposed by-law, will be built here, have twenty-five agents covering the whole Dominion!

A Royal Brew!

A good many men say that "Gold Label" is the finest Ale that we have ever brewed.

It's all a matter of taste. If you prefer a rich, old, creamy ale—that proves its quality by its delightful flavor—just try "Gold Label."

Every bottle sealed with an easily opened "Crown" stopper.

LAUGHS WITH JOY! NO MORE INDIGESTION

Montreal Man So Ill, Thought He Would Die of Stomach Trouble.

Found a Simple Remedy That Has Helped Him Well Ever Since.

The experience of Mr. Larose is one very common to-day:

"I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. I was weak and lost all courage. I enjoyed no rest until I decided to follow your treatment. To my great surprise I immediately began to feel better. I am now raising the second box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and I feel so well that I want to tell you that I owe this great change to your famous Pills. I recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills to every person who is suffering from dyspepsia. Your grateful servant, P. R. Larose, 338 Jettie street, Montreal, P.Q."

All who have weak stomachs, and those who suffer with indigestion, headaches, biliousness, can be perfectly cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 50c. per box, at druggists and storekeepers, or the Catarrhose Co., Kingston, Ont., and Buffalo, N.Y.

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHED HERE AND THERE BY TIMES REPORTERS.

ROOM WITH OR WITHOUT BOARD. LOCATION 533 Aylmer St., Near Collegiate. Room, front in modern residence, bay window, hot and cold water.

Protestant Home Annual Meeting. The annual meeting of the Peterborough Protestant Home will be held in the Board Room of the Home at 3 o'clock the first Tuesday in November.

Mark St. Church Anniversary. Yesterday the anniversary of Mark Street church was celebrated with a very interesting service. Rev. Mr. Kenney of Bowmanville, occupied the pulpit and delivered stirring addresses.

Death of Baby Gahagan. The fourteen months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Gahagan, of 665 Elm street, passed away on Saturday morning.

The funeral took place at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. Peter's cemetery.

Third Degree at the Grand. At Saturday's matinee and evening performance, the Grand Opera House was well filled by delighted audiences. The play was "The Third Degree," by Charles Klein, author of the "Lion" and the "Moose." The play was well staged and the company an excellent one.

T.C.S. Beat P.C.I. at Rugby. The Peterborough Collegiate Institute senior rugby team left Saturday morning for Port Hope, where they played the Trinity College School second team. The result was a victory of the T.C.S. by a score of 24-11.

No Nominations for Peterborough. Saturday's despatches from Ottawa seem to indicate that no nominations will come to Peterborough just now. It would seem that of three vacancies in that August body, one will go to St. Thomas and two to Kingston.

Special Address at George Street Church.

At yesterday evening's service at George Street Methodist church, the Rev. Isaac Couch spoke on "Patriotism," pointing out the Nation's indebtedness to the church and the kind of politician that Canada stands in need of to-day.

Milk Wagon in Runaway. Fountains milk wagon on Saturday afternoon looked something like a child's card house struck by a cyclone. The horse attached ran away, milk cans and extract de cow were spread along the wayside. The remains of the wagon went into "re-treat" in Geo. Fitzgerald's factory.

Thanksgiving Day Races. There is considerable interest in the road races to be conducted by the Y.M.C.A. on Thanksgiving Day morning, and there promises to be a good field in both senior and junior events. The race will be a five mile affair, starting and finishing at the Y.M.C.A. The junior race will be three miles.

Y.M.C.A. Will Call Offer. Mr. E. R. Wood, of Toronto, has generously offered to give $1,000 to wards the debt on the local Y.M.C.A., provided the sum of $2,000 additional be secured. The Board of directors have decided to accept Mr. Wood's offer and will make a strenuous effort to comply with the Association's obligation under Mr. Wood's offer.

Special Services at St. John's. The service in St. John's church yesterday were of a patriotic nature in accordance with the Bishop's instructions. The raison d'être for this special patriotic music, etc., was the commemoration of the battle of Queenstown Heights, and in honor of the memory of Sir Isaac Brock. After the evening service a meeting was held to arrange for the Evangelistic services.

Nerve of a Port Hope Vag. For unmitigated nerve a Port Hope tramp, on Wednesday night took the confessionary. He applied to the Chief of Police for a night's lodging. This was granted. The hobo raised objection because no bed clothes were provided. To cap the climax, he requested the Chief to provide him with a bottle of beer. He was arrested as a vag before he could insist on a quart of G. H. Mumm.

First Twilight Musicals. On Saturday afternoon Peterborough society's cavaliers, matrons and belles, were well represented at the Conservatory of Music Hall. The event was the first of a series of six Twilight Musicals given under the auspices of the Women's Art Association. A most enjoyable program of vocal and instrumental music rewarded those who had accepted the invitation. The Conservatory Orchestra materially contributed to the success of the event.

Bobcaygeon Curling Club. At the annual meeting of the Bobcaygeon Curling Club few changes were made in the officers. Mr. Green was elected President, and Mr. Lithgow is Vice-President. Mr. E. Broad, Secretary-Treasurer. The Executive are Messrs. Bottom, Davis, Falis and Mark. Skips are Bottom, Davis, Broad, Boyd, Green, Falis, H. Boyd, Taylor, Nichols, Moore. Tankard skips, Bottom and Broad. Trophy skips, Davis, Falis, Green, O. Boyd. District skips, O. Boyd, Moore.

The West Calls for Help.

Twenty Thousand Harvesters Wanted

The crops in Western Canada have been so heavy this year that it has been necessary for the farmers of the West to make another appeal for help. The demand for help is now more urgent than ever, and it will require at least twenty thousand additional men to complete the harvesting.

In order to relieve the situation, the Canadian Pacific Railway has decided to run a Harvesters' Excursion Monday, Oct. 14th, $10.00 to Winnipeg, return fare from Winnipeg $18.00.

Full particulars from any C.P.R. Agent, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

Death of Former Local Man. Mr. Edward Payton a former resident of this city passed away at Niagara Falls, N.Y., on Friday, Mr. Payton was born in Peterborough 44 years ago and went to Niagara Falls district about fifteen years ago. His funeral was held on Saturday afternoon and was under Masonic auspices. He leaves besides a widow and five young children, a widowed mother at Peterborough and three brothers—Albert of Toronto; Mit chell of Campbellford, Ont., and George of Niagara Falls.

A Saturday Runaway. A horse and buggy belonging to Mr. Hyatt the Lakefield livery keeper were standing on the Market square on Saturday morning. A heated argument was in progress near the outfit between several advocates and opponents of local argument. The horse evidently did not approve of some of the arguments produced. It started off at a quick pace throwing the occupant of the buggy to the ground. Fortunately the driver was not seriously hurt. The horse and rig made record time up Water street and were stopped at the Isolation Hospital. The buggy was smashed.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured. We will give One Hundred Dollars by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; mine cases out of ten are cured by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

The Barnardo Deputations. The public of Peterborough will be the first to sample the quality of the Barnardo Musical Boys in Canada, for they and their leader, Rev. W. J. Mayers will be at the Opera House on Tuesday next. Reports from England testify to the great popularity of both the leader and the boys. The former will tell the story of the famous Doctor's great work in rescuing and in training the children, and the latter will give a programme of music exceptionally attractive and clever. In Australia, recently, many meetings were held and the audiences were delighted with the youthful programme. The Sunday services which were to be held on the 13th, have been postponed to the 20th. They will be duly appreciated and will be found to be most interesting.

Elementary Singing Class To Be Started Here.

There are many persons in the city who are fond of singing and possess good voices, but have not had the opportunity of studying music. The St. George's Choral Society propose starting a singing class for beginners, to commence at 7.30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 15th, under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey. Intending members are requested to be at the Collegiate Assembly Hall, Central Park. This is a class that should appeal to all as the fee will be merely nominal. The main object is to train singers and so improve the standard of right singing. This should be a boon to all choirmasters as by this means members will become more proficient and so enable them to render the better part of music in their various churches. B. Read, Secretary, 139 Rutledge street.

INSTANT POSTUM
The Newest Food Drink

is made by stirring a level teaspoonful, more or less according to strength desired, (direct from tin) in a cup of hot water, then adding sugar and cream to taste.

No boiling required

INSTANT POSTUM is regular Postum, but in concentrated form—nothing added. It tastes much like delicious, mild Java coffee, and it costs less.

INSTANT POSTUM is absolutely free from caffeine, the drug in tea and coffee. If you appreciate the advantage of steady nerves and a clear brain, try it.

A 100-cup tin of Instant Postum costs 50c at grocers—40c per cup. (Smaller tin 30c.)

Regular Postum, Lge. Pkg. (must be boiled 15 min.) 25c.

Tea and coffee average about double that cost.

Send 2-cent stamp (to cover postage) for free 5-cup Sample.

We have large quantities ofPIG LEAD*and SHEET LEAD*in stock*The Canada Metal Co., Ltd. - Toronto*An Anthem to Order.

Lord Kitchener on one occasion invented a national anthem. It was upon the occasion of a visit to India of the Ameer of Afghanistan, and the order went around that all military bands were to greet him with the national anthem of Afghanistan. But no one knew what it was, and Lord Kitchener was appealed to.

"What does it matter two strains?" he said. "Play a bar or two of something slow and pompous and let it go at that."

So the first band that greeted the Ameer played a march from one of the German operas very slowly and solemnly, and this was generally taken up by the whole of the bands in India.

OLD TALLY STICKS.Their Use in England Was Abolished With Disastrous Results.

In the museum attached to the standards department of the board of trade, in Old Palace yard, London, a box containing a number of the old exchange tally sticks, upon which, until an early period in the last century, it was the custom to keep the national accounts.

The tallies were notched sticks of seasoned willow or hazel, the notch on the edge representing the particular amount—the smallest for pence, a larger notch for shillings and the largest for pounds.

The system, which was first introduced by the Normans in the year 1066, was not finally abolished until the reign of William IV., and then only with disastrous results. An order was promulgated that the accumulated tallies, amounting to many thousands, were to be destroyed, and they were accordingly burned in one of the stoves in the house of lords. By some means or other the stove became choked, the paneling caught fire, and in the end the whole of the palace of Westminster, with the exception of Westminster hall, was destroyed.

Some years ago a number of these old tally sticks were discovered in Martin's bank, in Lombard street—New York Tribune.

Diverse Types in India.

The people of India who inhabit the immense plains of Ganges and Indus, from Calcutta to Peshawar, are of Aryan origin, but display many diversities of type, due partly to environment and partly to the widely differing periods of their residence in the country. The acute but timid Bengali of to-day resembles little the warlike Sikh of the Punjab, or the fierce Afghan of Rohilkhand; and the stentorian swarthy of Deccan is wholly unlike the high-spirited Rajput of central India.

Differences in the stature of the various tribes may be accounted for similarly. Equally courageous and fierce in battle, the short sturdy Gorkha from the mountains of Nepal lacks many inches of the stalwart Sikh of the plains.

Last year England undertook the great task of taking a census of the 300,000,000 inhabitants of India, and the 1,250,000 enumerators disclosed many interesting particulars about this remarkable people, not the least significant of which was the unexpected extent of illiteracy. The figures shown do not give an impression of unintelligence and the fault must necessarily lie with the educational system. At the present time not more than two per cent. of the total population are under instruction, notwithstanding that over 25 per cent. are between the ages of 5 and 15. A general movement is afoot, however, for the establishment of a system of free primary education throughout this vast empire.

The Missing Brogue.

In his book of reminiscences George Chirwin, the English comedian, tells a story that illustrates two of his strong points on the stage—his quickness of repartee and his trick of entering into confidential relations with his audience.

He was singing an Irish song in an Irish town once, but he had some difficulty with the brogue.

A typical Pat in the audience stood up and called out indignantly, "Och, ye spalpeen, an' what's yer brogue intirely?"

Chirwin grinned cheerfully.

"Ye've got it," he said, and the audience screamed themselves hoarse with delight.

A Clear Case.

"You claim that the wheel of the defendant's car passed over your stomach," said the defendant's attorney to the plaintiff on the stand.

"Yes, here is your open-faced watch, which you testify to having carried in your vest pocket at the time, and the crystal isn't even cracked. How do you account for that?"

"Why," said the plaintiff, "the car was going so fast there wasn't time for the crystal to break, sir."

Expectations.

"I gave her a plush album on her wedding anniversary. It was one I had about the house for some time, but it looked like new."

"Now she has found that I have an anniversary soon."

"Well, no doubt you expect her to reciprocate."

"Reciprocate is not the word. I'm afraid she will retaliate."

Explained.

Mistress (on the second day to new cook)—Kathi, just be so good as to lend me 5 marks.

Cook (aside)—Ha, ha! That's why she said yesterday the cook in her house was treated as one of the family.

Benefited Anyway.

"Sorry you couldn't attend our banquet last night, doctor. It would have done you good."

"Thank you! It has done me good. I have just prescribed for three of the guests."—Boston Transcript.

The Literary Circle.

"They started in a purely platonic way to read 'Lectis' together."

"Well?"

"Now they are interested in a book that tells how to build a $10,000 house."—Leedsville Courier-Journal.

In one building community was a mechanic who used to fiddle around the mail box to look over the letters. Of those that seemed interesting he speeded some, and after having read them he would write on the envelope: "Opened by mistake."

This happened so many times that the rest of the shop force got on and became resentful.

The offender was in the habit of bringing a fine lunch with him, and this he had spread out when the conspiracy was planned. A phony call to the telephone took him away, and when he came back a piece of pie with a semicircular minus bore a card reading:

"Bitten by mistake."—Chicago Post.

The Explanation.

Robert Heart, the artist, said in New York of a bogus "old master."

"Some of these experts must be very ignorant, judging from the facility with which they are duped. They must be ready to swallow anything. It's like the Volcanus story."

"An anecdote, you know, put up the picture, saying:

"Here we are, ladies and gentlemen—the exquisite Volcanus—"Battle of Waterloo." What am I bid? One million nine hundred thousand?"

"But," interrupted an expert in a pointed voice—"but I thought Volcanus died before the battle of Waterloo?"

"So he did, sir," explained the auctioneer, "he did, but this, you see, is one of dear old Volcanus's posthumous works."—New York Tribune.

Shielding Her.

She—And you say that you have always avoid blaming me. I'd like to have you mention one instance.

He—With pleasure. I remember right after we were married I ate a pie you baked, and when the doctor came I told him it was cheese.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It Just Lapsed.

"Yes, I was once engaged to a duker."

"And what cruel obstacle came between two loving hearts?"

"Oh, nothing particular. We just lost the option expire."—Washington Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now that things are hot it may be expected that Turkey will be thoroughly done, even if it takes Greece to do it.

The present activity of the great powers of Europe indicates their determination to have the credit for getting the Balkan into the Balkans.

In the Hague Peace Tribunal sleeping at the switch or is it off on a fish trip or does it think that it is best to let the Balkan make its course and be done with it?

It is said that there are still a few "Balkan" Tories who are out in the front. They are no doubt seriously considering whether it would be advisable to ease their bunion by claiming into the Burnham band wagon and taking a seat.

The Hon. Ted Roosevelt has declared frequently that the nomination was stolen from him, and now we are considering if he is going to say the same thing about the election in No. 10.

What means this strange and unnatural quiet in Uster? The cables a day or so ago, alive with reports of sufficiency, have had no message of late. It may be the lull before the storm, the storm meaning the opening of the British parliament, which has just assembled to face what seems a triple crisis in British affairs.

Deputy Chief Whistler, of Ottawa, who has been investigating charges of the effect that some owners of automobiles are in the habit of building girls on the street and asking them to come for a drive, has discovered that some young girls make a practice of showing out to chauffeurs that they want to be taken along. He further states that the girls are simply motor mad. The blame in the situation is not wholly with the men. The fresh young girls of the modern city are as foolish as the fresh young men.

THE EIGHTH WONDER.

Wonders will never cease, indeed we appear to be just touching the fringe of them. New York educational authorities recently conducted some experiments with the object of demonstrating that dull pupils might be made bright and versatile by saturating them with electricity. The suggestion originally came from Nikola Tesla, the famous electrical inventor.

Mr. Tesla insists that adults can also be so quickened by these electrical showers that they will be able to accomplish things entirely beyond their power in the normal, unelectricized state. For instance, a tramp or a convict can be changed into a useful citizen, and so eliminate the prime causes of poverty-laziness and incapacity; while a down-at-the-heel kerk-bruder can be transformed into a brilliant.

When Nostrils Are Plugged Your Catarrh Is Bad

BY ACTING TO-DAY YOU CAN QUICKLY CURE CATARRH AND AVOID BRONCHITIS, PNEUMONIA CONSUMPTION.

Most Agreeable and Surest Cure is Catarrhese, Which Cures Every Curable Case.

Catarrhese proves especially good in those chronic cases where mucus drops down the throat, sickens the stomach and pollutes the breath. When the nostrils are stuffed only a few breaths through the inhaler are needed to clear the passages, and where there is coughing and sore bronchial tubes the soothing, healing properties of Catarrhese act almost as magic.

Once you stop taking medicine into the stomach and get the healing oils and pure balsams of Catarrhese at work you can be sure of quick and lasting cure for nose coids, catarrh, weak lungs, bronchitis and speaker's sore throat.

13 YEARS OF CATARRH CURED.

"As Catarrhese has cured me of a Catarrhal Cough and Asthma that lasted thirteen years I feel I can honestly recommend it. I really used all kinds of medicine, but Catarrhese was the only one that did any real good. I am entirely cured—have no cough, no bad breathing spells, not a sign of a cold or catarrh about me. But I will always occasionally use Catarrhese, as I prize it so highly."

"Mrs. E. L. Osgood, Johnson P. O., Ont. The complete $1.00 Outfit of Catarrhese is sufficient for 2 months' treatment, and is guaranteed. Small size, 50c., at all dealers, or The Catarrhese Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont."

Hunt stock operator, making money at every throb of his thinking apparatus. In fact, the future possibilities are unlimited, if it all turns out as some hope and believe it will.

This will be cheerful news to parents, social workers and married women. If a husband is at present unequal to the task of earning a salary of $5,000 a year, get him saturated with electricity and he will command $10,000. Saturated modern play writers and they will become Shakespeares; saturated modern musicians and they will become Beethovens.

As in all cases of this sort, a certain amount of prejudice is permitted to the man who approaches the idea for the first time and he wonders why Mr. Tesla does not saturate himself and get ahead of Mr. Edison in the arms of electrical invention.

However, this gentleman promises to provide the world with an electrified tramp who will never get tired, and that will be something.

DRY FARMING.

What is dry farming? That is the question that presents itself to the general public and which, strange to say, has not been answered. It consists in working land in rainless districts so that it produces, without the frequent showers that favor other places. There is a rainy season no matter how dry the place may be and previous to the rainy season the dry farmer ploughs his land and ploughs it at least seven or eight inches deep and then waits for the rain-fall. As soon as the rainy season is over he takes a very heavy roller and rolls his land so that the moisture has no chance to evaporate and remains bottled up. When he is ready to put in his crops he ploughs the surface of the land with a sharp instrument to the depth of from two to three inches and then sows. The stored-up moisture slowly steams up and feeds the grain so that by the time it is fully grown there is a full crop of well-developed grain. Unless there has been an unusual rain-fall the harvest is easy. This recent discovery has doubled, if not more than doubled, the productive power of the grain growing world. It is not yet, of course by any means in general use, but it will be in a few years and then we may expect South America, California and the Western States as well as portions of our own Canadian West and Southern Russia to send vast quantities of food-producing grain into the markets of the world. A great Congress is about to be held at Lethbridge, Alta., and delegates are coming from all parts of the world. News of the success of dry farming has reached the uttermost parts of the earth, and the inhabitants of Palestine look forward to restoring to that country and Persia and to the Valley of the Tigris the fertility which it possessed before it lost its rainfall. It is doubtful if there ever was such a far-reaching.

ing improvement in the productivity of farming land. It will unquestionably cause a re-construction of the whole system of marketing and of trading. If farm lands in arid belts of countries where labor is extremely cheap and where there is no danger of frost can be made to produce enormous quantities of grain where now none is grown it will mean that the importing of grain into countries where it is now comparatively dear will reduce it and make it much cheaper. This means that the home market will be more than ever a source of anxiety to the farmer and it is a question if in the future it will not be just as it is now in England, a question of protecting the farmers' home market in order that he may continue to live and produce according to the high standard of farm life. Sir Wilfrid Laurier evidently sees because the other day at Mount Forest, as reported in the Globe, he said that the farmers' best market in Ontario was the home market.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

TAKES TOO MUCH ON HIMSELF.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Rev. Canon Davidson, or as he styled himself on a famous petition that was going the rounds in the city some months ago, "The Doctor of Peterborough," takes too much on himself altogether, when he undertakes to chastise the people of Peterborough for sins that he declares them guilty of. If Mr. Davidson was a man of illustrious character he might do so with some show of consistency, but not now. From the "trouble" he has with his curates, to the petition in which he was charged by our member with having put his name to a false statement, is a long way astray, and no credit to him. If people are to be justified by their works (Cor. x. ii) then let the preachers remember, it applies to them also. This loud talk from the pulpit in some quarters is about played out. There are people in this town not half so loud who are made of better stuff.

One of the Lambasted.

May Robson at the Grand. The inimitable May Robson and her company of artists held a large audience at the Grand Opera House in continuous roars of laughter last night.

A Near Canine Tragedy. Yesterday, shortly before noon, a doggone bad tragedy was nearly enacted at the corner of George and Simcoe streets. An auto with a young man, judging by his steering and disregard for speed laws, evidently in love, or having a note due at the bank, at the wheel. Crossing George street was one of these little woolly dogs which would make a good window sash if firmly attached to a pole. The auto and the dog just missed each other by a majority of one second. The dog, with more nerve than sense, chased the auto for several blocks, barking like a tin snare slightly damaged.

enacted at the corner of George and Simcoe streets. An auto with a young man, judging by his steering and disregard for speed laws, evidently in love, or having a note due at the bank, at the wheel. Crossing George street was one of these little woolly dogs which would make a good window sash if firmly attached to a pole. The auto and the dog just missed each other by a majority of one second. The dog, with more nerve than sense, chased the auto for several blocks, barking like a tin snare slightly damaged.

Five Thousand Subscribers

would mean over 50,000 readers, and would be a powerful force in the cause of civil and religious liberty in this portion of Canada at least.

The rapid expansion of the circulation of The Times during the past year or so in a strong proof that its attitude on the No Tenure Decree and other burning questions is popular. It would indicate that the time is on hand when an agitation will begin for the abolition of every special privilege granted by the Government of the country to any church or sect.

We have set out to increase the circulation of The Times to 5000 copies daily, and ask our readers to assist us in attaining this mark as soon as possible.

As a special inducement for them to do so, we will send The Times to any address for three months for 50c, which is a Special Trial Offer. Cut out and fill in the Coupon Order found elsewhere and mail it to us, or hand it in to the office, or you may phone us your order.

Trade in Peterboro

Anything and Everything in Every Line of Trade

Everything from a Needle to a House and Lot

Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, Fur, Clothing, Men's Furnishings, Boots and Shoes, Trunks and Valises, Furniture, Stoves, Tinware, House-Furnishings, Hardware, Woodware, Chinaware, Groceries, Confectionery, Meats, Machinery, Tobacco, Smokers' Goods, Toys, Books, Magazines, Stationery, School Books, School Supplies, Music, Musical Goods, Fancy Goods, Millinery, Drugs, Drug Sundries, Medicines, Harness, Photographic Supplies, Farm Machinery, Printing, Insurance, Banking, Legal Help, Medical Help, Veterinary Help, Money to Loan, Undertaking, Property, Business College, College Institute, and other lines too numerous to mention.

The combined stores of Peterborough can easily rival any two city departmental stores in the stocks carried, the prices offered, and the quality of goods sold.

Investigation will prove this point beyond dispute.

When you have ALL the big store stocks here to choose from you have more variety than any city departmental can give you in any one line.

By trading here you have the opportunity of inspecting the goods and comparing values on the spot.

You save the time, trouble, postage, express, and disappointment.

You have immense stocks of new goods to choose from.

You have the reputation of business men who are here all the time to back up the quality of what you buy.

You are not trading night unknown. You see the goods you buy, and buy the goods you see.

It Will Pay You to Trade in Peterboro

Just make that comparison once or twice and convince yourself. In the meantime, read the advertisements in this issue; there are some great bargains offered. See the goods, get the prices, examine the stocks, and the rest may safely be left to your good judgment.

Read The Times each day and week. It contains the best, bright, and most news of all the leading advertisements in Peterborough. You will get up-to-date news about stocks, goods and prices. In addition you will get all the news of the district, a summary of the world's doings, special pages for the farm and the home. The Times costs only $3.00 a year daily and $1.00 weekly. Send in your subscription now.

THE MARKETS

Winnipeg Wheat Futures Close Higher, Liverpool Steady—Live Stock—Latest Quotations.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 15.—Trading was quiet and prices fractionally stronger today. Official of cash wheat were heavy and demand was fair. Prices advanced on contract grades. Oats were steady, and flour weak. The new crop of wheat on Oct. 15 was 12,000,000 bushels, and on Oct. 16 was 12,000,000 bushels.

BY-LAW NUMBER

A BY-LAW TO AID THE DE LAVAL DAIRY SUPPLY COMPANY, (LIMITED), PASSED THE DAY OF 1912.

WHEREAS the De Laval Dairy Supply Company (Limited) is a duly incorporated company, at present engaged in the manufacture of Dairy, Creamery, and Cheese Factory Supplies and Silos in Montreal and St. John's in the Province of Quebec, but has become desirous to engage in business in the Province of Ontario, and being desirous of removing its said manufacturing establishments to this Province has proposed to the Council of the City of Peterborough to remove to and establish its said manufacturing business in the City of Peterborough, provided the City will agree to assist the said Company by purchasing a site for the factory of the said Company those parts of Park Lots Numbers One, Two and Three in Township Lot Number Thirteen in the Twelfth Concession of the Township of Monaghan, now within the limits of the City of Peterborough, lying south east of the right of way of the Midland Branch of the Grand Trunk Railway, except the northerly fifty feet of said Park Lot Number Three and to lay out and open a southerly forty-eight feet of said Northerly fifty feet as a street, and by paying the cost (up to and not exceeding the sum of $3500 in all) of the removal of the plant and machinery of the said Company from Montreal and St. John's to and installing the same in the proposed factory at Peterborough, and until provision is made for the connection of said property with the City sewerage system by constructing and maintaining on the said property a cess pool sufficient for the purposes of the Company and by granting the said Company exemption from Municipal taxes (except school taxes and local improvement rates) on the said land and building and the machinery and plant therein and the business accessories in respect thereof for a term of ten years and in consideration thereof the said Company has agreed as follows:—

(a) To erect on said land a brick or concrete or brick and concrete building one storey in height and at least 112 feet by 400 feet or its equivalent in area, and equip the same with suitable machinery and plant for the purposes of the Company, said plant, equipment, machinery and buildings to be equivalent in value to at least $75,000.

(b) To commence the erection of the said building as soon as possible after the conveyance to it of the said land and continuously carry on such erection until fully completed and have the same fully erected and equipped with machinery and plant and in operation before the first day of June, 1913, PROVIDED HOWEVER that if the erection and equipment of the said building as aforesaid is delayed by any cause beyond the control of the said Company longer than the said first day of June, 1913 the time for the erection and equipment shall be extended for a time equal to the time of such delay.

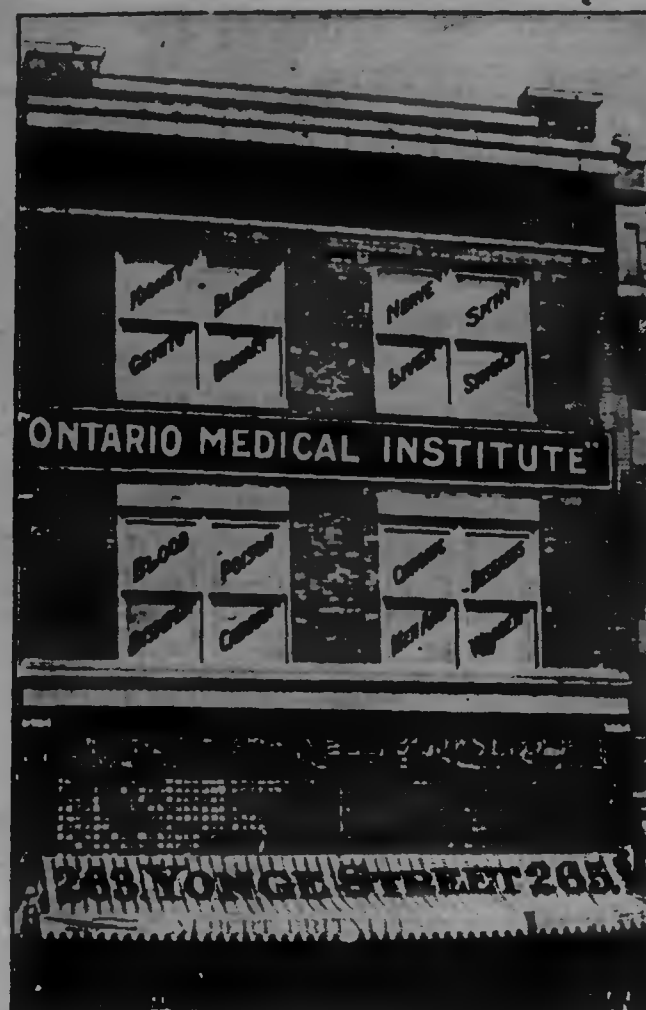

(c) In case default should be made in the provisions set out in clauses a and b, to repay on demand to the City the amount expended by the said Company for the purchase of said land and the amount paid for the removal of the plant and machinery and the cost of erecting the said building and any other cost or expense the said City is put in carrying out the part of the said agreement together with interest on the said amounts at the rate of five per cent per annum from the date of payment of the same by the City to the date of repayment of the same by the said Company, and to furnish the said City a Bond of a sufficient Guarantee Company for the due performance of such provisions, such Bond to be cancelled and returned when the building is erected and manufacturing operations commenced therein.

(d) As soon as the said building is ready for the purpose to proceed to erect on the said land a brick or concrete or brick and concrete building one storey in height and at least 112 feet by 400 feet or its equivalent in area, and equip the same with suitable machinery and plant for the purposes of the Company, said plant, equipment, machinery and buildings to be equivalent in value to at least $75,000.

AND WHEREAS there is at present in the said City no other manufacturing establishment carrying on the same business as the one carried on by the said Company and it is desirable and in the public interests in order to secure the location of the said factory in the said City to accept of the said plan and pool upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set out, the said Council has agreed to the same and in order to raise the money to pay the purchase price of the said land and the cost of removal and the construction of said cesspool and the cost of the submission of this By-law it will be necessary to issue the Debentures of the Corporation for a sum not exceeding the sum of $19,500 or such less sum as may be required for the purpose aforesaid which sum of $19,500 is the amount of the debt intended to be created by this By-law.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the Municipality, according to the last revised assessment is the sum of $9,178,000, and the amount of the existing debt of the Municipality, exclusive of local improvement debts payable by local special rates is the sum of $1,301,400.50 and there is no part of the principal or interest in arrears.

AND WHEREAS there will require to be raised annually for a period of twenty years the sum of $19,500 to be repaid by the said Company, the sum of $19,500 to be repaid annually

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Protestant Home will be held in the Board Room of the Home at 3 o'clock the first Tuesday in November.

Mr. E. B. Wood, of Toronto, has generously offered to give $1,000 towards the debt on the local Y.M.C.A., provided the sum of $2,800 additional be secured. The Board of directors have decided to accept Mr. Wood's offer and will make a strenuous effort to comply with the Association's obligation under Mr. Wood's offer.

There are many persons in the city who are fond of singing and possess good voices, but have not had the opportunity of studying music. The St. George's Choral Society proposes starting a singing class for beginners, to commence at 7:30 p.m., on Tuesday, Oct. 15th, under the direction of Mr. E. J. Harvey. Intending members are requested to be at the Collegiate Assembly Hall, Central Park. This is a class that should appeal to all as the fee will be merely nominal. The main object is to train singers and so improve the standard of sight singing. This should be a boon to all choirmasters as by this means members will become more proficient and so enable them to render the better class of music in their various churches. B. Reed, Secretary, 139 Rutledge street.

At the annual meeting of the Bobcaygeon Carling Club few changes were made in the officers. Mr. E. Broad, Secretary-Treasurer. The Executive are Messrs. Bottom, Davis, Falks and Mark. Skips are Bottom, Davis, Broad, Boyd, Green, Falks, H. Boyd, Taylor, Nichols, Moore. Tankard skips, Bottom and Broad. Trophy skips, Davis, Falks, Green, O. Boyd. District skips, O. Boyd, Moore.

Next Saturday the P.C.I. Second Rugby team will play the Grove School at Lakefield.

TIMES BUILDING, PETERBORO

Must Build Bigger Sheds.
The increase of freight traffic on the Canadian Pacific Railway at Fort William has made expansion necessary and work is now progressing rapidly on the huge new freight shed, situated on the Kaministiquia River. This great building, the dimensions of which are 1,000 feet by 60 feet, will be the finest of its kind on the Canadian side of the Great Lakes. The building is a two-story one, with all the most modern and up-to-date conveniences. Boats docking alongside will be loaded, or unloaded as the case may be, by machinery. Package freight will invariably be consigned to this new shed, which, it is expected, will be in readiness soon.

Very Considerate.
Mr. Grim—I see that you have announced that you intend willing all your money to charity.

Mr. Grouch—Yes; it will save a thousand distant relatives the trouble of attending my funeral.

Up to Date.
"They're very up to date!"
"That so?"
"Yes. Her daughter is to be married soon, and she has sent out invitations that read this way: 'Mr. and Mrs. Harry Waterbury Brown request your presence at the first wedding of their daughter Jane.'—Detroit Free Press.

Good Advice.
Never suffer your courage to expand itself in sarcasm, your resolution in obstinacy, your wisdom in cunning nor your patience in silliness and despair.

The Darkest Hour.
How often, oh, how often, were you told to wait?
"The darkest hour is just before the dawn."
How often, oh, how often, did you find the real truth?
The darkest hour is just before you part!
—New York Sun.

Occasionally.
Inquirer—Do you ever get into trouble on account of careless pedestrians?
Chauffeur—Sometimes. The last time I ran into one I smashed a six dollar lamp all to smithereens.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.
ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Enter by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, or on a farm of at least 40 acres, or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption, six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate 80 acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect house worth $200.00.

W. W. CORY,
Newspapers inserting this advertisement without authority from the Department will not be paid for it.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Examining Warehouses, Calgary, Alberta," will be received at this office until 4 p.m., on Friday, October 25, 1912, for construction of the building mentioned.

Contract can be seen and form of contract can be had upon application to tender obtained at the office of Mr. H. E. Matthews, Superintendent Architect of the Dominion Public Buildings, in the Province of Manitoba, Winnipeg, Man., Mr. W. T. Mollard, Clerk of Works, Regina, Sask., at the Post Office, Calgary, Alberta, and at this Department.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honorable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent (10 p. c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender is not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the highest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary,
Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, October 3, 1912.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.—27748.

A few feet in front of the car was a black chain where so short a time before had been the brilliantly lit dining room filled with servants. Not a trace of it or of them remained.

"We sat in our knees, cowering. How long we remained so I really do not know. It seemed an eternity of anguish before the guards appeared with candles. Little expecting to find us alive. Some of us were nearly dead when the welcome relief arrived, and our feelings were not calmed as we then contemplated the awful nature of the destruction we had escaped.

POSTOFFICE STORIES.
Mr. Herbert Samuel in a Reminiscence.

There is no member of the House of Commons who appreciates a good story more than Mr. Herbert Samuel, British Postmaster-General, and he rarely makes a speech without including in it one or two anecdotes concerning his duties at St. Martin's le Grand. Last year, for instance, while talking of cablegrams in the House of Commons, he related the following as an example of episcopal economy. He said there was an archbishop who had a code of his own. His cables from abroad: "John, Epistle III, 13 and 14." His friends looked up the reference in the Bible, and found the following words:

"I had many things to write, but I will not with ink and pen write unto thee: But I trust I shall shortly see thee, and we shall speak face to face. Peace be to thee. Our friends salute thee. Great the friends by name."

In connection with the postoffice savings bank department, Mr. Samuel tells the following story. There was one depositor who had exhausted his account, but who appealed to the controller to send his account book back because it cheered him in his poverty to see how much his deposit once had been. Another depositor wrote that, although he was a Westman and a veteran Radical, he was respectably connected and well known for his integrity.

The best of Mr. Samuel's stories, perhaps, is the following: A woman had to fill in a claim on behalf of a son who was asked to state on a form whether she had a husband living, and her answer was, "Living, but insignificant."

The Postmaster-General, it might be mentioned, likes his little joke, and it was on the occasion of the opening of a new postoffice at Margate that he announced that on that special occasion he himself would serve the first lot of stamps, which would be sold at thirteen for a shilling. A lady at once asked for the increased number, and was served by the Postmaster-General with seven 1d. and two 1-1/2d. stamps.

Another good story told by Mr. Samuel concerns an occasion when he arrived during an election campaign at a certain town to address a meeting. He was somewhat late. "I saw a working man whom I knew," says Mr. Samuel, "lounging at the doorway of the hall, while from within came a continuous and earnest shouting. 'Do you know who's speaking?' I asked my friend. 'Or haven't you been in?' 'Oh, yes, I've been in,' said he. 'Mr. Samuel is speaking.' 'What about?' I inquired. 'Mr. Samuel is speaking and he didn't say,' he answered."

LIGHTS THAT FAILED.
Gleam Reigned 'Then Thackeray and Charlotte Bronte Met.

Those do not always shine who should, as many a chagrined host or hostess has found out. Amusing in retrospect, it quite otherwise at the moment, must have been the occasion when Charlotte Bronte, "the little lady from Yorkshire of whom all England was talking," appeared at the London house of the author of "Vanity Fair."

The story is told in Lewis Melville's "The Thackeray Country." Thackeray gave a dinner party to meet Charlotte Bronte in June, 1850, and among the guests were the Carlyles, the Prechers, the Brookfields, Mrs. Grew, Miss Elliot and Miss Perry.

"It was a gloomy and silent evening," Lady Ritchie has recorded. "Every one waited for the brilliant conversation which never began."

"Miss Bronte returned to the sofa in the study and murmured a low word now and then to my governess, Miss Truveloch. The room looked very dark; the lamp began to smoke a little; the conversation grew dimmer and more dim; the ladies sat round still expectant. My father was too much perturbed by the gloom and the silence to be able to cope with it at all. Mrs. Brookfield, who was in the corner in which Miss Bronte was sitting, bent forward with a little commotion, since brilliance was not to be the order of the evening."

"Do you like London, Miss Bronte?" she asked. Another silence, a pause, then Miss Bronte answered very gravely: "Yes—no."

"After Miss Bronte had left I was surprised to see my father opening the front door with his hat on. He put his finger to his lips, walked out into the darkness and shut the door quietly behind him. Overcome by the gloom and constraint, he was running away to his club."

TERROR OF A BOMB.
A Dramatic Incident of the Political Unrest in Russia.

Here is the story of a Russian anarchist outrage in the words of one who was nearly killed in the explosion: While staying at Cannes H. Jones Thaddeus, author of "Revolutions of a Court Palace," met the Grand Duchess Ekse of Russia, who gave him an account of the then recent attempt upon the life of the czar.

The czar was a few minutes late in his arrival in the dining room, and for this reason the explosion was prevented. After describing the event the grand duchess told Mr. Thaddeus: "When the echoes of the explosion died away a dead silence succeeded, which, united with the darkness prevailing, so dense as almost to be felt, conducted to render our halcyon position still more painful and uncomfortable. We dared not move. There was no escape from the peril which surrounded us. Presently out of the darkness came the clear, calm voice of the czar, 'My children, let us pray! The sound of his voice, while reassuring us as to his safety so far, relieved the awful strain on our nerves and brought comfort to our hearts."

"We sat in our knees, cowering. How long we remained so I really do not know. It seemed an eternity of anguish before the guards appeared with candles. Little expecting to find us alive. Some of us were nearly dead when the welcome relief arrived, and our feelings were not calmed as we then contemplated the awful nature of the destruction we had escaped."

NEVER CROSSED THE OCEAN.

But That Didn't Keep Him From Giving His Novel a Dash Sea Flavor.

The story is told by the Bookman of how a certain novel which was popular three or four years ago got its setting:

"When the story was being planned the author, who the since achieved a literary position of considerable importance, though not as a novelist, could not hit upon just the right background. He needed a setting that would hold his three principal characters, a woman and two men, together for a period of ten or twelve days, despite the fact that the complications of the tale itself would inevitably have moved one or the other of the men to immediate departure."

"He told a friend of his dilemma. 'Why,' said the mentor, 'put them on board a slow going transatlantic liner, one of the new boats.' 'But,' retorted the novelist, 'I have never crossed the ocean and know nothing about transatlantic liners.' 'That,' said the other, 'is a matter of easy remedy. The sails at 10 tomorrow morning. Let us go down at 9 and put an end to your troubles.'

"The next day the two visited the ship in question, the author asking questions of his friend and making observations and notes. The smoking room was studied carefully as being just the place for the fight and certain remote corners of the decks as suitable scenes for discreet and fervent courtship. Before the clanging of the gong, with its 'All ashore who are going ashore' message, the novelist closed his notebook with the manner of a man whose task is finished."

Is Your Back Full of Aches All Day Long?

That Stab-Like Pain in the Back is Sure Indication of Kidney Trouble

Mrs. Anna Rodriguez, writes as follows from her home in Valencia: "For a long time I suffered with failing strength and nagging headaches. My condition grew steadily worse. My limbs became bloated and shaky. I was yellow and thin, felt rheumatic pains, dizziness and chills. I unfortunately didn't suspect my kidneys and was nearly dead when I discovered the true cause of my sufferings. I read so much about the wonderful health and strength that comes to all who use Dr. Hamilton's Pills that I got from Dr. Hamilton's Pills I can't describe. They speedily put me right, and their steady use keeps me active, energetic, strong and happy. I strongly urge others to regulate and tone their system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Hammonds and Bostons."

It will be remembered, are being placed by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons, of this city."

Italian Contractor Skipped Out.

An Italian labor contractor some weeks ago purchased some timber lands near Haliburton. He next engaged some of his countrymen to get out the timber and incidentally purchased supplies in the neighborhood. Next thing the contractor skipped leaving his men unpaid. A case was brought to court in Haliburton by those who sold the contractor goods and who tried to seize his land. However, the judge maintained that the Italian laborers had a first lien for wages.

Mr. W. McIlroy for Hamilton.

It was currently reported on the street yesterday that Mr. W. McIlroy, popular uptown C.P.R. ticket agent, is about to be moved to Hamilton. The Times last night called up Mr. McIlroy's office to ascertain whether this rumor was correct. We ascertained that the gentleman in question was yesterday in Hamilton and that there is every reason to believe that the report is correct. Mr. McIlroy's departure will be greatly deplored by a host of friends and be felt in local musical circles.

Death of Mother Superior.

On Sunday afternoon, Mother Theodora, Superior of the local convent, passed away after a long illness. The deceased entered Church orders in Barrie, her home town. Later, she went to Toronto, leaving that city in 1880 for Lindsay. Subsequently she became Mother Superior in Cobourg, coming to Peterborough in 1895. The late Mother Theodora was recognized as one of the best musicians in the community. Many of the children attending the convent have developed their musical ability under her supervision. Mass will be sung at Mount St. Joseph at 9 o'clock this morning by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor. Interment at St. Peter's cemetery will follow. The deceased's brother, who is her sole survivor, is expected to be present at the obsequies.

SOWING HIS WILD OATS REAPING A HARVEST OF SORROW

How many young men can look back on their early life and regret their wild oats? "Sowing their wild oats" in various ways. Excesses, violation of nature's laws, "vice, women and song"—all have their victims. You have reaped but what about the seed you have sown—what about the harvest? Don't trust to luck. If you are at present within the clutch of any secret habit which is sapping your life by degrees; if you are suffering from the results of past indiscretions; if your blood has been tainted from any private disease and you are not happy; if you are married and live in dread of symptoms breaking out and exposing your past; if you are suffering as the result of a misdeed—DR. R. A. K. ARE YOUR REFUGE. Lay your case before them confidentially and they will tell you honestly if you are curable.

Business Cannot Be Cured.

We will give One Hundred Dollars by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, no amount of tonics or cathartics will do anything but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

SOCIAL EVENTS

Readers of The Times are requested to call on the office of the Times at 100 Front Street East, for a list of names of those who have been to the Social Events.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Mulholland of Renfrew are in the city.

Mr. Oscar Hallihan, formerly of the Piffage Hotel staff, left yesterday for Winnipeg.

Miss Marion Wray returned to the city yesterday after visiting at her home in Lindsay.

Mrs. Seth Adlum and daughter, 517 Bolivar street, are visiting friends in Toronto.

Mrs. E. R. Tate, of Lakeside, with her daughter and son, was in the city yesterday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Gamble, Campbellford, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Driscoll, for a few days.

Dan Callahan, 35 Crescent street, left yesterday for a visit to Winnipeg. He may stay all winter.

Misses Emily Ballard and Helen Bristol, Madoc, formerly teachers in training at the Normal school, were in the city over Sunday.

Mr. Nagle Phelan, son of Mr. Harry, Collector of Inland Revenue, left for Toronto, where he will attend St. Michael's College.

Mr. Will Gibson who has been spending the past week with his parents, Brook street, left yesterday for Port Francis.

The sympathy of their many friends in the city will be extended to Mr. and Mrs. P. M. LeMay over the death of their infant son, yesterday morning.

Mr. R. D. Collins, son of Mrs. J. D. Collins, McDonald street, who has held an important position in the Molson's Bank at Montreal has been transferred to Port Arthur.

Mrs. Alfred A. Smith will receive for the first time since her marriage at 529 Homewood avenue, on Thursday afternoon, and afterwards on the first Tuesday of each month.

Rev. W. C. Riddford leaves to-day for Bramford to attend the annual convention of the Baptists of Ontario and Quebec. He will afterwards represent the Peterborough Sunday school Association at the convention in Hamilton, Oct. 22nd to 24th.

Dr. Hawson left last night on the C.P.R. midnight for Montreal, where he will sail to-morrow for England. He expects to return in about six weeks. His many friends in Peterborough wish him a pleasant voyage. Dr. George will take Dr. Hawson's practice during his absence.

Mr. Albert C. Herridge, 785 George street, has returned from an extended tour of Western Canada, and speaks in an enthusiastic manner of prevailing conditions and particularly the crop yield. The climate when Mr. Herridge left, was ideal. He says Vancouver is bound to be the leading city in the West. The growth of the city has been steady and assured.

After many years of faithful service, Mr. David Spence has felt it necessary to resign the office of Superintendent of the Sunday School. Mr. Spence has not enjoyed very good health for some time past, and expects to be out of the city for a time. The rector has accepted his resignation with reluctance. A handsome prayer and Hymn Book, with a suitable inscription, has been presented to Mr. Spence by the officers and teachers of the Sunday school.—St. Luke's Magazine.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

The Nature Study Class at the Y.W.C.A. met last night.

East Ward Ratepayers held a meeting last night in the old town hall.

Wild geese are flying southward. No wonder with coal prospects at $10 a ton.

The Bell Telephone Co. is installing a new exchange in the Whyte Block, Norwood.

The various committees working to promote passage of the De Laval by-law met last night.

Mr. James Kingsbury, of Bobcaygeon, has raised a potato weighing three pounds seven ounces.

The free lecture at the Y.W.C.A. on First Aid and Home Nursing will be given to-morrow at 8 p.m.

The date of the Travel Talk by Mr. Frank Yeigh has been changed from Oct. 25 to Friday, November 11.

Port Hope expects to get a white wear factory. The town is asked to give a factory and a loan of $5,000.

Building permits with an aggregate value of $14,495 have been issued in Peterborough during the current month.

"Hack" Ellis charged with the murder of Louis Porter, of Minden, will receive his trial at Lindsay this week.

Jars are scarce in Peterborough. Not the family "hubby and wifey" jars, but the glass kind used for preserving purposes.

Rev. Dr. Mayers will give an illustrated lecture, with an incidental musical program, on the Barnardo Homes, at the Grand to-night.

The Canada Cereal Mills at Lindsay has added another story. These Cereal Mills are somewhat like a serial story, always adding.

Rod and Gun describes the Seneg River as a narrow coffee colored stream winding its tortuous course to the bay town of Lindsay.

The Giants won against the Sox in yesterday's game, by a score of 5-4. Batteries—New York, Marquand and Meyers; Boston, O'Brien, Collins and Cady.

The Star Theatre in Toronto is to be indicated, for producing shows of an indecent nature. Local railways expect to sell tickets to more than one man with a high forehead this week.

A double liability call is to be made on the shareholders of Farmers Bank stock. It is to be hoped this financial stroke of lightning will not hit Peterborough as badly as did the Ontario Bank trouble.

Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's church, says that the people of Peterborough are lacking in warmth and enthusiasm. The Rev. gentleman referred possibly to religious not politics or coal combinations.

A Port Hope "vag" was dismissed at Saturday's police court in that town. The Chief of Police testified to having once seen the man "hold a horse" but intimated that he was more frequently employed in emptying "schooners" at the hotels.

TOO SERIOUSLY HURT TO DO MORE CAMPAIGNING

Presidential Candidate of the Progressive Party Must Stay Off the Platform for Months—When He Recovers Sufficiently He Will Be Moved to Oyster Bay

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Col. Roosevelt will do no more campaigning this year.

Positive announcement that the injury to the ex-President was serious enough to keep him off the road during the remainder of the campaign was made today at Mercy Hospital, where he was to be operated on and a bullet fired by a fanatic in Milwaukee last night, removed.

As soon as he is able to leave this city, Col. Roosevelt will be taken to Oyster Bay. He will remain at home there until his wound is completely mended and will take no active part in the campaign.

The fact that his injury was such that it would force him into retirement for some time was pointed out to the colonel by the surgeons at the hospital. They were emphatic in telling him that to assure his complete recovery he would have to remain quiet for several weeks, and the colonel reluctantly agreed though insisting at the same time that he felt "perfectly fit" and could make a public speech to-day.

AN OPEN LETTER TO MAYOR BRADBURN

W. H. Bradburn, Esq., Mayor of Peterborough.

Sir,—I have been substantially interested in the Otonabee Power Company Limited since its organization and I find that of the $112,000.00 of Preferred stock that is outstanding, by far the largest percentage of it, is held by people residing in this City and County; hence I think you will agree with me that we, as preferred stockholders, have a substantial financial interest in your proposed power scheme.

You and the City Council propose in carrying out your power scheme to notify the Otonabee Power Company that you will not renew their rights to maintain their poles and wires upon the streets of Peterborough and that you propose to notify the Company to remove all its poles and wires from the streets at the expiration of its franchise. If such drastic action is taken by you and the City Council it will have the effect of destroying the investment and property of the shareholders of the Otonabee Power Company.

I have also learned with a great deal of surprise that you and the City Council propose to destroy the Company's expensive investment in its pole line in Peterborough for the very purpose of depreciating the value of the Company's assets and in order that you may the cheaper expropriate its power plant at Dam No. 5. Surely such a proposition must appeal to you as being most arbitrary and unjust; and especially so when you consider the circumstances under which the Otonabee Power Company was organized.

You will remember at the time of the organization of the Company ten years ago that commercial lighting cost our merchants $9.00 per lamp and domestic lighting cost about $3.00 per light and in fact electric lighting was such a luxury that there were not more than 500 householders in the City of Peterborough who used electric light. The Otonabee Power Company was not in business more than one month before commercial lighting was reduced to $3.00 a lamp and house light was reduced to $1.50 per light. In fact the prices were reduced over 100 per cent., and Peterborough enjoyed the unique position of having the cheapest commercial and domestic light of any city in the Dominion of Canada, and even to-day the ratepayers of Peterborough enjoy the privilege of having cheaper electric light than 50 per cent. of the cities, towns and villages in the Dominion of Canada. In addition to that, I have learned on the best of authority that there are more householders using electric light in the City of Peterborough, considering its population, than in any city or town on the North American Continent.

When the Otonabee Power Company incurred the great expense of placing its poles and wires on the streets it never was contemplated that at the expiration of ten years the Company would be forced to remove its poles and wires from the streets and that its investment in them would be wholly destroyed. Had such an arbitrary course been even suggested at the time or had the shareholders of the Otonabee Power Company dreamed that the spirit of injustice and tyranny would so possess the minds of the Mayor and City Council at the expiration of their short franchise that the Company would have provided a sinking fund to meet such an unlooked for contingency. This sinking fund could have been provided by maintaining the price of light at the old high current rates.

Under the circumstances therefore I appeal to you and the City Council not to perpetrate such a proposed injustice upon the shareholders of the Otonabee Power Company. If the City of Peterborough desires to take over the power plant and pole line of the Otonabee Power Company and pay what it is reasonably worth, then no one would have any just cause of complaint.

I therefore on behalf of myself and the other shareholders of the Otonabee Power Company beg leave to enter my solemn protest against your unjust and arbitrary proposition which could only meet with approval at the hands of the old Buccaneers of the West Indies or the old pirates that infested the Chinese coast.

We appeal to you and to the members of the City Council that it is not in the interest of the City of Peterborough to have its honor and its good name dragged in the mud and to have the city advertised abroad among intending investors that the people of this city are prepared to plunder and rob them if some one has ingenuity enough to invent the means whereby it may be legally done.

Yours truly,
JOHN A. CAMERON.

ROOSEVELT'S ASSAILANT WAS IN EARNEST

He Appears Intelligent, But His Stories of Dreams Indicate Mental Weakness.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 15.—John Schrank, the assailant of Colonel Roosevelt, who is to be arraigned this morning in the Municipal Court is a curious study. He does not have the appearance of a laborer and his hands are small, well-formed and smooth, as though unused to toil. He talked fluently at times, using excellent English, but often he stopped abruptly and refused to say another word, until his changing mood made him talkative once more.

His appearance is that of an intelligent man, and his large, clear eyes, which he held steadily upon his inquisitors, did not seem like those of most men who are insane. But his stories of dreams and visions and the curious letters and clippings found in his pockets seemed to denote mental instability. Whatever his state of mind, it was apparent to all who saw him, that Schrank was thoroughly in earnest and that he felt that it was a matter of high duty for him to kill Theodore Roosevelt.

74 MINERS ENTOMBED

Hundreds of Men Are Battling With Fire and Smoke
To Rescue Them

Hobart, Tasmania, Oct. 15.—Hundreds of rescuers are battling against flames and smoke to save seventy-four entombed miners at the North Mount Lyell mine. The fire started through the blowing out of the motor fan last Saturday. In a few minutes clouds of smoke began to pour from the mouth of the main shaft where 150 men were known to be working. Seventy-six men reached the surface. One died after he got out.

THREE PRESIDENTS MET DEATH FROM ASSASSINS

While President of the United States, Col. Roosevelt was never wounded by would-be assassins, although on several occasions cranks had threatened him.

Three United States Presidents, the most recent being President McKinley, have been assassinated. President Abraham Lincoln was assassinated in Ford's Theatre, at Washington, on April 14, 1865, by John Wilkes Booth, an actor, who was tracked and shot April 26th. The President died April 15th.

President James Abram Garfield was assassinated July 2, 1881, in a railway station at Washington, by Charles J. Guiteau, who was hanged on June 30th the following year. Mr. Garfield lived eleven weeks after the shooting, dying at Long Branch, N.J., on September 19, 1881.

President William McKinley was assassinated in the Temple of Music in the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, on Sept. 6, 1901, by Leon Czolgosz, who was electrocuted in Auburn prison on Oct. 29, 1901. The President lived eight days after being shot. He died at Buffalo on Sept. 14, 1901.

ROOSEVELT SHOT BY LUNATIC ADDRESSED AUDIENCE AN HOUR WITH A BULLET IN HIS BREAST

Bullet Fired Point Blank at the Colonel as He Was Entering His Motor Car to go to a Meeting—His Assailant Overpowered and Unarmed by Secretary Martin

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 15.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt was shot and slightly wounded last night as he was leaving the Gilpatrick Hotel for the Auditorium to make a speech. The wound was superficial, and the Colonel went on to the hall and began his speech, after he had seen the assailant arrested and taken to the police station.

The man, who is small of stature, admitted firing the shot, and said that "Any man looking for a third term ought to be shot."

In notes found in the man's pockets at the police station were statements that the man had been visited in a dream by the spirit of William McKinley, who said, indicating Roosevelt: "This is my murderer. Avenge my death!"

Col. Roosevelt's life probably was saved by a manuscript of the speech which he delivered to-night. The bullet struck the manuscript which retarded its force as it passed through into the flesh.

SCENE OF THE SHOOTING.

The shooting took place in the street in front of the Hotel Gilpatrick.

With the Colonel were Philip Roosevelt, a young cousin; Mr. Cochems, Mr. Martin, his secretary, and Capt. Girard. The crowd pressed close about the Colonel and gave a cheer as he appeared. As the party approached the automobile Colonel Roosevelt's companions stood aside as he stepped into the car. Martin entered directly behind him and sat on the further side of the car.

Col. Roosevelt stood up, waving his hat in answer to the cheers of the crowd. The assassin was standing in the crowd, a foot from the automobile. He pushed his way to the side of the car, raised his gun and fired.

Martin caught the flash and leaped over the car a second after the bullet sped on its way.

Col. Roosevelt barely moved as the shot was fired. Before they crowd knew what had happened Martin, who is six feet tall, and a former football player, had landed squarely on the would-be assassin's shoulders and had borne him to the ground. He threw his right arm about the man's neck with a death-like grip and with his left arm seized the hand that held the revolver. In another second he had disarmed him.

MISS DAVIS IS FREE OF BLAME

Inquest Ended on Late Mrs.
Susan Eliz. Herron

THE DOCTORS DISAGREE

The adjourned inquest on the body of Susanne Elisabeth Herron was opened last night in the Council Chamber, with Coroner Dr. Green presiding.

Mr. G. N. Gordon was present to represent the Herron family; Mr. E. H. D. Hall looked after the Nicholls Hospital interests, whilst the County Crown Attorney, represented by his son Mr. A. V. Wood, acted as prosecutor.

The first witness called was Mr. Mitchell Herron husband of the deceased. He gave evidence as to Mrs. Herron's death at home, after removal from Nicholls Hospital.

Dr. H. B. Johnston, of Fenelon Falls, noted that he had treated the deceased some years ago. He advised Mrs. Herron to go to the hospital for an examination for tumor. He thought that the tumor, both internal and external may have contributed to hasten death of Mrs. Herron.

Dr. Frederick, who performed the operation found that there was a large shaped enlargement of the spleen. There was marked cirrhosis of the liver which was shrunk to three-fifths its natural size. Had it not been for the tumor, patient might have lived for eighteen months.

Doctors McPherson and Eastwood who performed the post-mortem gave somewhat similar evidence, but thought the tumor did not hasten death. Dr. Halliday said that the external tumor was healed at the time of death and the internal tumor did not penetrate the mucous lining of the intestine, the tumor did not cause hastened death.

Miss Beamish, Superintendent of the Nicholls Hospital, identified the emma apparatus as what is used in the hospital.

Nurse Davis, who administered treatment to deceased said she was out of the room momentarily. She found the saline solution was setting cool and heated it over the gas stove. Her evidence was mainly technical.

The inquest ended shortly after 12 o'clock and at one o'clock the jury brought in the following verdict:

THE VERDICT.

The verdict of the jury empanelled to enquire into the death of Susan

"CAPTURED 10,000 TURKS WITH ARTILLERY," WIRES PRINCE PETER

Heidelberg, Germany, Oct. 15.—A great Montenegrin victory over the Turkish troops was announced this morning by Prince Peter, of Montenegro, in a telegram to his former tutor here.

The despatch was worded: "Glorious victory. Ten thousand Turks with artillery captured."

It was timed 2.50 this morning.

Rays Used to Locate Bullet, But Operation May Not Be Carried Out—Distinguished Bull Moose Candidate
Is Resting Easily in Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, shot by John Schrank, an assassin in Milwaukee last night, lies to-day in Mercy Hospital "resting easily."

Half a dozen of the most noted and skilled surgeons in Chicago, led by Dr. John B. Murphy, made X-ray examinations of the Colonel's wound and announced that the bullet did not pierce the lung, but had lodged in the chest. They had not planned to operate this morning.

"The Colonel is quite weak," said one of the surgeons, "due to relaxation from the nervous strain he has been under. Unless complications ensue the outlook is not unfavorable."

Col. Roosevelt walked into the X-ray room of the hospital without assistance. He showed much interest in the preparations for the radiograph.

New York, Oct. 15.—President Taft issued a long statement on board the Mayflower this afternoon relative to the shooting of Col. Roosevelt.

"I cannot withhold an expression of horror," he said, "at the act of the maniac who attempted to assassinate Col. Roosevelt."

"Every citizen of our country will deplore the attempt. I am delighted to learn that the dastardly attempt was unsuccessful. I congratulate Col. Roosevelt and the American people that the assassin's bullet failed, and that the life of a former President of our country has not been wantonly sacrificed."

WAR CANNOT NOW BE AVERTED OPINION IN GREAT BRITAIN

New York, Oct. 15.—A London cable says: The Daily Chronicle's Constantinople correspondent telegraphed just before midnight that the Ministers of the Balkan States had demanded their passports from the Ottoman Government.

Austria has issued an official communique stating that she will not interfere in the Sandjak of Novipazar, but will not permit the Balkan States to annex any part of it, which may lead to complications between Russia and Austria.

Lord Morley announced in the House of Lords yesterday that the negotiations between Italy and Turkey have taken an unfavorable turn. Consuls yesterday reached the lowest point in years, 724.

The Turkish troops have attacked the Servians near Ristovata and the Bulgarians at Chupken, the London press this morning declares nothing can avert war.

The Morning Post says: "It seems as if nothing can avert the flames from spreading all over the Balkans. The replies of the Balkan States and of Turkey to the Powers disposed of the last hope for a peaceful settlement."

Elizabeth Herron, in that death was caused by a complication of diseases and whilst we regret the unfortunate accident, whereby deceased was burned, after hearing the evidence of the physicians who performed the post-mortem and others, we do not attach any blame whatever to any person or persons.

ABLE ADDRESS ON THE BARNARDO HOMES

Barnardo Boys Render a "Fine Musical Program On Various Instruments."

Last night a fair sized audience gathered in the Grand Opera House to hear Rev. W. J. Mayers, Senior Deputation Secretary of the Barnardo Homes, who comes from London, Eng., lectured on the Barnardo Homes and other work done by them in reclaiming poor boys and girls.

The evening opened with a fine musical program rendered by ten Barnardo boys, including an instrument made from old chisels, properly tuned and called a "Glockenspiel."

Rev. Mr. Mayers opened his address by asking that citizens extend their hospitality to the boys present until Saturday. He described graphically the splendid work from its inception done by Dr. Barnardo. Dr. Barnardo was only 19 when the idea of the homes came to him by seeing 11 boys sleeping on the dome of a building. The main object of the renowned gentleman's address was an appeal for £5000 to erect a Canadian Home in England.

Rev. Canon Davidson moved a vote of thanks to the speaker. Rev. Mr. Mayers will preach in George Street Cathedral in the morning and in the Presbyterian Church in the evening next Sunday.

HAD BAD SORE FOR YEARS

ZAM-BUK HEALED IT!

Mrs. Wilson, 110 Wickson Ave., Toronto, says: "About four years ago a sore spot appeared on the right side of my face. This spot increased in size until it became about half an inch in diameter and very painful. I went to a doctor, but the ointment he gave me did not have any good effect. The sore continued to discharge freely, and was most painful. I had it cauterized, tried poultices and all kinds of salve, but it was no good, and I continued to suffer from it for four years!"

"A sample of Zam-Buk was one day given to me, and I used it. Although the quantity was so small, it seemed to do me some good, so I purchased a further supply."

"Each box did me more and more good, and to my delight, before I had been using Zam-Buk three weeks, I saw that it was going to heal the sore. In less than a month it was healed!"

"I know a lady in the east of the city, whose husband suffered for years with an open sore on his leg. On my recommendation, Zam-Buk was tried in that case. The other day, when I saw her, she told me that it had healed the sore completely."

"My daughter, who lives in Leith-bridge, Alta., has also used Zam-Buk with the same satisfactory result. I think it is, beyond all doubt, the finest healing balm known."

Such is the opinion of all persons who have really tried Zam-Buk. It is a sure cure for eczema, piles, abscesses, ulcers, scalds, rashes, rashes, cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c box, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Dizzy Headaches Cured in One Night

IF TROUBLED WITH HEAD-PAIN, RINGING NOISES, AND SPECKS BEFORE THE EYES THE REMEDY IS AT HAND.

Quick Relief and Certain Cure Came From Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"I had terrible pains in my head. My appetite faded away and when I did eat anything it disagreed and made me very sick for hours after each meal. The active pains in my stomach and the dizzy headaches I had to endure almost cut me out. Sometimes attacks came on so severely that I had to go to bed. I would feel so worn, depressed and utterly miserable that for hours I wouldn't speak to my family. My system was poisoned with wastes, and nothing helped me till I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Without this grand system-cleansing remedy I would be sick, but each day brought me better health and spirits. I was cured and made as strong, ruddy and healthy looking as one could wish, and will always use and recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

CITY'S HONOR AT STAKE

In this issue appears an open letter addressed to Mayor Bradburn signed by Mr. John A. Cameron, that gives rich food for serious reflection. Whilst, of course, the Otonabee Power Company's legal rights are a matter solely affecting the shareholders, there seems to be a broad principle of civic honor, as well as well as a local business proposition affected. It would be child's argument to suggest but what the company getting their ten year's franchise, whereby they immediately caused a marked decrease in the price of light in Peterborough, spent large sums in the belief that the franchise would be extended or the city make an equitable allowance for its poles and equipment in case of expropriation. As remarked in Mr. Cameron's letter the money invested by the Otonabee Co. belongs locally and as remarked in the Merchant of Venice, "You take my life when you take that whereby I live." In these days when power is the main topic among intruding looters of factories, such drastic, and seemingly unfair, policy as suggested by Mr. Cameron, would not only be carried in the wings of exaggeration but would necessarily frighten such people from dealing with our city council. This spells stagnation for future growth. Even should the expropriation of the poles of this company have an influence in lessening the value of Dam No. 6, surely Peterborough in its civic honor does not wish to emulate the example of Uncle Sam when dealing with England over the Panama Canal. There is such a quantity as a city's honor.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

BEASTLY TORY TRICKS.

Sir,—The poor little Examiner tries to account for the slaughter at Macdonald by shouting "Thieves! Robbers!" Now the only thieves and robbers that pleaded guilty were Liberal workers arrested by Conservative vigilance committees. What about their pleading guilty? Is that another beastly Tory trick?

THE CITY COUNCIL AND THE POWER QUESTION.

Sir,—I don't believe in meeting these people, (meaning the Seymour Power Company) "and furthermore,

I won't attend the meeting if it is held."

This is the declaration of Alderman Duncan of the City Council, who has been elected by the ratepayers of this intelligent city to represent them in the City Council. The attitude of other members of the City Council is equally as singular because they were only willing to meet the Seymour Company for the purpose of buying out its pole line and not to obtain its best price for power. The question of obtaining cheap power and cheap light for the ratepayers of Peterborough does not enter into the minds of the majority of the members of the City Council. It is municipal ownership they want and not cheap power and cheap light. The majority of the members of the city council apparently are afraid to invite tenders from the Seymour Power Company for a supply of power or even to discuss the question of a supply of power because they apparently dread that their pet scheme of municipal ownership will receive a black eye, when the price for power and light to be tendered by the Seymour Power Company will be demonstrated to be cheaper than can be furnished under municipal ownership.

What this city needs is cheap light and cheap power no matter from what source it comes whether from municipal ownership or from private ownership.

To ascertain whether the proposition of the Hydro-Electric or the Seymour Power Company will be the more beneficial to Peterborough can only be obtained by our City Council obtaining from both sources the very best proposition for the supply of power that each is prepared to make and lay the facts clearly and impartially before the ratepayers for their approval.

Can you tell me, Mr. Editor, who the City Council apparently are unwilling to discuss the obtaining of a supply of power from the Seymour Power Company? Can you tell me, Mr. Editor, why it is that the City Council prefer municipal ownership to having a cheap and abundant supply of power from the Seymour Power Company without the expenditure of a single dollar by the ratepayers with all its attendant risks and mismanagement at the hands of some future incompetent Council?

Enquirer.

A TIMELY OBJECTION.

Editor Morning Times.
Sir,—The letter appearing in this morning's Times, objecting to the Rev. Canon Davidson undertaking to lecture the people of Peterborough every little while, is timely. Some ministers seem to forget that their chief duty is to set a good example, and I cannot impress upon some of the chief wags of this point too strongly. Many people are thoroughly disgusted with the attempts that are made to lecture the people from a lofty standpoint which the lecturers have no hesitation in leaving when it suits their purpose. This has no reference to the distinguished Solid Gold.

For many years the term "solid gold" has been a commercial misnomer. Some of the ancient Roman jewelry as well as that of the Renaissance period was indeed made of pure gold, worked up by hand with the crudest of tools, but since the old day there has been a constantly increasing employment of alloys, for the reason that jewelers found that the harder the gold was rendered by good alloys the greater its wearing qualities and the more secure, therefore, was the setting of the gems it contained—Argument.

Shetland Wool.
A curious historical legend is connected with Shetland wool. Over 200 years ago a man of war belonging to the Spanish armada was wrecked on one of the islands. The sailors who escaped taught the natives to make brilliant dyes from roots which they found, resembling those used for like purposes in Spain. Those persons who now wear bright Shetland knit sweaters are unconsciously wearing remnants of the "invincible" armada.—London Standard.

Are Money Gatherers Lunatic?
There can be no doubt but that a majority of lunatics would look up some persons. Sanity and insanity imply a point of view. For instance, if a man accumulated a million sovereigns (without any ultimate object) people would say he was thrifty, but rather "crazy-fisted." If, however, he bought twenty thousand jugs of cream (without object) he would be certified as a lunatic.—T. P.'s Weekly.

Played "The Devil."

The name now an universally honored in literature is frequently to be met with in the novelists' family is commonly held to belong to the branch brought into distinction by Nelson Hardy. That the stock possessed both mother-wit and presence of mind is proved by an anecdote concerning Mr. Hardy's grandfather told by Mr. Alfred Pope, a member of the Dorset Field Club, at a recent meeting of the society. As the story may have been overlooked amid a mass of more sensational news in the daily papers, I will repeat it. About a century ago, Mr. Hardy's grandfather was crossing a lonely heath one midnight in June, when he discovered he was being followed by two foot-pads. He rolled a turse fagot on to the path, sat down on it, took off his hat, stuck two fern fronds behind his ears to represent horns, and then pretended to read a letter which he took from his pocket by the light of the glow worms he had picked up and placed round the brim of his hat. The men took fright and bolted on seeing him, and a rumor soon got abroad in the neighborhood that the devil had been seen at midnight near Greenhill Pond.—Wilkinson Sherrin, in T. P.'s Weekly.

IN DARKEST AFRICA.

Adventures of an Englishwoman in Wild Nigeria.

Mr. P. Amaury Talbot, a Nigerian commissioner in Southern Nigeria who has arrived in London after nearly two years' travel in unexplored parts of Nigeria, gives an interesting account of his experiences in the Southern Nigerian bush—the home of witchcraft.

He was accompanied by his wife during this long journey, and large portions of the territory covered had never been visited before by a white woman.

Mr. and Mrs. Talbot found two "Lakes of the Dead," each guarded by an enormous serpent; and they visited a native town where all the houses were built of ebony and all the occupants were cannibals.

In an interview with Renter's representative Mr. Talbot said: "The Southern Nigerian bush, with its soft green twilight, dark shadows, and quivering, light is peopled by many terrors, but among these 'Ojje' or witchcraft, reigns supreme."

Sometimes the terror of witchcraft will scatter a whole town. This happened at Obarekiki (Obekiki)—Crab Kudi, once a large and prosperous place which stands on a tributary of the Kwa river. To-day it is deserted and desolate, and with rapidly advancing bush growth, is but a shrunk-on survival of former prosperity.

"Should the suspicion of witchcraft fall upon any one, only trial by ordeal can free them. The most usual one is that of eating acorn, a poisonous bean, which almost invariably kills the suspected person. The ordeal of boiling oil, poured upon the palms of the hands, and of pepper-corn inserted in the eyes, are less dreaded."

One of the most interesting discoveries was that of the Lake of the Dead in the Oban country.

"After a struggle through dense bush we could see the edge of a sheet of water along the banks of which were the holes of crocodiles whose tracks covered the shore."

"The scene was a weird one; the surface was absolutely still, and round about were ten feet high bushes, with what were apparently great tufts of creamy flowers. These, however, proved to be nests of tree frogs."

"The place is a sanctuary for all wild things, for no hunter would dare to penetrate the bush to this dreaded spot. As we stood at the edge, gazing out over the water, its quiet was suddenly broken by a broad ripple, and little fish were seen to spring agitatedly above the surface. A great python was coiled, and this, we learned, shared with the crocodiles the guardianship of the sacred lake."

"Nothing, we were informed, must be allowed to trouble the water, or even to touch its outer edge, or famine and pestilence would ensue. Here, according to popular belief, come by night the ghosts of long dead Kidi, to drift in sad companies hopeless and waiting over the surface of the water. Even in the bright sunlight the place has an uncanny look."

Describing a visit to a district where all the houses were built of ebony, Mr. Talbot said:

"The side of our tent almost touched a little ebony hut built over a large and gruesome-looking pot, the sides of which were ornamented with iron hooks. Before this, about breast high, and the length of a man, was a kind of altar, made of stout ebony blocks."

"In front of our tent door was a tall carved pillar, ornamented with strings of human skulls. The people all had the filed teeth and thin shrunken appearance which are always associated with cannibal rites. All our carriers said that not only was the pot in the little hut meant for the sacrifice of human victims, but the two hideous mud figures of a god and goddess in another shed on the further side of the carved pillar had had their heads worn away by the constant libations of human blood poured over them."

A Distinguished Educationist.

Great interest has been aroused by the announcement that the Prince of Wales is to go to Oxford next term. He will reside at Magdalen College, of which the president is Dr. T. H. Warren, who has occupied this post for the past twenty-seven years.

Dr. Warren, who is Professor of Poetry at Oxford, is one of the most distinguished and best known men in Varsity circles.

A writer who has known Dr. Warren for many years gives the following pen picture of him: "Dr. Warren is the sort of old-world courtesy, has charming manners, and soon makes everybody feel at home who comes under his sway. He captures the freshman by his unassuming tact and pleasant speech; he is nevertheless, one of the most dignified dons in the University, so far as looks and demeanor."

How Elephants Are Fed.

Elephants in the Indian army are fed twice a day. When their mealtime arrives they are drawn up in line before a row of piles of food. Each animal's share includes ten pounds of raw rice, done up in five pound packages, wrapped in leaves and tied with grass. At the word "Attention!" each raises its trunk and a package is thrown into its capacious mouth. By this method not a single grain of rice is wasted.

Preventing a Collision.

When warships are steaming in fleet formation through fog it becomes necessary to provide some marking by means of which the vessels may maintain their place in line and at the desired distance from each other. The usual method adopted by British fleets when caught in a fog is the trailing of a buoy in the water behind each vessel. This buoy makes a hissing noise, which is easily heard by the lookouts on the ship following as well as leaving a wake discernible to the eye.

A Footstool Church.

Mr. Raymond Unwin told a story relating to the building of St. John's Church, South square, Westminster. The architect, he said, was reputed to have worried Queen Anne about the design. Her majesty, at length losing patience, kicked her footstool over and remarked in anger, "Build it like that!" The architect fulfilled the royal wish, and the church was built as it stands to-day—with the corner protruding upward like the four legs of a stool.

Snowshoe Rabbits.

The big snowshoe rabbit or northern hare of Arctic Canada is something of a dresser. It wears a white coat in winter and a gray one in summer, the better to conceal itself from its enemies by looking as the ground looks in the two seasons.

A TOTAL SOLAR ECLIPSE.

It is a Very Impressive and Most Wonderful Spectacle.

One of the most beautiful and interesting sights to be seen is an eclipse of the sun. It is quite a remarkable fact that the sun is 400 times as broad as the moon and at the same time is about 400 times as far away. So as they appear to be the same size.

A total eclipse of the sun is a very impressive and wonderful sight, says Harold W. Clark in Farm and Home.

As the time of the total eclipse draws near the darkness increases. About two minutes before totality the darkness can almost be felt. Man's face shows a copper color, which makes them look ghastly. Birds cease their songs and go to roost. Flowers close, and as awful stillness rests upon all the face of Nature. The temperature falls and dew appears. Then away to the west we see the shadow of the moon coming with almost terrifying swiftness. It comes at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour and pounces upon us so suddenly that we are startled.

Looking at the sun, we see it wholly covered by the moon, but surrounded by a brilliant light that flashes out all around it. This is the corona and is seen only during total eclipses. The eclipse lasts only for four or five minutes, and then the shadow of the moon passes us, and we can see the sun again.

If we should ever be so fortunate as to get a chance to see a total solar eclipse we should count ourselves lucky indeed. It would be worth going many miles to see.

GHOSTS OF THE LIVING.

A Case That Throws Light on the Problem of Apparitions.

It is not at all necessary to resort to the supernatural as the only sufficient explanation of apparitions. In truth, there is one insurmountable obstacle to regarding them as supernatural manifestations, and that is the simple circumstance that the ghosts wear clothes. It is quite conceivable that there really may be ghosts of persons, but nobody who gave the matter a second thought would contend for a moment that there can be ghosts of clothes. Nevertheless apparitions are always clothed and sometimes in garments of such modern cut that they were unknown at the time the person seen as a phantom lived on earth.

Aside from this, there is the interesting and by no means unimportant circumstance that houses are sometimes haunted by apparitions not of the dead, but of the living. I know of one case in which a gentleman entering a drawing room at 4 in the afternoon saw seated on the sofa a young lady with "reddish gold" hair, who appeared to be reading a book. There were two other people in the room, one seated beside her on the sofa, and the visitor was surprised to find that they did not offer to introduce him to the young lady—did not, in fact, seem to see her. Later a guest at a week end party saw the same apparition in the same house, and it was seen a third time by one of the servants.

No light was thrown on the strange affair until, a year afterward, the wife of the son of the family arrived from Australia to pay a first visit to her husband's relatives and was immediately identified by the servant as the figure who had seen. The two visitors who also had seen the apparition subsequently made the same identification.

Since it is incredible to suppose that a person can be in two places at the same time—so that a lady can be both in Australia and in a house thousands of miles from Australia—it is a legitimate inference that phantasms, whether of the living or of the dead, are devoid of objective reality, are, in other words, always and only hallucinations.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Headaches Over the Eyes Mean Frontal Cataract

APT TO GET INTO EARS, CAUSING DEAFNESS, OR TO REACH THE LUNGS AND END IN CONSUMPTION.

You Can Cure Cataract in Any Stage by Breathing the Healing Balsamic Fumes of Catarrhose, and Here is Proof.

Mr. Urie Berault, a young gentleman who has lived for years in Sweetburg, Que., inherited cataract from his mother. The disease spread through his system till he was a physical wreck.

"As a child," said Mr. Berault, "I was prone to an ulceration of the mucous lining of the throat and nasal passages."

"I grew pale and emaciated, lost all desire for food, and got in such a dreadful condition that my friends said that Cataract was fairly eating me up."

"Every organ of my body seemed affected, and the doctor said it was the first stage of consumption. He advised Catarrhose and I inhaled it ten minutes at a time every few hours, and was rewarded in a few days by a wonderful improvement."

"Catarrhose pleased me so much that I used it continually, and took Ferruccio Tablets after each meal to build up my strength. In about three weeks I was quite recovered, and the doctor says no remedy but Catarrhose could work such a miracle."

"Everyone in town knows I was just about dead with cataract, and now is an evidence of what Catarrhose can do. It is a pleasure to recommend Catarrhose."

Two months' treatment, large size price $1, and guaranteed. Small size, 50c. All reliable dealers or the Catarrhose Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont. Beware of dangerous substitutes and imitations for "Catarrhose."

Park St. Church Successful Concert.

The Harvest Home services at the Park Street Baptist Church ended with a social and concert on Monday evening, which was attended by a large audience. Rev. W. C. Riddell presided and the program was opened with an anthem by the choir.

Trenton Man Killed by Train.

Mr. Marnaduke Terrill of the undertaking firm of Messrs. McNair & Terrill, Trenton, was found dead and mangled behind the Central Ontario roundhouse at that town on Friday last. It is thought he was struck whilst crossing the track to meet friends at the G.T.R. station.

Mr. John Robeson's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Mr. John Robeson was held yesterday afternoon at Little Lake Cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. John Stanger, Wm. Hill, John Baptie, J. D. Craig, Wm. Long and James Mitchell. Rev. Robert Power, pastor of St. Paul's Church, conducted the services.

Casey Jones for Orillia.

Denham Jones, commonly known as "Casey," the boy who has been a source of annoyance to merchants, trainmen and others, will in all likelihood be sent to Orillia Asylum within a week or so. Magistrate

Dumble gave an order yesterday morning for a physician's examination of the lad for the purpose of ascertaining whether he is a fit subject for confinement in the Asylum.

Ladies Insulted in East City.

On Monday evening two ladies residing on Briscoe Terrace, East City whilst peacefully passing along the street were accosted by a stranger, who proceeded to get "fresh." The stranger followed the ladies for several blocks, until they disappeared into a house near the corner of Hunter and Mark streets.

Successful Concert in Lakeside.

The Lockburn-Scott concert in Lakeside on Monday night was a splendid success in every respect. The concert was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the church. A program was rendered, both instrumental and vocal by Lakeside talent and that says a whole lot for Lakeside people.

Local Man Wins at Variety.

Michael O'Brien of Peterborough, made a good showing at the Variety athletic games in Toronto on Saturday, winning the broad jump from Joe Bricker, the all-around champion, by two inches. The local boy, who is attending St. Michael's College in Toronto, is a promising athlete. He also won the hurdles, and running broad jump events in the later-scholastic games Friday of this week.

Falling Wall at Belleville Injures Three.

As a heavy steel beam weighing 30 tons was being swung into place on the Marsh and Hawthorn building at Belleville on Saturday, one of it struck a wall causing it to buckle and a section 35 feet wide and 20 feet high to fall. Three workmen were seriously injured and some for a while lay in an almost miraculous escape.

Mr. John Crowley's Funeral To-day.

The remains of the late John Crowley who lost his life by drowning in Wimpole, last week, have arrived in the city, by C.P.R., and were removed to the home of his father, in Douro, Mr. H. O. O'Rourke accompanied the body. The funeral will take place this morning at nine o'clock from his father's residence, Douro, to St. Joseph's church, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery.

Treasurer—Gordon S. Matthews.

The election of four representatives to the Executive will take place within a few days.

Who May Vote on Local Option.

In an article on the Local Option law in yesterday's issue, the last paragraph is open to misinterpretation. The paragraph referred to says "In order to vote on the by-law a person must have been a resident of the municipality three months prior to the date of taking the vote." It seems that this paragraph has been interpreted by some readers to mean that residence in the municipality for three months entitles a person to vote. This is wrong. Section 141a of the Act says practically that in addition to having his or her name on the last revised voters' list, it is essential that such voter must have resided at least three months in the municipality prior to the vote.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

We will give One Hundred Dollars by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; else cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Lindsay Whiskey Cost $10.

Is it the same "old gag" or did a blacklisted man in the police court yesterday tell the truth. The "Lindsay" in question, after spending a few exciting hours in liberty, as noted in yesterday's issue, spent Monday night in the police station. On awakening yesterday morning with a head so galled he may have felt like borrowing a shoe-horn to get his hat on, this man had to face the Cadi on a charge of imbibing. He was not entitled to. He gave that moss grown story of "meeting a complacent stranger" who bought whiskey for him. A well will tell us the case was enlarged, whether that "stranger" story had any foundation or not. Another blacklisted man with a similar offense, blamed Lindsay whiskey for his undoing. He was fined $10. Well, Lindsay whiskey stories may cost more, but they are fresher than some of the worn-out stranger tales.

WEDDING BELLS.

Brady-White.

Early yesterday morning a pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Peter's Cathedral, when Caroline, the daughter of Mr. Erick White, Rubidge street, and Mr. Claude H. Brady were made man and wife by the Rev. Dr. O'Brien, of the Sacred Heart Church and cousin of the bride.

The bride, charmingly attired in a tailored blue serge suit with a white beaver hat, and carrying a white rosette, the gift of Father McCauley, walked up the aisle leaning on the arm of her father, by whom she was given away. Miss Ethel Judge was the bridesmaid and Mr. Joe White acted as best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Brady left for a wedding trip to Toronto, Hamilton and Paris, Ont., and on their return will reside at 14 Aylmer street.

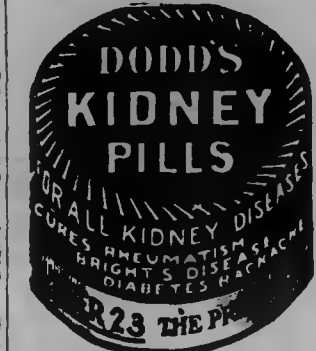

NERVE WON HIM LIBERTY.

Quick Wit and Daring Rescue of a Russian Revolutionary.

Nowhere outside of the pages of fiction would we expect such an incident as the following from the personal story of a Russian revolutionary. Yesterday, Narodny had just jumped from a window to escape the police. "When I scrambled to my feet I discovered myself in the yard and among half a dozen soldiers. I was without overcoat and hat—a very suspicious figure even could I get by the soldiers who surrounded me," he said.

"I jerked a card from my pocket—to this day I do not know what it was—and handed it to one of the soldiers. 'Here is my card,' I said rapidly. 'I am a member of the secret police. One of these revolutionists is trying to escape. I am after him. Quick! Give me your coat and hat!'

"He automatically obeyed. I slipped on his coat and hat and to all appearances was a soldier of the czar. I walked past the guarded gate of the yard out into the street. Before me were thousands of soldiers. I saw my friends being brought down from the hall and put into the black vans, about which stood guards of Cossacks. I marched through my friends' call of that group are on prison today save only myself and the friend who escaped with me with the air of a soldier on a very important message and pressed on through the mass of other soldiers that filled the street."

223 THE PR

The Change of a Word.

"Spanking" did not suggest chastisement originally. It was unknown to Johnson in this sense. To him a "spanker" meant "a person who takes long steps with agility." Rapid motion seems to be the root idea of the word "spank," which is not merely representative of the sound of the act, as "clap" and "smack" are. The low German "spanken," or "spanken," to run and spring about quickly, is close to the original meaning; hence a "spanking pace," a "spanking breeze" and a "spanker," in the sense of an active and sturdy person.

Learning Knots Rivets.

This would not seem to be a pleasing occupation even if the rivet is caught in an old mail bag, yet the feat is constantly performed by workmen. Ordinarily they catch rivets in a rivet bag or something of that sort, but there are men who catch rivets with a pair of tongs—just reach out for them and slip a red-hot rivet out of the air with the nipper part of the tongs in striking feather out of the air with its beak. The feat is commonly seen by persons who watch workmen on high buildings—Harper's Weekly.

Bending Wood.

Wood may be made soft and flexible by steeping it in a concentrated solution of common table salt to which some acetate of iron has been added. A better method is to immerse the wood in a bath made by dissolving twenty-five parts of calcium chloride in a hundred parts of water. It should be left there for some time and after bending thrown in cold water to harden.

He Would Divide.

"Yes," said the eminent specialist to the tramp who had called upon him. "I will examine you carefully for ten dollars."

"All right, doc," said the tramp resolutely. "do dat, an' if you find I'll give you half."

Your Brain Is a Battery

Its thoughts are the sparks that set Success in motion

The simplest form of battery requires three factors to make the electric spark—(zinc, copper, and an acid).

The human brain also requires three vital elements to put forth thought—water, albumen and Phosphate of Potash.

In the Brain as in the Battery, let a single element become weakened from yesterday's use, and lessened activity follows. Therefore, in order to keep a good working brain or add to its power, one absolutely must use food which contains albumen and Phosphate of Potash.

Why not do a bit of thinking now?

Water and albumen exist plentifully in every-day food, but Phosphate of Potash is often lacking.

That missing element exists freely in the outer coating of wheat and barley, but the miller of white bread flour throws it out because it makes his flour brown instead of white.

Grape-Nuts FOOD

Made of choice wheat and malted barley, retains the rich brain-building Phosphate of Potash required by Nature for supporting bright brains and active minds.

Pure! Wholesome! Appetizing! This food is partly pre-digested and quickly absorbed. A morning dish with cream provides force for accomplishment that many a man has come to know and appreciate.

Common Sense goes a long way toward making Success.

To eat right often means to BE right.

GAMBLER'S WIDOW ON STAND DENIES A PLOT OF WITNESSES

Mrs. Rosenthal, With Nervously Twitching Hands, Protected By The Judge From Many Questions—Defence Gains Nothing in Cross-Examination

New York, Oct. 16.—The State planned to call Mrs. Herman Rosenthal to the stand at the resumption of the Becker trial to-day, in an attempt to trace through her the alleged partnership between Rosenthal and Police Lieut. Becker, and the quarrel that resulted in the murder. She will be the first and perhaps the only woman to have testified at the trial.

Mrs. Rosenthal has previously testified before the Grand Jury of the raid by Becker's men on her husband's gambling establishment, of the meetings between Rosenthal and the police lieutenant, and of the death threats she received after he had told the District Attorney of the workings of the "system." She has been in poor health of late, however, and it was expected that her testimony to-day would be concluded as soon as possible.

Gambler as the Slayer.

John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for the defense, has not intimated yet whether he will put Becker on the stand or call any witnesses. He indicated his line of defense for the first time yesterday when he sought to bring out in the cross-examination of Sam Schepps, a clique of gamblers, not Becker, ordered and brought about the murder of Rosenthal.

Widow on the Stand.

Mrs. Rosenthal took the stand at the opening of the court. She was dressed entirely in black. From her sombre hat there was draped back over her shoulders a flowing veil of crepe. The only jewelry she wore consisted of a pair of pearl earrings and her wedding ring.

INSANITY IN HIS FAMILY BUT THINK HIM LEGALLY SANE

New York, Oct. 16.—That for three generations there has been insanity in the family of John Schrank, the assassin of Colonel Roosevelt, was the state told to-day of persons who have known him for years. The grandfathers of the attempted murderer was a rich Bavarian brewer, who had to be guarded closely during his last years. The same unaccountable cropped out in Schrank's father, and Schrank himself has always been taciturn and moody.

John Schrank was brought to this country by his uncle and aunt, Dominick and Anna Flammang, twenty-nine years ago. Flammang opened a saloon at 370 East Tenth street, and the boy was known to his schoolmates as John Flammang. When 15 he went behind the bar of a uncle's saloon, and in 1902 the uncle gave the place to his nephew. There was surprise when the name John Schrank instead of John Flammang was put up by the new proprietor, but he explained that this was his own name.

Thomas Harris, president of the Liquor Dealers' Association, said to-day that Schrank was a member of the organization and was always regarded as "a little bit off his head."

Mad Financial Reserves.

Schrank's aunt, Anna Flammang, died in 1907 and Schrank was so overcome with his grief fears were entertained for his sanity. In 1911, Schrank's uncle Dominick died, leaving everything to him. The popular estimate of his fortune was $25,000. Soon afterward Schrank moved to Brooklyn and obtained lodgings near Greenwood Cemetery, spending hours daily at the graves of his relatives.

Last February, Schrank, apparently having suffered financial reverses, found a job in the saloon of Edward Hahorth, in Brooklyn. He was discharged, and brought suit for $11 wages. The suit was decided against him, and he threatened the life of the judge.

Schrank then came to Manhattan and took lodgings at the Canal street hotel, which he left to follow Roosevelt.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN LETTER COLLECTION

Many More Steel Letter Boxes to Be Added and Tri-Bally Collections Hereafter.

The Post Office Department through the efforts of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., are placing 41 additional steel letter boxes throughout the city. The first shipment of these has already arrived, and are now being installed. The whole of them will be installed and ready for use this week.

Heretofore, our collector did the work of collecting the mails. The city will be divided into two separate routes, each attended to by a competent man. Instead of two collections a day, there will be three daily collections. The morning collection will begin at 8.30, the afternoon and the evening at 9. This will be greatly appreciated by the public of Peterborough.

BOSTON IN A BLUE FUNK NEW YORK IN SEVENTH HEAVEN

Boston, Oct. 16.—Raymond Hitchcock used to sing a topical song, entitled "Ain't it Funny What a Difference Just a Few Hours Make?" which, if sung to-day, would hit off the world series situation to a nicety.

Boston, after premature rejoicings, is in a blue funk at the collapse of the Red Sox, and New York supporters are in the seventh heaven of delight, because the Giants have come from behind, in the most unexpected manner, and tied up the championship, with the old master, the mighty Mathewson, held in reserve for the final and deciding struggle to-day.

Boston Being the Worrying.

That is another cause of worry for Boston. Who will save the day for the Red Sox—youthful Bedient, who pitched so brilliantly on Saturday, or will it be the pride of Boston, Joe Wood, now in temporary disgrace, after having been battered of the rubber yesterday? All Boston's hopes centre on Jake Stahl's answer, but no one will know until the team lines up in actual conflict to-day.

MARRIED.

POPE—DOBBS.—On Wednesday, Oct. 16th, 1912, by the Rev. Isaac Couch, B.A., B.D., Constance Winifred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Dobbs, 622 George St., Peterborough, to Mr. Harry Bonfield Pope, of Westmount, Que.

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Southwest winds, fine and a little warmer.

PRINCIPAL IN THE NEW YORK POLICE CASE

DUKE ISSUES A WARNING ON TOO MUCH SPECULATION

Brandon, Oct. 16.—Summing up his Western tour, in reply to a civic address to-day, the Duke of Connaught offered a note of warning against the results of over-confidence, saving "that development—sometimes over-optimism—in the business is as true in the history of a prosperous young country as it is the case of a growing child. The discomforts known in a child's 'growing pains' are apparent in the case of a young country in the form of over-speculation and consequent temporary and local distress. General health in both cases remains unimpaired, though the pain may be acute. That there is danger of such over-speculation in the Dominion is undeniable, but the wealth of the country and the energy of Canadian people are sufficient to minimize what harm may be done."

AWAITING WESTERN MINISTERS MR. MONK HAS NOT RESIGNED

Course of Minister of Public Works Will Be Decided After Naval Policy is Determined

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—It is emphatically denied this morning that Hon. F. D. Monk has handed in his resignation or has decided to resign when the naval policy is announced. However, that does not mean that the Minister of Public Works will not retire before the opening of the House. It is understood on good authority that the Cabinet has not yet come to a decision on the naval policy which will be presented to Parliament, as the Premier has been waiting for the return of the Western Cabinet Ministers. Hon. Robt. Rogers and Hon. Dr. Roche and Hon. Martin Burrell have been in the west during the past couple of weeks, and such a serious question could hardly be settled without the attendance of the Western Ministers.

Hon. Dr. Roche returned to Ottawa yesterday and Hon. Robert Rogers will be back Thursday, while Hon. Martin Burrell will be in Ottawa next week. With their return the Premier will lay before the Cabinet the information gathered in England along with the additional information received from the Admiralty since his return and a policy will be formulated. When this policy is decided upon Mr. Monk will then have to decide whether he feels he can conscientiously support it or whether he will retire. In the meantime Mr. Monk has not resigned, and is not worrying over it. These are the facts of the case as explained by a high official.

INSANE MAN DISROBED AT QUEEN AND YONGE

Toronto, Oct. 16.—Ernest Darrell started an evangelistic meeting at the corner of Queen and Yonge streets yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock. He was going to convert the world in a week. After a short address he said he was going above and proceeded to undress for the occasion.

The constable interrupted the process just when Darrell was about to discard his shirt.

There is little doubt concerning the prisoner's mental condition, but the court remanded him for a week until the doctors pronounced upon it.

"Let me see your dog, Borden, before we arrange any scrap."

TURKEY IS MUCH AMUSED

Balkan Ministers Sitting on Their Trunks Awaiting Orders

IGNORED BY THE PORTE

London, Oct. 16.—The conclusion of peace between Turkey and Italy has caused a feeling of general relief, as it removes the great possibility of complications arising out of the Balkan crisis. It leaves Turkey free to prosecute war with her neighbours and enables Italy to take her place in the concert of the Powers.

The great European nations under the leadership of France are exerting every effort to localize the conflict which is momentarily expected to become general along the frontiers of Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro and Greece.

The Powers thus far remain firm in their determination not to allow any change in the territorial situation in the Balkans when the war is over, no matter what may be its result. At the same time they call upon Turkey to carry out the promised reforms in her European Provinces in a satisfactory manner.

The Turkish Charge d'Affaires at Sofia to-day notified the Bulgarian Government of his intention of leaving and asked for his passports. He expects to depart to-night.

Demand an Apology.

Otherwise Turkey is treating the note sent to it by the Balkan nations with contempt, although it is reported she will demand through the Powers an apology from the allies for the way they addressed her.

THREE DOCTORS WILL EXAMINE THE ASSASSIN

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 16.—District Attorney W. C. Seibel to-day appointed three physicians, whose names he withheld, to make an immediate examination into the mental condition of John Schrank, the man who attempted to slay Col. Roosevelt here.

The physicians he said, had experience in handling sanity cases and they will examine Schrank some time to-day.

PRICE OF COAL JUMPS AGAIN

New Selling at What Was Formerly Considered Strike or Famine Figures.

New York, Oct. 16.—A Wilkesbarre Pa., despatch says: Coal took another jump here to-day, and nut and stove sizes were sold by the independent operators for $5.35 a ton on cars at the mine.

This is $1 above what has heretofore been considered a good price for coal, except in times of a strike or an actual famine. The large shippers are not realizing on the advance. The big companies have contracts by which they are tied up to $3.75 a ton for these sizes, and they are rubbing their product to Canadian and lake points before navigation closes.

ROOSEVELT IS OUT OF DANGER "FEELING FINE," HE PUTS IT

Doctors in Statement Declare They Have Now No Concern And Fear No Complications—King Cables Sympathy

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Following is the statement issued by the physicians at 9.04 a.m.:

"The records show that Colonel Roosevelt passed a very good night, his temperature and pulse are normal; that his highest pulse since 9 o'clock last night was 80, temperature 98.8, and that his pulse at six o'clock this morning was 74 and his temperature 98.6 and respiration 20; that he is having less irritation of his pleura, from the injured rib than he did yesterday; that he did not have to have an anodyne for the pain. General condition excellent."

(Signed)

"Dr. J. B. Murphy,
"Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan,
"Dr. Scurry L. Terrill."

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, his family with him, and satisfied as to his condition, to-day rests at greater ease than at any time since the hand of John Schrank was lifted against his life in Milwaukee Monday night.

Physicians examining his wound to-day and making a complete clinical examination, found his pulse, respiration and temperature to be nearly at normal, that concern over his condition vanished and the extremely conservative conduct gave way to a desire to establish public assurance that no complications now were looked for to stand in the way of rapid recovery.

A Message From King George.

Mrs. Roosevelt to-day received the following cablegram from King George: "I have been very much concerned to hear of the dastardly attack upon Colonel Roosevelt's life, and trust that he will recover speedily."

King Christian of Denmark, also sent a message of sympathy.

EDDIS HURLED HIMSELF OVER ROSEDALE RAVINE BRIDGE

Well-Known Insurance Man, Suffering From Despondency, Ended Life in Tragic Manner

Toronto, Oct. 16.—As a climax to an attack of melancholia of nearly two months' duration, Mr. J. H. Eddis, a well known insurance man, 54 years of age, unmarried, and a member of one of Toronto's oldest families, and who roomed at 1474 Church street, committed suicide at 8.05 o'clock this morning by throwing himself from the Sherbourne street bridge to the roadway 90 feet below.

The act appears to have been a most deliberate one. Leaving his room soon after seven o'clock, Mr. Eddis took his morning paper from the hall. It was by the name on this that the body was later identified. A belt line car took him to the bridge over the big ravine. The name of only one man who saw the mad plunge, Mr. Fred Carlton, 767 Markham street, was obtained by the police.

Death Almost Instantaneous.

Death was almost instantaneous. The man's chest was badly crushed and his right leg broken.

The body lay by the roadway for some time until the arrival of the police ambulance in which it was conveyed to the morgue. The Chief Coroner decided that death was clearly the result of a deliberate suicide and that an inquest was unnecessary.

"For two months he has not been the man he used to be. He has been very despondent," said the landlady at 1474 Church street. The other roomers were greatly shocked when they were told of the tragedy. None of them could throw any light on the reasons for Mr. Eddis' strange conduct and despondency for some time past. They did not believe that financial difficulties were responsible.

An eyewitness of the tragedy, Mr. Fred M. Carlton, a contractor's assistant, working at 1 Schofield avenue, Rosedale, tells the following story of what he saw. He was the first to approach the injured man.

"I was riding down Sherbourne street in the street car on the way to business," he said, "and as we approached the turn I glanced over the bridge, as we always do at that point.

"Suddenly the motorman yelled: 'There goes another man over the bridge.'

"I saw a man suddenly whip off his coat, scramble up the railing and leap into space. It was all over in a moment. He was quick as a flash.

"The motorman hurried the car," continued Mr. Carlton, "and then jammed on the brakes.

"We all sprang out and several looked over the railings to see where he had fallen. I, however, ran straight across the bridge and down the path at the side. When I got there the man was lying on his side, face downward in the grass near the foot of the hill."

WEDDING BELLS

Pope—Dobbs.

Last night at 8.30 a pretty wedding was solemnized in the presence of immediate friends of the contracting parties, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Dobbs, 622 George street, when their daughter, Miss Constance Winifred, became the bride of Mr. Harry B. Pope, son of the late Mr. Robert Pope of Peterborough, and Mrs. Pope of Westmount, Que. Mr. Pope is engineer in charge of the power department of the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Co. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Isaac Couch, B.A., B.D., pastor of George street Methodist church. The wedding march was admirably played by Miss Dorothy Dobbs. The bride's gown was a charming creation of white duchess satin with imported tulle of net embroidery with crystals and pearls. This was augmented by her wedding veil and pearl band. The house decorations were white and yellow chrysanthemums, and the bride's bouquet was of similar flowers. The happy couple were recipients of many handsome presents, including a beautiful silver salver from the office and editorial staff of the Review, and a hummed oak davenport from the Review Company. Mr. Pope was presented with a magnificent cabinet of silver and handsome silver tea service, with tray for Mrs. Pope, by his associates in the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Pope left on the midnight for a bridal trip to be spent in Ottawa, Quebec and Eastern townships.

Bates—Guerin.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, when Mr. Thomas Bates was united in marriage to Miss Lorraine Guerin by the Rev. Father McColl.

Rev. W. J. Mayers and Dr. Barnardo's Boys' Special Musical Afternoon.

Saturday, Oct. 19th, at 3 in the Collegiate Hall. Delightful selections on many beautiful and curious instruments. Pictures and stories of Dr. Barnardo's work. Admission 25c, children 15c. Sunday, Oct. 20, Great after-church rally and musical service in Opera House at 8.30, ex-mission to adults only. Collection. Rev. W. J. Mayers preaches Sunday morning in St. Paul's Presbyterian church, in the evening at the Revere street Methodist church. Retiring collection.

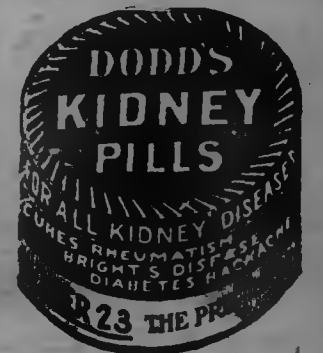

Come and see, hear and help.

Taylor—McCoy.

A quiet wedding took place at the Charlotte street church parsonage, Reid street, yesterday morning, when Miss Lottie K. McCoy became the bride of Mr. George Chester Taylor. Rev. T. J. Mansell tied the nuptial knot. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will reside on Frederick avenue, where Mrs. Taylor will receive the last week in November.

Webster—Flynn.

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday morning, when Mr. Michael Webster, of Rochester, was united in marriage

THE BEST INVESTMENT IN THE NORTH

Why?

Because:

It is close to Calgary, the "City Phenomenal."
It has natural advantages.

It has a magnificent view of the mountains and northern part of the city. Unexcelled drainage close to present street cars, on line of proposed Interurban Railway.

EUREKA CAUSTIC BALM

"Important to Horsemen."
"Is one of the most wonderful discoveries in the Veterinary World."

The balm is made by a process in its own right, and can be used in all cases where causticity is required. It is a powerful antiseptic, and is used in the treatment of all kinds of wounds, cuts, bruises, and burns. It is also used in the treatment of all kinds of skin diseases, and is a most valuable remedy in all cases of inflammation.
It is sold by all druggists. Prepared by Dr. O'Hall, a well-known veterinary surgeon and chemist of 40 years' experience.

MEMORY OF SAVAGES.

Wonderful Feats of the Zulus in Conveying Verbal Messages.

The memory in savage or uncivilized peoples is often trained to a degree very surprising to those civilized men and women who have grown used to depending on the written word.
The transmission of whole epics, like the "Iliad," by word of mouth no longer seems so incredible when you read of the feats of memory of which recent Zulus are capable.

These people, says Mr. Gibson in "The Story of the Zulus," have no writing and are accustomed to transmit messages and record events by memory alone. This they can do because their mental impressions are made especially distinct by reason of their acquired or inherited habit of giving undivided attention to the subject in hand.

Communications between the British authorities and the Zulu kings were almost invariably conducted by means of verbal messages carried by natives.
A certain ultimatum addressed by the British to Cetshwayo was conveyed to him, not upon paper, but in the brain of the messengers whom he had sent eighty miles to receive it from the British commissaries.

Although the document contained some 4,000 words and was accompanied by much comment on the state of things it was desired to remedy, the whole was repeated to Cetshwayo with perfect accuracy.

An Absent-Minded Inventor.

Several new stories have just been told about the famous Canadian inventor, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell.
It appears that Dr. Bell hates the telephone, so much that he does not make use of it unless he cannot possibly help it. In fact he has never appreciated its usefulness. Dr. Bell tells a story of how he was in a house where a child began to cough in the middle of the night, and the family heard the cough sound croupy. He went to the telephone and asked a medical man to come over at once.
It was an inconvenient hour, and the medical man desired some reason.
When he heard what it was he asked why the child could not be brought to the phone. The inventor was immediately struck by the idea that it was quite possible, so that doctor decided over the telephone that the child did not have croup.

Anemic Mothers

Here is Relief

You can Enrich Your Worn-out Blood and Quickly Renew Your Health With Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Sufferer of Twenty Years States Dr. Hamilton's Pills Are a Real Cure

"I can't remember any time during the past 20 years when my head was so aching. If I bent over, dark specks would come before my eyes, and it seemed as if all the blood in my body wanted to rush to my head. Thus opens the letter of Mrs. Enoch S. Spry, of Putnam P. O., and containing her interesting statement she says: 'Work of exertion made my heart beat terrible, and going upstairs caused such shortness of breath that it fairly frightened me. My doctor told me that if that was the cause, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the greatest blood renewer on earth. I feel strong enough now to work like a man, as far as going upstairs on the run. It doesn't bother me at all. I eat and sleep as well as any person ought and as for dizziness, which used to frighten me so much before, it has entirely disappeared. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful woman's medicine. They helped me in other ways, too, and I know every woman that sees them will have comfort and good health. Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. 25c per box. All dealers or the Cataract Co., Kingston, Ont.

she has to go out and steal it. They do not consider that a woman has no more obligation to do that than a man has and that oftentimes she not only makes a home but does very much more to support a home than the men of a household.

People who have to earn a living are going to earn it, and those that have brains are going to earn it in a mental and intelligent way, rather than in a strictly manual way. They will substitute the labor of the mind largely for the labor of the hand. They are doing it by millions and they will continue to do it and both the wise and sensible thing and honest thing is to recognize their right to do it, just as much as it is a man's right and a man's duty to exercise whatever faculties are given him, mental or physical, or both, to earn a living.

CHEQUES CASHED FREE

Government Employees Not Obligated to Pay the Banks for Having Their Cheques Cashed.

The attention of Mr. J. H. Burnham M. P., has been called to the fact that employees of the Trent Valley Canal frequently discount their cheques at the Banks, and he at once took the matter up with the Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals. The following correspondence will explain itself:

"Ottawa, Oct. 15, 1912.

"Dear Mr. Burnham: 'I have yours of Oct. 12, in reference to a charge of 35c made by some bank at Peterborough in connection with the payment of wage cheques for employees of the Trent Valley Canal and I beg to enclose herewith copy of a report from the Chief Engineer, which speaks for itself. There is no reason why these men should have to pay anything for the cashing of their cheques.

"Yours very truly,

F. COCHRANE."

The following is the Chief Engineer's letter:

"Ottawa, Oct. 14, 1912

"Memo. to the Minister: 'All payments on the Trent Canal are made by cheque on the Bank of Montreal, which cheques are paid at par.

"In the case of men working part of a month, or men who may be leaving the locality, the Superintendent always has a 'special advance' on hand to pay such men before the regular monthly pay day. 'It is understood that all chartered banks in Canada cash Government cheques at par. 'Nothing is known here of charges made for cashing cheques.

"Chief Engineer."

It transpires that Col. Roosevelt was only half shot.

That crank in Milwaukee who shot at Col. Roosevelt should have remembered that it is still close season for deer, and let the Bull Moose go.

The report that Thomas Edison is at work on a new talking machine indicates that he is foolish enough to think he can produce something that will eclipse our own Sir Wilfrid.

With ten thousand Russian Jews coming to Canada to form a colony in Saskatchewan, there may yet be hope of seeing a New Jerusalem in the west.

A scientist declares that the speed mania has converted a great many automobilists into nervous wrecks. (This g.f.) would like to have him diagnose the case of the man who has to dodge them.

The report is that Greece expects to become involved in the Balkan war and is calling her sons home to the support of the colors. This means that the shoeblackening industry in Canada is going to be paralyzed.

The officials of the Philadelphia Friction Company say that the experiment of using women as street car conductors is a success. Probably they were helped in reaching the conclusion by the fact that the pay of the women conductors is less than that of the men.

A local poet, who resides in Macdonald, where a strenuous contest has just ended, wrote a Winnipeg Liberal paper previous to the vote: election day is coming 'round, 'Get ready for the polls, 'Go down into your bowlegs, men, 'And leave out your souls. But in view of a subsequent appeal for funds, this g.f. thinks it would have been better if the poet had addressed the patriotic citizens to go down in their pockets and yank out their rolls.

MAN IN WOMEN'S SPHERE.

A short time ago some Ohio women waxed indignant because for the third year in succession a man had won first prize at a county fair for the best embroidery work. This was looked upon by the indignant women as an invasion of a field where a man has no right to appear, and they threatened to boycott the fair if this victorious fellow ever again becomes a competitor.

But it is well to say that in the same State of Ohio it has come to pass that a woman has taken an exactly opposite view of men's participation in feminine pursuits. This woman is Dr. Helen C. Putnam, who argues in favor of the education of men and boys in the duties of

EARNING MONEY AT HOME!

It is one of the signs of the times that a book can be written under the title "A Hundred Ways to Earn Money at Home." It is matter of common knowledge that the young woman to-day is usually better educated than the young man in general knowledge and in the training of an academic sort that school gives, that is, the training of the mind, without regard to a particular calling to be pursued when school days are over.

The vocational school has its use and its place. The manual training school is much the same thing, perhaps, with narrower range. But the women who are highly intelligent and have fine minds and have some leisure on their hands are very numerous and no doubt it is a genuine blessing to such as desire to earn money at home, to have some sort of guide about what to do and how to do it in order to accomplish that end. It is not fair to say that the world is commercializing, when women try to earn money for the family, instead of giving all their time to household work. It is indicative of the mood of our generation that the individual mind shall have its freedom and be privileged without criticism to live its course in such way as shall be at once most satisfactory to the person, and helpful to the household of which one may be connected.

For the usual doctrine about women's work is that her place is in the home and that she must stay there. Whether she has any home or not, seems not to be considered by the critics. They assume that it is a woman's business to get a home if

The rapid expansion of the circulation of The Times during the past year or so is a strong proof that its attitude on the No Tamers Decree and other burning questions is popular. It would indicate that the time is at hand when an agitation will be gin for the abolition of every special privilege granted by the Government of the country to any church or sect.

The combined stores of Peterborough can easily outrival any two city departmental stores in the stocks carried, the prices offered, and the quality of goods sold.

Investigation will prove this point beyond dispute.

When you have ALL the big store stocks here to choose from you have more variety than any city departmental can give you in any one line.

By trading here you have the opportunity of inspecting the goods and comparing values on this spot.

You save the time, trouble, postage, express, and disappointment.

You have immense stocks of new goods to choose from.

You have the reputation of business men who are here all the time to back up the quality of what you buy.

You are not trading sight unseen. You see the goods you buy, and buy the goods you see.

It Will Pay You to Trade in Peterboro

Just make that comparison once or twice and

INDIA'S SACRED MONKEYS.

An Intruder Into Their Jungle Retreat
Got a Good Scare.

In various parts of India monkeys are regarded as objects of worship.
One of the principal monkey temples is at Nudda. Such veneration is shown there to Hanuman, the monkey god, that visitors may not enter the court of the temple without removing their shoes.

On one occasion an English officer, in passing up the country near Nudda, chanced to stroll into a bamboo jungle when his boat had "put to" for the night. He had not advanced far before he heard a terrific uproar all about him, and he was not a little alarmed to behold a whole army of the largest monkeys he had ever seen making toward him from all quarters.

Some jumped on the ground before him, others swung by the bamboos over his head, and many closed up the path in his rear. Several females had young ones clinging to them, but this fact did not seem to render them less agile than the others.

The Englishman knew not what to do. He yelled at the top of his voice for assistance. To his intense relief, each time that he yelled the monkeys retreated a bit. This encouraged him to persevere in his shouting, but he observed that when he himself began to retreat the monkeys would again begin to close in upon him.

Then he stood still and gave one tremendous shout, whereat the monkeys went back again. This time the man had gained fully twenty yards and was about to repeat the call when there appeared a new figure upon the scene in the person of an aged, decrepit woman hobbling through the midst of the animals.

This aged person shook two or three of the monkeys by the paws as she passed. No sooner had she come within hearing of the Britisher than she opened upon him the visals of her wrath for disturbing the sacred animals in their retirement. She bade the intruder depart, and that quickly, an order which he lost no time in executing. The monkeys all seemed implicitly to obey the old woman's bidding, making way for the man's retreat.

The old woman, it appeared, was employed by the Brahmins to supply the monkeys with their food each day.
They were worshipped by all the people in the country round, who brought offerings of rice and sweetmeats to them continually.—Harper's Weekly.

Dancing Stars.

The spectroscopic makes the starry heavens to the astronomer's eye appear almost as full of many motions as is a cloud of billows dancing in the sunshine. Every increase in the power of the observing apparatus brings to notice new spectroscopic binaries, which are simply double stars that cannot be seen separately either because of their extreme closeness or because only one of them is a shining body. It is the erratic motions of these stars that reveal their true character. One of them discovered within recent years is Eta Orionis, which hangs just below the belt of Orion. Sometimes this star is speeding toward the earth more than forty miles a second and a few nights later is hurrying away with a similar velocity.—New York Sun.

A Paradox.

A maiden well advanced in years used to wait every morning for the postman, a bachelor of about her age, and ask him if there was not a letter for her. Several weeks passed thus, but the anxiously expected letter did not arrive. Finally one morning the postman said to her, "Well, tomorrow you shall get your letter, if I have to write it myself."

"That's right; do it," replied the old maid. "I shall be delighted to accept it."

"Well," said the postman, smiling,
"what do you want me to write—a business letter or a love letter?"

"If you mean business please write a love letter," was her blushing reply.

OLD ROMAN BATHS.

They Held Theaters, Temples, Feasting Halls and Libraries.

The ancient Romans were extraordinarily fond of bathing. They got their notions about the bath as a luxury from the Greeks, and at one time there were nearly 900 public bathing establishments in Rome, some of which were the most beautiful and elaborate structures in the world.

The baths of the Emperor Diocletian covered more than half a square mile and contained, besides immense basins and thousands of marble rooms, theaters, temples, halls for feasting, prom-enades planted with trees, libraries, schools for youth and academies for the discussions of the learned. The bathers sat on marble benches below the surface of the water, around the edge of the basins, scraping themselves with the dull knives of metal and ivory and taking occasional plunges into the water.

Dissipated Romans would spend whole days in the bath, seeking relief from overindulgence in eating and drinking the night before. Everybody, even the emperor, used these baths, which were open to every one who chose to pay the price of admission.
It was not usual for the old Romans to have baths in their homes, though at a date 1,500 years before that, or 2,500 years ago, the noblemen of ancient Greece had their dwellings supplied with baths of terra cotta.

He Hadn't Heard of Boorotas.

A big policeman who walks a beat near the Greek settlement in the north side always gets angry when he hears this told at his expense, but there are those who will vouch for its truth:

About a month ago a young man, very much excited, rushed up to this policeman and exclaimed:

"Say, Jim, did you hear about a Greek by the name of Boorotas taking poison?"

"I did not," Jim replied innocently.
Then he added, thoughtfully striking his chin: "Sure, that's the first time I ever heard of a Greek going up against anything stronger than what he calls his own coffee house. I guess I'd better look this up and hustle all the details to the department. It's an unusual case."—Kansas City Journal.

EDUCATION IS MOTION

THINGS ARE MOVING FAST THESE DAYS. Sciences change over night. Discoveries are of last week. Inventions of yesterday. The man or woman who is progressing is keeping abreast of the times. 'Tis not enough that you graduated from this University or that College. The world asks: "What do you know to-day?" Education is motion. You move with the tide of events or you find yourself hull up on the mud-flat. Encyclopaedias that served you well within the last decade are now practically obsolete. They know nothing of the Titanic disaster, the Discovery of the South Pole, the Monorail, Wireless Telegraphy, the Airship, the Turko-Italian War—or Hundreds of other subjects of to-day or tomorrow. The one Encyclopaedia that keeps up with you, and you up with the times, is this and perpetuated by Thomas Nelson & Sons on the Loose-leaf Principle.

NELSON'S PERPETUAL LOOSE-LEAF ENCYCLOPÆDIA

Nelson's Patent Loose-leaf Binding Device has revolutionized the whole world of Encyclopaedia making. It has made possible a work that is right on the heels of history.

Nelson's maintain three permanent Editorial Staffs: European Editor, George Sandeman, M.A., Edinburgh, Scotland; Canadian Editor, Wm. Peterson, L.L.D., O.M.S., Princepal McGill University, Montreal; American Editor, John H. Finley, Ph.D., LL.D., President of the College of the City of New York.

Nelson's contains upwards of 70,000 subjects, treating over 1,000,000 topics; has 7-000 illustrations and 500 maps. It is the only absolutely new and dependable reference work because the Loose-leaf Binding Device makes it possible to keep the work always up-to-date.

Read these Letters:

J. A. Macdonald, Managing Editor of The Globe, Toronto, writes:—
"I have had occasion to resort quite frequently to your perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia for information of many sorts, and have found it exceedingly helpful. This remark applies especially to history and its allied departments of knowledge; Chronology, Biography and Geography. There is a decided advantage in the loose-leaf method of keeping the Encyclopaedia up-to-date over the yearly supplemental volume method, and one that is not un-to-date is worse than useless."

H. J. Silver, Montreal, writes:—
"In November last the Protestant Board of School Commissioners supplied a copy of Nelson's Perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia to each of its High Schools, to the Superintendent's office, and to one of its Public Schools. The Principals of these schools have expressed their hearty approval of the work and its usefulness to their pupils. Personally, I have found the work and the Bureau of Research particularly useful to me."

His Painful Debut.
"I shall not easily forget my debut," Mr. Charles Wyndham said on one occasion. "We opened at Washington, and I appeared as a character who had to declare, 'I am drunk with love and enthusiasm.' Having uttered the first three words, I was seized with stage fright and said no more. This is what I read in a New York paper the next morning: 'A Mr. Wyndham represented a young man from South America. He had better go there himself.'"

A Coin's Journey.
An interesting story of a half sovereign's journey is related in the monthly magazine issued by the Great Western Railway Co., England. It appears that a ticket collector dropped the coin on the footboard of the 11.5 a.m. two hours' express from Paddington to Snow Hill station, Birmingham. The train sped off before he was able to snatch the half sovereign, and yet the coin was still in position when the train reached Birmingham. A fortnight later from the footboard of the Fishguard express at Reading after a fast run from Paddington.

The Cattle Plague.
The first recorded instance of cattle plague invading England occurred so long ago as the year 1709, when a "black murrain," probably anthrax, killed nine-eighths of the cattle then living in Great Britain.

Bees in New Zealand.
Subject to Government inspection, 16,000 New Zealand farmers keep bees.

Children's Books in Olden Times.
The earliest books for children were schoolbooks pure and simple. The titles of some of them suggest entertainment and refreshment, but the arid pages baffle the promise. For instance, an old Latin grammar, published in 1570, had for sub-title, "A delicious Sympre newly Clarified for Young Scholars yt thirste for the Sweete Lycture of Latin Speche," but the "Lycture" is a very turgid, confused flow of pedantry. A different style is suggested by the name of another schoolbook written by one Elisha Coles in 1673, "Nolens Viciens, or you shall learn Latin whether you will or no," a title which suggests a vigorous application of the birch.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

Melody Becomes Malady.
That persons have very diverse ideas and tastes in music was exemplified in an incident at a public vocal recital lately. A young woman was having quite a struggle with a song and one woman in the audience said to her companion:

"Isn't that a beautiful melody?"

"It sounds more like a malady to me."—St. Louis Post Dispatch

SANDS THAT SING.

A Scientist Declares That Scotland Has the Best Singing Sands.

A lecture given recently at the Royal Societies Club by Mr. Carus-Wilson was devoted to a consideration of the extraordinary sand known as "musical" or "singing" sands.

The best singing sands in the world come from the Isle of Egg, off the coast of Scotland, and it is comforting to know that whatever figure Britain may cut in grand opera, she is at least prominent when it comes to a question of singing sand. But what is singing sand? Mr. Carus-Wilson went to great pains to leave no doubt on the subject, and although his audience contained many eminent geologists, he asked leave to begin at the very beginning and to treat his audience "as an audience of boys."

The lecturer showed how the rocks of which the earth is composed are decomposed by the action of natural causes, chiefly the weather; how cliffs become boulders; how boulders become pebbles, and pebbles in turn become sand. In the course of time it occurs that nature, that most versatile old lady, produces a kind of sand which has music in its soul; a sand composed of quartz, rounded and highly polished, of a uniform size, and very clean.

And when these are agitated so as to produce vibrations, by means of the wind, by being trodden upon, or by being struck, they produce musical notes. Such perfect deposits are found in the Isle of Egg, and it was by means of samples of the real Egg variety that the lecturer produced musical notes.

Filling a wooden egg-cup with sand from the Isle of Egg, he stabbed the sand with a wooden needle, and a musical note came from the egg-cup, and produced a high musical note. The sand behaved better in the egg-cup than in anything else. In a cardboard box the musical note remained dumb, as it did in a flower-pot and in the half of a rubber ball. In half a wooden Easter egg the sand from the Isle of Egg, as the lecturer remarked, "positively revealed" its surroundings, and emitted a sharp, joyous squeaking.

Musical sands have been known for 1,000 years, and it is believed that there is a reference to them in one of the tales of the "Arabian Nights."

But nature, who conducts experiments on a scale far greater than those of the Royal Societies Club, produces much finer results. There is the Mountain of the Bell on the shores of the Red Sea, which makes extraordinary sounds and booms when the winds set the countless millions of particles rubbing against each other and vibrating.

IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

What Occurs When Two or More Peers Want to Speak at Once.

There is no rule against a dozen peers, or the entire peerage for that matter, rising and addressing the Lord Chancellor at the same time. The Lord Chancellor has no power to select the peer who shall speak. A Lord Chancellor's leg may be pulled, we imagine, but his eyes can never be caught. For all he can do, two peers wishing to address the House and refusing to give way one to the other could stay on their feet until one of them dropped from exhaustion.

This is no exaggeration. Within living memory two peers engaged in an adventure which at first threatened to develop into a time down contest after the manner of Goldsmith's dancers. It happened in 1884 on a warm July day and was very entertaining while it lasted.

The two were Earl Granville and Lord Cairns. Both rose simultaneously to speak. The two peers stood facing each other at the table, and each tried to speak while their parities kept shouting "Granville!" and "Cairns!" in an aristocratic manner.

Lord Selborne sat on the woolsack helpless. The scene might have lasted until either Earl Granville or Lord Cairns had fallen fainting had not Lord Beauchamp earned immortal fame by creating a precedent in the House of Lords. He moved, in a tone of anger, that Lord Cairns be heard, and Lord Cairns, in a similar tone, moved that Lord Granville be heard.

A vote was taken, and Lord Granville won by a majority of one in a House of fifty-three excited peers. So the Lord Chancellor at any time finds himself confronted by a peer, a peer but obstinate orator, there is a precedent to fall back upon which may be found useful.—London News.

How an Orang Outang Travels.
It is a most interesting sight to watch an orang outang make its way through the jungle. It walks slowly along the larger branches in a semi-erect attitude, this being apparently caused by the length of its arms and the shortness of its legs. It invariably selects those branches which intermingles with those of a neighboring tree, on approaching which it stretches out its long arm and grasping the boughs opposite, seems first to shake them as if to test their strength and then deliberately swings itself across to the next branch, which it walks along, as before. It does not jump or spring, as monkeys usually do, and never appears to hurry itself, unless some real danger presents. Yet, in spite of its apparently slow movement, it gets along far quicker than a person running through the forest beneath.

Wild Orchids in England.
Few of our English flowers attract more attention or are more interesting than the wild orchids. Mr. E. J. Bedford, one of the first of our English nature photographers, is making a collection of photographs of these plants, and he contributes to "Knowledge" for the current month descriptions of some of the rarer species, and pictures of some of the forms which he has recently discovered in Sussex. The illustrations include the plants growing among their natural surroundings. Among others are the Spider Orchis, the little Bug Orchis, and the Lizard Orchis, with its curious prolongations of the floral leaves.

Faked Butterflies.
One of the meanest frauds on record is that which is said to have been practiced recently on entomologists. It appears that there is a systematic trade in forged butterflies carried on by European dealers. The method as described is to cover the wings of moths after setting with a heavy coat of powder, which is then tinted with pastel colors to suit the taste of amateurs. Not content with imitating the rarer species, the forgers have recently been improving on nature and selling hitherto unknown varieties at unheard-of prices. One expert was for while taken in with a red butterfly with blue polka dots, but this bold piece of imagination ultimately led to the exposure of the fraud.

LETTER-HEAD SWINDLERS.

Warnings to Traders and Others in the Old Country.

The up-to-date swindler has to be something of a student of human nature, says London Tit-Bits. And one of the human weaknesses that he has discovered and made use of is the unreasoning confidence placed by the average business man in an imposing letter-head, especially if the letter-head is that of a firm of known respectability. One is apt to forget that a letter-head is an extremely easy thing to forge, with the result that one rarely suspects that the letter was not written by the firm whose name is printed on the notepaper.

Of course, the letter-head swindler is not so clumsy as to walk into a printer's and order the name of a firm to be printed on notepaper. The chances of detection would be too great. He goes to work much more subtly.

He obtains, by any of a dozen different ways, the letter-head of a business concern. This he takes to a printer in the neighborhood, and asks him to set up a proof of the letter-head. If satisfactory the printer is to receive a good order.

In due time he calls for the proof, expresses satisfaction, but states that, before giving the order, he must take it back to "the governor."

He has now a clean piece of paper, inscribed with the name of a respectable firm. He immediately writes upon it an order to another firm in the same line of business, stating that the goods are required in a hurry, and that some representative "will call for them at a certain time."

Before there is time for correspondence he calls, and, stating that he has come for the goods referred to in the letter, coolly takes them away and leaves his victim to find, perhaps some three months later, when an account is presented, that he has been duped, and that the firm to whom the goods were supposed to have been supplied have never even heard of the transaction.

When he is dealing with heavy and valuable goods this swindler, true to the principle that thoroughness pays, will frequently present himself with a card which he has hired, and upon which he has invested a few shillings' worth of paint. And when the victim sees a substantial card, with the name of his supposed customer on it, he is less likely than ever to request cash with order.

Another dodge of the letter-head swindler is to use this device as a means of persuading tradesmen to cash worthless checks. He will load about suburban districts and note the names of the tradesmen's carts that deliver goods.

He will then have expensive notepaper headed with the name of one or more houses. On this he will write a request to the tradesman to "cash a small check for my friend Mr. Chas. Tem." Armed with this, he will dress himself well, lounge into the shop in the earlier part of the morning, explain that he is staying at the particular house, draw an excuse for being suddenly short of cash, and in most cases obtain four or five pounds for his worthless check.

Walking.
The Almighty has not frightened the foot with a single superfluous part. Every inch of every foot is meant for use. When a man walks in the right way, speaking literally, the back of the heel strikes the ground, and the rest of the heel comes down after which the outer edge of the foot takes the bulk of the burden until the forward movement shifts the weight to the ball of the foot and finally to the toes. The heel step is a slight rocking motion. At no time does the entire foot be pressed against the ground. Head to toe is the movement. Try it and see how much further and more easily you can walk. It's the Indian's way, and what for? Lo! doesn't it seem to go into the ground?—New York Times.

Chronic Throat Trouble Permanently Cured

SEVEN DAYS' USE OF CATARRHOZE LAE MIRACLE.

Miss Counter's Case Proves the Wonderful Efficacy of Catarrhoze in All Throat and Nose Diseases.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 16.—Miss Counter's case will prove of great interest to everyone troubled with sore throat, bronchitis or weak lungs. When asked for a statement, Miss Counter said: "About seven years ago I contracted a heavy cold that settled on my lungs and resisted all treatment. After I had tried several doctors here and specialists in Detroit without benefit, I went to my aunt and asked her for the best remedy she had for cold in the lungs. She recommended Catarrhoze. Which cured my cold in one week. I brought back my voice, and I have been ever since free from my old trouble. For coughs, colds and lung trouble I am sure that Catarrhoze is the best remedy. It goes right to the sore spot, gives quick relief, and makes a lasting cure. Catarrhoze cures because its healing vapor is inhaled to the very places that are sore and inflamed. To permanently cure your winter cilia, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhoze. But beware of the substitutor and imitator. Look for Catarrhoze only. 50c and $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhoze Company, Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada."

Tea and Coffee

are a frequent cause of many human aches and ailments.

But people seldom lay the blame where it belongs until troubles multiply and the doctor says "quit tea and coffee"

The tea, or coffee drinker who is annoyed by headache, nervousness, indigestion, heart palpitation, biliousness or lack of sleep, can prove to a certainty whether tea and coffee are the cause by stopping ten days and using

This healthful beverage, made entirely of choice Northern wheat and the juice of Southern sugar-cane, tastes much like coffee, but contains no caffeine, the habit-forming, health-destroying drug in both tea and coffee.

Everyone can drink Postum with fullest benefit.

Thousands of former tea and coffee drinkers have found it a means of regaining health and increasing their comfort.

OIL! OIL! OIL!

Oil is becoming the dominant factor in industrial development. It is replacing coal as a fuel and is now in successful use in smelting ores. Its by-products are a necessary part of human existence all over the world.

The newest oil regions of the globe, and the most prolific, are on the Pacific Coast.

A new Company has been organized in Seattle, Washington, to exploit some of these profitable new fields. Its Board of Directors are well known business men of Seattle and Vancouver, B. C. Its representative will be at the Oriental Hotel, Peterborough, in a few days, and will offer investors an opportunity to join with it in the profits to accrue from development of oil fields in British Columbia, California and Alaska.

Mr. Simon Windsor went to Peterborough Saturday on business.

Mr. James Downing has returned from South Burlington, where he has been for the past two weeks as engineer on the stone crusher and reports a good job done as far as it went. At the rate they are making the road lately, we may expect the crusher to get to Apsley within a day at the least. 30th.

Wednesday, the 9th, was commercial travellers' day in Apsley. No less than four in the village. F. Cory, representing the hardware firm of Fotheringham & Co., Montreal, was the first to arrive, and as usual booked a large order with B. Then Messrs. Hardill, Sherwood and Taylor, for Peterborough firms, drove in, but no Ernie, as he was up with a hunt club. Someone, it seems, had been telling these last mentioned commercial travellers that at this time of year bears were very numerous, so they brought along just for defence a powerful 22-calibre rifle and plenty of ammunition and were expecting to take home with them a fine bear skin as a trophy, but alas the largest and most ferocious animal they saw was a red squirrel. Sherry took a couple of shots at it, but missed by several yards. Guess he had squirrel fever. However J. W. was bound to have it, so threw a bolt of new superior brand of catnip; he missed also but the bottle broke and the strength of the contents killed the squirrel, or at least he said so, and you know he never lied. At any rate the squirrel has never been seen since. While driving home a dispute arose as to who was the best shot, a bet of $50 was made and Taylor being the driver held the stakes and gave the other two ten minutes to settle the dispute. A stone was placed on the top rail of a fence and J. G. after taking careful aim, fired. A couple of dust was seen about 200 yards up the hill and a stampede among the cattle. Sherry took his chance and knocked a splinter of the bottom rail about 3 yards to the right. The driver called time and they had to hustle aboard. Neither having won Taylor kept the stakes and has them yet. The most amusing part was that although they all claimed to be hunters. When it came to loading for the first shot none of them knew in which end of the rifle the cartridge. Rent until they met a young lad on the road, who kindly showed them. They all booked good orders in Apsley bought a fresh supply of cartridges and started home determined to get that bear.

No we have been anxious about them ever since and you would confer a great favor if you the next day let us know whether your a.f. whether they got home o.k. or not, also as our versions of the shooting did not corroborate, are they reliable men?

Note of Editor—Rest easy. they got home o.k., though we notice one has a slight limp in his right leg. But it might be rheumatism. As to their verdict, ask us sometime else—a combination of hunter and commercial is a doubtful proposition.

Paul Jones' Promise. After the great fight in which John Paul Jones in the Bonhomme Richard made splinters and shreds of the British vessel Scourge the English government generously decided that, though vanquished beyond a question, the captain of the lost vessel had behaved with becoming bravery and deserved promotion to the rank of commander. John Paul Jones heard of this promotion and he came and said, "Well, by George! if I ever meet that chap again I'll make him an admiral."

Messrs' Work. Messrs lived thirty-seven years. His first man was composed when he was less than ten years of age, and the enormous quantity of his compositions was the work of the succeeding twenty-seven years. Messrs wrote forty-one symphonies, fifteen masses, over thirty operas and dramatic compositions, forty-one sonatas, together with an immense number of vocal and concerted pieces in almost every line of art.

A Wasp's Nest. One kind of wasp found in Brazil and Guiana makes its nest of a brilliant white paste-board, surrounding it from the highest branches of the tree so as to escape the attention of the monkey, which in those regions have a troublesome habit of investigating everything, even a hornet's nest.

New York, Oct. 17.—The tentative outlines of the defence of Police Lieut. Becker, as reported this morning, call for the appearance in Becker's behalf of William Travers Jerome, former District Attorney of New York, John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for Becker, would neither confirm nor deny the report. It was said, however, that Jerome would be called to refute Jacv Rose's testimony concerning his (Rose's) last telephone conversation with Becker after the murder. Rose, in telling of this conversation, quoted Becker as having guilty knowledge of the murder.

Jerome, it was said, having been present at the Bar Association with John W. Hart, of counsel for Becker, will say that Becker did the telephoning there and said nothing to indicate any connection with the murder.

Rose swore also that Becker telephoned from a public pay station. The defence will also try to show that the State seek to sacrifice Becker and let the informers go scot free and that, as a matter of fact, Rose was the victim of a gamblers' conspiracy. A mass of evidence will also be introduced attacking the character of the State's witnesses, all supporting the contention of the good character and reputation of the defendant.

Becker May Take Stand.

Shortly after the opening of court Mr. McIntyre was asked if Becker would take the witness stand in his own defence.

"He may," was the reply.

DYNAMITE BOMB IN CHICAGO POST OFFICE

Startling Discovery Made by Clerks Who were Sorting Mail.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Clerks sorting mail in the Chicago Post Office yesterday, discovered what is believed to be a dynamite bomb wrapped in a package and addressed to a man whose identity is not disclosed.

The explosive was rolled up in heavy cardboard with both ends sealed with plaster of paris. A fuse to which a paper fitted with matches was tied, protruded from the center of the roll. Detectives were entailed to trace the sender of the package.

MAN THOUGHT TO BE DEAD FOUND BY INSANE BROTHER

Strange Case of Alexander and Harry Hills Now Inmates of the Mimico Institution After Many Years of Separation

Toronto, Oct. 17.—After years of separation to recognize, at a religious service in an asylum where both were confined, a brother believed to have perished in the big Fernie fire of July 31st, 1908, was the strange experience recently of Alexander Hills, whose relatives are well known in Toronto. Years ago the brother, Harry, heard the call of the West and settled down in Fernie, B. C. After the disastrous fire which all but wiped out the town more than four years ago, no word was received from him, and he was believed to have perished in the conflagration. But such was not the case. The mind of the young man had become affected and he left for the Western States and was for a time detained at an asylum there.

The authorities learned, however, that he came from near Toronto and secured his deportation. For a considerable time he was in Mimico Asylum, unknown to his friends and relatives here. Some months ago, however, Alexander Hills, 35 years of age, was placed in the same institution.

On a Sunday morning recently, when the inmates were gathered in the Assembly Hall for the usual religious service, the older brother noticed a strange familiarity in the appearance of one of his fellows in misfortune. Suddenly his face lighted up with a knowing expression, and turning to the warden, he exclaimed "That's my brother!"

At first no attention was paid to him, but upon investigation it was found that his memory had not played him false. His brother Harry, a man of 30 years of age, was confined in the same institution.

INDUSTRY TAKES A BIG TOLL IN LIFE

Increase of 115 Accidents Reported for the Month of September.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—According to the record of industrial accidents maintained by the Department of Labor, during the month of September, 80 workmen were killed and 419 injured, a total of 508. Compared with the record for August, this is an increase of one fatal and 114 non-fatal accidents.

Steam railway service accounted for 29 fatal and 123 non-fatal, metal trades for 3 killed and 72 injured; mining for 20 killed and 42 injured; and the building trades for 30 killed and 33 injured.

BOARD OF CENSORS TO WATCH THE PLAYS AT THE THEATRES

Toronto, Oct. 17.—The problem of securing a censor for the city theatres which the Police Department has asked the Board of Control to solve is already passing the latter body. Before they are through with it it will probably puzzle them a good deal more.

"Haven't had time to consider it," is the way most of the controllers avoided a direct answer this morning.

Controller Foster had a suggestion, however.

"Why not let the Moral Reform Department of the different churches suggest some outside body, and I am sure it would please them to be consulted. It will be a very difficult position to fill. I quite realize that."

But, of course, we haven't had time to consider the matter at all as yet."

Board's Meeting To-day.

At this morning's session of the board the matter was referred to a sub-committee.

This was the resolution sent by the Police Board to the controllers:

"That the Board of Control be requested to appoint a censor of plays whose duty will be to supervise all plays in theatres in this city, and remove the police from such duties, which do not properly belong to them."

THE WEATHER.

To-day—Southerly winds and fair until night.

Marie Nabbert and Cecil Lyndon, dainty dancers of renown to be seen with Joe, M. Gaites' smartest of all musical comedies, "Three Twins" which will be presented at the Grand Opera House, Saturday, matinee and night, Oct. 19th.

WRIT TO BE ISSUED AGAINST NICHOLLS HOSPITAL RE HERRON

As an aftermath of the inquest, ended Tuesday night, on the late Mrs. Susan Elizabeth Herron, who it was alleged had her death hastened by an accident which occurred yesterday, a writ to be issued against Nicholls Hospital, rumors have been current on the street that the family of the deceased were not satisfied with the verdict of the coroner's jury. To be more exact, Dame Rumor says that whilst the verdict was according to the evidence given

NO LONGER ANY CAUSE TO WORRY OVER ROOSEVELT

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Six doctors, making the most extended survey of Colonel Roosevelt's condition attempted since his arrival at Mercy Hospital, this morning found his condition as near normal as a wound man could be and renewed their assurance that there was no longer cause for worry.

It was also announced positively, Col. Roosevelt would not leave the hospital until next week at least. The following bulletin was issued by the physicians at 9:05 a.m.:

"Pulse 72, temperature 98.3, respiration 18 all night. Wound dressed looks well, some oozing. Examination by Dr. Alexander Lambert shows lungs in good condition, general condition splendid. The case is progressing so favorably that unless some complications occur, the bullet will not be removed at present."

OF IMPORTANCE TO LOCAL INVESTORS

Colonial Oil Co., With Directors Highly Recommended by Commercial Agencies, Offers a Fine Prospect.

In today's issue of the Times appears an introductory advertisement of the "Colonial Oil Company," who are developing properties in British Columbia, California, Washington and Alaska, and who offer for sale stock in their organization, to carry on their development work. The value of their different properties are vouched for by eminent authorities, both English and American, reports from whom can be had on application to this office, as well as a detailed description of the company's different properties—There are oil companies and oil companies, and Investigations by the firm and the Brooklyn detective bureau were without definite result, but the rumors, chiefly in the form of anonymous letters and newspaper messages to the police and newspapers, persisted until the firm has finally requested that the case be turned over to the District Attorney's office for an official investigation, which is now appearing to be the form of a hearing of witnesses by the grand jury.

An obstruction to the feast which seems unlikely to be removed.

TURKEY FORMALLY DECLARES WAR AND ORDERS A GENERAL ADVANCE

WHY TURKEY DECLARED WAR.

Constantinople, Oct. 17.—A note addressed by the Turkish Government this morning to the Bulgarian and Serbian legations here said it was impossible to maintain peace any longer notwithstanding that it was the ardent desire of the Porte to do so. It was therefore obliged to put an end to the missions of the Bulgarian and Serbian legations and the diplomats were invited to withdraw their passports and leave Constantinople at the earliest moment.

The note stated that the step was taken in consequence of the recent note handed in to the Turkish Government by the Balkan States, which Turkey considered constituted an interference with her internal affairs. A second factor was the mobilization undertaken by Serbia and Bulgaria and the third reason was the daily skirmishes on the frontier.

MR. W. MCILROY OFF TOMORROW

Popular Local Man Gets An Important Promotion

Mr. Wm. McIlroy, who for the past eight years has ably filled the position of up-town C.P.R. ticket agent, leaves to-morrow to enter into a larger sphere of business, in Hamilton. During his occupation of the local office, Mr. McIlroy has become an important factor in Peterborough's progress, both financially, socially and musically circles. This popular citizen whose departure will cause a void not lightly to be filled, has been in the employ of the C.P.R. for 21 years. For seven years he was chief clerk at Galt, when promotion came rapidly and steadily. He next held the position of agent at St. Thomas for a year and a half. Then he was transferred to a similar position at Galt, where he remained five years. His next promotion was the Peterborough office.

The transition to C.P.R. ticket agent at Hamilton is signal proof of the high esteem in which Mr. McIlroy is held by the company. His new office is one of the best in the company's gift, and augurs well for still more rapid promotion in the near future. The subject of this has, as intimated, taken an active part in matters pertaining to municipal and business affairs. In social circles Mr. McIlroy held an enviable position; the music loving portion of the community will sadly miss Mr. McIlroy's presence. Still, whilst his departure is regretted, his many friends will wish Mr. and Mrs. McIlroy every prosperity in their new home.

ALL WITNESSES ARE HELD TO BE IMMUNE

Montreal, Oct. 17.—That a witness giving either verbal or written testimony in a British court of law is immune from prosecution on account of such testimony, is the general effect of a judgment handed down by Justice Denlop in the action of Martin Honan a local advocate, against Frederick J. Farson, of the McDonald Wilson Company, Limited.

Servian Army Repels Tribesmen and Kills 200—Montenegrins Capture 1,200 Men, Fourteen Guns, and Several Months of Supplies From Turks

BALKAN STATES DIPLOMATS ARE SENT AWAY

Constantinople, Oct. 17.—The formal declaration of war against Servia and Bulgaria was published by the Turkish Government today.

FIGHTING ON GREEK FRONTIER.

Athens, Greece, Oct. 17.—Fighting between the Greek army and the Turkish forces stationed along the frontier began early today.

KING FERDINAND LEAVES FOR THE FRONT.

Sofia, Oct. 17.—King Ferdinand with his staff has left for the headquarters of the Bulgarian army near the Turkish frontier.

It is believed he will issue a proclamation to the nation or make a formal declaration of war from that position.

LEFT WITHOUT HIS PASSPORT.

Athens, Greece, Oct. 17.—The Turkish Minister to Greece left Athens today without complying with the formalities usual in such cases and without asking for his passport.

Constantinople, Oct. 17.—Hostilities were opened at half-past two this morning by the Turkish troops at various points on the Bulgarian and Servian frontiers.

The divisions of the Turkish army were ordered to take a simultaneous forward movement. In giving the order for a general advance, the Ottoman War Minister mentioned only that the movement was to be made against the frontiers of Bulgaria and Servia.

There is a powerful Turkish army concentrated near the Greek frontier, but this has not yet been put into motion.

The Ottoman Government this morning handed the Servian and Bulgarian Ministers their passports, and they will leave immediately.

Greek Gunboats Dash.

Athens, Greece, Oct. 17.—A dash of Greek gunboats was accomplished this morning by the commanders of the Greek gunboats A and D.

At 1 o'clock they made a dash to force the Turkish blockade at the narrow entrance to the Gulf of Argos, towards the coast of the other Greek. They were observed from the Turkish fort at Preveza. Destroyers Escort U. S. Volunteers.

Athens, Oct. 17.—An escort of four destroyers is conveying the Greek steamer Macedonia with a number of Greeks, Bulgarians and Servians on board, who are returning from America to join their regiments to fight against the Turks. She carries also a large cargo of ammunition.

TO STOP BANISHMENT OF CRIMINALS TO SIBERIA

New York, Oct. 17.—That Russia is to abolish the dread decree of banishment to Siberia by order of the Czar is the news received here in advice from St. Petersburg.

The Russian Minister of Justice, it is said, is preparing a bill completely abolishing penal servitude in Siberia, and substituting the same punishment in penitentiaries of European Russia.

Of late years the number of convicts in Siberia has been increasing and there have been protests from the free population that the country is overrun with the scum of European jails.

The authorities recognize that the dumping of convicts in Siberia is seriously hampering the development of that country.

FATHER VAUGHAN TELLS HOW TO MAKE GOOD IN WEST

Moosjau, Sask., Oct. 17.—Father Bernard Vaughan, who arrived here yesterday, being interviewed regarding his impressions of the West, said:

"To my way of thinking there never was a land so ready to give a living wage to anyone ready to give in exchange for it an honest day's work."

"My advice to old country men coming out to this country is 'leave your eyeglass at home, and your knickerbockers and your hypercritical and your snoring habits. Put on a pair of overalls, pull up your coat, pull up your sleeves and put your back into your work while you are at it. Then, instead of being all in, down and out, you'll come out on top and become a useful member of an enterprising community and not at all a bad advertisement for the old country."

CANADIANS WHO ATTENDED THE 1,000 POUND BANQUET

London, Oct. 17.—W. J. Gage, G. T. Somers, president of the Toronto Board of Trade; W. F. Cochrane, M.P., Granville, Cunningham, representing James Ross, of Montreal and W. K. George, were the guests at the Duke of Westminster's banquet in Grosvenor House last night, to promote the cause of Imperial preference and tariff reform.

This is the banquet to which the Chronicle says, the condition of being a guest was the subscribing of a thousand pounds to the cause.

A MILLION DOLLARS. This vast sum is said to be saved Canadian Railways by Crosscutting Cuts-Ties.

The annual replacement of cross-ties in Canadian railway lines is a cost of 10,000,000, according to statistics compiled by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior. The average life of a tie, i.e., seven years, could be prolonged to seven years if proper preservative treatment were adopted, and an annual saving of 350 million feet, board measure, of timber, could be effected. This is equivalent to three years' cut of one of the very largest mills in the country.

While the initial expense of erecting in Canadian railway lines is a cost of 10,000,000, it would save $1,400,000 annually.

Since 1910 two timber-treating plants have been established, treating in 1911, 200,000 ties, or 1.5 per cent. of the total cut. The number of ties purchased in the Dominion in 1911 was 13,683,770, an increase of 4,469,808, or 48.5 per cent. over 1910. The rapid development of railways

ACUNT SALLY'S ADVICE TO BEAUTY SEEKERS.

Red Nose. The nose is a more delicate organ than most people imagine. It should be touched as little as possible. For undue redness the treatment recommended in following paragraph will be found effective. Apply without rubbing.

Moody Skin. The sanest, safest and surest method of giving a clear, healthy, transparent appearance to the complexion is to apply ordinary macerated was every night for from one to two weeks. This wax, obtainable at any drug store (one ounce is sufficient), actually takes off a bad complexion by gently and gradually absorbing the thin veil of surface skin. The new skin then in evidence is as fresh and velvety as a young girl's. The wax is applied like cold cream and washed off mornings.

Wrinkles. A harmless lotion made as follows has been found very effective in cases of wrinkles and flabbiness: Powdered sorbitol, 1 oz., dissolved in white hand, 1 pt. Bathe the face in this occasionally.—Woman's Realm.

A SCARE IN 1912.
Thrilling Incident in the Life of a Steeplejack.

B. J. Dodson is a steeplejack. He has been steeplejacking for a long time. He learned the business from his father, who steeplejacked before him. And he really likes his dangerous profession.

"Don't you ever get scared, Bill?" he is often asked.

"Sometimes," replies Bill truthfully. "But not often. I used to get scared and scared, though, when I was a youngster and just breaking in. I remember one of my first jobs.

"I was working with my father on the roof of a big church in a city of some size. It was a big job, but we were handling it together—just the two of us. The flag pole needed repairing and there was a big gilt cross that was loose and had to be fixed. It was some ticklish job.

"As I worked away up there in the air I got to thinking. I didn't become frightened or anything like that, exactly, but I just began to fret on things. I considered possibilities and consequences and results, you know, and that sort of thing. Then, without thinking to alarm my father at all, I called out quite casually:

"Say, dad, do you ever feel like jumping off?"

"I simply wanted to know, that was all. But my father was alarmed. He took mighty good care not to let me know it, though.

"You just sit there a minute and hold on tight," he said soothingly. "I want to see you for a minute. I'll be down in a minute."

"Well, sir, he shinned down the pole faster than I'd ever seen him slide before. Then he grabbed up a coil of rope, which he had lying across the roof ready for use, and came over to where I was, close to the edge. He never let on what he wanted until he was close up on me.

"Then he made a spring and grabbed me. I thought for a minute we'd both go over. By Jove, but he was excited after he'd nailed me. He wrapped that rope around me and tied me up against the base of the flag pole until I couldn't move.

"Then he went back to the pole and as he climbed he called back:

"Now I guess you're all right. Just keep right on looking down. It's a long way, isn't it? A fall wouldn't be very nice. Well, you're going to stay right where you are, my boy, trussed up like a turkey, until you don't feel like jumping off. And if necessary you'll sit there all night."

"By evening I was convinced that I would never jump off a building, and I am still of that opinion. It was the best lesson I ever had."

ALLOW THEM TO HUSTLE.

But Majority of Savage Tribes Consider Women's Influence Degrading.

The prevailing opinion among savages or heathen tribes is that women, by some subtle influence, mar or debase the work and in many cases, even the possessions of the men, therefore there is an unwritten law among certain primitive peoples that women must keep away from everything that belongs to the men's sphere of action. The Kaffirs, for instance, have such strong feeling in this matter that they will not even allow their women to come into their kraals for fear of contaminating the cattle.

In the Marquesas Islands the women do most of the work, while the men spend their time making canoes. The women never touch them, nor are they allowed to ride in them for fear of casting an evil spell. In New Caledonia it is considered unmanly for men to do any work. They believe that is woman's natural sphere.

While the Samoans attend to the farming—such as it is—and the hunting, all other work is left to the women. However large the family, and however much they need clothes, a Samoan would rather see his children suffer from the cold than to help his wife do the weaving. It is considered a degradation for a man to engage in any "frock" work.

Then men of British Guiana consider their work limited to hunting and war. They consider the greatest humiliation any man can suffer is to help his wife with her work. The story is told that on one occasion a man there was a shortage of bread. The men believe that if the women can look on their weapons they lose their strength. The Australian tribes and Fijians drive their women away and beat them if they see them near any of their public demonstrations.

In the Marquesas Islands the political and religious meetings are held on what is known as "boobah-boobah" ground, and the women never are allowed near them. On the other hand, they let their women carry logs and water and toil from morning until night without ever offering them any assistance.

ALPINE LIFE LINES.

The Ropes Are Selected For Strength, Flexibility and Lightness.

The ropes used by Alpine climbers are of special manufacture, combining as far as possible the differing qualities of strength, flexibility and lightness.

Three qualities are in general use, being made from either Italian and Swiss hemp respectively, and occasionally, when cost is not a consideration, of silk. The latter, though very light and strong, is not so durable as the others. That which finds most favour among Alpine mountaineers is known as Scott's Alpina rope. It is made of the best Italian hemp. In the year 1904, Mr. McLachlan, a committee of the Alpine club made tests upon a number of ropes suitable for mountaineering. Of the two that were approved one was made of Italian hemp and the other of Alpina. They both had a breaking strain of two tons and contained the weight of a twelve stone man after falling from a height of two feet.

Mountaineers have sometimes considered this insufficient, but it is highly problematical whether the human anatomy could survive the sudden compression of a fall rope broken up by greater fall—five's magnitude.

An Embarrassing Moment.

A lady was invited out to lunch and, being very fond of hot rolls, was asked to have another. "Really, I can't," she modestly replied. "I don't know how many I've eaten already."

Taste the Taste!

It's one of those hankering tastes one can't seem to get enough of

The choice of the man that knows!

Jose Gaste Co.
Mfrs.
LONDON, ONT.

Mr. Geo. A. Birmingham, the well-known English writer, says there is no country in the world where marriage, at least in the peasant class, is more a matter of bargaining, and yet shows a higher average of stability and content, than Ireland. Sometimes the man has never seen the woman before they are brought together, the precise number of pounds, shillings, or pence to be handed over having been fixed at that time.

This is illustrated in personal recollections just published by an Irish lady. She was visiting with an aunt in a cottage in the neighborhood, and admired a fine mahogany chest of drawers.

"Twas for that I was married," said the mistress of the cottage. "A young farmer had also seen and admired. A bargain was struck. There was no money, but the bride was to have a couple of sheep, a yearling bullock, and the chest. The prudent young man measured it, and then turned and asked:

"An' which of them little girls is it?"

She was the eldest unmarried—"mist the dove," as the phrase was. "An' so I went," she said, "and was happy ever afterwards."

Cracks in the Floor.

There are several ways of stopping the cracks in a floor between boards that have shrunk apart. One is to use newspapers into small bits and coat them in deer paste, having the paste work in between the cracks and all the crack with it, using a broad trowel to smooth the paste down into the cracks. Or sawdust and glue may be used with the same result. To a pound of glue allow a gallon of water, and when mixed stir into it five or six small bits of stiff paste. Fill the cracks with this, packing it as solidly as possible, smoothing over with a broad trowel.

By Default.

Native—The Republicans have nominated old Hank Reaney this year. Visitor—When have the Democrats put up? Native—Nobody. Visitor—African? I suppose. Native—Oh, no. But I wouldn't be any credit to a man to beat old Hank Reaney.—Puck.

THE REWARD OF ART.

Sometimes It Is Mysterious and Sometimes It Is Pitiable.

In art, as in most other professions, the "plums" fall into the hands of the few. A talented painter or a hard worker may make his $20,000 in twelve months by his brushes. Mr. "Dancer," who started his career with equal promise, may barely earn the chest that pays his first maker's bill.

Jean Francois Millet lived and died a peasant, though he could wear the ribbon of the Legion of Honor. It was the proudest day of his life when he received $300 for the "Angels," which a generation later was sold for $116,130 at the Secession sale. John Crome was glad to pocket a dollar apiece for pictures, any one of which would be swapped up for the hundred dollars. George Morland parted with many a masterpiece for the price of an evening's carouse, and the painter's canvases are valued today at $20,000,000, yet he left nothing to his heirs beyond his clothes and his paint brushes.

And who will say that these magnificent artists, who are highly trained, who are seldom branded with the label "idiot." One of these men expressed that he had barely $200 to show as the net result of $2,000 hours of industry last year. The other who had a canvas "on the line" before he had his twenty-first birthday, was glad to call his latest picture, the fruits of his meagre work, but less than his home cost.

For His Own Pleasure.

"I suppose your wife was more than delighted at your return of salary, wasn't she?" asked James of Brown.

"I haven't told her yet, but she will be when she knows it," answered Brown.

"How is it that you haven't told her?"

"Well, I thought I would enjoy myself a couple of weeks first."—Judge.

Opinion's Reward.

"Father, what do you think of the school?"

"Well, my dear, I hardly know. Some people think it is dangerous. But why do you ask?"

"I can't hardly say last night, and now I'm sorry."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Life Without Microbes.

Microbes are not indispensable to life if they are indispensable to any. The question has been definitely settled. A cage completely sterilized at 90 degrees was made and the openings of the cage closely stopped with cotton and protected from the outside by a hermetically closed metallic chamber. Such manipulations as were necessary in opening the cage were made by means provided by aseptic rubber cloth. Into such a sterilized cage three hens' eggs were placed after having been externally sterilized. The cage was fitted with a glass pavilion or chicken run, where the chickens could develop during their six weeks' sojourn in the cage. In the cage were sterilized air, pure water, sterilized sand and sterilized food. The experiment showed that life does not depend upon microbes, but that the vital work of the organism is easy and natural when everything is sterilized.—Harper's.

Fumes Kill On Bees.

Having a Cobalt silver smelter in their midst is not an unmixing blessing to the residents of Thorold, Ont., town or township who keep bees and hens.

It is claimed that there is not a live bee left within a mile of the Thorold smelter, because the fumes of the arsenic getting into the flowers, has killed them all off. Farmers who keep bees, or did, are demanding damages from the owners of the smelter, and it is understood that the claims are readily paid.

There are even cases where cows and horses, as well as chickens and other fowls, have died as result of the arsenic fumes from the big smelter.

Puns.

The pun was at its climax early in the nineteenth century. Thomas Hood was a master punner, especially in verse. No better examples can be found anywhere than those in "Miss Kilmansegg" and the "Tale of a Trumpet." What could be madder than the argument of the fiddler trying to sell an ear trumpet.

There was a Mrs. F.

So very deaf
She might have worn a percussion cap
And been knocked on the head
Without leaving it snap.
Well, I sold her a trumpet.
And the very next day
She heard from her husband at Botany Bay.

Taking!

Actor—What, back so soon? Didn't the play last?
Audience—Yes, the play took, the manager took the receipts, the sheriff took the scenery, the landlord took the trunk, and the author took to drink!

Animal Species.

Geologists declare that in prehistoric times there were on this planet 21,000,000 different animal forms. Mammals have classified 22,000 species, and there are now 47,000 forms, of which 99 per cent. are insects.

IN ANCIENT CATHAY

CHINA HAS THE MOST WONDER-FUL CIVILIZATION EXTANT.

Without Patriotism or National Feeling She Presents a Remarkable Solidarity and Many Things We Boast as New Are Very Old With Her People—System of Manners is Now Obscured and Cumbersome.

Western ideas of China and its people have been modified considerably by the increased knowledge of the race which has been one of the results of the revolution. There is little doubt that with the republic firmly established and increasing contact with the progressive methods of the occident China will occupy a position of importance among the nations of the future.
The latent strength is there. Amazing potentialsities of wealth and power are contained within the bounds of this mighty territory. Chinese civilization is one of the oldest on earth and the only one which has continued uninterruptedly till the present day.
It has not always been a stagnant system. Changes in the fundamental form and character of the Government have swept over China at frequent intervals with an intensity rivalling that displayed in the late revolution.
China, through 4,000 years of unbroken history, has hardly touched her wealth. Living on the products of her own labor for forty centuries, her material riches are to-day almost intact.
Her civilization is not the result of an attitude of reverence for the past—harking back to remote ages and great teachers instead of purposefully looking toward the future.

The discovery and accomplishments of China include arches in architecture, carving in wood and molding in bronze and other metals, painting with unvaried colors, printing, paper from wood pulp, the compass, gunpowder and guns, books, astronomy, codified laws, civil service examinations, bank notes and coins, and the art of printing. Her houses, she possessed all these centuries before they were dreamed of in the west. Her mighty rivers, some of them 3,500 miles in length, have been connected by numerous canals miles of artificial canals that this land is a perfect network of waterways.
Here is found the longest canal in the world—600 miles in length and built at the dawn of the Christian era.
No nation can match her stupendous public works, her myriad walled cities, her great wall, 1,600 miles in length and from 20 to 35 feet both in thickness and height, climbing steep slopes and spanning rivers, being in many important places double-walled, 3,000 years ago. Ethics, philosophy and the principles of government and religion have been discussed, ably and exhaustively by Chinese scholars from the days of Confucius and Men-tius, 600 years before the time of Christ. Millions of printed volumes constitute a splendid body of literature. The writer and the scholar are received with honor by the highest in the land.

Prized with a superficial knowledge of this ancient civilization, the traveler in China is profoundly impressed and puzzled by her complete reversal of the greater number of our manners and customs. The explanation is to be found in the radically different conditions of evolution, in the tendency to hear to the voice and the teachings of the past instead of probing the mysteries of the future. In an innate sense of reverence, and a fatalistic belief in inevitable retribution
and the existence of an omnipotent force, in the past instead of probing the mysteries of the future. In an innate sense of reverence, and a fatalistic belief in inevitable retribution
and the existence of an omnipotent
force, in the past instead of probing the mysteries of the future.

This is the land whose cities have no lights, no plan, no sewers, and no sidewalks. Bizarre, grotesque, there is neither public spirit, patriotism, nor much national feeling, in spite of the apparent solidarity of the revolutionary movement. The people are and always have been a people of slaves.
There are no slaves and no servants. Of course this has reference to the Chinese who have come little in contact with foreigners; the vast majority of the Chinese are slaves.
He is pictured sitting on his heels instead of wearing them. Every province, every city, every hamlet is distributed, and in the hamlets some respected citizen is chosen as head man.
He is held responsible for the good conduct of his people. If any crime is committed he is held till the culprit is found. It is found, often that anything, except criminal cases, come before the official courts.

The ceremonial usages of China have been estimated at 3,000; manners are regulated by the Law. The book of rites, and have come down the ages unchanged. The constant theme of the classical books is the character and conduct of "the superior man," a type of the ideal written in the past. The very character of the Chinese is a type of the ideal written in the past. The very character of

KILLED THE LAUGH.

The Story of the Prayer in Rosini's
"Mose in Egitto."

The sublime prayer of the Hebrews when preparing to cross the Red Sea is perhaps one of the most solemn and majestically grand compositions that has been found in the world. It was at the same time simple to a degree.
This was an afterthought of the composer and was not introduced until the second season of the production of "Mose in Egitto" at Naples.

The opera, as now, terminated with the passage of the Red Sea by the Israelites; but, although the audience were entranced with the music, they had not yet reached the passage of the Red Sea with pens or quills, or owing to want of skill of the machinist and scene painter, who contrived to render this portion of the affair superbly ridiculous and brought down the curtain amid uproarious mirth.

Rosini exhibited his usual indifference, but poor Totola, the poet, was driven nearly crazy by this unwell-come termination of his literary labors and intensely chagrined at the idea of a sacred subject exciting laughter.
This lasted throughout the first season. The next it was reproduced with similar brilliant success (on the first night) for the music and similar laughter at the end of the opera. The next day, while Rosini was indulging in his usual habit of lying in bed and gossiping with a room full of friends, in rushed Totola in a most excited state of mind.

"Evviva, I have saved the third act!"

"How?" asked Rosini lazily.
"Why," replied Totola, "I have written the prayer for the Hebrews before crossing the dreadful Red Sea, and I did it all in one hour."

"Well," said Rosini, "if it has taken you an hour to write this prayer, I will suppose to make the music for it in a quarter of the time. Here; give me pen and ink," saying which he jumped out of bed, and in ten minutes he had composed the music and handed it to the piano, and while his friends were laughing and talking around him. Thus, owing to the blundering ignorance of a stage carpenter and scene painter, the world is indebted to the poet for a sublime prayer over penned.

Night came. The audience prepared to laugh as usual when the Red Sea scene came, but when the new prayer commenced, deadly silence prevailed, every note was listened to with rapt attention, and on its conclusion the entire audience rose on masses and cheered for several minutes, nor did they again leave the passage of the Red Sea.

BAD LUCK FOR BABY.

Superstitions Exist in All Lands Regarding Little One's Future.

Mothers and their babies are the same all the world over. Whether black, yellow or brown, the mother has certain superstitious beliefs and out certain ceremonies in connection with the newly arrived and treasured darling.

A very large number of people believe that May is an unlucky month in which to marry. In Cornwall "May children, ill-fortunate," that is, May children is an unlucky one.
In many parts of England mothers
will not out their baby's finger nails
until it is a year old. If they do, the child will grow up to be a thief. Mothers shall be of evil omen and increase in evil omen. If baby is born in the highest room then the wise nurse steps up on a chair before taking the youngster downstairs to be nursed.

In many parts of England mothers
will not out their baby's finger nails
until it is a year old. If they do,
the child will grow up to be a thief. Mothers shall be of evil omen and increase in evil omen. If baby is born in the highest room then the wise nurse steps
up on a chair before taking the youngster downstairs to be nursed.

Another widespread belief in the North is that if the first cutting of the baby's nails are buried under an ash tree the child will sure to become a first-class singer!

When the young lord of the house has been christened, his mother and nurse look out for squalls! In Scotland, mothers watch the cutting very carefully, for should the upper teeth appear before the lower, it is a bad omen, and the child will be very unlucky.

In Scotland should such a thing happen, it is quite certain that the baby will be a bachelor all his life or an old maid! It is an extraordinary belief, but it is a belief that is held in the British one is held among many of the black tribes of South Africa.
For does the baby that cuts his upper teeth first marry, for it is promptly wedded!

There are, perhaps, more superstitions held about christening the baby than about any other ceremony connected with it. Should two babies appear to be christened together, then the little boy baby has the precedence.
This superstition is current in most places in England. Should the little boy be christened first, then her baby will grow up to be a first-class singer.
Babies should always cry at the font, that is, if you want them to grow up good men and women. A Superstition mother will say, if the baby has been silent during the ceremony: "I don't believe the person will drive the devil out of the baby's head!" In Ireland they made quite sure by giving the "little darlings" and, before, they make it cry for all its worth.

Meaning the hope of the family is always a terrible task. Among the Mohammedans the various names about which there are any disputes are written on slips of paper and placed in a box. A child is then chosen at random and the name drawn is the one given to the child.

There is an excellent system in China. The Chinese baby is given a name when it is a month old. When it grows up and gets married its father gives him a new name. How many little Majesties, Coronations, and Ladies would be glad if such a system were held over here!

Why Coughing Weakens You.

A patient German scientist of a statistical turn of mind calculates that the amount of energy expended by a person who coughs once every quarter of an hour for ten hours is equivalent to 300 units of heat, or the nourishment yielded by three eggs or two glasses of milk. Coughing is thus seen to be an expensive luxury. The reason for the waste is force entailed by it, or one reason at least, lies in the fact that, while in normal respiration the air is expelled from the chest at the rate of four feet a second, in violent coughing it may attain a velocity of 300 feet.

Tongues.

Tongues were said to have been invented in China B.C. 1132, but representations of them have been found on the Egyptian monuments B.C.
3000. In India they are claimed as being of B.C. 600, and their principal employment in that country, where fire during the most of the year are superstitious, was to facilitate the handling of dead bodies in the funeral pyres. Several pairs of tongues, some brass, some iron, have been taken from the ruins of Chongul.

Just Worn Out.

The teacher of a Sunday school class tells of the excuse for being late offered by one of her pupils, a boy of ten years.

"I asked him, 'James, why were you so late to-day?' 'I couldn't help it,' he explained. 'And why not?' I asked. 'Well,' he said, 'I dreamed that I was running and running and running, and when my brother woke me up I was so tired that I went back to sleep again, 'cause I'd been running such a long way.'"

The Hottest Place.

The hottest place on earth is Bah-rein, in the Persian Gulf, the mean temperature for the year being 98 degrees. July, August and September are unendurable except by the natives.
Night after night, as midnight comes, the thermometer stands at 100.
By 7 in the morning it is 107 or 108, and by 3 in the afternoon 140.

The Easy Mark.

Friend—Why do you wear those fashionably old-fashioned collars?
Winkles (a man of affairs)—Because when the washerwoman sends them to anybody else they send them back.

An Umbrella Bath.

"Washing umbrellas a specialty" was the red letter notice printed on cards distributed by a well-side business. When seen he carried a bundle of umbrellas which customers had yielded up fearfully for a thorough scrubbing.

"Why should umbrellas be sent to the wash?" asked a customer. "Don't they get washed often enough by rain and snow?"

"Often enough," she said, "but not the right way. At the end of winter every umbrella that has been much service is beginning to look shabby.
What it needs is a hot soapy bath.
That is the kind it gets at my house, with soft brash massage thrown in to rub the spots off and an application of glycerine to the ribs to prevent rusting."

"An umbrella that has undergone that treatment and hung out open in the sunshine to dry will look like new."

Too Good to Lose.

In the soft twilight even the boarding house sitting room looked cozy and attractive. The arm and cum-fort threw the heart of the "star" boarder. In an expansive moment he turned to the landlady, who was his only companion in the room.
Clasping her hand fondly, he murmured:

"Will you be my wife?"
The woman did not start or blush;
she merely coughed and said thoughtfully:

"Let me see. You have been here four years. You have never once sampled at the local fish to eat."

my bill promptly and without question. No, sir; I'm sorry, but I cannot marry you. You're too good a boarder to be put on the free list."

Taxless Town.

There is a community in France where not only are there no taxes, but the timber on the communal lands are sufficient to grant each person a small annuity. This happy land is Montmarion, in the Midi. There are seven electors in the hamlet, so to avoid anything like rivalry the seven return themselves to the local council. Cutting down the trees and selling them is sufficient to provide a livelihood for these simple people, whose tastes are so modest that they may be termed by some uncivilized.

Irish Wit.

A smart man saw an Irishman whose bibulous appearance led him to remark:

"Pat, what makes your nose so red?"
"Shure," replied Pat, "it's the re-fection of me soul."
"The reflection of your soul. What on you mean?" asked the row senator.
"Shure, it's the reflection of me soul," replied Pat. "It's glowin' wid pleasure at me ability to find me own business."

Still in the Family.

Jack—My grandfather had a fine collection of silver, which he bequeathed to my father on condition that it should always remain in the family.
Ethel—Then you have it still?
Jack—Well—er—my uncle has it.

A Polite Editor.

"Why did you tell that poet to hitch his wagon to a star?"
"That," answered the editor gloom-ily, "was my polite way of saying I wished he'd get off the earth."

DROP OIL ON WATER.

Then Note the Curious Designs That Will Be Produced.

A curious experiment may be made,
the result of which will produce a strange natural design, and the attempt may be carried on with almost endless variety in the result. The only things needed are a deep dish of water and some oil. Any kind of oil will do, but better results are obtained with a variety.

Fill a deep dish with pure water and let it stand until the water is perfectly still; then let fall into it a drop of pure sperm oil. The drop will spread out, forming a film circular in shape, but very ragged at the edges.
If you watch the film you will soon perceive that the centre begins to break up, forming ovals and circles, and the combination of these form endless designs which keep on forming and breaking up from one to another for fully half an hour, making a veritable kaleidoscope.

You will see some designs that you may wish to preserve, and if that be so take a piece of glass paper and place it gently over the surface of the water when the film is in the desired design. The oil will stick to the paper, and when you remove it from the water, as gently as you placed it there, run an inked roller over it or place the design on an inked plate.
The ink will cover the paper evenly where the oil has touched it, and when your process is finished you design of oil will stand out white against a black background.
This same experiment made with castor oil will give a similar result, except that the designs will be smaller, and every kind of oil will give a different design. Indeed, no two drops of the same oil will produce the same design, so that you may produce a endless variety in your collection.

An Irish Leader.

The name and personality of Mr.
Joseph Devlin have been very promi-nently before the public ever since the introduction of the Home Rule bill, and he is certain to play a very big part in the future destiny of Ireland.

Mr. Devlin was born in Belfast forty years ago, and he has represented the Western Division of that city for the past six years. The son of working-class parents, he has made his way by sheer genius and native ability, and his constituents are immensely proud of "Joe Devlin." Though short in stature, Mr. Devlin gives the impression of possessing great physical strength. He has no superior as a platform speaker in the political world of the present day. Endowed with a powerful voice which contains a passionate ring, no audience can listen to Mr. Devlin unmoved. Either their hostility or their admiration is aroused, and it is generally the latter, for he has a very convincing style.

Expert Dyers.

The Tyrians, it is claimed, were the most expert dyers of ancient times.
The fabrics dyed with the famous Tyrian purple did not assume their proper color until after two days' ex-posure to the light and air. During this time they passed through a gradation of shades of yellow, green, blue, violet and red, which the dyers understood how to arrest and fix at any moment.

His Brand of Economy.

"What is your idea of economy?"
asked one statesman.
"Making everybody except my constituents get along with as little money as possible," replied the other.

An Exception.

"Some philosopher says there is always a right way and a wrong of doing a thing."
"I wonder if he ever tried to fall downstairs the right way."

EDUCATION IS MOTION

THINGS ARE MOVING FAST THESE DAYS. Science change over night. Discoveries are of last week. Inventions of yesterday. The man or woman who is progressing is keeping abreast of the times. It is not enough that you graduated from this University or that College. The world asks: "What do you know to-day?" Education is motion. You move with the tide of events or you find yourself hull up on the mud-flats. Encyclopaedias that served you well within the last decade are now practically obsolete. They know nothing of the Titanic disaster, the Discovery of the South Pole, the Monorail, Wireless Telegraphy, the Airship, the Turko-Italian War—or Hundreds of other subjects of to-day or tomorrow. The one Encyclopaedia that keeps up with you, and you up with the times, is Nelson's and perpetuated by Thomas Nelson & Sons on the Loose-leaf Principle.

NELSON'S PERPETUAL LOOSE-LEAF ENCYCLOPEDIA

Nelson's Patent Loose-leaf Binding Device has revolutionized the whole world of Encyclopaedia making. It has made possible a work that is right on the heels of history.

Nelson's maintain three permanent Editorial Staffs: European Editor, George Sandeman, M.A., Edinburgh, Scotland; Canadian Editor, Wm. Peterson, L.L.D., O.M.S., Principal McGill University, Montreal; American Editor, John H. Finley, Ph.D., L.L.D., President of the College of the City of New York.

Nelson's contains upwards of 70,000 subjects, treating over 1,000,000 topics; has 7-000 illustrations and 800 maps. It is the only absolutely new and dependable reference work because the Loose-leaf Binding Device makes it possible to keep the work always up-to-date.

Read these Letters:

J. A. Macdonald, Managing Editor of The Globe, Toronto, writes:—

"I have had occasion to resort quite frequently to your perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia for information of many sorts, and have found it exceedingly helpful. This remark applies especially to history and its allied departments of knowledge; Chronology, Biography and Geography. There is a decided advantage in the loose-leaf method of keeping the Encyclopaedia up-to-date over the yearly supplemental volume method, and one that is not un-to-date is worse than useless."

H. J. Silver, Montreal, writes:—

"In November last the Protestant Board of School Commissioners supplied a copy of Nelson's Perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia to each of its High Schools, to the Superintendent's office, and to one of its Public Schools. The Principals of these schools have expressed their hearty approval of the work and its usefulness to their pupils. Personally, I have found the work and the Bureau of Research particularly useful to me."

F. E. Wynn, Librarian Grand Trunk Railway Literary and Scientific Institute writes:—

"The name of Nelson's and the list of editors and specialists, is sufficient guarantee to make us feel that we have a perpetual reference work in keeping with the demand for information desired by all who are interested in a progressive Encyclopaedia.
"Your Bureau of Research for Special Information will be of great help to the members generally."

For the benefit of those who are looking for employment from the Government, The Times would say that the various departments of the Civil Service in regard to the appointment of clerks is that they must be under 30 years of age on entering the service. It is possible, of course, that this rule may have to be broken sometimes, where young men cannot be got. A young man capable man is not likely to care to enter himself to a moderate salary for life.

Red in Battle.
Red has always been a favorite military color. His employment dates from the time of Agouras, the Spartan, who commanded his army to be arrayed in red tunics in order that new recruits might not be dismayed at the sight of blood. His first use in the British army dates from 1860, when the women of the guard were dressed in red.

AIDED THE AERONAUT.
Washington Was the Godfather of Aviation in America.
Apparently George Washington was not only the Father of His Country, but also something like the godfather of aviation in America. At any rate, he wrote a letter for one M. Blanchard, who made the first balloon ascension in this country at Philadelphia in 1783. The letter reprinted in St. Nicholas reads:
"George Washington, president of the United States of America. To all whom these presents shall come, and 'The bearer hereof, Mr. Blanchard, a citizen of France, proposing to ascend in a balloon from the city of Philadelphia, at 10 o'clock a.m. this day, in such direction and to descend in such place as circumstances may render most convenient."
"These are, therefore, to recommend to all citizens of the United States, and others, that in his passage, descent, return or journeying elsewhere they oppose no hindrance or molestation to the said Mr. Blanchard, and that, on the contrary, they receive and aid him with that humanity and good will which may render honor to their country and justice to an individual so distinguished by his efforts to establish and advance an art, in order to make it useful to mankind in general."
"Given under my hand and seal, at the city of Philadelphia, this ninth day of January, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-three, and of the independence of America the seventeenth."
"GEORGE WASHINGTON."

Moon Causes Rain in Africa.
A new instance of the supposed connection of the moon with rainfall claims the support of highly scientific authority. Heavy rains are said to occur in South Africa at intervals of nineteen years, and this period coincides with the lunar cycle of maximum north and south declinations. E. H. Nevill, late director of the Natal Observatory, finds an explanation in the moon's attraction. The theory is that a permanent cloud belt is drawn along by the moon and that as the moon nears its furthest point north the mass of clouds is made to impinge on the mountains in Natal, giving excessive rainfall.

NAVAL DISCIPLINE.
Punishments That Are Meted Out to British Sailors.
For infractions of regulations some curious punishments are meted out in the English navy. It is an every day occurrence, says the London Times, to see half a dozen sailors lined up on deck facing the paint work, holding their hammocks on their shoulders. At first the hammock isn't heavy, but after an hour or so it drags on one's shoulders like lead. Besides, it is not at all entertaining to stare steadily at a square foot of painted woodwork for an hour or more at a time.

Another punishment that Jack deposes is bailing with a spoon. He is placed upon the deck, with two large wooden buckets, one filled with water and the other empty. With a spoon he must dip all the water from one bucket and transfer it to the other, being meanwhile the butt of his comrades' jests and jeers.

Sometimes a delinquent is made to walk slowly backward and forward along the deck, nursing in his arms a six inch projectile, weighing a little over 100 pounds. Once a sailor who laughed at the stammering speech of his commander was made to stand upon the forebridge in full view of the ship's crew and laugh for an hour and a half.

Spitting upon the deck of a man-of-war is strictly prohibited. Cupboards are placed at intervals along the deck, and these must be used. Upon some ships when a sailor is caught spitting upon the deck a small tub is strapped to his chest, and he is made to walk it. Any one who chooses may see this walking receptacle. The offender thus punished rarely repeats his offense.

BALZAC'S BACK DOOR.
It Was Convenient When Creditors Came.
In the year 1835 or thereabouts, being worried by debt in Paris, Balzac took lodgings in Pansy, then a village in the environs, at a house in the Rue Balzac. There is little remarkable about the front of the house. It is just a plain, white, two storied French dwelling of a hundred years ago or of today for that matter.

But at the back is a garden, and at the bottom of the garden is a doorway leading into one of the oldest lanes in the world, from the look of it. Truly, this really, with its crumbling walls of stone and plaster, its ivy and its shade of overhanging trees, is as happily devoid of suggestions of modern "improvements" as anything to be found within the suburbs of Paris.

By means of this byway Balzac, when insolent voices from within the house reached his ears as he worked in his little pavilion at the end of the garden, could avoid the unpleasantness of an interview with any holder of the overdue bills which throughout his life were the only tangible results of his experiments as a printer and type-founder.

It needs but little imagination to see him hurry off down the lane, bottom and all-appear, to await events, while he dreams of expelling the fowls of the Godecens or the silver mines of the new world.

Nature's Carving.
There is a rock profile to be seen at Mount Wilson, California, which is more striking than the famous formation in the White mountains, although the former is said by some to be the most perfect of all of "nature's carvings." The features are strong and full of expression and the contour at the head of correct proportions, the forehead lofty, the eyebrows jutting and the aquiline nose is exceedingly vigorous. The mouth is hard and set, but complete in detail, and even the line from the nostril to the corner of the mouth and the rugged modeling of the cheek are distinctly marked. The chin and jaw are correctly sculptured and even the line of the high collar and old fashioned coat may be seen at this remarkable boulder.

Queen Victoria's Favorite Premier Was Lord Beaconsfield.
It is a popular belief that "Disraeli" was the Prime Minister whom Queen Victoria liked most, while Gladstone "got on her nerves," to quote one authority. It would appear, however, from Dr. Boyd Carpenter's reminiscences, that Sir Robert Peel was her Majesty's favorite Minister, and that Lord Salisbury was regarded by her with almost equal admiration. When at Osborne one evening Dr. Carpenter asked Queen Victoria whether she regarded Lord Beaconsfield's novel, "Coningsby," as a book which gave a fairly correct picture of English life of the time. She the bishop:
"She looked a little blank for a moment, as though hardly knowing what reply to make. Then she pursed her lips and said, in her quizzical way, 'I didn't care for his novels.' This led to a conversation about Lord Beaconsfield's powers. 'Yes,' he was, in the view of the Queen, an able man, with a fine imagination. 'Yes—great, but not so great as the present—i.e., Lord Salisbury, then Prime Minister.'"
"She went on to speak of her Prime Ministers. The two who held high place in her mind, she spoke, were Sir Robert Peel and Lord Salisbury. She spoke with very warm and grateful affection of Sir Robert Peel, referring to the kindness he showed and the trouble he took at the time Osborne was secured as a royal residence. 'We owed it to him that we got this place.'"
Dr. Carpenter, by the way, tells an interesting story illustrating Queen Victoria's interest in all kinds of domestic details. Her Majesty was god-mother to one of his children. "But," he says, "she knew the names and ages of all of them, and there were eleven of them. Indeed, on one occasion she set me right about the age of my youngest boy. 'How old is your little boy now?' she asked me one evening at Windsor. I answered, with true fatherly doubtfulness, 'I think about nine, your Majesty.' 'No,' she promptly said, 'he is ten.' 'No,' she Queen was right. This was in 1897."

HER TWO QUESTIONS.
One Was Answered Before and the Other After Marriage.
A delivery summer moon shone sweetly on the likewise silver sands.
The summer sweethearts sat in a slush. She was gazing out at the dim blue vault over them, where the little stars twinkled in a million tiny points of flame. He was gazing at her as if he'd like to eat her.
"Darling, what makes the stars shine so dimly tonight?" she gurgled.
"They are outshone by the glorious light of your eyes, my darling," he whispered foolishly, "and so they pale in their splendor and—er—and—"
He didn't know how to go on, so he kissed her instead. And she was quite satisfied, perfectly content and glad. And a solemn silence enwrapped the summer night.
Some moon, some sands, some people—only they are married now.
"I wonder how many telegraph poles," she murmured thoughtfully, "it would take to reach from here to the moon."
He looked at her as if he'd like to bite her.
"One, if it was long enough," he snapped. "Don't ask such silly questions!"
And a solemn silence enwrapped the summer night.—London Ensign.

Paradox.
"Fa, what's a paradox?"
"It is when the impossible happens."
"Then we had a paradox here this evening. Ma said you couldn't possibly be expected home before midnight, because you were away for stayers' downtown."—Pittsburgh Post.

Metaphor.
If you hate your enemies you will contract such a vicious habit of mind as by degrees will break out upon those who are your friends or those who are indifferent to you.

COPPERPLATE ENGRAVING.

The Art Was Discovered Through the Merest Accident.

Every one has noticed on his visiting card the extremely delicate lines of his name, and almost every one knows that they are produced by printing from an engraved copperplate. Like many other things of use and beauty, this art of copperplate engraving was discovered through the merest accident by the goldsmiths of Florence in the fifteenth century.

It is a historical fact, however, that one day an engraver on gold, wishing to take a proof of his work, made the usual sulphur cast and then filled up the lines with lampblack, thus enabling him to see exactly how his work looked. While occupied in doing this it occurred to him that possibly the same results could be obtained by filling up the original engraving with lampblack instead of making an impression of it and filling up that. Struck with the idea, he put it into practical use and, with a little damp paper, succeeded in getting a fair impression from the engraving.

The discovery was communicated to other workers in the art, and they hailed it with joy, so it saved all the arduous trouble of making sulphur casts, but they never saw the full value of the discovery, and consequently the art of plate engraving lay for almost a century before its true import was discovered and brought out in all its great and beautiful results. Today collectors of plate engravings have over the crude results of earlier times and search the world for examples of these early masters to add to their collections. Many of these collections have been presented to museums, where they may be seen and appreciated by the people.

A Japanese Idea.
The late Matsuhito, emperor of Japan, on an occasion shortly before his death took a railway journey in the northern part of Japan and arrived at his destination half an hour late on account of a slight accident on the road. Next day the manager of the road committed suicide, giving as the reason for his act the fact that his bad management had inconvenienced the emperor. The case attracted a great deal of attention, and some of the leading men of Japan, commenting on the dead man's act, criticized his point of view. In the eyes of his fellow countrymen, however, his deed was commendable, for they erected a statue in his honor as an ideal exponent of the Japanese conception of loyalty.

A Funny Siamese Custom.
They have a very funny custom in Siam. When an inferior comes into the presence of a superior he throws himself upon the ground. Then the superior sends one of his attendants forward to see whether the prostrate man has been eating anything or has any offensive odor about him. If he be blameless in this respect the attendant raises him from the ground, but if he be guilty the attendant straightway kicks him out.

MEN WHO DON'T EXERCISE

SUFFER FROM INDIGESTION, HEADACHES, POOR APPE-TITE, SLEEPLESSNESS

Nothing so sure to "Set Up" a Man Make Him Feel Bristle and Vigor, as Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Lack of exercise and overwork are the causes that combined to almost kill Samuel B. Stephens, Jr., one of the best known citizens in Woodstock in his convincing letter Mr. Stephens says:—

"A year ago I returned home after a long trip, completely worn out. I was so badly affected by chronic indigestion, so much overcome by constant headaches, dizziness, that I despaired of every getting well. I was a blessing to my family. I took Dr. Hamilton's Pills. In one week I felt like a new man. The feeling of weight and nausea in my stomach disappeared. My eyes looked brighter, color grew better, and, best of all, I began to enjoy my meals. The dizziness, languor and feeling of depression passed away, and I fast regained my old time vigor and spirits. To-day I am well, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

For health, strength, comfort, and good spirits there is no medicine like Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Beware of substitutes, and don't let any dealer palm off some other pill on which he can make more money. 25c per box, or five boxes for $1.00, by mail from The Catarthorax Company, Kingston, Ont.

Health and Beauty Hints

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Celia: You can't expect to appear fascinating with pimples all over your face. During the summer everyone's blood is likely to become thick and sluggish from accumulated poisons which frequently find an outlet in the face. This condition can be overcome by taking a good system-tonic and blood-purifier. An excellent and inexpensive, old-fashioned tonic of tried merit is made with hardens. Dissolve one ounce of hardens in a half-pint alcohol (not whiskey) then add one-half cupful sugar and enough hot water to make a quart. Take a teaspoonful before each meal and you will soon feel like a new person, and your complexion will clear and take on a healthy tone.

W. J. B.: Those annoying hairs on your chin will quickly vanish after an application of a delicate paste, made by mixing together a little water and powdered delatone. This paste is to be applied and left on the skin two or three minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. The delatone treatment is quite harmless and always leaves the skin clear and smooth.

E. B. S.: Although gray hair is sometimes caused by worry, it is generally due to a diseased scalp as indicated by such symptoms as dandruff, itching of the scalp and brittle, falling hair of which you speak. To restore your scalp to a healthy condition, first keep it clean by shampooing every ten days or two weeks with castile soap, then massage the scalp, using a good quality hair-tonic. You can prepare the tonic yourself by adding one ounce of quinine to a half-pint of cold water. This is much better than most ready-prepared hair-tonics, as it contains nothing to "make," the hair coarse, sticky or "straw." It will remove the dandruff and stop your hair from coming out. You will find it an ideal dressing for the hair and very refreshing to an itching scalp.

S. R. O.: If your superfluous flesh proves unsightly and distressing, try the following fat reducer which has given excellent results: Dissolve four ounces of paraffin in 14 pints of hot water, when cool strain and take a tablespoonful of the liquid before each meal. This remedy is harmless. By avoiding very rich foods and taking plenty of exercise, you will find this remedy will cut down your weight very rapidly.

Mrs. Ruth: There can be no possible excuse for a woman of your age neglecting her complexion. It is a duty you owe yourself to look as youthful and charming as possible. I would not encourage you to use face

Mr. Frank M. Adams, son of Mr. Frank Adams, the City Treasurer, was appointed to a clerkship at the Customs House, owing to the increase of business the collector, Mr. Robt. Expert Shot Misses Partridge.
Mr. W. R. Morris, who was out with the Jack's Lake Fishing Club, tells a story of one of the members on the wing. One day last week this expert saw a partridge sitting on a rail fence. The bird would not rise. The member for lack of any other prospect fired his cap at the bird. With a whirr the partridge scurried away. Bang! Bang! rang out two shots, but the partridge still lives.

A Perverted Sense of Wit.
Yesterday a young man who had evidently tarried with the liquid that cheers and then bites like an adder, stopped a Times representative and told him that a resident of one of the adjoining townships had died. Our reporter, suspecting the symptoms, made enquiries and found that the supposedly dead man was about as lively and vital a corpse as ever did business. This may be a perverted form of wit, but it tends towards hurting the feelings of the alleged deceased's family, gets the paper into trouble and lastly, might, and probably would, lead to serious legal consequences to the "kicker."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

We will give One Hundred Dollars by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Program of Canadian Club.

The Canadian Club has re-organized for the coming season and it has been arranged to hold the meetings at the Y.M.C.A. As usual they will take the form of a dinner with an address following from a speaker of national reputation. So far as possible it is the intention to hold the meetings on Thursday evenings and from two to three weeks apart and when it will suit the convenience of the speaker to arrive in time to have the dinner at 6:30 o'clock instead of 8. The Club has been fortunate in arranging with Mr. F. E. R. Johns, K.C., of Toronto, to deliver the opening address on Oct. 24th on "Ontario." Membership in the Canadian Club for the season is only $1 with a charge of 50 cents for each dinner attended and is open to all British subjects.

A BEAUTIFUL PICTURE

We notice in this week's issue of The Family Herald and Weekly Star, that the publisher have secured, as a premium picture for subscribers, another beautiful subject, entitled: "Mother's Treasures," a companion to the beautiful picture "Home Again," which they gave last year. Family Herald pictures are always good and it is said that "Mother's Treasures" is the best yet. It is truly wonderful that great value one receives for one dollar a year in The Family Herald and Weekly Star. It is a paper no home in Canada should be without. Every member of a family will find some part of it interesting, and alone will worth the year's subscription. The premium picture, "Mother's Treasures" is 23 by 29 inches, all ready for framing, and alone would sell in any art store at two dollars.

A LOCAL BOY IS CHARGED AS DRUNK

Two young men were charged with blowing the highway on George street. Mr. Gordon appeared for the defendants. They and two others were on the sidewalk in front of the Greek's pool room. One of the defendant said he had just stepped out of the cigar store when P. C. Newhall caught him by the arm. The case was cleared until this morning to subpoena other men. Judgment was reserved in the case of Shagun charged with the same offence. Toronto Salivans pleaded guilty to having been drunk. He said he did not drink beer or whiskey, only wine.

Tom Sullivan, Jr., Chief Thompson said, was "very drunk." Tom is a boy of 16. He said Robert Anderson gave him whiskey in a local hotel. The case was adjourned to Saturday.

Four carters were charged with a breach of the traffic by-law, to wit, having their respective horses and rigs placed the wrong way.

WEDDING BELLS.

Holt-Smith.

A pretty wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, 575 (Hickory street, when their youngest daughter, Miss Jessie, was united in marriage to Mr. George R. Holt, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Holt, of Egbert, Ont. Rev. Isaac Couch performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate relatives only. The bride was attired in a cream silk gown, daintily trimmed with embroidered chiffon, and crystal fringe with true lovers knots of satin. Her veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a sheaf of white chrysanthemums. A great many beautiful and costly gifts testified to the high esteem in which the young couple are held. The young couple will reside at 588 Sherbrooke street.

The Magic Touch

You, too, will look back on the days of soap-and-water, Spring and Fall Housecleaning, and marvel how you ever got along without RE-NU-ALL—the wonderful preparation that relieves housework of all its drudgery.

RE-NU-ALL

It is so simple, yet so effective. It is only necessary to prepare a cheese cloth duster with RE-NU-ALL—and dust!

At the magic touch of RE-NU-ALL three things happen—all dirt, dust, and grease is "licked up"—the original polish returns—every germ and microbe is KILLED.

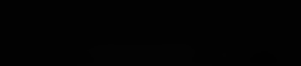

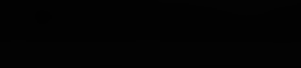

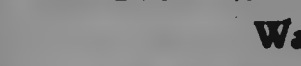

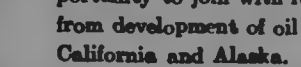

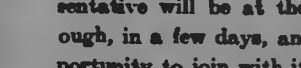

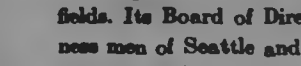

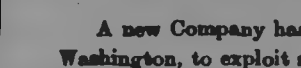

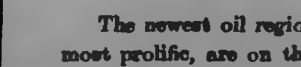

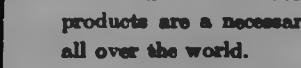

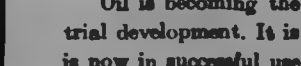

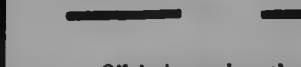

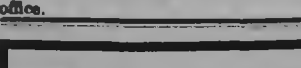

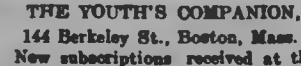

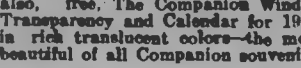

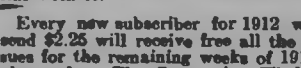

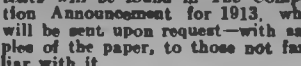

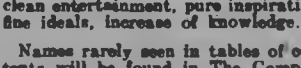

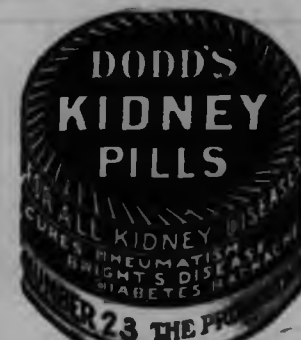

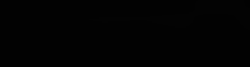

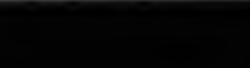

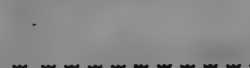

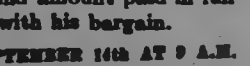

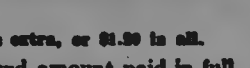

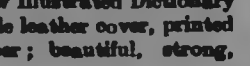

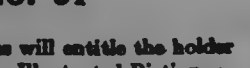

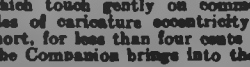

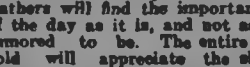

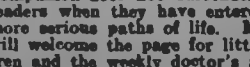

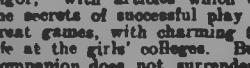

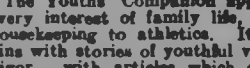

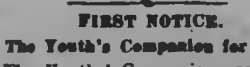

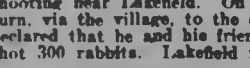

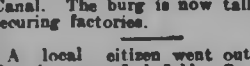

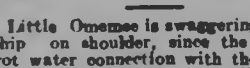

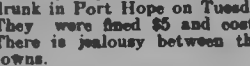

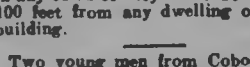

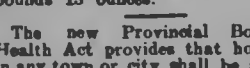

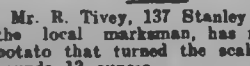

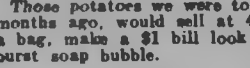

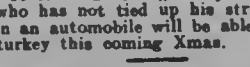

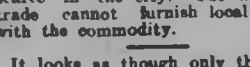

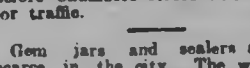

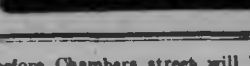

No muscle-tiring scrubbing—no exhausting polishing—no air-polluting dust raised. Just a wipe over with your RE-NU-ALL duster and the surface is RE-NU-ED, whether it be of paint, enamel, or metal.

Find out for yourself.

Your grocer, druggist, hardware or furniture dealers keeps RE-NU-ALL in 3 sizes—25 cents, 50 cents and $1.

FIRST NOTICE.

The Youth's Companion appeals to every interest of family life, from housekeeping to athletics. It begins with stories of youthful vim and vigor, with articles which disclose the secrets of successful play in the great games, with charming tales of life at the girls' colleges. But The Companion does not surrender these readers when they have entered the more serious paths of life. Mothers will welcome the page for little children and the weekly doctor's article. Fathers will find the important news of the day as it is, and not as it is rumored to be. The entire household will appreciate the sketches which touch gently on common foibles of caricature eccentricity. In short, for less than four cents a week The Companion brings into the home clean entertainment, pure inspiration, fine ideals, increase of knowledge.

Names rarely seen in tables of contents will be found in The Companion Announcement for 1913, which will be sent upon request—with samples of the paper, to those not familiar with it.

Oil is becoming the dominant factor in industrial development. It is replacing coal as a fuel and is now in successful use in smelting ores. Its by-products are a necessary part of human existence all over the world.

The newest oil regions of the globe, and the most prolific, are on the Pacific Coast.

A new Company has been organized in Seattle, Washington, to exploit some of these profitable new fields. Its Board of Directors are well known business men of Seattle and Vancouver, B. C. Its representative will be at the Oriental Hotel, Peterborough, in a few days, and will offer investors an opportunity to join with it in the profits to accrue from development of oil fields in British Columbia, California and Alaska.

DR. HASTINGS INVESTIGATING THE CASE OF MISS MAY DAVIS

Alleged Neglect in Reporting Illness of Young Stenographer to be Probed

CORONER ALSO NOTIFIED

Story of Neighbours Who Were Called in And Who Sent for the Doctor.

Toronto, Oct. 18.—The circumstances which surround the death of Miss May Davis, a 22-year-old stenographer, two hours after her arrival in Toronto Isolation Hospital as related exclusively yesterday, will likely be investigated by the Chief Coroner.
The young lady was taken to the hospital at 6.30 on Tuesday evening suffering from an acute attack of diphtheria, and died at 8.30 on the same evening, before any steps could be taken to relieve her.

The information received goes to show that in a little back room of a house on Salem street, attended only by her sister, she lay for two days coughing her life away. The news of the illness and death of their daughter came almost at the same time to the parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Davis, of Allan Park, a small place near Hanover, in South Grey, and they were almost prostrated with grief as a result. No word had reached them of the girl's indisposition till she was beyond recovery.

No Medical Attention.
The statements of the neighbours acquaintances and the girl's sister, indicate that she had been sitting since Sunday evening and that her throat had been steadily growing worse.

"On Tuesday night," said one of the neighbours, "she was literally choke to death."
In all this time it is acknowledged that no medical assistance had been rendered to the girl and she and her sister had apparently endeavored to Opera House, Thursday, fight the infection with some mild gargles.

Those in touch with the circumstances are inclined to this view and Dr. J. H. Wood, of Dovercourt road who was called in at the "eleventh hour," states distinctly that he understood "that the girl was under Christian Science treatment, and for that reason he was not called until the last."

"It is too bad," he said, "if she had been treated at the outset she would likely have been alive now.
Very seldom is a case of diphtheria lost nowadays. If the antitoxin had been administered, he thought, she might have been saved." "The girl seems hardly to have had a proper chance."

GIRL'S MOTHER HAS NEGRO PUGILIST UP IN THE COURT

Says She Can't Get Girl Away From Johnson's Influence —Champion Denies That Jealousy Caused
His Wife To Suicide

Chicago, Oct.—Jack Johnson, the negro heavyweight champion pugilist, appeared before Chief of Police Mc-Weney yesterday to explain his relations with Miss Lucille Cameron, a 19-year-old white girl, the daughter of Mrs. F. Cameron-Falconet of Milwaukee.

Mrs. Falconet told of her failure to get her daughter away from the influences of the negro. She described her anguish when she learned last Friday that her daughter was a fre-quenter of Johnson's, her hurried trip here to rescue the girl, her interviews with the pugilist, who, she declared, insulted her and flouted her plea that he give up the girl.
Johnson, she said, told her he could "get" any woman he wanted.

"When I found Lucille, I pointed out the wrong she had done. I pleaded with her. I told her I would give up everything I had in life to get her to go back, and I would go any place with her and shield her from criticism back home. She refused to come, being apparently under Johnson's influence."

Johnson made an absolute denial of any friendly relations with Miss Cameron, or that his infatuation for the Cameron girl was one of the causes of the suicide recently of Mrs. Edna Duryea Johnson, his white wife. He declared the girl left her position as cashier in his cafe for another position and that his wife had never seen Miss Cameron.
"Johnson denies the whole thing," said Chief McWeney, adding, "but if I find anything wrong at Johnson's place, I'll arrest him in a minute."

She is one of the five great artists of the world who can set her own price.

Her gowns and millinery are always purchased in this country and are the envy of all the women.

Madame Nordica is the greatest Wagnerian artist in the world.

Although American born, she was first recognized in Italy. Germany soon followed and in a short time the entire world had recognized her.

Mme. Nordica will sing here on Monday, October 21st. The sale of seats is open, $2.50, $2.00, $1.50 and

MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORKS WILL LEAVE THE CABINET

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—The official announcement of the retirement of Hon.
F. D. Monk as Minister of Public Works is expected within a few days.
He is unable to agree with the remainder of the Cabinet on the naval question and has decided to retire.
To-day the Minister is setting his office in shape in preparation for the coming of a new Minister, and frankly states that he is leaving the Ministry.

The interesting feature of his resignation is that he is not leaving on account of a difference as to the necessity for an emergency contribution, but for the reason that he cannot agree with the rest of the Cabinet as to the preliminary steps.

The situation may be summed up briefly as follows: The Cabinet after having received the report of the Ministers who visited England, and after having considered the additional information secured since Mr. Borden's return from the Admiralty Board, is convinced that the situation is such as calls for immediate and effective contribution to the navy of the Empire.

Grave and Critical.
Mr. Monk has been convinced along with the rest of the Cabinet that the situation which confronts the Empire is grave and even critical.

SEND PRISONERS TO CANADA, SAID JUDGE

British Magistrate Is Following the Lead Set in Police Court Here.

London, Oct. 18.—William Baker, director of Barnardo Boys' Homes, told the Imperial Trade Commission that he is strongly in favor of the emigration of children of about seven years of age, so that they might grow up as Canadians from childhood. Canada, he said, offered children better conditions than does South Africa or Australia, and it can absorb all they can send out.

Appropos of emigration to Canada the following incident at the Wakefield Session yesterday is significant.
Two brothers were charged with fraud and were bound over on the understanding that their uncle would send them to Canada, from whence they came.

"It is the best way to get rid of the two young fools," Justice said.
He hoped the prisoners would be carried off to Canada immediately. It would be better for England.

TEARS OF BALKAN SLAVS THE CAUSE OF HOSTILITIES

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria Issues a Striking Proclamation —Hoped For Peace, But "Providence Judged Otherwise"—"Forward; May God Be With You."

Constantinople, Oct. 18.—The Turkish army claims it has defeated the Bulgarian army at Mustapha. Fighting has been going on for more than thirty-six hours and Turkish troops have advanced a few hours' march into Bulgarian territory, steadily driving back King Ferdinand's troops.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 18.—A striking proclamation to the Bulgarian nation has been issued by King Ferdinand. In it it recounts the sufferings of the Macedonian Christians and the efforts of the European powers to secure better treatment for them, and finally says that he has called his people to arms only after the patience of the Balkan nations has been exhausted.

The proclamation opens with a reference to King Ferdinand's peaceful reign of twenty-five years and says he had hoped that it would have so continued, "but Providence judged otherwise. The moment has come when the Bulgarian race is called upon to renounce the benefits of peace and to have recourse to arms for the solution of the great problem. Beyond the Rilo and Rhodope mountains our brothers in blood and religion have not been able until today, thirty-five years after our liberation, to obtain conditions of life that are bearable.

Groaning Millions.
"The tears of the Balkan Slavs and the groaning of millions of Christians would not but stir our hearts and the hearts of our co-religionists.
"Our love of peace is now exhausted. To avenge the Christian population of Turkey there remains to us no other means than to turn to arms."

London, Oct. 18.—Much anxiety was felt to-day, concerning Premier said his case was not serious, but it was believed he must undergo an

WELL-KNOWN HUNTER SHOT DEAD IN ACCIDENT

Dawson, V.T., Oct. 18.—Albert Mc-Kay, 56 years old, one of the most widely known hunters and snow shoe travellers in the north, was shot and killed at Gordon's Landing, Stewart River, by Harry McWhorton, another hunter, according to word received here to-day. McWhorton was returning from a hunting trip, and landed at night. The harking of his dogs on the river bank led him to believe that wolves, which had bothered him the night before, were returning, and he fired in the direction of the noise.

A GOOD RECEPTION TO THE NORMALITES

At the reception of Normalites given by the Young People's Guild of St. Paul's church, over one hundred were present. A fine programme was rendered in which the following took part: Miss Logan, violin solo, Mr.
Alan Brown, Mr. Logan, elocution;
Miss Dorothy Allan, song; Misses Davidson and Stark, instrumental duet. So excellent were the rendition of these selections that encores were given in each case. After the programme a singing contest took place, which by its uniqueness, and by the hearty response, was the most appreciable feature of the evening.
Mr. John Allan, who acted as judge remarked on the fact that St. Paul's church should be proud of the fine example of singers it contained. Refreshments were then served and the company broke up at 11.15.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Only 156 women registered in Chicago. And yet they continue to insist that they really do want the ballot.

Now that science has produced the fatherless frog and the stingless bee, let us hope that soon we shall have the crookedless election.

It seems that our esteemed contemporary, the War Cloud, which has appeared over the Balkans for a number of years really means business this trip.

As the Dominion parliament will not meet till the middle of November, it is quite probable that the Liberal party will meet with a frost when they arrive.

The Examiner printed a paragraph the other day to the effect that troublers are one hundred years old. Some of them that are occasionally seen on George street, look it.

With all this Balkan war talk it is worth while to remember that there is a Hague peace court and that some day it will come into general use, if humanity grows sensible.

A local citizen proposes to start a chicken farm on a large scale in the near future. This great family journal will at once begin negotiations with him for the removal of a number of roosters in the third ward.

A Toronto clergyman the other day in denouncing a certain theatre declared that he would like to lead a mob to "burn down the cess-pool of iniquity." He must belong to the same school of pulpit orators as the Peterborough clergyman who spoke of the monsters who robbed the pockets of the naked savages.

A Toronto dentist has endeavored to contribute something to the sum of human knowledge by saying that girls with pink teeth make the best wives. This great family journal is not from Toronto, but we will have to be shown before we believe they make any better wives than girls with lavender stockings.

It is to be regretted that Dr. Wiley, the food and health expert, has announced that the oyster suffers agony in the process of separating it from its shell. When folks of the anti-vivisectionist type ponder this information they will be impelled to organize societies for the prevention of cruelty to oysters.

5 Years' Throat Trouble And Influenza Cured

EMINENT DOCTORS FAILED TO CURE—HAD GIVEN UP HOPE.

This Case Does Prove That When Catarrh is Breathed Every Trace of Catarrh Disappears.

Milford Haven, Da., Oct. 18. — Everyone in this neighborhood knows of the long suffering from influenza and catarrh endured by Mrs. D. Gurney. To-day she is well. Her recovery is due entirely to Catarrhose. This is her own statement: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh in the head, throat and nose, and endured the manifold tortures of influenza for five years. My life was despaired of. Catarrh was undermining my strength very fast. I used treatments from eminent doctors, but all failed to cure me. I had given up hope of ever being well. Then I read of a wonderful cure made by Catarrhose. Immediately I sent for Catarrhose, and before I had used one bottle I was greatly relieved. To-day I am cured. We would not be without Catarrhose in our home—it's so sure in colds, coughs, bronchitis and throat trouble. I feel it my duty to publicly recommend Catarrhose."

Get the large dollar size of Catarrhose; it contains a beautiful hard rubber inhaler and medicine that last two months. Smaller sizes 25c and 50c each. Beware of imitations—accept only Catarrhose, sold by all reliable dealers or by mail from The Catarrhose Company, Kingston, Ont., and Buffalo, N.Y.

In August and 128 in September of last year. These numbers show a comparison of prices prevailing at the present time with the average prices during the ten years, 1890-1899; some 255 articles being considered in the estimate. The downward movement during September was due chiefly to declines in the price of fresh vegetables, especially potatoes; while there were slight increases in several commodities, notably dairy products, fish, iron, hides, boots and shoes, anthracite coal and miscellaneous building materials. In regard to retail prices, the chief feature of the month was a rise in price of anthracite coal in many cities of Eastern Canada.

DECREASE IN LABOR DISPUTES.

An improvement is shown in labor conditions in regard to disturbances through industrial disputes during September. The Department of Labor records the fact that there were 21 disputes in existence during the month, a decrease of 21 as compared with the previous month though an increase is still maintained over the corresponding month of last year. Ten disputes in all commenced during September, the most important of which were those of coal miners on Vancouver Island, and carpenters at Moosejaw. The former involved a cessation of work on the part of about 3,000 miners employed in the Cumberland and Ladysmith coal mines and was not terminated at the end of September; that of carpenters at Moosejaw affected 450 workers, but was not of long duration. About 5,000 employees were thrown out of work by disputes in existence during September.

THE CALLING OF PARLIAMENT.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden has lost no time in assuring those anxious members of the Liberal party that the naval defence question has been having his first consideration. Parliament, he announced at the Montreal banquet in honor of his homecoming, would be called in November, and the fourteenth of that month is looked upon as the probable date of assembling. The naval programme of the Conservative government will then be submitted to the federal legislators, and if parliament does not approve of the government's plans there will be an appeal to the electorate.

In his speech the Premier had the same clear-cut statement to make on this important question for the Empire, before his fellow citizens of Canada as he had before the people of England, he said, in pursuance of the pledge which he gave to the people of Canada before he became Premier. This was to the effect that he would consult the mother country regarding naval affairs and Canada's participation in the affairs of the Empire. He had told the people of Great Britain that there were two questions to be considered before the announcement of Canada's plans. One was the grave question whether the mother country needed the immediate assistance of Canada; the other and more difficult one was that of the permanent co-operation of the people of Canada in the nation's naval affairs and the relations brought about by the co-operation. Canada's duty was very plain to the Prime Minister. "If the Empire's naval defence situation is grave; if the mother country assures us of this, I will appeal to parliament that immediate and effective aid be given, and if that be not forthcoming I will appeal direct to the country."

In this connection the Montreal Star editorially says: "The calling of parliament for November, two months earlier than was to have been anticipated, proves Mr. Borden's recognition of the imminence and importance of the naval question. The coming session promises to be one of the most memorable since Confederation, and the Premier is in no mood to avoid any of its responsibilities. His dignified, earnest, patriotic utterances Saturday night are a good omen for the happy solution of the problems which must be faced and solved in the next twelve months."

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

WOULD HELP THE "CHURCH."

Editor Morning Times.
 Sir,—In thinking over the Women Suffrage movement I have come to believe that if successful in gaining votes for women it would only be another weapon in the hands of the priests to rob the people of their liberties, and for this reason, a great many Protestant women do not want it, and would not use the right if they had it; while the whole lot of the Catholic women would be compelled to vote according to the will of their spiritual advisers; so I hope that the agitation will be successfully opposed by the nation.

—Edmonton.

FROM THEIR OWN LIPS.

Editor Morning Times.
 Sir,—As The Times has always been fearless in the stand which it takes on all public questions, I would ask you to kindly give the following extract from a sermon preached in St. Louis, Mo., on June 30, by Priest D. S. Phelan, editor of the well known Romanist Church paper, the Western Watchman, of that city. Father Phelan said:
 "And why is it the Church is strong; why is it everybody is afraid of the Catholic Church? And the American people are more afraid of her than any people of the world. Why are they afraid of the Catholic Church? They know what the Catholic Church means. It means all the Catholics of the world; not of one country, or two countries, but all the countries of the world.

 "And it means more than that; it means that the Catholics of the world love the Church more than anything else, that the CATHOLICS OF THE WORLD LOVE THE CHURCH MORE THAN THEY DO THEIR OWN GOVERNMENTS MORE THAN THEY DO THEIR OWN NATION, more than they do their own people, more than they do their own fortunes, more than they do their own selves."

"We of the Catholic Church are ready to go to the death for the church. Under God, she is the supreme object of our worship. Tell us that we think more of the Church than we do of the United States; of course we do. Tell us we are Catholics first and Americans or Englishmen afterward; of course we are.
 "Tell us, in the conflict between the Church and the civil government we take the side of the Church; of course we do. Why, if the government of the United States were at war with the Church we would say, 'HELL WITH THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES,' and if the Church and all the governments of the world were at war we would say, 'TO HELL WITH ALL THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE WORLD.'"

"They say we are Catholics first and Americans decidedly afterward. There is no doubt about it. We are Catholics of the world and love the Church more than we love any and all the governments of the world.
 "Let the governments of the world steer clear of the Catholic Church; let the emperors, let the kings, and the presidents not come into conflict with the head of the Catholic Church because the Catholic Church is everything to all the Catholics of the world; they renounce all nationalities where there is a question of loyalty to her. And why is it that hope is so strong? Why is it that in this country, where we have only seven per cent. of the population, the Catholic Church is so much feared? She is loved by all her children and feared by everybody."

"Why is it the Pope is such a tremendous power? Why, the Pope is the ruler of the world. All the emperors, all the kings, all the princes, all the presidents of the world to-day are as these altar boys of mine. The Pope is the ruler of the world. Why? Because he is the ruler of the Catholics of the world, the Catholics of all the world; and the Catholics of all the world would die for the rights of the Pope. He is the head of the Church, and they would die for the Church.
 "And the Church is the Church of Jesus Christ, and they need not have any misgivings on that score; there need be no misconceptions there—the Catholics of the world love the Church, first and always; they are Americans, they are Germans, they are French, or they are English afterward."

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I am, etc., Protestant.

Five Thousand Subscribers

would mean over 50,000 readers, and would be a powerful force in the cause of civil and religious liberty in this portion of Canada at least.

The rapid expansion of the circulation of The Times during the past year or so is a strong proof that its attitude on the No Tenthers Decree and other burning questions is popular. It would indicate that the time is at hand when an agitation will be gin for the abolition of every special privilege granted by the Government of the country to any church or sect.

We have set out to increase the circulation of The Times to 5000 copies daily, and ask our readers to assist us in attaining this mark as soon as possible.

As a special inducement for them to do so, we will send The Times to any address for three months for 50c, which is a Special Trial Offer. Cut out and fill in the Coupon Order found elsewhere and mail it to us, or hand it in to the office, or you may phone us your order.

THE MAKING OF WOMAN.

Ancient Legend That Corresponds to Our Biblical Story of Eve.

One day, as they rested at noon beneath the thick shade of a Kadamba tree, the King gazed for a long time at the portrait of his mistress. And suddenly he broke silence and said: "Rasakosha, this is a woman. Now, a woman is the one thing about which I know nothing. Tell me, what is the nature of woman? Then Rasakosha smiled, and said: King, you should certainly keep this question to ask the Princess; for it is a hard question. A very terrible creature indeed is a woman, and one formed of strange elements. Apropos I will tell you a story, listen.

In the beginning, when Twaahtri came to the creation of woman, he found that he had exhausted his materials in the making of man, and that no solid elements were left. In this dilemma, after profound meditation, he did as follows: He took the roundness of the moon, and the curves of creepers, and the clinging of tendrils, and the tumbling of grass, and the slenderness of the reed, and the bloom of flowers, and the lightness of leaves, and the tapering of the elephant's trunk, and the glances of deer, and the clustering of rows of bees, and the joyous gaily of runbeams, and the weeping cloud and the fickleness of the winds, and the timidity of the hare, and the softness of the peacock, and the softness of the parrot's beak, and the hardness of adamant, and the sweetness of honey, and the cruelty of the tiger, and the warm glow of fire, and the coldness of snow, and the chattering of jays, and the cooing of the kokila, and the hypocrisy of the hyacinth, and the fidelity of the chakravaka; and compounding all these together, he made woman and gave her to man.

But after one week, man came to him, and said: "Lord, this creature that you have given me makes my life miserable. She chatters incessantly, and leaves me beyond endurance, never leaving me alone, and she requires incessant attention, and takes all my time up, and cries about nothing and is always idle; and so I have come to give her back again, as I cannot live with her." So Twaahtri said: "Very well, and he took her back. Then after another week, man came again to him and said: "Lord, I find that my life is very lonely since I gave you back that creature. I remember how she used to dance and sing to me, and look at me out of the corner of her eye, and play with me, and cling to me, and her laughter was music, and she was beautiful to look at, and soft to touch; so give her back to me again."

So Twaahtri said: "Very well, and gave her back again. Then after only three days, man came back to him again and said: "Lord, I know not how to live with her. I have come to the conclusion that she is more of a trouble than a pleasure to me; so please take her back again. But Twaahtri said: "Out on you! Be off! I will have no more of this. You must manage her now you can. Then man said: "But I cannot live with her. And Twaahtri replied: "Neither could you live without her. And he turned his back on man, and went on with his work. Then man said: "What is to be done? For I cannot live either with or without her."

And Rasakosha ceased, and looked at the King. But the King resumed his silent gazing intently at the portrait of the Princess.

A Dutch Flower Market.

A Dutch flower market is a beautiful sight, stretched along a canal, under the trees, tended by the quaintly costumed women of the land, daisies moored by the water's edge, their masts gently raking the air as they sway up and down, late arriving boats slowly gliding along the waterways, bringing their gayly colored loads of fragile plants and blossoms. The Holland tourist never forgets the fishwives with their baskets, the white and cheese vendors of Alkmaar, nor the tulip vendors of Haarlem. But the best sight Holland has to offer is when the spring is drifting into summer and the Haarlem bulb fields are in bloom.

The Better Half Indeed.

An English judge recently had an inspiration. A defendant appeared too dull to make a defence or answer intelligibly questions put to him by the judge. Suddenly the judge said: "Where do you live?" and the intelligible reply, "About five minutes off," was at once forthcoming. "Then just run home and fetch your wife and run a little quicker than you talk." It was done, and the wife's clear and business-like statement of the facts won the day for her helpless husband.

Cockfighting Among the Greeks.

The sport of cockfighting seems to have originated with the Hittites of Greece. When he was leading an army against the Persians he noted two cocks in a desperate battle. To stimulate the courage of his soldiers he pointed out the bravery of birds, and, having won his battle with the Persians, he ordered that an annual cockfight should be held to celebrate his victory. In England the records show that the first cockfight took place in 1191.

THE NORTH AMERICAN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Is practically a money loan, with the protection afforded by a guarantee fund upon which interest is paid. While each fund is only $50,000.00, the guarantors are liable for five times this amount, so that the protection admirably reflects the best points of stock and mutual companies. The Directors are composed of both policy holders and guarantors.

High Cost of Living SOLVED

By Owning a CRANBROOK ORCHARD

The following statistics are very interesting along this line. Using the figure of 100 as a base for the comparison of prices, Mr. Albert finds the rise in the cost of living between 1897 and 1911 in eight important countries to bear the following relation:

| | |
|---------------|-----------------------|
| Austria | 187 192 198 1910 1911 |
| Belgium | 100 118 119 121 |
| Canada | 92 114 121 |
| France | 92 114 116 118 |
| Germany | 92 107 128 138 141 |
| Italy | 94 108 112 114 121 |
| Japan | 79 88 92 |
| United States | 99 116 125 127 |

According to the rapid increase of living it certainly behooves us to do something at once.

THE ANSWER IS A Cranbrook Orchard

One of these five-acre tracts will support a large family, an income of $1,000 per acre is not uncommon, and ten acres properly farmed will make a man rich.

There is no place in the world that offers as many opportunities for a man with limited capital as a "Cranbrook Orchard" does today. The growing of fruit is only one of the many opportunities. Poultry raising in connection with the growing of fruit will add materially to the profits as the orchard makes an admirable run for poultry, and its close proximity to the city of Cranbrook makes it a good sound investment, as it lies in the direct path of the city's growth.

A Good Title is a Very Essential Matter in the buying of Real Estate.

What Others are Doing You can Do

Lord Aberdeen's Goldstream Ranch, near Vancouver, B.C., was a crop from its twenty-acre orchard of twelve-year-old Northern Spy apples that sold for $15.500.—Western Canada Trade Gazette.

Mr. F. G. Fairbairn, who has a fruit farm on the Lower Arrow Lake, states that he made a profit of $1,000 per acre on certain land set out to seven-year-old apple trees.

Mr. J. T. Beatty, a West Kootenay fruit rancher, has sold as much as 500 pounds of cherries from a single tree at 15 cents per pound, $75 from one tree.

"On about four acres he (Mr. O. J. Wigam, a Kootenay strawberry cultivator), has shipped berries to the amount of over $2,000, and has more to ship yet. His land in strawberries is worth to him at 10 per cent interest $5,000 per acre."—Nelson Daily News.

A CHANCE TO SHARE WEALTH

and anything that has his approval as a safe and sound business proposition has always secured the cooperation of the careful investor, and for this reason, I and some of my friends are associated with him in the Colonial Oil Co. His judgment in investments in farm and coal lands in British Columbia has been good and immensely profitable, and the plan and scope of his organization of the Colonial Oil Co. has novel features which commend it to that class of financiers who are qualified to judge of the merit of such an enterprise.

Some three and a half years ago, Mr. Hosom conceived of a novel, yet practical plan, as it has since proven to be, of collecting large bodies of oil lands from a number of oil fields where oil is known to exist. He said, "we will have one big oil company on the Pacific Coast based on many thousands of acres in California, British Columbia and the State of Washington." His company expects to prevent the loss of any of its money, by putting its eggs in a number of baskets. To select these lands and get reports on them by reputable engineers was a task that probably not more than one man in a thousand would care to undertake, and he turned down over 300,000 acres as not suitable for his company. His explorations and those of his engineers were covered by steamers, railroads, launches, canoes and horses and often on foot, the cost running into thousands of dollars and over three years of time. But his enthusiasm, faith in action, sure of his plan, that his company would not lose its money which occurs so often in single oil fields, has claimed the attention of a large number of wealthy men from coast to coast.

Mr. Jas. A. McNair, of Vancouver, B.C., the millionaire shingle king of Canada, has become a heavy stockholder in this company, and has since become its treasurer. Mr. E. H. Crandall, one of the strong factors in the financial circles of Calgary, Alberta, was a member of the Board of Directors of the Colonial Oil Co., and a large stockholder in the company. Last August Mr. Crandall advised Mr. B. H. Silver to come to Calgary during the process of harvesting a bumper wheat crop, that he and his friends would organize a pool and take another large block of the Colonial Oil Company's stock. Mr. Silver is now in Calgary, Thurston, President of the First National Bank of Glendora, as well as 2nd Vice-President of the Colonial Oil Co., when here last July, said: "Mr. Hosom made a great deal of money for me in oil lands, and I am pleased that he gave me an invitation to join the Colonial Oil Co." Also Mr. E. B. Clark, a millionaire lumberman of Billings City, Montana, with large timber interests on Vancouver Island, and in an interview: "Mr. Hosom is a great man, who does things and then lets the people talk. I went into a railroad deal with him a few years ago and he treated me right. About two-years afterwards I heard he was buying coal lands. I took an early train for Seattle and called on Mr. Hosom, and asked him if he could use any of my money in his coal deals. He said he could enlarge his purchase. Out of that deal in about eight months I took down two dollars for one. That beats the lumber business. I am going into the Colonial Oil Co. with him for several reasons. He never promises big returns, but delivers larger profits than expected. He has good connections and the confidence of all who know him. Mr. Hosom has not said as much, but we expect to see him drill 20 to 30 oil wells in a short time, and then sell out for three or four times the par value of the company's stock."

Mr. Hosom has always had the faculty of surrounding himself with men of high character. It has just occurred to me that I have omitted to state a very important matter in connection with my story. Mr. Hosom, knowing there would not be enough capital on the Pacific Coast available for the Colonial Oil Co., went East some eighteen months ago to look into the financial situation, and being assured that plenty of money was available for his company, returned and completed his explorations. He may not go east till after the election.

EDUCATION IS MOTION

THINGS ARE MOVING FAST THESE DAYS. Sciences change over night. Discoveries are of last week. Inventions of yesterday. The man or woman who is progressing is keeping abreast of the times. 'Tis not enough that you graduated from this University or that College. The world asks: "What do you know to-day?" Education is motion. You move with the tide of events or you find yourself hull up on the mud-flats. Encyclopaedias that served you well within the last decade are now practically obsolete. They know nothing of the Titanic disaster, the Discovery of the South Pole, the Monorail, Wireless Telegraphy, the Airship, the Turko-Italian War—or Hundreds of other subjects of to-day or tomorrow. The one Encyclopaedia that keeps up with you, and you up with the times, is built and perpetuated by Thomas Nelson & Sons on the Loose-leaf Principle.

NELSON'S PERPETUAL LOOSE-LEAF ENCYCLOPÆDIA

Nelson's Patent Loose-leaf Binding Device has revolutionized the whole world of Encyclopaedia making. It has made possible a work that is right on the heels of history.

Nelson's contains upwards of 70,000 subjects, treating over 1,000,000 topics; has 7,000 illustrations and 500 maps. It is the only absolutely new and dependable reference work because the Loose-leaf Binding Device makes it possible to keep the work always up-to-date.

Read these Letters:

J. A. Macdonald, Managing Editor of The Globe, Toronto, writes:—"I have had occasion to resort to it frequently to your perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia for information of many sorts, and have found it exceedingly helpful. This remark applies especially to history and its allied departments of knowledge; Chronology, Biography and Geography. There is a decided advantage in the loose-leaf method of keeping the Encyclopaedia up-to-date over the yearly supplemental volume method, and one that is not un-to-date is worse than useless."

H. J. Silver, Montreal, writes:—"In November last the Protestant Board of School Commissioners supplied a copy of Nelson's Perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia to each of its High Schools, to the Superintendent's office, and to one of its Public Schools. The Principals of these schools have expressed their hearty approval of the work and its usefulness to their pupils. Personally, I have found the work and the Bureau of Research particularly useful to me."

F. E. Wye, Librarian Grand Trunk Railway Library and Scientific Institute writes:—"The name of Nelson's and the list of editors and specialists, is sufficient guarantee to make us feel that we have a perpetual reference work in keeping with the demand for information desired by all who are interested in a progressive Encyclopaedia."

"Your Bureau of Research for Special Information will be of great help to the members generally."

FREAKS OF NATURE.

Barnacles May Serve Some Purpose,
But It Is Not Apparent.

Barnacles are among the curious forms of marine life. So far as is known, they perform no important office, either constructive or destructive, in the economy of nature. They serve to no appreciable extent as food for the creatures of the depths; neither do they operate as a check upon other forms of marine life that might become redundant.

Strangely enough, barnacles are assigned by the naturalists to the same great subdivision of the animal world which includes insects—the arthropods, which means joint footed. Barnacles belong to that class of crustaceans that embraces lobsters and crabs and constitutes the order of cirripedia, a term that means "curled feet."

Barnacles are hatched from eggs.
The young in no way resemble the adults. Upon emerging from the eggs the young barnacles show themselves as free swimming little creatures with one eye, six legs and one shell.
The young barnacle undergoes the operation of molting several times and finally appears with two eyes, twelve legs and two shells. At this stage it ceases to swim, but attaches itself to some convenient object by means of its antennae, secreting a cement whereby it glues itself quite fast. Then it undergoes a metamorphosis, that completely changes its appearance. It loses its bivalve shell and its eyes and acquires its characteristic cirriped or curled feathery legs, and it takes on an entirely new shell.

Three orders of barnacles exist.
Members of one order are attached by the shell directly to rocks, timbers or other convenient objects. A second order are attached to floating objects by a long stalk, and the barnacles of the third order are partially upon crabs and other marine animals. When extended from the shell the curled, feathery appendages are in constant motion, and they draw currents in the water that serve to convey to the curious little creatures their food, consisting of many species of minute forms of life abounding in the sea.

What are commonly known as "sea acorns" are nothing more than barnacles of the genus balanus. These acorns are of slightly changeable color, showing shades of a white, greenish white, pink or purplish color. These barnacles attach themselves to pecks, shells, the piling of piers and sometimes even to whales. The base of the shell is glued firmly to the supporting object, there being no stem.

Ship barnacles are true wanderers of the deep, the same species frequently being found upon the hulls of vessels coming from the most remote and widely separated regions.
They present a very odd appearance, for the shell is attached to the end of a flexible stalk, which varies in length from an inch in some species to twelve inches in others. Generally speaking, the shell of the ship barnacle is of a white or bluish white hue, and the stalk is brown or slate colored.

MODELED FROM MEMORY.

Denton Was a Wonder, Though He Did Denton, the celebrated caricaturist, had a wonderful power of modeling from memory. After one long look at his subject he could go to his studio and make a bust quite perfect in its resemblance.

One day a young man came to him, saying that his sister was ill and about to die and that, although the family wished her bust modeled, they dared not excite her by mentioning it.
He would undertake to reproduce her features after seeing her once! Denton agreed, and next day the brother informed his sister that he intended to present her with some jewelry and that a young man would bring something for her approval.

Denton brought in the bust and going home, modeled a bust of striking resemblance. Next year an old gentleman, the father of the young man, came to order a bust of the brother, who also had died. This, too, was a marvelous success.

The result of such planning, however, was not always as satisfactory to his patrons as in these cases. A gentleman who could not persuade his wife to sit asked Denton to enter a certain omnibus one day and fix in his memory the features of the lady opposite him.

He did so, modeled a beautiful bust and sent it home. It proved, however, to be not the mistress, but the maid who had also taken the trip in the omnibus.

Painful Proof.
"One of the boys called me 'teacher's pet' and I went and told her, and she asked me to prove I wasn't."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Too Much Light.
Daughter—I love him. He is the light of my life. Father—Well, that's all right, but I object to having my Harsh Comments.

"I have no effect. They are always puzzled by it."

WOMEN IN PORTUGAL.

They Do All the Hard Work While Lazy Men Loll and Smoke.

The lot of women in Portugal is not an enviable one, according to Mr. Andrew F. C. Bell, who in his book, "In Portugal," thus describes the labor that falls to their share:

"Portuguese men are so notoriously indolent that it is no exaggeration to say that two-thirds of the work of Portugal is done by women. To them the Portuguese word mouras is really assinable, since, in fact, they work like slaves or serfs. They work in the fields and appear to bear the brunt of the labor.

"In one field the woman is the head of the day draws up bucket after bucket of water while the man sits parched in a shady olive tree. In the neighboring field a man watches six women at work among the maize. In a third a group of women stand working in the summer sun while a group of men sit at the same work under a vine trellis.

"Everywhere there are to be seen women with huge loads of immense weight, while the men accompany them empty-handed. The man lies in his easy chair and must have a cigar and a cup of wine or brandy after his hard day's work, or he sits at his counter and bids his wife go out into the cruel sunshine to fetch a heavy pail of water or other provisions. Women work in the granaries. Women row heavy barges.
Wherever there is hard work women are to be found."

Long Beards.

Howell's "Welsh Celebrities" says:
"Llewellyn had the longest beard of which we have record. When loose and flowing it fell down over his horse's shoulders almost to the animal's knees. It was of a peculiar yellow or straw color, which was all the more curious, both his parents being dark haired mountain Welsh people. Years afterward the mountain people had proverbial which referred to this freak, they often said
"be as long as Howell's beard" or "yellow as the whiskers of Llewellyn."

George Killingsworth, whom Queen
Mary sent to Russia in 1555 as one of her agents to Czar Ivan the Terrible, had a beard five feet three inches in length, and Count Ruzicki of Poland, 1687, rejoiced in the possession of a moustache which was so long that he could not touch the ends of it with his fingers.

"Perhaps it will turn up in one of the sacks," suggested the friend, whereupon the miller was seized with a brilliant idea. He advertised his loss in the local papers, offering a reward to the finder of the gold piece. His sales trebled in a week or so, and he was paid many times over for the loss of his guinea.

"You know," said Miss Oddways looking critically at a picture that a friend had purchased, "that landscape does remind me so of Mr. Vermilion's work. You've seen his pictures, of course?"

"No," said the friend frankly, "I haven't."

"Not seen Mr. Vermilion's paintings?
Why, my dear, and you an art con-noisseur! I understand he has a picture in every museum in Paris."—New York Press.

A Bowell and Johnson Story.

Bowell—once asked Johnson if there were no possible circumstance in which outside would be justified.

"No," was the reply.

"Well," says Bowell, "suppose a man has been guilty of a fraud he was certain would be found out."
"Why, then," says Johnson, "in that case let him go to some country where he is not known and not to the devil, where he is known."

His Orders.

Bliss (the wholesaler)—Well, how many orders did you get yesterday?
Gink (the salesman)—I got two orders as one store. Bliss—What were they?
Gink—One was to get out, and the other was to stay out.—Cleveland Tit-Bits.

Ancient Town Hall.

The little town hall of Totnes, in Devonshire, is probably the most ancient in England. It is tucked away in a corner behind the parish church, and all its furniture and fittings are almost exactly as they were 800 years ago. We do not know whether the councillors bring their own cushions with them, but they will probably need to do so, for the creaking chairs of our ancestors were not built for comfort.

Quite a number of English towns have two town halls, the old one and the new. Scarborough is one of these places. The old hall, in St. Nicholas street, is used for entertainments and other social purposes, while the new one, a magnificent building, is used for municipal work.—Tit-Bits.

Record Apple Shipments.

Complete Canadian statistics of the season's export of apples and their points of destination, together with comparisons for each season running back to 1890-91, have been compiled.
A striking feature in the record made by Halifax, N.S. That port, in the season of 1911-12, exported almost as much as did New York, Boston and Portland combined. Never before in its history had it come anywhere near exporting such a quantity of apples, the nearest approach being made in 1909-10, when the Nova Scotia shipments reached 622,513 barrels.

An Imprisoned Tailor Strikes.

The latest Australian strike is one of the Gilbertian order. A prisoner in Fremantle prison, a tailor by trade, refused to work on the ground that it would be contrary to his principles as a trade unionist. He sent a letter to the Tailors' Union officially notifying it of his action, but that body expressed neither sympathy nor disapproval, preferring silence.

Population of England.

The census of England and Wales for 1911, the first volume of a detailed report of which has just completed, shows a total population of 35,770,692, with 1,179,576 more females than males. The density of population is 118 to the square mile. It is, of course, the most dense in London, where the population is 30,400 to the square mile.

When Appetite Fails And Digestion is Bad

There is Danger Ahead for the Man
That Neglects Nature's Warning Bystander's Testimony is Serious, and Should be Treated Accordingly.

There is a strong moral in the statement of James Soper, of Pleasant street, Dartmouth, N.S. The thousands of people, he was failing in health because his stomach and digestive organs were out of repair. His vitality was slipping away; he was losing ground every day. "I could not have held on much longer. I was wasting away simply because no remedy I used gave tone and strength to my stomach. The vital forces of my system seemed dead. I was advised to try Dr. Soper's Pills. What hidden weakness they searched out I don't know, but in a miraculous way they have made me a new man. My stomach troubles are cured, rich blood now runs through my veins—clear skin and unmistakable evidences of health and vigor. I feel every day. Dr. Soper's Pills have certainly mastered the secret of curing the sickly, emaciated man and I strongly urge everyone in failing or lost health to use this grand remedy." Dr. Soper's Pills of Mandarins and Bismut are pure vegetable—no per-bor, 8 boxes for $1.00, all drug stores and stores, or postpaid from the Cataract House Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

The Descent Has Checked.
A local lawyer was out driving be-noon. As the lawyer and a friend arrived at the brink of a hill leading in their proposed direction, the man of advice, wrote and mortgages suddenly jumped out of the rig and rushed to the horse's head. He grabbed the reins and, walking by the steed's head, led it down the incline. This story, such as it is, is true. Why the horse in normal condition had to be led down the hill is a mystery. Did its owner recollect recall the expression "facilis descensus avernus" and try to put on the brakes?

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.
We will give One Hundred Dollars
by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear.
There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing,
and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and
this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be lost forever;
also cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

A New Indian Tale.
At yesterday's police court, the two young men Dixon and Shaughnessy, charged with obstructing the sidewalk in front of the Greek's pool room, were discharged. A young Scotchman, who mistook Canadian tanglefoot for the past scented dew of his native heath, and in consequence, got "pecked" was fined $2.
He reported to have said "I weel weel I only two weeks in the country and bang gangs aspen, in antomy a muckle of them." Another phase was added to blacklisted men's excuses for their respective jags. It used to be the kind hearted stranger who begs one to accept corn-pudding at $1.25 a bottle. A

LITTLE LOCAL LINES

Two snow loads of wood from the back country have arrived in the city.

The regular meeting of the ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A., will be held Monday afternoon at 3.30.

The advocates of local option met at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday afternoon. Organization work was advanced.

Messrs. C. James, Chris. Wood and R. Tivey leave this morning for Beckhorn Lake on their annual duck shoot trip.

It is whispered that wild ducks do not get their full day's rest at Rice

Lake. The occasional crack of the pot-hunters gun is to be heard.

At this morning's session of the Teachers' Association, Mr. A. J.
Grant, of the Trent Canal will tell the story of the Panama Canal.

The proprietor of the Anglo-American hotel, Kingston, was fined $50 for selling to a blacklisted man. The "Indian" got $20 worth of warning not to do it again.

London, Ont., temperance men have refused to accept the Independent candidate, although he advocates
Mr. Rowell's "abolish the bar" political stratagem.

Reports say that the Niagara District is in aid of help to pick the grape crop. Judging by evidence in Thursday's local police court, this city can provide at least one man to get rid of the finished product of the grape.

A New York "Lady Evangelist" went to Onawa last week and took part in the local option controversy.
If she was hired by advocates of that law, those hiring her seem to have brought a "lemon" as she turned
"dry" conditions into ridicule.

The local schools were closed yesterday owing to the Teachers' Convention. Many a fond mother was held back in her daily household routine, seeing that the little one did not feed mustard to the cat or make a bon fire of the bed clothes.

Whilst Providence provides wild ducks, deer, partridge and other game aplenty this fall, local people have to pay 33 cents a dozen for old cold storage hen fruit and what the butchers choose to ask for meat. As for coal!—I—well, "nuff said!"

MUSIC & DRAMA

"EXCUSE ME."

With a record of nine months at the Gaiety Theatre in New York and having every feature which caused it to be hailed as the best farce theatrical production of the season, the "Excuse Me," the Rupert Hughes play which has a subtitle of "A Pulman Carnival," comes to the Grand Opera House, Thursday, Oct.
24th. "Excuse Me" is a Henry W.
Savage offering. Mr. Savage is a producer who stands for high purpose, skillful effort and enviable accomplishment so it is unnecessary to say more regarding the tone and class of the production than that it is typical of the Savage endeavor.
As a play "Excuse Me" has given to Rupert Hughes an eminence as a writer of farce that is shared by no contemporary playwright. It is emphatically a novelty. Throughout its action there is not one instance of mistaken identity, no male person is required to masquerade in feminine garments, and none of the other absurd rules (treasonous to providing laughter in this sort of play) has been observed. The subtitle is aptly descriptive. Mr. Hughes has taken a score and a half persons from everyday American life, placed them aboard a Pullman sleeper on an Overland river bound from Chicago to the Pacific Coast, and let things happen and the things that happen while they are perfectly logical in their origin and their sequence, keep up laughter for three acts. There are a score of contrasting types in the Pullman's passenger roster, and every one is interesting because of himself as well as because of his relation to his fellows. The action of the play is rapid and charming. The fact that it kept New Yorkers laughing for nine consecutive months is a good argument as to its merits, to be added the fact that it has been six months in Chicago and four months
in Boston.

Toronto, Oct. 18.—Chief Constable Grassett, expressed surprise to-day that morning newspaper should have devoted a leading editorial to an attack on the police force, characterizing its members as bullies, because of the reported actions of one policeman during a small traffic block.

"If a policeman is not polite, or if he abuses his authority in any way, there is a very simple and direct means of dealing with the matter," he said. "Let any specific charge, giving the number of the offender, and the names of witnesses of his conduct, be made at this office, and we will soon show that such actions are not tolerated."

"But to take one minor case, to give no name or number, and to devoted the leading article of the editorial page of a newspaper to a consequent charge under a heading as "Bullying Policemen," seems to me to be proceeding in which all sense of proportion, not say of fairness, is disregarded."

"Whatever else may be said about the Toronto Police Force, it is frequently cause for comment by visitors to the city that, as a body, the men are exceedingly courteous and polite."

ANNOUNCEMENT

By Joseph Martin, K.C., M.P.
for
St. Pancras, London, England

Ladies and Gentlemen GREETINGS

I HAVE been approached by a great number of Vancouver citizens and been requested to place my Vancouver City property on the market, as a result of which I have decided to grant their wishes, and have now made arrangements with Messrs. Leitch & Taylor to sell the whole of my estate in this section.

This property has been subdivided into lots and every lot has been entirely cleared, making it available for the immediate erection of homes of the better class. This property is inside city property. Two street carlines serve the property with an adequate car service, and any person erecting a home here can reach the up-town business and amusement section in fifteen minutes by paying one city fare, five cents.

A school of a commodious nature, costing over $125,000, has been erected two blocks from the property. Hundreds of houses have been erected on all sides of my property. Fire hydrants and water mains have been laid within a block of my estate. Electric light is available at any time. Improvements of the highest order, such as graded streets, etc., are already made. Other civic improvements will be done when required, and, looking at the property from every viewpoint, it is all that the homeseeker or investor could wish for.

Messrs. Leitch & Taylor have a reputation for handling only first-class property, and I know that you will be dealing with this firm, be entirely satisfied in every particular. Messrs. Leitch & Taylor's offices are 309 Cambie Street, Vancouver, B. C., where all applications for lots in my estate must be made.

I have just a few words to say regarding the property as a good investment.
I have invested money in many cities in Canada, but this estate has proven to be a winner, as you must realize that inside city property of a thriving city like Vancouver cannot be beaten for an investment.

When I purchased this property several years ago I thought it was an exceptionally good buy. Many years have passed, during which time Vancouver's development has been in one direction, and that direction is eastward, for it is impossible for Vancouver to grow in any other direction.

This property has now enhanced in value considerably, and the people of Vancouver are now demanding a residential section in the east end of Vancouver, hence my reason for placing this property on the market. The price at which these lots will be sold, I am sure, very reasonable, and the terms are the most convenient that I could possibly make. You are allowed by these terms seven years in which to complete the payments for the property.

The investor who is looking for a profitable investment in Vancouver real estate
I would seriously advise them to purchase this property, as I am sure the time is not far distant when the value of this property will have more than doubled.

Messrs. Leitch & Taylor have prepared a descriptive folder of this property and a large authentic map of the City of Vancouver. You can have one of these by dropping a postal card and saying that you are interested. Address—
MESSRS. LEITCH & TAYLOR, 309 Cambie St., Vancouver, B. C.

Leitch & Taylor will make an announcement in this space in to-morrow's paper. Look for it.

Wishing you success. Yours truly,
JOSEPH MARTIN

ONE CAUSE OF BAD COMPLEXION—THE CURE

(From Family Physician.)

"Look at a section of skin under the microscope and you will readily understand why cosmetics generally injure the complexion," says Dr. H.
Robert Mackenzie. "The skin, smooth as it looks to the naked eye, under the glass exhibits a lacework of tiny holes, mouths of myriads of little glands. To keep the skin healthy these holes must be unobstructed, that the perspiration and natural oil can have free exit. Should the glands be blocked up with irritating, gritty particles, a common result of using powders and creams. Nature retaliates by causing sallowness, roughness, blotches or pimples."

"As a substitute for all cosmetics
I recommend ordinary macerated wax It not only does what the various face preparations are supposed to accomplish, but its peculiar absorption action frees the pores from the daily accumulation of impurities also absorbing the devitalized particles of surface skin. This produces a natural, healthy, youthful complexion.
One ounce of this wax, to be had at any drug store, usually suffices to rejuvenate the poorest complexion. It is put on nightly like cold cream and washed off morning."

OIL! OIL! OIL!

Oil is becoming the dominant factor in industrial development. It is replacing coal as a fuel and is now in successful use in smelting ores. Its by-products are a necessary part of human existence all over the world.

The newest oil regions of the globe, and the most prolific, are on the Pacific Coast.

A new Company has been organized in Seattle, Washington, to exploit some of these profitable new fields. Its Board of Directors are well known business men of Seattle and Vancouver, B.C., and investors here have an opportunity to join with it in the profits to accrue from development of oil fields in British Columbia, California and Alaska.

Address all enquiries to the Colonial Oil Co.,

THE REGENCY BALL

London For a Night Went Back to Good Old Days.

English society witnessed a brief reincarnation of the joyous extravagance of the Regency last month, when the Albert Hall, London, was the scene of the greatest and most brilliant ball of the season—a most successful attempt to revive the martial glories of the age of the Dandies, of "bucks" and beaux, of mingling macaronis and wonderfully-dressed tops, of powder and patches and polka bonnets. The "Hundred Years Ago" ball, as it was styled, consisted of a series of beautifully-sketched quadrilles such as were danced in the days when the vicious, heartless, and grossly licentious Prince Regent, afterward George IV. of infamous memory, "the first gentleman in Europe," held his dissolute and drunken court at the Pavilion, Brighton, with his moribund, but excellent wife, the beautiful Mrs. Fitzherbert. His life has supplied as much foul material for scandal as any in English history. Thackeray bitterly describes a buckle he invented as his single contribution to the riches of the world. But there was a certain charm about those hazy (faint) days of a century ago. Society was virile and on the whole wholesome, gay, notwithstanding the profligacy of "the fount of honor" and the arbiter of fashion. Waterloo was three years distant in the future, but the long life-and-death struggle with Napoleon had cast over the land a tinge of chivalry and of heroic patriotism.

The waltz had just made its appearance in the salons of London but had not become popular. The stately minuet and the ancient English gavotte were departing into oblivion. The quadrille was supreme. The presentation of the life of a hundred years ago, correctly staged as to dress, manners, and environment, formed a great and delightful spectacle. The dresses rivalled one another in splendor. Among the richer types the most beautiful were the regal-looking Napoleonic dresses, with rich gold embroidery and ermine trimming, but the charm of Arcadian simplicity was not missing. Naturally in that period of strife, social gatherings took on a military aspect, and, at the Albert Hall, the beautiful costumes of the ladies mingled with the brilliant uniforms of every nation in Europe and the extravagant modes of the Dandies. The famous gardens at Vauxhall, the celebrated Almack's, the club where Pitt and Sheridan and Charles Fox and many more drank deep and gambled recklessly, the splendid regiments of the time and other characteristic features of the "merry part," were commemorated in the naming of the different quadrilles. The famous men and women, who cast lustre on that period of England's history, were represented to the life. The "Iron Duke" of Wellington was a prominent figure in the "Waterloo" quadrille, as were also the intellectual Madame de Staël, the "Rousseau in petticoats," and the Duchess of Richmond, who gave the celebrated ball at Brussels, two nights before the battle of Waterloo, when "there was a sound of revelry by night," interrupted by the noise of dread reality, "the cannon's opening roar." The merry and good hosts of the organizers of this memorable ball and the enthusiasm of the participants resulted in an unqualified success.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Those Montenegrin soldiers seem to be eating Turkey and Turkey is eating crow.

That socialist crank who shot Col. Roosevelt at Milwaukee certainly did hit the "Bull Moose," but, at the same time gained tens of thousands of sympathetic people for Col. Roosevelt.

We do not care to question the statement that only one man in 10,000 earns his own living at the age of seventy, but this g.f.j. is safe in saying that up to that time he endured some lively scuffling to earn a living for other people.

"Hunger-strikes against the high cost of living are getting quite common across the line. On Monday 30,000 housewives of Cleveland, O., will eat eggs of the daily menu until the price of eggs drops to 30 cents. When the price drops, presumably they will again buy eggs. But the increased demand will send the price up again. The only way to keep the price down is to make the strike permanent.

So much has been said in protest against the character of many of the films shown in moving-picture shows that it is gratifying to learn that a Canadian company is now preparing several series of films representing episodes in Canadian history. One of these series represents the heroic stand made by Dollard and his fifteen companions against the Iroquois in defence of Montreal. In this series several hundred Canajoharie Indians in war paint and aboriginal costume are represented. Enterprises of this sort deserves encouragement.

The grave closed over the last authenticated war survivors in Britain of the Napoleonic period in the last years of the nineteenth century. Then died centenarian in Chelsea hospital, Private Shon Ross, of the famous Black Watch, who as a little drummer had advanced with roll of drum down the slope of Waterloo when Wellington, standing high in his stirrups and waving his cocked hat, had given his immortal command, "The whole line will advance!" Old Shon Ross, a Gael who came from Skye, was a favorite with Queen Alexandra, when Princess of Wales, and as a privileged visitor at the diamond jubilee garden party at Buckingham palace in 1897, was after persuasion coaxed to release her royal hand. Then died at so Admiral of the British Fleet, Sir Provo Wallis, bedridden and feeble, though clear in mind, in his hundred and second year, who as a young midshipman on board H.M.S. Shannon, took a gallant share in capturing the Chesapeake off Boston in 1813. The admiral of the British fleet and the Waterloo drummer were the sole warrior centenarians who passed away the last of their race before this century dawned.

Nasal Discharge Proves Catarrh is Active

THE PURE BALSAMIC ESSENCES OF CATARRHOZONE AFFORD SUREST AND QUICKEST CURE.

Catarrhozone is certain to cure because its healing vapor is carried with the breath directly to the seat of the chest, nose or throat trouble. Being composed of the purest balsams and pine essences, it immediately allays irritations, facilitates the ejection of mucus, soothes and stimulates the lungs and bronchial tubes. The marvel of the age in curing winter ills—that's what thousands say about Catarrhozone. There is nothing so sure to cure, and to those in fear of changeable weather—those who easily catch cold—those who work among lung-chilling surroundings, or where dust, impure air, fog or damp can affect them—let them get Catarrhozone and use it several times daily—it will cure every time.

HAD CASE CURED IN TWO DAYS.
"I was unfortunate enough to catch a bad cold from sitting in a draught in my bare head," writes Miss Rena E. Jamieson, well known in Bangor Grande, Md. "An acute condition of catarrh developed in my nostrils and for three days my eyes and nose ran incessantly. The usual remedies entirely failed to relieve. I read in The Mirror newspaper about Catarrhozone and sent to Smith Bros. drug store for a dollar outfit. In two days Catarrhozone cleared out my nostrils, cured the sneezing, coughing, and all traces of catarrh."

Large size Catarrhozone, sufficient for two months' use, warranted price $1.00; smaller sizes 25c and 50c. Beware of imitations and substitutes, and insist on getting "Catarrhozone" only. By mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS

According to the record of industrial accidents maintained by the Department of Labor, that for the month of September shows there to have been 89 workmen killed and 419 injured, a total of 508. Compared with the record for August, this is an increase of one fatal and 114 non-fatal. The trades and industries in which the greatest number of accidents occurred were: Steam railway service, in which there were 28 fatal and 123 non-fatal; metal trades with 3 killed and 72 injured; mining with 10 killed and 42 injured; and the building trades with 10 killed and 33 injured.

APPALLING FIGURES

How firm a hold the suggestion of the physicians that the best restrictive of tuberculosis is fresh air has been taken is evidenced by the fact that with the opening of the fall school term over 200 open-air schools and fresh air classes for tubercular and anemic children are in operation in the United States, besides several in Canada.

The first institution of the kind was established at Providence, R.I., in 1907. Three years later there were thirty of them and four years later twenty-nine, so that the great bulk have appeared within the past two years.

Massachusetts, in keeping with her reputation for enlightened administration, stands at the head of the list with eighty-six fresh air schools and classes and all but six are in Boston. New York is second with twenty-nine and Ohio third with twenty-one. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis points out that these 200 schools are in fifty cities in nineteen different States.

It is estimated by the United States Census Bureau that 100,000 children now attending schools in the United States will succumb to the white plague before they are 18, or in other words 7000 die annually from the disease. If the average child who dies from tuberculosis has had six years of schooling it is estimated that the waste in education each year amounts to $1,000,000. The same awful average no doubt obtains in Canada.

These figures are sufficiently appalling to attract public attention to the necessity of encouraging the movement for these air schools. Hundreds of lives would annually be saved if these schools were sufficiently extended to take in the bulk of the sickly and anemic pupils. In cities especially, the National Association in the United States urges that there should be at least one for every 25,000 population. Peterborough therefore should have one of these classes.

Growth of the fresh air idea is not, however, confined to the department of education. It has taken root among the people at large. In Peterborough a large number of people now sleep out-of-doors, whereas ten years ago those who did were rare.

exceptions in their neighborhoods. That is true of every city in the country. Tuberculosis lays a frightful toll on Canada every year; but it is comforting to learn that many lives are being saved or prolonged by the readiness with which people all over the country are following the advice of the Tuberculosis Association and its subsidiary organizations and of the physicians.

ROMAN INDELGENCES

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The Christian Herald, Oct. 2, quotes from a Vienna correspondent re Roman Catholic Congress: "All rural districts have been informed by bills on the church walls that whoever attends the congress and says fervent prayers before any altar on which the Host is exposed is entitled to seven years' indulgence, which he may devote to any soul in purgatory. If prayers are offered up for the aggrandizement of the church a complete indulgence is insured. The same privilege is accorded to all who take part in the procession and in the holy communion on Sept. 17th. All priests down to the lowest degree are entitled to grant pardon for the mortal sins, which in ordinary times only the bishops can pardon—perjury, murder, incest, arson." If Rome set the power it is grasping for on this continent we would soon see the sale of such wicked indulgences in our cities and districts.

TO FACE TRIAL FOR OLD CRIME

Boy, Aged 9, Vowed To Find Man Who Killed Father, Finally Gets Him

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 20.—After a forty years' search for the slayer of his father, William Berry, of Alabama, left Atlanta Friday night, with Freeman Long, a negro, in his custody, who will face trial for the crime. Berry was nine years old when he vowed to hunt down the man who killed his father. Long escaped jail in Alabama while on trial for the alleged murder. A few years later he was convicted under the name of Thomas on a charge of killing Lindsay Weaver, a negro in Georgia, and sentenced to life imprisonment. After serving a long sentence, he was pardoned.

Recently he filed a petition for a pension for services in the Union army during the Civil War and was forced to use his real name. Berry learned of the application and secured a requisition on the Governor of Georgia for Long. Governor Brown granted the order.

low roses. The bridemaids were Miss Laura Hughes and Miss Mabel Southerton, both wearing peach-colored satin with rich touches of cream crepe de chine finished with boucles of black chantilly lace. They looked charming in large black hats with black and yellow plumes and carried yellow roses. During the signing of the register, Mrs. Bertram L. McLean, of Lindsay, sang, "Because." The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful diamond and sapphire ring, and to the bride a pearl and sapphire brooch; to the ushers gold cuff links. The groom was assisted throughout by Mr. Lloyd N. Sylvester, of New York, while the ushers were Mr. C. Ross Cameron, Mr. Fred Holmes Hopkirk, B.A., and Mr. J. M. MacKinnon. Colonel and Mrs. Hughes held an elaborate reception afterwards at their palatial residence corner of Lindsay and Glenelg streets. Mrs. Hughes receiving in a beautiful gown of white satin with overdrapes of black chantilly lace with touches of yellow and rhinestone bangles, and wore a black hat with bird of paradise. She carried a large shower of yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Smith mother of the groom wore black satin with touches of pink and carried Killarney roses. The bride's going away gown was a French suit of sapphire velvet. She wore a very becoming black hat with large black osprey and ermine furs. In the evening Colonel and Mrs. Hughes gave an enjoyable dance.

SOME OF THE GIFTS.

The gifts were exceedingly numerous and costly, including many from the nobility and prominent officials of England, as well as from prominent Canadians. A diamond pendant from Lord and Lady Brooks, of England; a gold watch bracelet from Lord Dundonald of England; a Turkish silver coffee boiler from three sergeants, Nos. 100, 101 and 111, City of London, England, who served at South Africa. Among the prominent outside guests present were Capt. Armand Lavergne, Colonel and Mrs. Lyona Huggar, Colonel MacDonald and others of Ottawa; Sir William and Lady Mackenzie, Dr. and Mrs. Wallace Scott, Dr. James L. and Mrs. Hughes, Captain and Mrs. Porter, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. James Ross, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Taylor, Winnipeg and others. The happy couple left in the Minister's private car "Rolsen" on their honeymoon trip.

Five Thousand Subscribers

would mean over 50,000 readers, and would be a powerful force in the cause of civil and religious liberty in this portion of Canada at least.

The rapid expansion of the circulation of The Times during the past year or so is a strong proof that its attitude on the No Teners Decree and other burning questions is popular. It would indicate that the time is at hand when an agitation will be gin for the abolition of every special privilege granted by the Government of the country to any church or sect.

We have set out to increase the circulation of The Times to 5000 copies daily, and ask our readers to assist us in attaining this mark as soon as possible.

As a special inducement for them to do so, we will send The Times to any address for three months for 50c, which is a Special Trial Offer. Cut out and fill in the Coupon Order found elsewhere and mail it to us, or hand it in to the office, or you may phone us your order.

High Cost of Living SOLVED

By Owning a CRANBROOK ORCHARD

The following statistics are very interesting along this line: Using the figure of 100 as a base for the comparison of prices Mr. Albert finds the rise in the cost of living between 1897 and 1911 in eight important countries to be the following relation:

| Country | 1897 | 1911 |
|---------------|------|------|
| Austria | 100 | 118 |
| Belgium | 100 | 118 |
| Canada | 100 | 118 |
| France | 100 | 118 |
| Germany | 100 | 118 |
| England | 100 | 118 |
| Italy | 100 | 118 |
| United States | 100 | 118 |

According to the rapid increase of living it certainly behooves us to do something at once. THE ANSWER IS A Cranbrook Orchard

One of these five-acre tracts will support a large family, as an income of $1,000 per acre is not uncommon, and ten acres properly farmed will make a man rich.

There is no place in the world that offers as many opportunities for a man with limited capital as a "Cranbrook Orchard" does to-day. The growing of fruit will add materially to the profit as the orchard makes an admirable run for poultry, and its close proximity to the city of Cranbrook makes it a good sound investment, as it lies in the direct path of the city's growth.

Lord Aberdeen's Coldstream Ranch, near Vernon, yielded a crop from its twenty-acre orchard of twelve-year-old Northern Spy apples that sold for $15,000. -Western Canada Trade Gazette.

Mr. F. O. Farquhar, who has a fruit farm on the Lower Arrow Lake, states that he made a profit of $1,000 per acre on certain land set out to seven-year-old apple trees.

Mr. J. T. Beatty, a West Kootenay fruit rancher, has sold as much as 500 pounds of cherries from a single tree at 15 cents per pound, $75 from one tree.

"On about four acres he (Mr. O. J. Wynn, a Kootenay strawberry culturist), had shipped berries to the amount of over $2,000, and has more to ship yet. His land in strawberries is worth to him at 10 per cent. interest $5,000 per acre." -Nelson Daily News.

THE NORTH AMERICAN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.
Is practically a mutual one, with the protection afforded by a guarantee fund upon which interest is paid. While such fund is only $99,000.00, the guarantors are liable for five times this amount so that the position admirably reflects the best points of stock and mutual companies. The Directorate is composed of both policy holders and guarantors.

A Cobweb With a Story.
A gigantic spider's web is painted on the ceiling of one of the rooms in Sans Souci, the renowned palace of Frederick the Great. This apartment, the King's breakfast room, adjoined his bedchamber. Every morning when his majesty entered the room he was accustomed to take a cup of chocolate but on one occasion just as he was about to drink he thought of something he had forgotten and returned to his bedroom. When he again entered the breakfast room he discovered that a great spider had dropped from the ceiling into the cup and he ordered fresh chocolate to be prepared. A few minutes later he was startled by a pistol shot. No sooner had the cook received the order than he blew out his brains—not because the king had refused the chocolate but because he had poisoned the cup and thought himself discovered. It was in remembrance of this narrow escape that his majesty ordered the spider with its web to be painted on the ceiling.

When the Earth Was Top Shaped.
After people dropped the old-fashioned idea that the earth was as flat as a pancake they got a spherical idea as it is applied to worlds. The people of the time of Columbus believed that the earth was a globe shaped like a top or cone, the surface rising from the north to the south. There are several letters written by Columbus and still in existence which go to prove that such was his conception of the shape of the earth. The top-shaped idea of the earth seems to have originated with one John Blavie about 1479 and to have immediately become very popular.

Original Meaning of "Garble."
The word "garble" originally means "to select for a purpose." There used to be an old garbler of the "spices" and it was his duty to visit the stores, examine the spices and order those that did not come up to standard to be destroyed. In this way the garbler was a selector of the good and the bad of all importations. So a "garbled" report is one that is sifted down and bereft of some of its original contents. Nowadays anything "garbled" is misleading and chopped up so as to give a wrong impression.

Looking Out for Number One.
Sydney had been given some discarded millinery with which to amuse herself. She trimmed a marvelous looking hat and arranged it with a long red ostrich plume, hung straight down from the front of the brim, over her baby face.

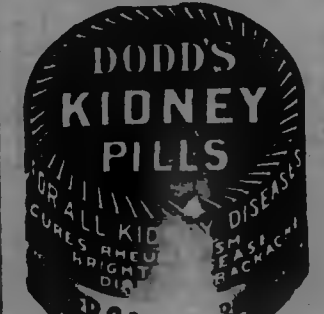

"Come here, Sydney," said her mother. "Let me take that feather back out of your eyes."
"Oh, no, mother! I want it that way so I can see myself. Most all the feather on my hat."

The Turk.
The Turk practices no trade, engages in no commerce. They have a proverb which says, "The Frank has science, the American commerce, the Osmanli majesty." But, as majesty won't fill stomachs, those who do not serve as soldiers strive to become functionaries, and the men of the small villages, failing in this, do nothing, and the work of the fields and house falls upon the shoulders of the women. One chronicler states that occasionally the man of the house arches a stocking or mends the baby for a short period.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES

this special service. Patrons of the regular evening service and crowd followed. The pastor noted that an important conference would be held in the Sunday school on Wednesday evening to get general opinions on religious matters.

Rev. Mr. MacLean said he never met any man so atheistical, but what he really believed there was something ahead of this life, something brighter. The lesson of the wise and unwise virgins is a great and important one. The multitude by the Sea of Galilee were told "Come unto me and I will give you rest." There are many shut doors in the bible, in religion and human life. The speakers then drew a word picture from the history of Esau, from the Book of Genesis. "Use your opportunities, they never come back." We are apt to knock at the door and find it shut forever! The unwise virgins were not evil persons; they were with the wise virgins; their intentions may have been good; God wants men and women of resolution. We must look to God and Christ as our Saviour and press on to victory! There is nothing meretricious in prayer, alms giving, or attending church merely. Religion stands for more than ordinances.

Ruptured People—

Try this for Relief and Cure

Here is something you can try every day without having to risk a single cent of your money.

Something which has cured in the last twenty-four years—thousands of ruptured people—

Something so strengthening to the ruptured parts that you can work right along while being cured—

If you don't find yourself getting better after trying a Cloth Truss or Cloth Automatic Manager—

If you don't think it's doing you a lot of good—making a new man of you—

Then we don't want a penny.

Try It 60 Days at Our Risk

This is more than a truss—more than merely a device to hold your rupture in place.

For your protection we guarantee to write that a Cloth Truss will keep your rupture from coming out—when you are working, standing, taking a bath (this truss is water-proof)—every minute of the day. If a 60 days' trial doesn't prove it, the truss won't cost you a cent.

You see this truss—differs all others—is self-adjusting, self-regulating.

The support it gives automatically increases when there is any sudden movement or strain—as in working—so no strain can force your rupture out.

And, in addition, a Cloth Truss provides the only way ever discovered for overcoming the weakness which is the real cause of rupture.

While relieving the weak, ruptured parts of all strains, this Truss is constantly strengthening the ruptured parts.

Does that by automatically managing them—this healing manager does for these parts what surgery does for a weak arm—restores their lost strength—in many cases makes them so strong that a truss is no longer needed.

Curing Begins at Once

This manager is so beneficial that nearly all feel better and stronger—get immediate relief—after trying this truss.

So beneficial that a Cloth Truss has cured some of the worst cases on record—

Among them men and women 20 to 70 years old, who had been ruptured from 20 to 30 years.

Cured many of them after everything else, including operations, had failed to do any good whatever.

The ordinances alone will not save us nor will the mere attending at Communion save us. Something deeper is needed to commend us to God. "The honor of Christ is in your hands," he declared dramatically.

The speaker was most confirmed in his belief in religion by a man he met in Barrie, a confirmed and hopeless drunkard who decided to "Give God a chance" and prayed with belief. The man lost his desire for drink entirely. He had got the spirit of the Holy Ghost.

The Evangelistic service was characterized by a general spirit of snap, vigor, interest and religious fervor, without the slightest approach to the sensational or hysterical.

EDUCATION IS MOTION

THINGS ARE MOVING FAST THESE DAYS. Science change over night. Discoveries are of last week. Inventions of yesterday. The man or woman who is progressing is keeping abreast of the times. 'Tis not enough that you graduated from this University or that College. The world asks: "What do you know to-day?" Education is motion. You move with the tide of events or you find yourself huddled up on the mud-flats. Encyclopaedias that served you well within the last decade are now practically obsolete. They know nothing of the Titanic disaster, the Discovery of the South Pole, the Monorail, Wireless Telegraphy, the Airship, the Turko-Italian War—or Hundreds of other subjects of to-day or to-morrow. The one Encyclopaedia that keeps up with you, and you up with the times, is Britannica and perpetuated by Thomas Nelson & Sons on the Loose-leaf Principle.

NELSON'S PERPETUAL LOOSE-LEAF ENCYCLOPEDIA

Nelson's Patent Loose-leaf Binding Device has revolutionized the whole world of Encyclopaedia making. It has made possible a work that is right on the heels of history.

Nelson's maintain three permanent Editorial Staffs: European Editor, George Sandeman, M.A., Edinburgh, Scotland; Canadian Editor, Wm. Peterson, LL.D., O.M.S., Principal McGill University, Montreal; American Editor, John H. Finley, Ph.D., LL.D., President of the College of the City of New York.

Nelson's contains upwards of 70,000 subjects, treating over 1,000,000 topics; has 7,000 illustrations and 500 maps. It is the only absolutely new and dependable reference work because the Loose-leaf Binding Device makes it possible to keep the work always up-to-date.

Read these Letters:

J. A. Macdonald, Managing Editor of The Globe, Toronto, writes:—
"I have had occasion to resort quite frequently to your perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia for information of many sorts, and have found it exceedingly helpful. This remark applies especially to history and its allied departments of knowledge; Chronology, Biography and Geography. There is a decided advantage in the loose-leaf method of keeping the Encyclopaedia up-to-date over the yearly supplemental volume method, and one that is not un-to-date is worse than useless."

H. J. Silver, Montreal, writes:—
"In November last the Protestant Board of School Commissioners supplied a copy of Nelson's Perpetual Loose-leaf Encyclopaedia to each of its High Schools, to the Superintendent's office, and to one of its Public Schools. The Principals of these schools have expressed their hearty approval of the work and its usefulness to their pupils. Personally, I have found the work and the Bureau of Research particularly useful to me."

F. E. Wyes, Librarian Grand Trunk Railway Literary and Scientific Institute writes:—
"The name of 'Nelson' and the list of editors and specialists, is sufficient guarantee to make us feel that we have a perpetual reference work in keeping with the demand for information desired by all who are interested in a progressive Encyclopaedia."
"Your Bureau of Research for Special Information will be of great help to the members generally."

In Ramia it is a mark of distinction for a coachman to have a very round figure. The drivers of fashionable carriages appear at first to be abnormally stout. As a matter of fact, this appearance is due to the skillful padding of the coachman's livery. The padding is done with cotton, and some remarkable results are obtained.

THE PAWKY SCOT.

Scottish Wit and Humor By No Means a Myth.

Dean Swift said that it required a surgical operation upon a Scotsman to see the point of a joke. No doubt the celebrated wit referred to an English joke. Certainly a recent writer gives several examples of Scottish wit and humor. A young Englishman at a party mostly composed of Scotsmen made several attempts to crack a joke, and, failing to evoke a smile from his companions, he became angry, and exclaimed, "Why, it would take a gimlet to put a joke into the heads of you Scotchmen!" One of them replied, "Aye, but the gimlet would need to be made pointed than these jokes." A clergyman in the North of Scotland was reproving a parishioner for his habits of intemperance. He reproached him that whisky was his greatest enemy. "Are not we told in Scripture to love our enemies?" said the irreverent bar-chancellor. "Yes, John," responded the minister, "but it is not said we are to swallow them."

A well-known idiot, named Jamie Fraser, surprised people sometimes by his replies. The congregation of his parish had for some time despised the minister for the habit of sleeping in church. He had often endeavored to impress them with a sense of the propriety of such conduct, but one day when Jamie was sitting in the front gallery wide awake, when many were slumbering round him, the clergyman endeavored to awaken the attention of his hearers by stating the fact, saying, "You see even Jamie Fraser, the idiot, does not fall asleep as so many of you do." Jamie coolly replied, "An' I hadna been an idiot I wad ha' been sleeping too."

Two irreverent young fellows once determined to confound the minister. Coming up to him in the High street of Dumfries, they accosted him with much solemnity. "Master Dunlop, have ye heard the news?" "What news?" "Oh, the devil's dead." "Is he?" said Dunlop. "Then I maun pray for two fatherless bairns."

Hugo Arnot, the historian of Edinburgh, was one day waited upon by a woman who requested him to advise her how she might best get rid of an admirer, whose importunities caused her annoyance. The woman was the reverse of fascinating, and Arnot, being indisposed to flatter her vanity, replied, "Oh, you had better marry the fellow." "Marry him?" replied the astonished woman. "I would see him hanged first." "Marry him then," persisted the humorist, "and I'll bet he'll soon hang himself."

Dr. McLeod and Dr. Watson were in the West Highlands together on a tour, before leaving for India. When they were crossing a loch in a boat, in company with a number of passengers, a storm came on. One of the passengers was heard to say, "The two ministers should begin to pray, or we'll all be doomed." "Ah, no," said a boatman. "The little one can pray, if he likes; but the big one must be an ear."

John Erskine was at the age of 30 a teacher of Latin in Edinburgh University. On one occasion, after his elevation to the bench, a young lawyer in arguing a case before him used a false Latin quantity, whereupon his lordship said, with a good-natured smile, "Are you sure, sir, you are correct in your quantity there?" The young counsel, nettled at the query, retorted petulantly, "My lord, I never was a schoolmaster." "No," answered the judge, "nor, I think, a scholar either."

On the occasion of a visit by the King of Italy to Venice an Italian newspaper announced that "the eruption had the honor of being witnessed by his majesty." It was a German paper which once stated that a certain royal prince "was graciously pleased to be born yesterday." Equally courtier-like was an army officer in attendance on the King of Spain. The King asked him what was the time. The courtier fumbled for his watch, but could not find it, then respectfully replied, "Whatever time your majesty please."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

THE WHITE RABBIT.

Lord Pelham Had to Wait For His Chance to Bait.

Lord Pelham lived in a castle not very far from London, near the banks of the Thames. He had the habit of walking quite often, all alone, to the city. One day, in the year 1811, when on his way to London, he saw a man coming towards him.

"My lord," said the man, "can't you buy a white rabbit from me?" Lord Pelham shook his head and went his way without another word.

The unknown followed him and said, "My lord, you must buy my white rabbit."

"What shall I do with it?" replied the lord in surprise.

"I am certain, my lord, that you will buy my white rabbit," said the man, placing a revolver on my lord's breast.

"One hundred pounds sterling, my lord."

"One hundred pounds for a rabbit?" "Not a shilling less! And I am sure you will give it to me."

"You shall have no money, but I don't carry so much cash with me."

"I believe it, but your signature is sufficient; I know your banker."

"But I must have—" "Paper, pen and ink. Here it is, my lord."

Lord Pelham, who saw only too well that there was no escape from this man, sat down and wrote the check. Then he wanted to continue his walk to the city, but the unknown stopped in his way with the revolver and said, "You are mistaken, my lord, this is the road that leads to your home. You must now bring your purchase home. Good-bye, my lord. There is your way and this is mine."

Pelham did not consider it advisable to continue this discourse. He took the rabbit, returned to the castle, and never said anything about the price he had paid for it.

Ten years later, in 1821, shortly before his death, Lord Pelham took a walk through one of the liveliest streets to a suburb of London. His attention was drawn to a large brilliantly lighted meat market. The owner stood behind the counter. Pelham thought he had seen that face before. He stepped into the shop, heard the man talk, and, after a few unimportant questions, retraced his steps and went home.

Next morning Lord Pelham, very plainly dressed, and with a basket on his arm, entered the meat market again and demanded the counter. The man was shown into an adjoining room, where the man sat at his desk. As soon as they were alone, Lord Pelham said: "My dear sir, don't you want to buy a white rabbit of me?"

The man was terrified and stared at Lord Pelham.

"I am certain you will buy my little white rabbit this moment," said the lord.

"Oh, with the greatest pleasure," said the butcher who had recognized his former victim.

"What is the price of it?" "What I had to pay you for it once—a hundred pounds."

"In cash or in a check?" "I prefer cash."

The butcher counted out the money on the counter. Lord Pelham put it in his pocket, placed the basket with the rabbit on the counter and—there bills were evenly settled.

The Chief Whip.

A Ministerial Chief Whip has plenty to do in these days, but one duty of his office has disappeared. Under "wooden spoon" Hotten's Slang Dictionary quotes from The Illustrated Times: "Every year at the close of the session, as our readers know, the Ministers dine together at the Trafalgar. Well, after dinner, the Chief Whip produces his account and reads it aloud; and it is said that the man whose name appears in the division list the smallest number of times has a wooden spoon presented to him."

When the Derbyites were in power last, Sir John Pakington, it is asserted, was the successful candidate for the spoon. Mr. Whitbread presenting it to the right honorable baronet with infinite hums and fums, obviously the idea was borrowed from the wooden spoon bestowed upon the last junior optician in the Cambridge Mathematical Tripos.

Sir Herbert's Wit.

Sir Herbert Beerbaum Tree, the famous English actor-manager, has a reputation as a wit also.

When he appeared at the Palace recently, a fellow variety artist, given to having everybody by Christian name, saluted him with "Hallo, Herbert!" Sir Herbert, who was accompanied at the moment by Lady Tree, responded by shaking hands and asking leave to introduce "My wife, Maud."

One day, at rehearsal, Sir Herbert asked a youthful actor to "step back a little." The player did so. Tree eyed him critically and went on rehearsing. After a time he repeated the request. "A little further back," the youth obeyed. Surveying him, Tree went on with his work. Shortly afterwards he again asked him to step still further back. "If I do," expostulated the youth, "I shall be right off the stage." "Yes," said Tree, "that's right."

Tendencies.

If you have any stomach distress at all you will certainly be interested in the following experience, which is told by Mr. Edward Hamilton, of the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation, writes Mr. E. P. Hamilton, of Peterborough. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fullness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am free from pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills. And my letter, I am sure, proves it."

A few of the disgruntled ones who brad the threatening weather at Riverside Park hinted that the autumn weather had given the Labour lunch cold feet. This however, is an evident canard.

P.C.I. Beats the Bankers.
On Saturday afternoon, as the T.C.S. rugby team failed to put in an appearance, the Collegiate Institute team, at 3 o'clock, went up against the local bankers. The Collegiate boys seemed to have a better organization and used signals better than did the men of money. The final result was a victory for the P.C.I.—29 to 1.

"Three Twines" At The Grand.
On Saturday large audiences attended both the matinee and the evening performances at the Grand Opera House. The attraction was that very laughable comedy, "The Three Twines." The song hits were musical, sparkling and up-to-date. The thirty dainty dancing dainties were past mistresses of the Terpsichorean art.

Casey Jones for Orillia?
At Saturday's Police Court Denham (Casey) Jones' case was up. It will be remembered that the youth, seemingly of unsound mind, has worked railway and other men, and that it is proposed to send him to Orillia Asylum. His mother was present at the court. "Casey" has recently been kept at the Children's Shelter. His mother, contrary to the emphatic denial of Mr. Henry, caretaker, said the boy claimed to have been whipped whilst there. One doctor, of the two necessary for such a commitment testified that Jones was a subject for Orillia. He will be kept in the Shelter until to-day, when the other medical man's testimony may result in a commitment.

Business Cannot Be Cured.
By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Where Do Boys Come From.
Did you ever hear the "waters come down at Ladore," did you ever notice leaves fall from the trees in October? If so, you have a partial understanding of how a multitude of insignificant atoms produce results. But if you want to see something produced from nothing, just mention the word fight and see about seven hundred boys gather from the ragged edge of Ladore. At 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon a few boys gathered on Chambers street, just in front of the yard south of Akroy's livery stable. Within thirty seconds boys rushed north and south on that ornamental thoroughfare, some yelling "fire" and others a "fight." It was the latter. Two boys, about the size of a healthy grasshopper had stepped into the yard and proceeded to settle an argument by resort to force. The yard was soon filled with a yelling crowd of juvenile Canadians who only dispersed when the proprietor suggested telephoning for the police.

Dan Whetung And The Law
Dan Whetung, the well known Che-mong Indian villager, fell foul of the white man's law on Saturday morning. At 9:30 Dan, as he has done for something under half a century, drove his steed to the pavement in front of the Windsor hotel city headquarters of the state. An Dan unloaded his miscellaneous cargo of milk cans, ducky dames and bellows and other freight. Officer Sills happened along. The cop took Dan to task for having his rig faced the wrong way beside the sidewalk. With his usual good natural guttural chuckle Dan pleaded ignorance of the traffic by-law and promised to obey the regulation in future.

WEDDING BELLS

Pretty Wedding at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. A. McCrimmon, St. Thomas.

St. Thomas Times: A pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. McCrimmon, 114 Wellington street, at eleven o'clock Saturday morning, when their daughter Isabella, was united in marriage to Mr. McKinnon Davidson, son of William Davidson, of Peterborough, Ontario. The Rev. N. H. McMillan officiated and Mr. Galloway played the wedding march.

The bride wore a blue tailored suit and black velvet hat, and carried a corsage bouquet of orchids and lily of the valley, and was attended by Miss Clara Ellison, who wore a cream broadcloth gown and black picture hat and carried sunset roses. Mrs. McCrimmon was groomsmen.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Davidson, Miss Davidson, Mrs. Walsh, and the Misses Dickson, all of Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson left for the East, and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

The Youth's Companion for 1912.
The Youth's Companion appeals to every interest of family life, from housekeeping to athletics. It begins with stories of youthful men and women, with articles which disclose the secrets of successful play in the great games, with charming tales of life at the girls' colleges. But the Companion does not surrender to these readers when they have entered the more serious paths of life. Mothers will welcome the page for little children and the weekly dose of sketches. Fathers will find the important news of the day as it is, and not as it is rumored to be. The entire household will appreciate the sketches which touch gently on common folk of caricature eccentricity. In short, for less than four cents a week the Youth's Companion brings into the home clean entertainment, pure inspiration, fine ideals, increase of knowledge. THE ESTATE OF Joseph Martin, K.C., M.P.

City of Vancouver Property

JOSEPH MARTIN, K.C., M.P.

We have been authorized by Mr. Joseph Martin to sell a select portion of inside Vancouver City property. This property is so located that we firmly believe within twelve months from date it will be literally covered with homes of modern architecture. Every lot has been cleared, streets graded, fire hydrants and water mains laid right to the property; electric lights available at any time; two adequate street car services serve the property now, and well within the five-cent city street car area.

Thousands of homes have been erected outside the city limits away beyond this property, and it is only a question of time and it will be considered the heart of the eastern residential section. As an investment we are absolutely positive that there is no finer in the City of Vancouver today or even in your home town, wherever that may be.

Vancouver is progressing at such a rapid pace that by the time the Panama Canal opens and navigation commences through its waters, the population and the building permits will have increased to an enormous extent. For comparison the best illustration we can give is that the C. P. R. is the only railroad serving Vancouver at the present time. Now, five other transcontinental roads are all but entering the city.

The Canadian Northern Railway have now laid progressive plans before the Civic Council to reclaim the whole of False Creek, which cuts into the centre of the city. When this is done a thoroughfare 125 feet wide will be constructed right through the False Creek property, continuing up First Avenue through the centre of the Martin estate. This will make First Avenue the widest street in the City of Vancouver, and without a doubt, in time, a portion of it will become one of the main retail thoroughfares of this city.

We have prepared a handsome folder. The inside space of it has been devoted to the reproduction of a map of the City of Vancouver. This folder will give you comprehensive information and will prove to you beyond a shadow of a doubt that the Martin Estate is a profit-bearing investment from every point of view. We have printed a large quantity of these folders, and we are anxious to mail one to you, for we are confident that the price of this property is within the reach of everyone. The lots on the main thoroughfare run a little higher than others. There are only a few of these, so if you are desirous of purchasing a business site we seriously advise you to write for this folder today.

Just drop us a postal card and ask us for full particulars. They will be sent you by return of mail.

Watch for our announcement tomorrow.

PRICE, TWO CENTS.

MANUFACTURERS ASK COUNCIL TO INVITE COMPETITION FOR POWER

Urge That Power Companies And The Hydro-Electric Commission Should Stand On The Same Competitive Basis—Quantity Of Electric Energy For Present And Future Use Enters Largely Into The Question

Mr. Geo. W. Hatton submitted the following communication and petition to the City Fathers last night:

Peterborough, Oct. 21, 1912.

TO HIS WORSHIP THE MAYOR AND THE CITY COUNCIL OF PETERBOROUGH.

Gentlemen,—Herewith I beg to enclose you a Petition from almost all the Manufacturers of Peterborough, who are deeply interested in the power situation. They are greatly interested in having power supplied at the cheapest possible cost and above all to know what that cost is going to be before any change takes place. These manufacturers pay from $100 to $7,000 per annum for power and their contention is not unreasonable that it be definitely known what their power is going to cost before any contract is entered into with anybody.

You will be good enough to note that all that the Petitioners are asking for is that no contract be entered into without it being definitely made known exactly what their power is going to cost them.

Yours truly,

G. W. HATTON.

TO HIS WORSHIP THE MAYOR AND THE CITY COUNCIL OF PETERBOROUGH.

SIRS,—WE, THE UNDERSIGNED Manufacturers and power users of this city, respectfully represent to you as follows:

1. That inasmuch as we use and pay for electric power we submit that before any change takes place in existing conditions, we in common with the ratepayers of Peterborough should know definitely and precisely what our electric power in future is going to cost us.

2. That we should be placed in a position to know that the very cheapest power that is obtainable for our purposes is being obtained.

3. That the only way whereby you may know that you are furnishing us with the cheapest electric power obtainable, is by inviting competitive prices from the Seymour Power Company, the Hydro-Electric Power Commission and from any other source that it is possible to obtain cheap power.

4. That the quantity of electric power that is to be supplied should be ample sufficient not only for all the present requirements of electric power users and for mercantile and domestic lighting purposes, but that the source of an ample supply of electric power for future industries should be definitely and distinctly made known and agreed to by those who are to supply it.

5. That in view of the fact that the Canadian General Electric and the Quaker Oats Companies having their own power in the matter of control and price have a decided advantage, other manufacturers who have to purchase power should be placed in a position to get it at the lowest cost no matter where or how it is procured.

Wherefore we respectfully urge upon you the importance of inviting the Seymour Power Company to furnish you with the best prices at which they will be prepared to sell electric power not only for present existing purposes but for future purposes as well and that the Hydro-Electric Commission should also be invited to make a tender to sell electric power on exactly the same terms and conditions that the Seymour Power Company are asked to do so.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

AS THE BULL MOOSE LEADER APPEARS TO-DAY.

ELECTRIC POWER PEOPLE TO MEET THE COUNCIL TONIGHT

When the Petition of Manufacturers That Competitive Prices For Electric Energy be Asked May Prove a Factor to be Seriously Considered By Council.

At the Council's meeting last night a largely signed petition from city manufacturers asking that competitive prices for power be asked from the Seymour Power Co. and the Hydro-Electric Commission, which appears elsewhere on this page was received.

No action was taken on this matter as the City Fathers will confer with representatives of the Seymour Power Co. to-night on this question. Ald. Buller thought the petition all right. But, he said, before any power by-law is submitted, full information will be given the public generally, and I think both they and the manufacturers will be surprised at the good bargain council is about to make with the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Apparently the worthy alderman forgets the fact that competition is the life of trade, and a third party might surprise him in the way of bargains if given fair opportunity to bid for public patronage in the way of light and power.

A number of communications were referred to their respective committees for action.

Mr. D. O'Connell representing the Peterborough Cereal Co., reported to Council that no agreement could be effected between his clients and the C.P.R. by which the latter should compensate the former were Simcoe street diverted southward through their property to facilitate operations along the water front by the C.P.R.

This matter has been fully reported in these columns before. Council here passed a by-law conveying to the Peterborough Cereal Company the land along the water front occupied by them, in accordance with their industrial agreement with the City Council eight or nine years ago. The company to pay $1000 for such conveyance.

A Local Option By-law will be submitted to the people at the January elections. Council so decided last night when they acquiesced in the temperance party's request that such a course be taken without their getting to the trouble of getting a petition to that effect signed by 25 per cent of the ratepayers, the customary procedure.

The Resolution. Ald. Johnston and Morgan both expressed themselves in favor of local option—as a measure in the best interest of the people—mentally, physically and financially.

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. Anderson,—That this Council prepare a local option by-law and submit it at the January elections. The resolution carried on a vote of 6 to 4.

A capacity audience was present including representatives of the liquor trade.

The Arguments.

The City Fathers met in special monthly session last night, mainly for the purpose of hearing a deputation of local temperance people, seeking the submission of a by-law on the question of local option at the January elections, without recourse to the usual petition.

The members present were Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Aldermen Morgan,

On Opening Premier Borden Will Make Statement On Naval Policy

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—A special issue of the Canada Gazette was published this morning containing the proclamation for the opening of Parliament on November 21. Last year the House opened on November 18. This is the latest date for the opening of Parliament since the fall sessions were commenced.

STOPPED ANOTHER CRANK FROM SEEING ROOSEVELT

Chicago, Oct. 21.—An attempt to see Col. Roosevelt was made at the Mercy Hospital shortly before midnight by Luis E. Molina, who gave his address as Bogota, Colombia, and said that he was a secret diplomatic representative of the Colombian Government. He was stopped by detectives and city police who were on duty. Molina said that his father is a Senator of Colombia. He sent Col. Roosevelt a postal card and wrote him a long letter containing accusations that the Colonel had committed an "atrocious crime," in taking Panama from Colombia and bidding him beware of the vengeance of God. Molina was accompanied by two Mexicans who gave their names as B. Carillo and Esteban Moran. They said he had known Molina but a few hours.

Anderson, Graham, Brown, Duffus, Gordon, Gillespie, Duncan, Buller and Johnston.

Mr. H. B. Cowan introduced the question of local option, and asked that a by-law be submitted at the forthcoming municipal elections without the temperance people going to the considerable trouble of securing a petition to this effect signed by 25 per cent of the ratepayers. Mr. Cowan spoke very emphatically of the result of such a proceeding, and expressed every confidence in a local option by-law being carried next time it goes to the people.

Mr. Stiller, in speaking on this question congratulated his worship and the aldermen for their excellent municipal work the current year, especially in securing for Peterborough so desirable a manufacturing concern as the Delaval Dairy Supply Co., and promised on behalf of his temperance colleagues present hearty co-operation in securing the passage of this industrial by-law.

Mr. D. O'Connell appeared in behalf of the opposition to the temperance party. It is not, he said, gentlemen of the Council, a question of whether a local option by-law is submitted to the people or not, but one of whether you shall dispense with the formality of securing a petition signed by 25 per cent of the ratepayers or not. The Legislature who passed this act empowered municipalities to submit a local option by-law in their discretion, but embodied the provision that they must do so on receipt of a properly signed petition requesting such a course.

This latter clause was added to give temperance people an opportunity of expressing themselves on the question of such a measure is endorsed by the wholesome, well-sustained and settled convictions of the municipality they represent. That is the whole scheme, and one which recognizes the injustice of passing a prohibitive measure until sure of public sentiment on the question.

It does not make any difference, Mr. O'Connell went on to say, what you gentlemen think of the merits or demerits of local option. You are here representing the whole of the community and not one particular faction—temperance or otherwise. Had you been elected a temperance issue conditions would have been different, but you are sitting here by virtue of the votes of all classes, and must legislate accordingly. Mr. O'Connell here questioned the wisdom of the local option movement. There are a great many Continued on Page 5.

SERVIAN INFANTRY REGIMENT BLOWN UP BY LAND MINES

Hundreds of Men Exterminated by Explosion in Novibazar—Turkish Entrenchments Captured—Bulgarian Port Bombarded, But No Harm Done

London, Oct. 21.—The seventh regiment of Serbian infantry is reported to have been virtually exterminated at the explosion of Turkish land mines after crossing the frontier into the district of Novibazar, according to a news agency despatch from Belgrade.

A Serbian column captured the Turkish entrenchments at the village of Podujevo, near Mitrovica, on the road to Frashina, during the night. The Serbians were commanded by General Jankovitch. The Turks with their armoured auxiliaries retired toward the south, leaving their colors and several cases of ammunition.

Bombardment of Varna. Sofia, Oct. 21.—The newspapers declare that the Turkish bombardment of Varna yesterday was contrary to international law and The Hague convention, because the Black Sea is neutral water. They declare also that the Bulgarian Government expects the powers to intervene.

A Greek Victory. In a battle between the Greeks and Turks at Elassona in Thessaly on Saturday the Greeks captured that town after a spirited engagement. The Turks were attacked on their flank, and at the same time the Greeks made a spirited frontal attack. Infantry and cavalry stormed the Turkish entrenchments. There

ROOSEVELT NOW ON TRAIN AFTER A RESTLESS NIGHT

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Theodore Roosevelt, after six days of convalescence from a bullet wound inflicted one week ago to-night in Milwaukee left this city on a Pennsylvania Railway 24-hour train at 8:25 a.m. to-day.

The Colonel was exhausted when he reached the private car, which was attached to a train, and he requested that he be allowed to rest for a few moments, saying that when he felt less tired he wanted to read the latest newspapers. He had walked several steps in leaving the hospital and going from the ambulance to the car, and aside from the fatigue he insisted that he was feeling "bully."

ERNEST THORNTON IS FOUND DEAD AT KETCHICUM LAKE

A gloom was cast over the central part of the city last night when the sad intelligence reached town that Ernest Thornton, the young man whose loss in the woods was recorded in yesterday's issue, had been found dead near Ketchicum Lake, about one-third of a mile from the Government Road. The body was discovered by a young man named Windover, who had gone out shooting with the deceased from Westlake's house at noon Friday. The body was lying on its back by the trail in a peacefully recumbent position. His watch and money were found intact in the pockets. Mr. Thornton's revolver was discovered by his side with every chamber empty, showing that he had as noted yesterday, fired five shots in response to the signal given by rifle shot by Mr. Westlake. It seems that Mr. Thornton had gone out partridge shooting Friday at noon with a young man named Windover. They had separated, and, it is said, young Windover told a man named Thompson, who owns a mine in the vicinity that he was to meet Thornton at 5 o'clock near the bridge. However, the meeting never took place in life.

Yesterday three automobile loads of friends and associates of the deceased went out to Ketchicum Lake to assist in the search for the young man. There were no marks of traumatic wounding visible on the body. Mr. A. Comstock went out last night to bring home the body.

The deceased leaves to mourn his loss, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Thornton of Shearbrooke street, a brother Charles, two sisters, Mrs. Henry of this city and Miss Ada, a nurse in training at Galt. The deceased, who was a young man universally respected, was a member of St. Andrew's church. The funeral arrangements will be published later.

The general supposition is that the unfortunate young man's death was due to exposure.

"A Progressive Peterborough."

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is quite likely that in a short time the battle hymn of the Balkan armies will be: "Onward Christian soldier and butcher as you go."

The Examiner printed an article the other day on "The Passing of the Army Mule," but the advice of this great family journal is to always pass him in front.

The Hon. Chauncey M. Depew says "I've been somewhat of a joke all my life." But the country has regarded him as a bad joke since he was probed in the investigation of the New York insurance companies.

A local contemporary in a flare head article says that a Paris chemist has discovered how to raise hair. Pshaw! That's nothing! We have here in Peterborough several young men, who after getting outside a few bears can, and do raise the devil.

The trouble not infrequently occurs with people who come to Peterborough to view our lift lock and other sights of this rapidly developing young city, is that they do not finger to view them until they are in trouble.

It is said that a warm political argument took place a few evenings ago in a Peterborough restaurant. It became so hot that the good Lord struck his opponent in the face with a hot pie. Such conduct is reprehensible in the extreme, because it not only failed to alter the convictions of the Tory, but it resulted in an awful waste of good pie.

CANADA'S NATURAL GRAIN MARKET.

Official figures of the British grain and flour exports for the past year which have been received by the Trade and Commerce Department form the strongest possible obstacle to the advocates of reciprocity. They contend that the farmers need the American market for the western wheat on two grounds. One is that the British market is too small, and is insufficient, and second, that the United States is no longer an exporting country in wheat and wheat production but an importing country. These figures show on the contrary that at present only one-fifth of Great Britain's wheat is supplied by Canada and second that the United States is one of the Dominion's most important competitors for the wheat trade of Britain and Canada's only serious rival in the British flour market. The conclusion is that there is plenty of room for the expansion of Canadian wheat trade in the United Kingdom and that it is ridiculous for us to export to the United States to form a market for our grain, when it is our greatest rival in the old country.

In 1910-11 the United States sent

Here is More Proof of Quick Care For All Folks That Are Weak, Ailing, Nervous.

More Praise for Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Dodge, of Bloomington. "The heat had made me listless and the desire for food reduced me to a condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. I was unable to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear, but I began to crave food and I digested it reasonably well. Then I digested it put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

Get this best of all medicines today and refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Sold by all druggists and storekeepers, 25c. per box, or five for $1.00. Sent postpaid by The Cataract Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

9,479,000 hundred weight or 17,000,000 bushels to the United Kingdom, whereas Canada sent 13,000,835,000 hundred weight or 25,000,000 bushels. In 1911-12 the United States increased their sales of wheat in Great Britain to 32,000,000 bushels. Canadian sales amounted to 37,000,000 bushels.

In four sales the United States leads Canada, although the Dominion promises in a few years to be in the lead. In 1910-11 United States exports to Great Britain were 5,342,835 cwt., and Canada's 2,970,242 cwt., and in 1911-12 the United States figures dropped to 4,418,498 cwt., and Canada's increased to 3,944,893 cwt. There is an almost unlimited market for Canadian oats in Great Britain. Russia and Argentina dominate the market, with Canada a bad third. Canada's export of oats in 1911-12 amounted to about three million bushels.

W. J. Egan, Canadian trade commissioner at Manchester, commenting on these figures in a report to the Trade and Commerce Department remarks: "The milling trade of Lancashire, whose facilities are growing continually both in Liverpool and Manchester, are very much in favor of Canadian wheat, and state that the Lancashire market, which is the most direct and best situated for distribution, is prepared to handle all that may be shipped here, claiming that there is no limit to possible expansion."

"The trade continue their praise of our wheat, system of grading, and export conditions from Canadian ports, all expressing the wish that in the near future all our grain would be equipped from our own ports and under Canadian regulations."

CANADIANS AND U.S. FLAG.

A peculiar incident is reported from New Jersey. A youth of 17 years, attending high school refused to salute the United States flag, or to repeat the formula pledging allegiance to it. When questioned in regard to the matter he said that his father, who is a Canadian, had forbidden him pledging allegiance to the American Government. The matter was referred to the School Board and the youth was expelled. Apparently the Board is under the impression that they have the right to compel every child to pledge allegiance to the flag, or shut him out of the school. The claim is made that the school is a Government school, and therefore, all who attend it are supposed to be loyal supporters of the Republic. But if Great Britain demand that every child in the public schools in Great Britain and Canada should vow allegiance to the British flag on penalty of expulsion from the school, what would our good friends in New Jersey say about the proceeding? Whatever they said, we imagine that it would be the reverse of complimentary. The matter is a small one, but the boy's father has referred it to the acting British Consul, and he in turn has left it in Governor Wilson's hands. No doubt the school board, after having duly demonstrated its patriotism, will come to see that good citizens cannot be manufactured by the aboriginal plan of knocking them on the head.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for the opinions of its correspondents.

BRITISH ELECTORS DO NOT BELIEVE IN HOME RULE.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—One frequently meets with the statement in Liberal newspapers both in Peterborough and in England that if Ulster were as loyal as she professes to be, she would submit to constitutional law and so prove her loyalty. No law is constitutional, even if passed by Parliament, unless it has the unqualified approval of the electors, and no Government has the right to pass a law that is shown to be unmistakably against the desire of the people. That Home Rule is distasteful to the British people, as well as the people of Ulster is shown by the results of the by-elections since Home Rule was brought forward and give a table showing how the parties stand today in the British House of Commons and how they stood at the last election in 1910, and the Unionist gains since then.

The position of the parties after the last general election and to-day compares thus:

| | Dec. '10 | Today |
|-------------------|----------|-------|
| Unionists..... | 272 | 281 |
| Radicals..... | 272 | 264 |
| Labor..... | 42 | 41 |
| Nationalists..... | 84 | 84 |

Midlothian is the ninth constituency won by the Unionist party—all from the Radicals—since the 1910 election. The list is as follows: Exeter (won on recount) Cheltenham, unionist maj. 4 Oldham, unionist maj. 1,632 S. Somerset, unionist maj. 148 N. Ayrshire, unionist maj. 271 S. Manchester, unionist maj. 579 Crewe, unionist maj. 968 N. W. Manchester 1,272 Midlothian 32

If there were a few more by-elections, it would soon be proved that Ulster is really in the majority regarding her stand against Home Rule with those who think as she does in this question.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured.

We will give One Hundred Dollars by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Advertise in the Times

This is a Want Ad Town

And There Are a Lot of Important Things That Cannot, Nowadays, Be Accomplished at All Without the Help of the Want Ads!

For example, your chances to sell, or to lease, property AT THE RIGHT PRICE, to the right people, ARE MULTIPLIED BY A HUNDRED through an adequate campaign of classified advertising. If the matter is left to an agent, or broker, he must advertise your proposition aggressively—for the simple reason that 99 out of a hundred people who buy or rent property first read and consider and investigate the ads. The habit is one of simple prudence, of business sense, with them. The unadvertised property never comes to their notice at all!

So it is in the tasks of finding efficient help—of securing boarders or tenants for furnished rooms—of finding desirable positions. In these tasks and quests the want ads are the natural service givers. They introduce people who have business to transact with each other. Every hour of every day such people, who might never meet otherwise, are brought together, with mutual profit!

Truly, this IS a want ad town! Are YOU a want advertiser?

BY-LAW NUMBER

A BY-LAW TO AID THE DE LAVAL DAIRY SUPPLY COMPANY, (LIMITED) PASSED THE DAY OF 1912.

WHEREAS the De Laval Dairy Supply Company (Limited) is a duly incorporated company, at present engaged in the manufacture of Dairy Creamery, and Cheese Factory Supplies and Silos in Montreal and St. John's in the Province of Quebec, but has become licensed to engage in business in the Province of Ontario, and being desirous of removing its said manufacturing establishments to this Province has proposed to the Council of the City of Peterborough to remove to and establish its said manufacturing business in the City of Peterborough, provided the City will agree to assist the said Company by purchasing as a site for the factory of the said Company those parts of Park Lots Numbers One, Two and Three in Township Lot Number Thirteen in the Twelfth Concession of the Township of Monaghan, now within the limits of the City of Peterborough, lying south east of the right of way of the Midland Branch of the Grand Trunk Railway, except the northerly fifty feet of said Park Lot Number Three and to lay out and open the Southern forty-eight feet of said Northern fifty feet as a street, "Mill" by paying the cost (up to and not exceeding the sum of $5500 in all) of the removal of the plant and machinery of the said Company from Montreal and St. John's and installing the same in the proposed factory at Peterborough, and until provision is made for the connection of said property with the City sewerage system by constructing and maintaining on the said property a cess pool sufficient for the purposes of the Company and by granting the said Company exemption from Municipal taxes (except school taxes and local improvement rates) on the said land and building and the business assessment in respect thereof for a term of ten years and in consideration thereof the said Company has agreed as follows:—

(a) To erect on said land a brick or concrete or brick and concrete building one story in height and at least 112 feet by 400 feet or its equivalent in size, and equip the same with said machinery and plant for the purposes of the Company, said plant, equipment, machinery and buildings to be equivalent in value to at least $75,000.

(b) To commence the erection of the said building as soon as possible after the conveyance to it of the said land and continuously carry on such erection until fully completed and have the same fully erected and equipped with machinery and plant and in operation before the first day of June, 1913, PROVIDED HOWEVER that if the erection and equipment of the said building as aforesaid is delayed by any cause beyond the control of the said Company longer than the said first day of June, 1913 the time for the erection and equipment shall be extended for a time equal to the time of such delay.

(c) In case default should be made in the provisions set out in clauses a. and b. to repay on demand to the City the amount expended by the said City for the purchase of said land and the amount paid for the removal of its plant and machinery and the cost of submitting this By-law and any other cost or expense the said City is put to in carrying out its part of the said agreement together with interest on the said amount at the rate of five per cent per annum from the date of payment of same by the City to the date of repayment of same by the Company, and to furnish the said City a Bond of a sufficient Guarantee Company for the due performance of such provisions, such Bond to be cancelled and returned when the building referred to in the said clauses a. and b. is erected and manufacturing operations commenced thereon.

(d) As soon as the said building is ready for the purpose to proceed to construct in the said City its manufacturing business and general offices, and to employ during the first year after operations there commenced at least fifty employees, and during the second year thereafter at least seventy-five employees.

AND WHEREAS there is at present in the said City no other manufacturing establishment carrying on the same business as the one carried on by the said Company and it is desirable and in the public interests in order to secure the location of the said factory in the said City to accept the said proposal upon the terms and conditions hereinafter set out, the said Council has agreed to the same and in order to raise the money to pay the purchase price of the said land and the cost of removal and installation of said cesspool and the cost of the submission of this By-law it will be necessary to issue the Debentures of the Corporation for a sum not exceeding the sum of $19,500 or such less sum as may be required for the purpose aforesaid which sum of $19,500 is the amount of the debt intended to be created by this By-law.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the Municipality, according to the last revised assessment roll is the sum of $9,172,790, and the amount of the existing debt of the Municipality, exclusive of local improvement debts payable by local special rates is the sum of $1,301,690.25 and there is no part of the principal or interest in arrears.

AND WHEREAS there will require to be raised annually for a period of twenty years the sum of $1,301,690.25 to be issued hereunder to pay the interest on the said debt, the sum of $928.35 and the sum of $654.51, to be raised annually during the maturity thereof, such last mentioned sum being sufficient with the estimated interest on the investment thereof to discharge the said debt when the same becomes due, making in all the sum of $1,301,690.25 to be raised annually as aforesaid, by special rate on the whole rateable property of the Municipality.

The Corporation of the City of Peterborough, by the Council thereof, therefore made as follows:—

1. This By-law shall take effect on the first passing thereof.

2. It shall be lawful for the Corporation of the City of Peterborough to borrow the sum of $19,500 or such less sum as may be required for the purposes aforesaid and to issue the Debentures of the Corporation therefor, such Debentures to be sealed with the Corporate Seal of the City of Peterborough and to be signed by the Mayor and Treasurer, and countersigned by the Secretary of the Peterborough City Trust to be payable within twenty years from the date of issue thereof, and to bear interest at the rate of four and three-quarters per cent per annum, payable half-yearly on the Thirtieth day of June and the Thirtieth day of December in each year and to have Coupons attached for the payment of such interest, such Debentures as to principal and interest to be payable at the office of the Secretary of the Peterborough City Trust at the City of Peterborough or at such other place as the said Council may by resolution appoint.

3. There shall be raised and levied during each year of the currency of the said Debentures by a special rate sufficient therefor, upon all the rateable property in the City of Peterborough the sum of $928.35 for payment of the interest on said Debentures and the sum of $654.51 as a sinking fund for the payment of the said Debentures at the maturity thereof, making together the sum of $1582.86 to be raised annually for the purposes aforesaid.

4. The proceeds of the said Debentures when sold or so much as may be required for the purpose shall be used to pay the purchase price of said land and the removal of said machinery and plant as aforesaid not exceeding the sum of $5500, the cost of the installation of said cesspool and the cost of the submission of this By-law.

5. The said Company in respect to the lands above mentioned to be conveyed to it and the buildings and machinery thereon, shall be exempt from taxes (except school taxes and local improvement rates) but including in such exemption business taxes for a period of ten years from the date hereof provided said lands are used or held exclusively for manufacturing purposes, and manufacturing is carried on in said building during ten months of each year during said period, provided always that if the failure to carry on manufacturing thereon is due to strikes or to the destruction of said building, plant, machinery or fixtures by fire or tempest, the time during which said manufacturing shall so cease to be carried on by reason of such strikes or destruction of said building, plant, machinery or fixtures (not exceeding in either case one year) shall not be taken as a failure to carry on manufacturing so as to disentitle the Company to such exemption from taxation.

6. For the purpose of taking the votes of the duly qualified electors on this By-law the following adjoining Polling Sub-divisions shall be united, namely: 1 and 3, 2 and 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9, 10 and 11, 13 and 14, 15 and 16, 17 and 20, and 21.

Huge Fortunes Made in Oil!

More millionaires have been made from the exploitation and development of the oil industry of California than in the days when gold and silver mining were the principal industries of that great state.

Even greater fortunes will be taken from the virgin oil territory of the Pacific coast in the near future.

The Colonial Oil Company of Seattle has widely distributed holdings in British Columbia, California Washington and Alaska.

The representative of that company is in Peterboro prepared to show the great opportunities offered by the Colonial Company for profitable investment in the new oil territory of the far West.

HAKODATE, HON.

The Proud and Independent, Yet Always Charming, Geisha of Japan.

The geisha arise naturally out of the peculiar conditions of Japanese civilization. In a country where Confucianism so restricted women that it was not considered proper for them to appear at gay or public entertainments as the companions of men the need of the eternal feminine was nevertheless felt, as a waitress, if for no other reason; and if a waitress was necessary, why should she not be a woman of grace and accomplishment? Moreover, the house of the average Japanese gentleman was on too small a scale to become a convenient place for comfortably banqueting in, so that the host usually had to take his guests to a restaurant, where the company was naturally waited on by the maids of the establishment.

Men and women do not dance in real Japanese society. All dancing is by women, and the geisha is the ideal expression of the art.

The dancing of the geisha is an art of a high order; and no one who has witnessed it can regard it as other than a masterpiece of the art of entertainment. Then the geisha combines with her capacity for entertainment the further essential of a waitress. As a waitress she is perfect. That she is a person of numerous accomplishments. She can dance, sing, play the samisen, chat, tell stories, and smooth the way for genial conversation in a manner that gives a Japanese feast its most enduring charm.

The Japanese geisha is, then, a professional waitress and entertainer. She is the outcome of the advanced state of society which marks a careful division of labor. She is a professional and really artistic medium of social intercourse. Without her the Japanese gatherings would lose much of their vivacity and pleasing abandon. Endowed as the geisha is with more than the ordinary share of personal attractions, elegant and accomplished in all the arts of society, she is popular among all classes, though not unnaturally she is a source of anxiety to elders and of temptation to youth. If she falls it is the fault of the men who should protect her, and her imperfections are not greater or more glaring than those of the actress and other professional entertainers of the west.

Just as in Europe and America the actress and the music hall singer or dancer are given a higher position than they really deserve, so has the geisha in Japan. But her character depends upon herself and her companions. The character of other women does. True, she is more exposed than other women in Japan; that is because the mothers of the nation must be protected from public gaze and dangerous associations. But the geisha is not more exposed than the women of Europe who attend the theatre and other gayeties of the season. The men whom the geisha meets are not less desirable than many who dance with the wives and daughters of the west during an evening hop.

The geisha does not attain unto the superior accomplishments naturally or by accident. She has to undergo a life-long course of training. If a man intends his daughter to become a geisha, he must send her to the geisha schools as early as 7 years of age. There she must remain until womanhood, undergoing daily practice in singing, dancing, and music. She learns to become a sort of opera singer; for she must be able to tell an interesting episode or a thrilling tale in song or dance, to the strains of the samisen, often being her own accompanist. After she enters upon her career it is very hard to quit, for she has by good fortune become a wealthy woman, and she must not be too quick to leave. The wives of some of the prominent persons in Japan were once geishas.

Handicapped.
"Ah tell me," said the negro who was working on the man's shoes, "woman is a peculiar thing. Yo' gotta know jest how to handle her or yo' goin' to git the worst of it. Lots of times she'll sit and sit at yo' feet then yo' gotta talk to her. Talk to her—that's the way to handle her. She won't stand for no beatin' or nothin' lak that. Talk to her. That's the way Ah handle my wife."

Another negro working next to him looked up. "Whose wife yo' talkin' about?" "Well, my wife done it, but—" "Why didn't yo' talk to her?" "How could Ah?" came from the first. "She had me by the throat with me wind shut off!" New York Times.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

THE CITY OF Vancouver

ANCOOVER'S population at the present time totals a little over 172,000. This city has grown in population 25,000 within twelve months. This is only the commencement of its development in this direction.

That the Panama Canal will be the means of forging Vancouver to the forefront of the seaport shipping centres on the Pacific Slope is a foregone conclusion. Railroad authorities claim that when the Panama Canal is in operation all cereal crops grown west of Moose Jaw will have to come to Vancouver and ship from here to its destination via the Panama Canal. This will mean that Vancouver must have erected immediately elevators almost equal in size to those of Port Arthur or Fort William. It will also mean an increased amount of shipping done upon its waterfront, Burrard Inlet. This means that many thousands more hands will be employed to move this great volume of freight. By 1915 the population of Vancouver should at least be 300,000. Even this estimate is a conservative one, for as soon as the grain flows through to Vancouver the vessels that will carry this produce to its destination at the European ports will, without a doubt, offer very low rates of passage to emigrants, and thereby convey them to Vancouver and the Pacific Coast, eliminating entirely the long and expensive railroad journey across the prairies.

The area of the City of Vancouver comprises 14 square miles, and is, according to its area, the most densely populated city in the whole of Western Canada. The reason for this is that Vancouver, being located on a peculiarly shaped peninsula, with water washing the north, west and south shores, one can easily realize that the city cannot grow in those directions. Therefore, the only progress that can be made by this city is in an easterly direction. Already Vancouver's bread-winners are erecting their homes miles beyond the city limits. Thousands of houses are being built annually outside the city limits.

Inside City of Vancouver property is now becoming very scarce. Its value is increasing materially every year. Soon it will be impossible to procure a desirable lot inside the city limits at what you would consider a reasonable figure.

We have just placed upon the market

The Estate of Joseph Martin, K.C., M.P.

This property is located 1 1/4 miles from the C. N. R. passenger terminals, and can be reached easily in fifteen minutes by two street car lines at a payment of one five-cent fare. All modern improvements have been made upon the property. Electric light is available at any time. A considerable number of homes have already been erected upon the property, and we have not the slightest doubt that twelve months from today will see this estate practically covered with residences of the better class.

Don't think that the price of this property is beyond your reach, for $170 will secure for you a fine location in this estate. The price of the property ranges from $850 up. The terms of payment are one-fifth cash and the balance of payments extending over a period of seven years. We have prepared a handsome folder descriptive of this property and Vancouver, and will mail you a copy together with a large authentic map printed in two colors of the City of Vancouver, showing the exact location of the Martin Estate, which should prove to be the best argument we could place before you in supporting this property from an investment point of view. We have printed a copy for you. Write for it today.

LOCAL OPTION BY-LAW

temperance people, he contended, who do not think such a law promotes the cause of temperance; men who drink light wines and ale, are under local option driven to indulgence in liquor under cover. Instead of having legalized liquor business conducted in law-abiding hotels, grog shops spring into existence. Then there is another aspect of the case to be considered—the vested interests of men who are carrying on a business legitimized by law. Some men, have every dollar represented by a life's lawful business, at stake. Is local option fair to such men? Is it fair to the hundreds of men employed by them that they shall be deprived of their livelihood by such a measure? Surely such features of the case should be carefully weighed. Mr. O'Connell next touched upon the struggle this city had experienced for years to retain its manufacturing and commercial importance, and was afraid that the passage of local option would have a detrimental influence upon existing and prospective industries. While we all agree on the evils of intemperance, the speaker continued, let me say that Peterborough's hotels are a credit to the community. One does not find in any bar encouragement for drunkenness. Our hotels are law abiding and admirably conducted. Mr. O'Connell here doubted if adequate accommodation for the travelling public would be available here were local option in force; the experience of other local option towns shows the contrary. In conclusion the opposition advocate insisted that in fairness to their constituents council's duty was to insist upon the temperance party producing a petition signed by 25 per cent of the ratepayers before submitting a local option by-law.

Mr. Cowan in reply, said the 25 per cent petition clause in the act originated in the Legislature's realizing that a number of municipalities had been guilty of deliberately regarding the wishes of the people in regard to local option, and not for the reason advanced by Mr. O'Connell. As to the legitimate hotel business phase of the opposition's argument, houses are only granted from year to year and then holders take them out with their eyes open to the risk of being cut off. Six licenses in Peterborough were cut off last year without any regard to compensation. He denied that local option restricted accommodation, which is ample and of a high class nature wherever the measure is in force in Canada. Forty-six millions of people in the States are living under dry conditions and contentedly at that. He ridiculed the argument that local option would be detrimental to Peterborough's industrial and progress interests, and offered that one reason for the De Laval people coming here is to get away from the unfortunate intemperance conditions in Quebec.

Ald. Anderson, in supporting the temperance party's request, considered that a petition would any way be signed not only by 25 per cent, but by 50 per cent of the ratepayers. As to the question of accommodation he offered that in local option towns as good accommodations prevailed, and in some cases better, than elsewhere.

The Youth's Companion for 1912.

The Youth's Companion appeals to every interest of family life, from housekeeping to athletics. It begins with stories of youthful vim and vigor, with articles which disclose the secrets of successful play in the great games, with charming tales of life at the girls' colleges. But The Companion does not surrender these readers when they have entered the more serious paths of life. Mothers will welcome the pages for little children and the weekly doctor's article. Fathers will find the important news of the day as it is, and not as it is rumored to be. The entire household will appreciate the sketches which touch gently on common foibles of caricature eccentricity. In short, for less than four cents a week

The Companion brings into the home clean entertainment, pure inspiration, fine ideals, increase of knowledge. Names rarely seen in tables of contents will be found in The Companion Announcement for 1912, which will be sent upon request—with samples of the paper, to those not familiar with it. Every new subscriber for 1912 who send $2.25 will receive free all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1912, also, free, The Companion's Window Transparency and Calendar for 1913, in rich translucent colors—the most beautiful of all Companion souvenirs. On Saturday afternoon, as the T.C.S. rugby team failed to put in an appearance, the Collegiate Institute team, at 3 o'clock, went up against the local bankers. A pretty game of football was played. The Collegiate boys seemed to have a better organization and used signals better than did the men of money. The final result was a victory for the P.C.I.—29 to 1.

Gave Him an Overdose.
"I don't hear of your boy taking your car out at midnight any more, Barker," said Wiggles.
"No," said Barker, "I cured him of that."
"Really? Why, I thought that habit was incurable," said Wiggles.
"Oh, no," said Barker. "I made him get out of bed every morning at 3 o'clock and run the car forty miles for a couple of months, and he got so sick of it that he can't even stand the smell of gasoline."

And when the girls all saw that ring, they made a great deal of it, and he got so sick of it that he can't even stand the smell of gasoline.

A poultry show will be held in Lindsay during the month of January, 1913, on the following dates, Jan. 21, 22, 23.

Hon. Sam Hughes has promised to erect a new band stand in Victoria Park, Lindsay, to replace the old structure torn down to make way for Lindsay's new armories.

The Regina, Sask., Leader, commenting upon the decorations of that city in honor of the visit of the Duke of Connaught on Oct. 12th paid a high tribute to the splendid work done by a Peterborough firm, Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons. The order for the Regina decorations, given to this firm was possibly the largest of its kind ever given to one Canadian firm. The Leader says in part: "The decorations of the Parliament Buildings and City Hall attracted much attention, and the arch in Albert is considered one of the best pieces of decorative work that has yet been seen here." On this arch were the arms of Saskatchewan, six in number which was painted by Mr. Rex Turner. The local firm also supplied all the flags used throughout the miles of decorations.

SEPARATE SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Sorting Office for Post Office," will be received until 4 o'clock P.M., on Wednesday, October 23, 1912, for the supply of the same mentioned.

A CHANCE TO SHARE WEALTH

Prominent Men, in City, Have Big Proposition, Fully Guaranteed, To Offer

The representative and President of the Colonial Oil Co., Mr. A. J. M. Hosom, is a guest of the Original Hotel of this city. He is spending a few weeks in Eastern Canada awaiting the result of the quadrennial election in the States, after which he and Mr. Colquhoun, the secretary of his company may visit Boston and New York.

Mr. Hosom has the disadvantage of being a stranger in this part of the world, but to indicate the regard with which he is held among prominent business men—where he is known—men who have associated themselves with him in this enterprise, we append the following estimate of his business ability and integrity, made by Mr. E. H. Thomas, managing editor of the Post-Intelligencer, the leading daily newspaper of Seattle.

"I know no man whose business judgment is more to be relied upon than that of Mr. Hosom, and anything that has his approval as a safe and sound business proposition has always secured the cooperation of the careful investor, and for this reason, I and some of my friends are associated with him in the Colonial Oil Co. His judgment in investments in farm and coal lands in British Columbia has been good and immensely profitable, and the plan and scope of his organization of the Colonial Oil Co. has novel features which commend it to that class of financiers who are qualified to judge of the merit of such an enterprise."

Some three and a half years ago, Mr. Hosom conceived of a novel, yet practical plan, as it has since proven to be, of collecting large tracts of oil lands from a number of oil fields where oil is known to exist.

He said, "we will have one big oil company on the Pacific Coast based on many thousands of acres in California, British Columbia and the State of Washington." His company expects to prevent the loss of any of its money, by putting its eggs in a number of baskets. To select these lands and get reports on them by reputable engineers was a task that probably not more than one man in a thousand would care to undertake, and he turned down over 300,000 acres as not suitable for his company. His explorations and those of his engineers were covered by steamers, railroads, launches, canoes and horses and often on foot, the cost running into thousands of dollars and over three years of time.

But his enthusiasm, faith in action, sure of his plan, that his company would not lose its money which occurs so often in single oil fields, has claimed the attention of a large number of wealthy men from coast to coast. Mr. J. A. McNair, of Vancouver, B.C., the millionaire shingle king of Canada, has become a heavy stockholder in this company, and has since become its treasurer.

Mr. E. H. Crandell, one of the strong factors in the financial circles of Calgary, Alberta, is a member of the Board of Directors of the Colonial Oil Co., and a large stockholder in the company. Last August Mr. Crandell advised Mr. R. H. Silver, 1st Vice President, to come to Calgary during the process of harvesting a bumper wheat crop, that he and his friends would organize a pool and take another large block of the Colonial Oil Company's stock. Mr. Silver is now in Calgary.

Mr. C. A. Thurston, President of the First National Bank of Glandive, Montana, as well as 2nd Vice-President of the Colonial Oil Co., when here last July, said: "Mr. Hosom made a great deal of money for me in coal lands, and I am pleased that he gives me an invitation to join the Colonial Oil Co." Also Mr. E. B. Clark, a millionaire lumberman of Miles City, Montana, with large timber interests on Vancouver Island, said in an interview: "Mr. Hosom is a quiet man, who does things and then lets the people talk. I went into a railroad deal with him a few years ago and he treated me right. About two years afterwards I heard he was buying coal lands. I took an early train for Seattle and called on Mr. Hosom, and asked him if he could use any of my money in his coal deals. He said he could enlarge two purchases. Out of that deal in about eight months I took down 32 dollars for one. That beats the lumber business. I am going into the Colonial Oil Co. with him for several reasons. He never promises big returns, but delivers larger profits than expected. He has good connections and the confidence of all who know him. Mr. Hosom has not said as much, but we expect to see him drill 20 to 30 oil wells in a short time, and then sell out for three or four times the par value of the company's stock."

Mr. Hosom has always had the faculty of surrounding himself with men of high character. It has just occurred to me that I have omitted to state a very important matter in connection with my story. Mr. Hosom, knowing there would not be enough capital on the Pacific Coast available for the Colonial Oil Co., went East some eighteen months ago to look into the financial situation, and being assured that plenty of money was available for his company returned and completed his explorations. He may not go east till after the election.

A diver has recently been at work on the C.G.F. dam at Nassau to discover trouble that was supposed to exist there. It is possible as a result of this experts' discoveries that the company may build a new dam.

RIDDLES OF THE UNIVERSE.

A Scientist Says Science Really Knows Very Little.

I have been asked to define the word "energy." I cannot. Suppose that I should be asked, "What is the cause of light moving with the increased specific speed of 186,333 miles during each successive second of time?" I would be utterly unable to reply. First, I cannot think of the cause of this unthinkable velocity. How answer? The fact is, science does not know what anything really is.

Electrons are the vanishing point. They are on the limit of knowledge, of even hope, of thought. All agreed that they are electricity, but that does not help in the solution of any riddle of the universe.

It does not seem possible that science will come to an end in any attempt at explaining some new discovery surpassing all others may yet be made. Really, such a discovery must be made or science will come to an impregnable wall, for we cannot at present think of mind, life or an electron. How progress or advance in search of anything if we are unable to think of it? This is a gloomy outlook, but just now it appears to be hopelessly impossible to discover any fact as to what mind, life and electricity are.

I have printed during thirty years that the human mind is incapable of its powers, but I may be obliged to finally admit that it cannot find what itself is—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

An Artist's Post.

One of the most remarkable and most artistic of twenty-four hours' records stands to the credit of Mr. Edwin Landover, who had promised a picture for the spring exhibition of the Royal British Institution in 1913. On the day before the opening he was found standing in front of an untouched canvas. "I shall send that to the Institution tonight, a finished picture," he declared to the astonished management who had been sent by the hanging committee to see if the promised picture was ready, "and have consequently given orders not to be disturbed." True to his word, Landover put the finishing touch to his canvas and dispatched it to Fall River, where it was and as "The Cavalier's Post" it was one of the greatest successes of the exhibition.

A CHANCERY ROMANCE.

Helping a Friend, He Unearthed a Few Bones For Himself.

Perhaps there is no more curious chapter in the history of the chancery courts than that of two Pittsburgh men. The first had a claim to a small estate abroad, but he did not have the money to pay the claim agency to make a search, so he got a friend to back him.

This friend's name was Peterman, and the money he advanced was like a grub stake—he was gambling on his friend's claim proving up.

One day when Peterman was at the claim agency office he came upon this advertisement in the agency files: "Peterman (afternoon), musician, born in Amsterdam in 1820, son of Charles Frederick and Henrietta Susanna Gasman. Left for Liverpool in 1856. He is sought for by inheritance by M. Connot, avocat, 21 Boulevard St. Germain, Paris."

That was the inception of the famous "Kinney docks" case, the name coming from the fact that the original Peterman was last seen at Kinney docks, in Liverpool. The claim agency took the matter in hand, traced Peterman's lineage back and enabled him to establish a good claim to an inheritance of £200,000.

That was a case of fortune being thrust upon a man.—Lewis Edwin Thelen in Harper's Weekly.

LIBERALS VERY MUCH AT SEA OVER THE EMERGENCY GRANT

Mr. Monk's Statement That Situation is Critical Places Them in Dilemma

LIKELY TO SUPPORT IT

As Public Sentiment Appears on Premier's Side—Special Despatches from many Points.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The Liberals are very much at sea as to what action to take on the emergency grant contribution. It is understood that a conference of the Liberal leaders will be held in Ottawa very shortly to discuss the situation. They were hoping to gain capital out of the Monk resignation, but the position of the Minister of Public Works does not tend to help them out of a hole. They expected that Mr. Monk would oppose an emergency contribution, but he admits a critical situation, and only differs from the Government on the question of method.

Mr. Monk's stand cuts the ground from under their feet. It is understood that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, following his time-honored political custom, favors playing a waiting game. In all probability the Lib-

ELLIS SELF CONFESSED KILLER PLEADS IT WAS SELF DEFENCE

Minden Murderer Will Put Up Fight For His Life—Girl Important Witness

Lindsay, Oct. 22.—Self defence will be the plea of Arthur A. Ellis, whose trial for murder of Lew Porter near Minden on April 25th, is in progress here to-day.

T. C. Robinette, K.C., of Toronto, counsel for the defence, expects witnesses to corroborate Ellis' story of self defence by showing that Porter had threatened his life on the very night of the shooting and had threatened to burn his barn a year before. Mr. Robinette is making every effort to have a subpoena served upon Inspector Miller calling on him to attend at the trial and produce a letter written by the girl to Ellis a year ago in which she warned him that Porter had threatened to burn his buildings the first chance he got and also told of hearing him admit other outrages which he said he had already committed.

The letter, which Mr. Robinette expects, will play so important a part in corroborating his clients' story, was left by the girl upon the path leading to Ellis' house about a year ago. He showed it to Wesley Housley, his neighbor, to whom he first confessed to the Porter killing. A copy was made of it, and it was sent on to the Attorney-General's department at Toronto.

Copy of the Letter.
Inspector Miller visited the Porter farm and saw the girl at the school house nearby, where she admitted having written the letter. Mr. Robinette has a copy of the letter, which reads as follows:

"Ed: I am writing to tell you not to go away from home. I heard Lew tell grandpa he would set fire to your buildings the first chance he got. I heard him say he shot 'em' (Rosenthal's) and set fire to Rosenthal's camp. He took everything he wanted and hid them first. It was him that broke Thomas' scales. It was grandpa that poisoned your dog last winter. We threw it off when we came past your place. After we were in the barn he stopped and walked to the top of the hill to see the dog dying. I'll tell you all when I get a chance. (Signed) 'Ed'."

THE TORONTO GLOBE JUSTIFIES BORDEN'S NAVAL POLICY

The following item appeared in the Globe of Oct. 21st, from its German correspondent:

(Special Cable Despatch to The Globe.)

Berlin, Oct. 20.—From an authoritative official quarter, The Globe correspondent learns that the German navy has decided to install 15-inch weapons on its latest super-dreadnoughts.

The guns, which will be fifty calibre length, will throw a projectile weighing 165 pounds and will be far and away the most powerful weapons ever placed on a warship.

The so-called Kaiser class already carry 14-inch guns. Two of them, the Kaiser and the Friedrich der Grosse, are ready for service and three others will be completed by April, 1913.

The vessels which are to carry 15-inch guns are now on the stocks and are expected to be completed by June, 1915. Statements issued by the Italian authorities in reference to the big guns of the world's navies show that Germany and the United States are the only countries which have so far gone in for weapons of 14 inches and over. Great Britain's biggest are said to be 134 fathoms, in the Lion class. Japan is mounting guns of the same size in her newest Puro class. The tabulation not only discloses for the first time that Germany is arming her newest Dreadnoughts with the biggest guns on record, but also shows that these weapons, which are of course manufactured by the Krupp, will be of vastly longer life than the most powerful Vickers and Armstrong guns, employed by Britain. The latter are credited with a life of only sixty rounds, while the German fourteen and fifteen-inch guns, it is said, can fire 200 rounds.

If these remarkable figures are correct it would mean that after an action the entire heavy battery of a British Dreadnought would have to be placed or laid off to be re-built.

None of these facts has been allowed thus far to become public in Germany, where the nation is assiduously propagating that 12-inchers are the biggest guns that Germany is using.

LOST IN WOODS STORY BY ALDERMAN BULLER

A Times representative happened yesterday to discuss the sad death of Mr. E. Thornton with Ald. Buller. The Times man suggested that it was easy for a city bred man to get lost in the woods. "Easy," replied the worthy Alderman. "Why I don't pose as a greenhorn, but I have been lost in the woods just about where poor Thornton lost his life. I had gone out to buy four hundred acres of hardwood. The owner of the woods undertook to take me back to camp, after an exploratory trip, by a short cut through the primal forest. At West I hesitated but the man seemed cocksure. We walked and walked and walked until suddenly my companion stopped and confessed he was lost. He got rattled. Possibly owing to my ignorance of woodcraft in those years, I did not understand our danger. My companion again started on, but after a while, said, 'I believe we were making for Crane Lake, an opposite direction to our intended way. I then took the initiative and led the way. By back-headed luck, as I scrambled along I saw a pile of cordwood cut and stacked in the woods. I remembered that Mr. Weir of this city had cut a lot of cordwood in that locality and had abandoned it. I then became heartened and knowing Weir had a shanty nearby, asked my companion if I could find Weir's shanty could be the rest, that is locate our position. My friend with a deep sigh of satisfaction replied 'Yes.' I believe we were within 200 yards of our destination and easily arrived there. 'Yes,' he continued reminiscently, 'it's easy to get lost in the woods.'"

SEYMOUR POWER CO. OFFERS THE CITY OWNERSHIP OF ALL THEIR PUBLIC UTILITIES

City Can Enter Into Partnership With Company For Control Of The Plants Of The Peterborough Light And Power Co., The Otonabee Power Co., The Street Railway Co., and The Gas Co., With Purchase Privileges—Other Propositions

The City Fathers met representatives from the Seymour Power Co. last night and awakened to the fact that the company really has, as intimated in The Times last week, propositions regarding electric energy, and light, worthy of council's consideration before submitting its Hydro-Electric By-law to the ratepayers. In fact, if our aldermen are consistent in their advocacy for municipal owned public utilities it is just possible that they may rise to the opportunity offered by the Seymour Power Co. at last evening's conference for the acquisition of all Peterborough's public utilities, and on terms that would in all probability appeal to the ratepayers. The Hydro-Electric Commission's scheme—a worthy one it is true—applies only to electric light and power; one of the Seymour Power Company's propositions includes eventual municipal ownership of not only light and power, but gas and street railway.

While nothing of a concrete nature is yet drafted in regard to the several propositions submitted by the Electric company last night for consideration, still their general outline was clear enough to leave no other course open to our municipal representatives than to agree, in the interests of their constituents, to meet the Seymour Power Company again next Tuesday evening, when the company will submit in clearer detail the four following propositions:

At what price they will sell out the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant, subject to specific conditions, without recourse by Council to arbitration, or in other terms expropriation proceedings.

The result of a consideration by the company of the proposition advanced by some aldermen that they sell out the above mentioned plant on conditions prohibiting the company from competing with the city in regard to electric light and distribution of power.

A proposition for the consolidation of all their public utilities—light, power, gas and street railway—fixed charges to be a great saving to the city and the company; the city to be represented on a Board of Control to share the profits, and to have the privilege of purchasing the whole system at the expiration of 10 year periods.

A proposition by which the city shall purchase now the whole of the above mentioned public utilities, the company to enter into a perpetual agreement for supply of power.

The Seymour Power Co. was represented in the persons of: Mr. Straughan Johnston, of Toronto, in charge of the company's financial interests; Mr. J. G. G. Kerry, of Toronto, President; Mr. A. B. Colville, of Campbellford, the Company's Solicitor; Mr. A. Mulholland, of Toronto; and Mr. H. Munroe, manager of Peterborough Light and Power Company.

The Company's Position.
Mr. Straughan Johnston presented the company's case in a very forceful and convincing manner. He con-

MONK IS OUT OF CABINET, HIS RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—Hon. F. D. Monk is out of the Borden Government. Premier Borden went to Rideau Hall at 12.30 to-day and laid before His Royal Highness Mr. Monk's letter of resignation. It was accepted.

Premier Borden stated that he would like to be allowed a little time before submitting the name of Mr. Monk's successor, and in the meantime Hon. George Perley would administer the Public Works Department. This was approved.

While these formalities were going on at Rideau Hall, Hon. Mr. Monk was in his department performing his final official act as a Minister, which was clearing his desk of personal papers.

He said good-bye to the staff in his office, and departed with a bundle of papers under his arm, after a year's experience as a member of a Canadian Government.

There may be considerable delay in announcing Mr. Monk's successor from the Province of Quebec.

LORD ROBERTS WARNS ENGLAND

"Arm and Prepare for Your Ordeal is at Hand"—Naval Supremacy Threatened

London, Oct. 23.—Field Marshal Lord Roberts reiterated his warning as to Great Britain's military inefficiency in a speech at Manchester last night. He said among other things: "As in 1866 and 1870, war will take place the instant the German forces on land and sea are by their superiority as certain of victory as anything can be made certain. Germany will strike when Germany's hour has struck. That has been the time-honored policy, and should it be the policy of every nation which is prepared to play a great part in history."

Lord Roberts traced Germany's naval development in the past decade and said: "We have lost command of every sea except the North Sea, and our supremacy there is disputed. Our forefathers traded of right on every sea, but now we trade only by sufferance of others. We may stand still, but Germany always advances. There is one way by which Great Britain can have peace with Germany and every other power, namely, to present such a battle front on land and sea that no power or probable combination of powers dare attack us. There is one way by which Great Britain is certain to have war, namely, persisting in her present course of apathy, lack of intelligence, and blindness, and by disregarding the warnings of history."

DEFEAT MOTION THAT ENGLISH BE IRELAND'S OFFICIAL TONGUE

London, Oct. 23.—The House of Commons last night continued the discussion in the committee stage of the Government's proposals in regard to the arrangements for the debate on the Home Rule Bill. The Unionists proposed legislation that should prevent Gaelic from becoming the universal language of Ireland. The debate was on the proposal of Ian Malcolm, Unionist member for Croydon, to insert in the bill a stipulation that English should be the sole language of the Irish Parliament, the law courts and the public services.

GREEKS DEFEAT TURKS GENERAL PURSUIT ORDERED

Great Battle North of the Grecian Frontier Ends in the Defeat of 22 Turkish Battalions—Bulgarians Also Claim a Victory—British Fleet Prepares

Athens, Oct. 23.—The Greek army defeated the Turkish troops this morning beyond Eleasana after a vigorous attack, and the Turks are now retreating to the town of Servia, according to a despatch from Crown Prince Constantine of Greece, commander-in-chief of the Greek army.

The Crown Prince telegraphs that the Turkish army composed of twenty-two battalions of infantry and six batteries of artillery, was compelled to abandon its positions and retire before the Greek onslaught.

The orders have been given for a general pursuit by the Greek army.

Bulgarians' Grand Army.

Paris, Oct. 23.—That Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria is at the head of a victorious army was the opinion emphatically expressed to-day by French ex-Minister of War Messimy, who has travelled all over the Balkans and perhaps knows more of conditions there than any other Continental authority.

"I do not look for intervention by the powers," he said, "and I do think the war will be confined to the Balkans, but there, in my opinion, it will be carried to the extreme limit."

"The Turks are still barbarians, thanks largely to the rivalries of the powers since the Berlin Treaty. With the Bulgarians it is otherwise. They have made enormous progress in the last thirty years. Their army was trained according to the best meth-

FIRE SCHOOL DRILL PROVED SUCCESSFUL

Fire Chief Howard made his annual tour of inspection of the City Schools Tuesday afternoon. The Chief was accompanied by His Worship Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Ald. G. A. Gillespie, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Ald. O. N. Gordon. The party made a thorough inspection, sounding the fire alarms, and testing the children's fire drill.

The result of drill, with respective times, is as follows:

| School | Attend. | Time. |
|-----------------|---------|---------|
| Central | 350 | 57 sec. |
| West Ward | 180 | 35 sec. |
| Green Alexandra | 325 | 42 sec. |
| East Ward | 200 | 37 sec. |
| South Central | 440 | 46 sec. |
| King Edward | 400 | 43 sec. |
| Sacred Heart | 250 | 37 sec. |

APPEAL TO CATHOLICS

Winnipeg, Oct. 23.—The North-West Review, the organ of the English-speaking Catholics, has in its current issue an article on the school situation in Winnipeg. It says: "The School Board as at present constituted is not prepared to fall in with the plans of the Minister of Education, which provide for the leaving of parochial schools of the board. It might be advisable for Catholic ratepayers to use the ballot at the forthcoming election for the purpose of securing a School Board more friendly to this proposition."

Referring to the forthcoming application by the School Board to the ratepayers to authorize the outlay of a million dollars for new schools, the Review says: "The Catholic population will be able for one-fifth of the amount though they will derive no benefit from the expenditure. When can we hope to obtain relief from paying out money for the education of Protestant children? By making judicious use of the ballot at the next election the personnel of the board could be materially changed."

JURY'S VERDICT, "GUILTY" WILL HANG JANUARY 7TH

Arthur A. Ellis, The Murderer of Lew Porter, Near Minden, Sentenced By Justice Clute, To Be Hanged On January 7th, 1913

Special to The Times.
Lindsay, Oct. 23.—At 7.30 o'clock last night, the jury in the case of Arthur A. Ellis, who was charged with the murder of his brother-in-law, Lew Porter, on April 25th last, returned a verdict of guilty. Justice Clute immediately pronounced sentence and Arthur A. Ellis will be hanged on January 7th, 1913.

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 23.—The feature of this morning's session of the trial of Arthur A. Ellis on a charge of murdering his brother-in-law, Lew Porter, near Minden, on April 25th last, was the refusal of Mr. Justice Clute to admit in evidence the confession alleged to have been made to Inspector Reburn of the Provincial Criminal Investigation Department, after being warned, but previous to his arrest, and previous to his making a confession before Reburn and County Constable Welsh.

In that confession it is alleged Ellis admitted the killing and made no mention whatever of Porter having fired a shot.

Jury Spent Cold Night.
The jury, one member of which had to be selected from the audience owing to challenges exhausting the panel, spent last night in a room in the Court House and complained bitterly this morning of absence of heat in the room.

Ellis' Own Story.
Mr. Robinette called Ellis in his own defence. Ellis said he was 37 years of age in December, had three children, the eldest seven or eight.

LUCILLE CAMERON CONSENTS TO LEAVE THE COLORED PUGILIST

Chicago, Oct. 23.—During her hearing before the Grand Jury, Miss Lucille Cameron became hysterical and had to be removed to the office of the U.S. Deputy Marshall.

It is said that the girl has finally yielded to the pleadings of her mother, Mrs. Cameron-Falconer, and consented to return to her home, renouncing the pugilist.

unanimous vote
The city council adopted by a unanimous vote a resolution urging Mayor Harrison to use "all the power and broad discretion" in his power to the end that the saloon license of Jack Johnson may be revoked and annulled and that the said Johnson may be prosecuted to the full extent of the law under all the charges which have been made or may be made against him.

Sports Drop Him.
Johnson was in conference with friends concerning the cancellation of the Australian fight. Hugh McIntosh as the sporting world knows conceived the idea of a series of fights in Australia in which Johnson was the star, and sent an agent, W. W. Kelly to Chicago to offer Johnson a contract calling for $50,000 for a series of engagements with Sam Langford and Sam McVey or Joe Jeannette.

GASOLINE BOAT WITH TWO ABOARD REPORTED MISSING

Toronto, Oct. 23.—For more than a week nothing has been heard of Edmonds Leeman and Charles Ross, who left Smith's Falls on Oct. 14th, in a gasoline launch, and who are expected to arrive in Toronto a week ago to-day. Grave fears are entertained as to their safety.

The two men had been camping and were coming to Toronto to work during the winter. A friend Mr. E. Coyle, 163 Jarvis street, received a letter from them dated at Trenton, Oct. 16th. It was their intention to come through the Trenton Canal direct to Toronto, reaching the city on Oct. 16th. They are then a week overdue and the boatmen at Port Colborne, Port Hope and other points en route where the two have invariably called in former years have seen nothing of them. Alarmed when no further word was received, Mr. Coyle this morning notified the Board of Harbour Commissioners. The Life Saving station was also communicated with and a search party will in all probability be organized.

MUST PARE 15 INCHES OF BIG SINGER BUILDING, NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 23.—The Department of Public Works of New York City has just completed a series of surveys which it declares show that the Liberty street side of the big Singer Building projects fifteen inches beyond the building limits.

In a few days formal legal notice will be served upon the owners that they must pare down the building or the city will do it for them. The owners declare no alterations will be made until after some very active litigation. Their answer to the formal notice will be an injunction, in which street locations, sidewalk locations, official surveys, ordinances, and laws beginning round 1781 and running down to date, will be challenged.

The action to be taken against the Singer Building will be the most extensive yet undertaken in the campaign of the city to recover its sidewalks.

GIRL ABDUCTED AND SHIPPED TO TORONTO

Toronto, Oct. 23.—A 15-year-old girl who was found wandering in the streets last night, told Commissioner Starr to-day that she had left her home on a farm near Lindsay and went to that town with a young man of that place, that on Monday he bought her a ticket for Toronto and put her on the train. Where she spent Monday night and what she has been doing in the city is a mystery. She will probably be sent to the Alexandra Industrial School.

HUSBANDS AND WIVES.

Love May or May Not Be Permanent on the Case May Be.

A clever saying by Perry White, in "The Patient Man," points out that marriage is the great dispeller of the illusions with which passion binds human reason; that marriage creates for itself perspectives in which character attains its justest value. Love and hallucination are twin-brothers; marriage the interpreter of their mysteries. Now this, though clever, is not wholly true. Love can exist, real, powerful love, without any hallucination, and this is the love that lasts. If the love does not last, then it was not love, but hallucination or illusion, marriage or no marriage. It did not need the sacrifice of it is sacrificial, even at its best, altar of matrimony to be the means of dispelling the illusion. Time alone would have done that. Marriage may be an eye-opener, but time is one also, and may be a better one.

Husbands and wives choose one another, or are chosen, or the matches are made by others, and it seems to be the merest toss up, under all conditions, as to whether the match will be successful or not. There is, of course, such a thing as "shaking down," in course of time, even with matches that might in the beginning have been described as unequal, or even unhappy. There is such a thing as getting used to the yoke and the burden. One can get used to anything—almost!

An old back-veiled farmer was riding back from the cemetery with his nephew, after burying his aged wife. "Well, she's gone," sighed the bereaved husband.

The nephew assented dutifully.

"She kept good care of me for forty years," said the widower.

The nephew murmured sympathetically that he had always understood that it was so.

"And, do you know," continued the mourner, frankly and simply, "towards the last I almost got to like her!"

There is such a thing as "getting to like" a person, a place; there is such a thing as "getting used to" even such a tremendous proposition to be up against as an incompatible wife or husband. The incompatible may not be incompatible for ever. Time and custom and force of habit change many things and alter many most divergent points of view into some semblance of harmony. It is not the easiest matter on earth to get a perfectly matched pair of anything!

Some people marry because they dread loneliness, others remain single from a love of solitude; and there is a third section who, like Arlene, in "The Call of the Blood," say firmly, "Married life wouldn't suit me. I dislike loneliness, yet I couldn't do without it. In it I find my liberty as an artist." Many besides artists find a lack of liberty in the life matrimonial, and as for solitude, it is an unknown quantity. The average husband or wife would be extremely shocked to think that his or her partner cherished any desire of any time for solitude, such an unauthorized and unaccounted luxury. Fortunately, husbands have to be away from their home many hours of the day, for marriage would be more of a failure than it is.

You May Have Catarrh And Not Know It

HEAD AND THROAT BECOME DISKASED WITH CATARRH
FROM NEGLECTING COLDS AND COUGHS

Catarrh is Treacherous—When Fully Developed is a Horror—Yet Its Symptoms.

"Is your breath bad?"
"Is your throat sore?"
"Do you cough at night?"
"Do your eyes run?"
"Have you nasal discharge?"
"Do you spit up phlegm?"
"Have you pain across the eyes?"
"Is your throat irritable, weak?"
"Do you sleep with mouth open?"
"Are you subject to sneezing fits?"
"Do your ears ring and buzz?"
"Are you hard of hearing?"

If you have any of these indications of Catarrh, cure the trouble now—stop it before it gets into the lungs or bronchial tubes—then it may be too late. The remedy is "Catarrh-hose," a direct breathable cure that places antiseptic balsams and healing medication on every spot that's tainted by catarrhal germs.

There can be no failure with Catarrh-hose—for years it has successfully cured cases that resisted other remedies. "No one can know better than I the enormous benefit one gets from the very first day's use of Catarrh-hose," writes T. F. Hopkins, of Westvale, Pa. "I had for years a stubborn case of Bronchial Catarrh, ear noises, headache, sore eyes, stopped-up nose and throat. It affected my appetite and made my breath rank. Catarrh-hose cured quickly."

Get Catarrh-hose, use it, and you are sure of cure—beware of imitations and substitutes. Large size Catarrh-hose, with hard rubber inhaler, lasts two months, and is guaranteed. Price $1.00, at all dealers, and Kingston, Ont.

$25,000,000 in London. It is reported also that the Societe Generale of Brussels, the Sino-Belgian bank of Brussels, the firm of Baron Empain of the same city and certain French financial houses are arranging a $50,000,000 loan to enable the Chinese government to make some railroad extensions.

A day or two ago the London Daily Telegraph received a dispatch from Peking announcing that a banking combine more powerful even than that of Birch Crip, which furnished the first $25,000,000, is willing to furnish funds for reasonable conversion schemes to any amount, and the correspondent adds that despite diplomacy European capital will be poured into China next year.

Why this great difference in the borrowing power of Turkey and China? The Ottoman empire, it is true, faces a disastrous war, and is more or less in the throes of internal beligerence. But China's new republican government is by no means on a solid basis. It is under the frown of the powers whose financial scheme it turned down and it constantly faces threats of dismemberment. Politically China is scarcely less uncertain than the Ottoman empire.

There may be minor reasons why one country is esteemed above another by money lenders. The vital cause, it seems, was voiced recently by a European financier who declared that China always is able to borrow on the strength of the unimpeachable honesty of her people. In other words China's success thus far is due to the fact that capitalists believe her government will pay if it says it will pay, that it will pay no matter what happens. The country's honor is a negotiable asset, recognized by unemotional, unsentimental and hardheaded bankers.

THE INTERNATIONAL BEN-HUR

To Be Staged in Toronto, Thanksgiving Week.—Many Peterborough People Will No Doubt

WHY CHINA WINS WHERE TUR- KEY LOSES.

While rumor has it that Turkey is trying with very poor chances of success to negotiate a loan of $50, 000,000 in America or any where else where money is available, China seems to be having no particular trouble in extracting all the money she needs from the pockets of independent bankers outside the group induced by the six powers. The new republic already has secured each season, until to-day it stands unrivaled in beauty of estate, unsurpassed in dramatic significance and power. It was the "last word" of the stage craft of the nineteenth century and into the new age it brought a bigness and perfection which will remain the standard for decades to come.

Dealing with the earth life of Jesus, the most important period in history, "Ben-Hur" shows the world at its most wonderful point in magnificence and wealth:
for Rome ruled the world, and Caesar Augustus was Emperor of the mightiest realm the earth had known. Into this time of display and pomp came the lowly Nazarene, the Christos for whom the nation had longed, and it is this personality of Jesus that, permeating the fabric of the Wallace-Young drama, makes it a sermon as well as a drama of tremendous significance. The reverence with which the immensity of Christ is indicated has made "Ben-Hur" a religious pageant, while the sweep of the story of Ben-Hur and Messala, father and son, carries audiences of their feet, the culmination of the dramatic plot being the chariot race, where Ben-Hur conquers and degrades, enters and leaves.

nounced. For the matinee on Mon-

"A GIRL OF THE UNDERWORLD."

"The Girl of the Underworld," what that title does suggest to one's mind in all its reality, means in itself the theme of the play, of a girl who through love for someone unworthy of true love, given with the truthfulness of a woman, who loves blindly, tells in itself story of how she stepped from the path and rules of society to the shadow of Hell, which is called the "underworld." A young girl with all the purity of youth, good health, and ambition, leaves her little home in the country town to go to New York alone;
through deception she makes her father think in later years when he has drifted to the gates of the underworld with a man she loves that she has entered society, and upon this deception she ruins her father for the man she loves. This play is not a melodrama, it is not a travesty on nature, it is not a burlesque of directed, but it is a story, a theme that is natural, that happened in true life it is a play with all the ease and grace, that a theme with a touch of nature has. This play has toured the principle big cities of this country, and has been proclaimed by press and public as an unquestionable success. Nivola, a steady Smith, of the New York World, speaking of this theme said, teach it to all that they might know the danger which lives in the Underworld. "The Girl of the Underworld" is the most complete story dealing with this theme, which has been written. There are no deep-seated villains, no pistol shots, no yelling for help, no murder, no suicide, but it is entertainingly played with comedy situations, surprises and above all a lesson. As Geo. M.
Cohan says: "It's a play with a punch," which means it's a success in every respect. Every mother, father, brother, and sister owes it to themselves to see this play. "The Girl of the Underworld" comes to the Grand, Thanksgiving Day, matinee and evening, Oct. 25th.

HEAD HUNTING THEN AND NOW

Returns Brought Down Less than a Year After Liberal Victory Showed Wholesale Dismissals From Civil Service.

(Special to The Times).

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—The Liberal press has been complaining of some dismissals from the outside civil service by the government. In view of their complaints, and the virtuous attitude they have assumed, it is interesting to present the record of the Laurier administration when it came into power in 1896. Nine months after the Laurier government assumed office a return was called for in the senate of the dismissals up to that time. The return is a remarkable document and contains 35 pages while it contains only a partial list of the dismissals.

In the Indian department the dismissals ran up to 27. The axe fell particularly freely in the customs department where in the nine months 61 employees were dismissed to make way for good Liberals. In no case was there an investigation.

Many Heads Fell.

The then Minister of Public Works dismissed in the first nine months 64.
In the department of Inland Revenue 46 employees were removed, and in the majority of cases it was frankly stated that it was at the request of a member of parliament. This was apparently the main reason for dismissals at that time.

Big Sweep There.

In the Fisheries service the Liberal government worked overtime in getting rid of Conservatives and no less than 129 members of the civil service were removed from office to give hungry Liberals jobs. The explanation given for the majority of the dismissals was "active and offensive partisanship," which was a favorite excuse to cover up a bald dismissal. The axe was not employed quite so freely in the Marine service, and only 32 were removed by the minister. The department of Justice has not as many employees and its list is smaller, running to eleven. In every case except two there was no notice given, and this is true of a large percentage of the Liberal dismissals. The decency of a regular notice to give the dismissed man an opportunity to find new employment was not followed. It was simply a case of "off with his head."

Also In Others.

In the Agriculture department thirty-three employees were dismissed to make room for the clamoring Liberals, and in the department of Interior, outside of the Indian Branch, the "bloody axman" resulted in these first nine months in the dismissal of 23.

Major Currie's Charge.

There are but a few of the civil servants dismissed immediately after the elections of 1896. Major Currie, M.P. for North Simcoe, commented on the wholesale slaughter of the Liberals in the House last session, said: "The proscription lists of Marius and Sulla, the tyrants of ancient Rome, were not to be compared with the lists prepared after the elections of 1896. Hundreds of men were thrown out of office without any reason being given for their dismissal.
The members of the late government never for a moment ceased to make the open boast that they believed in and always practiced the spoils system and that were going to practice it."

Continuing, Mr. Currie added, "In addition we know that the present leader of the opposition always was the high priest of the spoils system.
We know that throughout his whole career he practised these principles and endeavored to set up in this

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

This is a Want Ad Town

And There Are a Lot of Important Things That Cannot, Nowadays, Be Accomplished
at All Without the Help of the Want Ads!

For example, your chances to sell, or to lease, property AT THE RIGHT PRICE, to the right people, ARE MULTIPLIED BY A HUNDRED through an adequate campaign of classified advertising. If the matter is left to an agent, or broker, he must advertise your proposition aggressively—for the simple reason that 99 out of a hundred people who buy or rent property first read and consider and investigate the ads. The habit is one of simple prudence, of business sense, with them. The unadvertised property never comes to their notice at all!

So it is in the tasks of finding efficient help—of securing boarders or tenants for furnished rooms—of finding desirable positions. In these tasks and quests the want ads are the natural service givers.
They introduce people who have business to transact with each other. Every hour of every day such people, who might never meet otherwise, are brought together, with mutual profit!

Truly, this IS a want ad town! Are YOU a want advertiser?

The combined stores of Peterborough can easily outstrip any two city departmental stores in the stocks carried, the prices offered, and the quality of goods sold.

Investigation will prove this point beyond dispute.

When you have ALL the big store stocks here to choose from you have more variety than any city departmental can give you in any one line.

By trading here you have the opportunity of inspecting the goods and comparing values on the spot.

You save the time, trouble, postage, express, and disappointment.

You have immense stocks of new goods to choose from.

You have the reputation of business men who are here all the time to back up the quality of what you buy.

You are not trading sight unseen. You see the goods you buy, and buy the goods you see.

It Will Pay You to Trade in Peterboro

Just make that comparison once or twice and convince yourself. In the meantime, read the advertisements in this issue; there are some great bargains offered. See the goods, get the prices, examine the stocks, and the rest may easily be left to your good judgment.

WEDDING BELLS

MANN-SIMMONS.

Yonkers, N.Y. Daily News: An exceptionally pretty house wedding took place last evening when Miss Mary Simmons, the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen W. Simmons, and Dr. John Burritt Mann, were married at the home of the bride's parents, 183 Robert avenue. There ceremony occurred at eight o'clock and was performed by the Rev. W. Ewart Mountney, pastor of the Moravian Baptist church.

Miss Christenah Simmons, the bride's young sister, was her maid-of-honor and only attendant. Lieut. Allan Mann of the Prince of Wales Dragoons of Canada was his brother's best man. There were no ushers.

The bride was given away in marriage by her father with whom she entered the drawing room, where the marriage was celebrated. Her gown was of cream satin charmeuse trimmed with cream tulle lace. She wore a long tulle veil and carried white roses. Miss Christenah Simmons wore a blue charmeuse gown.

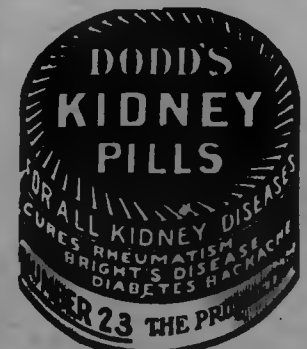

Immediately following the ceremony an informal reception was held. A collation was served. The house was very attractively decorated. The aunt of the bride, Mrs. Folwell, of Washington, D.C., played the wedding march and the music.

Some of the guests present were Father Gilbert Simmons, an uncle of the bride, Dr. and Mrs. Sidney A. Beckwith, the bride's sister, Prof. John Simmons, a brother of the bride, and Mrs. John Simmons, Professor and Mrs. Bull and family. Mrs. Halpin, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Love, Miss Love, Miss Trube, Miss Pizer and Miss Andrew.

Dr. Mann is a resident of Peterborough, Ont., Canada, and after a short honeymoon he and his bride will make their home there. Mrs. Mann is a graduate of the Teachers' College, Columbia University. A number of her classmates attended her wedding. Her engagement to Dr. Mann was announced last season. Some very delightful entertainments have been given for Dr. and Mrs. Mann. Among them was a very large reception given Tuesday evening by Dr. and Mrs. Beckwith.

CAEMONG RESERVE

October will soon be at an end and we have no school teacher yet; it is a shame the way we are treated here. We haven't had a good schooling since the New England Company (of London, England), gave up this place—the company I speak of used to send first class teachers, but since then any one at all will do for the Caemong school. If we make any complaint, we are told that we are not in with the Ontario School Act, so that we will have to be satisfied with the one sent to us, etc., etc. From the Toronto Daily News: "A speech of A. G. Smith, chief of the Six Nation Indians, near Brantford, in which he said if Canada does its duty I think it should make as equal to the foreigners who are enfranchised after being here for a short time, and while we, the aborigines, are denied the rights."

The Old Man of the Mountain.

The title "Old Man of the Mountain" was first applied to Hassan Ben Salbah, chief of a Mohammedan sect who founded a formidable dynasty in Syria, A. D. 1080. Banished from his country, he took up his abode on Mount Lebanon, gathered a band of followers and soon became the terror of the Jews, Christians and Turks. They all obeyed his orders implicitly in the belief that they would receive choice rewards in the joys of paradise. These assassins, as his followers were called among themselves, rode roughshod over the country for about 200 years. Whenever their chief, the Old Man of the Mountain, thought himself injured he sent a band of these men secretly to murder the offender, and it was from this that our word assassin originally took its meaning.

How to See the Wind.

Choose for the trial a windy day, when the air is free from rain or snow. Take a bright, clean hand saw or any other polished metal object about two feet in length and having a straight edge. Hold the saw or metallic surface at right angles to the direction of the wind. Incline it about 35 or 40 degrees to the horizon and with the back up, so that the moving air, in striking the surface, will glance upward and flow over the edge of the metal, as water flows over a dam. Sight carefully along the edge of the metal at a sharply defined object and you will see the wind or air waves pouring over the edge in graceful curves.

Shellac in Chinese Works of Art.

By softening shellac with heat it may be drawn out and twisted into almost white sticks and of a fine silky lustre. Extreme beauty is given to Chinese works of art by the use of shellac. Some of them are very ancient and of great value. They are chiefly showchow boxes, tea basins or metal. They are covered with a coat of shellac, colored with vermilion, and while the layer of shellac is soft and pliable it is molded and shaped into beautiful patterns. Some of these works thus ornamented are so rare and beautiful that even in China they cost fabulous sums.

A Plant of the Snow.

The soldanelias of the high Alpine meadows of Switzerland bore their way up through the coating of ice and snow by means of the heat generated by the growing stem. Quite commonly, if the layer of snow is very thick, the flower will open without ever reaching the surface at all. The blossom is in no way affected by its strange surroundings, though it grows by the growing stem, which gives out heat.

JURIES VERDICT, GUILTY

a little and watched him and then went on north to the commons, and finding my cattle there I turned round and came back."

"When I got to my own clearing I could see a person coming towards me on the road. I stopped off on a little track alongside a balsam tree. I stood there for a few seconds and this man Porter went past me. At last he got past sixty or seventy feet I spoke to him. I said, 'Is that you wanted to know who it was. My Levi' I spoke to him because I gun was at that time pointed into the woods as I heard a noise in that direction."

Porter Turned and Fired.

"He turned and fired, the ball going right through the branch of the balsam tree. I fired at him. He came back towards me and was kind of in front of me when I fired the second shot. I have no recollection of firing the third shot. I must have done it though. I was nervous or excited or whatever you call it. I shot him because I was afraid he would shoot me."

After a number of witnesses were heard and questioned, Mr. T. O. Robinette made his address to the jury, making a strong plea for the life of the accused man.

The address of Mr. E. Meredith, K.C., was a masterpiece of eloquence and his powerful voice was heard all over the court room.

Justice Clute then addressed the jury, after which they retired. Returning at 7.30 p.m. with a verdict of Guilty. The sentence was then passed on the prisoner.

Fighting Joe Says—

"I AM in a particularly advantageous position to say something about the future and the past of Vancouver. I am firmly convinced that no other city in the Dominion has such bright prospects ahead of it. It is the terminal of the great pioneer railroad, the C. P. R., and two other transcontinental lines will be knocking at the gate of the city. By its natural resources alone and by its admirable location as a great Pacific seaport it has developed from a small town into a mighty city, and those who have already invested their money in Vancouver city property will find in days to come that they could not have made a finer investment. The opening of the Panama Canal will mean to Vancouver more than it will to any other city on the Pacific Slope. The produce of the western portion of the prairies will be shipped through Vancouver's doors within a couple of years, and will make Vancouver the pivotal point for the distribution of the cargo of the world. I can honestly say that I have unbounded faith in Vancouver. I have invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in this city, and the fact that I have found Vancouver the best investment that I have ever made is proof in itself of the gigantic development that Vancouver has made since I first came to the city."

"Fighting Joe" can say this without fear of any contradiction, for we also know that the estate of Joseph Martin was purchased some years ago at, comparatively speaking, a small sum. Today it is worth a small fortune. Tomorrow it will be worth more, so Mr. Joseph Martin knows whereof he speaks.

Inside Vancouver City Property

is becoming very scarce. The value of property in Vancouver must necessarily increase more rapidly in value than any other city in this Dominion. The reason for this is that there is only a fixed amount of land in Vancouver. The city cannot grow either north, west or south, and must extend its development eastward.

Exactly one mile and a quarter from the C. N. R. passenger terminals is located Joseph Martin's estate. This property is well within the city limits of Vancouver. The time is not far distant when this property will be considered by all as the residential section of East Vancouver. A map of Vancouver today shows the western portion of this property surrounded with business houses and residences. On the north, south and east of this estate have been erected thousands of houses, completely corralling the Martin Estate in the centre.

This property is offered to the public for the first time in the East. The reason why we are placing this opportunity before you is because we have a large clientele in different parts of Eastern Canada, so by doing this we are giving every one an equal opportunity to make money out of Vancouver City property.

The price of these lots ranges from $250 up. This price will not remain long, for at the rate of Vancouver's development we fully anticipate that within at least two years the property will have doubled in value. The terms on which this property may be purchased are one-fifth cash. The balance of payments may extend over a period of seven years. Have you written for your folder yet? We are saving one for you. Drop us a postal today and ask for it.

Athens, Oct. 21.—A message from King George was read in the Chamber of Deputies. It was addressed: "To my People," and declared that the King's moral obligation toward the Fatherland and his beloved brethren made it incumbent upon the State to have recourse to arms with the object of ending the suffering of Christians at the hands of Turkey for so many centuries and obtaining for them the free exercise of their religion and a guarantee of human rights.

Premature Burial.
M. Tholnot, professor of forensic medicine in the Paris Academy of Medicine, has just been lecturing on premature burial, an accident the fear of which is perhaps not so prevalent as it was in the days of Edgar Allan Poe. He gave an interesting description of the many inventions devised for the avoidance of this, including the insertion of a breathing tube in the mouth of the corpse, which is brought through the lid of the coffin and projects from the grave. But he declared that no precaution was so satisfactory as that of delaying the burial until the signs of putrefaction are apparent. The provisions of the code Napoleon, which ordain that no burial shall take place until twenty-four hours after death and inspection by the medical authority of the district, are, he said, entirely adequate on this point, and if they are carried out to the full, no one need have any fear of being buried alive.—London Athenaeum.

Some of the farmers in Stanhope township, Haliburton County, report having had sheep killed by wolves. Bohannon Independent asks why does not the Government raise the bounty on wolves? Some years ago the Government bounty on wolf skin was $15 and the person who killed the wolf was allowed to keep the hide, which is worth about $3, making a wolf skin worth altogether $20. Now the trapper gets $15 and has to pay 50 cents costs of making affidavit that he killed the wolf and the Government requires the hide to be sent to Toronto and as it is nearly always lost in transit, the trapper gets nothing for it.

The Famous Mamelukes.

The Mamelukes were a body of soldiers who ruled Egypt for several hundred years. Their name is derived from an Arab word which means slave, and they were originally captives from Caucasian countries. In the middle of the thirteenth century they were introduced into Egypt as the Sultan's bodyguard, but upon the accession of Turan Shah, whom they hated, they overthrew him and elected one of themselves in his place. For nearly 300 years they held the power thus usurped, and even when compelled to resign it they had much influence in Egypt. In 1811 nearly all the Mamelukes were massacred by Mohammed Ali, and those who then escaped to Nubia were destroyed in 1820.

No Influence With Him.
During a municipal election in a town in the west of Scotland a young lady who was canvassing on behalf of one of the candidates called at a house, the door of which was opened by the goodwife. "I have called to solicit your vote on behalf of Mr. —," said the young lady.

"But it's not me that's got the vote it's me man," replied the woman. "Yes," said the young lady, "but thought you might perhaps use your influence with him."

"Me influence him?" said the good wife. "I hie not influence w' him. Only this morning I awoke and him I wash the floor afore he went out, and he wadna dae it."

Decapitating Words.
A writer in The London Chronicle says: "Our language is full of decapitating words, as in 'bus,' 'phone' and 'wax,' is not at all a modern failing. Take the common words 'spend' and 'sport.' Our very early ancestors had the verb 'spendian,' and yet 'spend' is really a dignified abbreviation of the Latin 'dispendere,' to pay out. 'Sport' is another very old English word, yet it is really 'disport'—disport, to carry apart, which acquired the metaphorical sense of pleasure or amusement precisely as 'divert' and 'transport.'"

Browning's Queer Pets.
Robert Browning adopted queer pets. His pet owl was well known to his visitors, as were his pet geese, which followed him about like dogs and upon which, "having suffered much from the cackle or reviewers," he bestowed the names of "Edinburgh" and "Quarterly." As a boy he had a monkey and an eagle in the garden at Camberwell and later in his life his pockets were often full of money "portable creatures" to which he had taken a fancy—frogs, lizards and even snakes.

Loans For Workmen.
In Sydney, South Australia, a sum of $200,000 is to be provided annually by Parliament for the use of those who desire loans to enable them to build a dwelling house or enlarge one already in their possession or to discharge mortgages on their homes. The law requires that those who benefit by this fund shall earn four-fifths of their income by "actual personal exertion" and that they shall not have an income of more than $1,500 a year.

Beaumont and Fletcher.
The first instance of collaboration in English literature was that of the plays written by Beaumont and Fletcher.

In 1811 nearly all the Mamelukes were massacred by Mohammed Ali, and those who then escaped to Nubia were destroyed in 1820.

No Influence With Him.
During a municipal election in a town in the west of Scotland a young lady who was canvassing on behalf of one of the candidates called at a house, the door of which was opened by the goodwife. "I have called to solicit your vote on behalf of Mr. —," said the young lady.

"But it's not me that's got the vote it's me man," replied the woman. "Yes," said the young lady, "but thought you might perhaps use your influence with him."

"Me influence him?" said the good wife. "I hie not influence w' him. Only this morning I awoke and him I wash the floor afore he went out, and he wadna dae it."

Decapitating Words.
A writer in The London Chronicle says: "Our language is full of decapitating words, as in 'bus,' 'phone' and 'wax,' is not at all a modern failing. Take the common words 'spend' and 'sport.' Our very early ancestors had the verb 'spendian,' and yet 'spend' is really a dignified abbreviation of the Latin 'dispendere,' to pay out. 'Sport' is another very old English word, yet it is really 'disport'—disport, to carry apart, which acquired the metaphorical sense of pleasure or amusement precisely as 'divert' and 'transport.'"

Browning's Queer Pets.
Robert Browning adopted queer pets. His pet owl was well known to his visitors, as were his pet geese, which followed him about like dogs and upon which, "having suffered much from the cackle or reviewers," he bestowed the names of "Edinburgh" and "Quarterly." As a boy he had a monkey and an eagle in the garden at Camberwell and later in his life his pockets were often full of money "portable creatures" to which he had taken a fancy—frogs, lizards and even snakes.

Loans For Workmen.
In Sydney, South Australia, a sum of $200,000 is to be provided annually by Parliament for the use of those who desire loans to enable them to build a dwelling house or enlarge one already in their possession or to discharge mortgages on their homes. The law requires that those who benefit by this fund shall earn four-fifths of their income by "actual personal exertion" and that they shall not have an income of more than $1,500 a year.

TRICK MIND READING

HOW MARVELLOUS STAGE PERFORMANCES ARE WORKED.

So-called "Thought Transmission" on Our Stage is Operated by a Series of Clever Devices Perfected After Years of Practice and Which Rarely Fail to Deceit the Gossaming Public.—A General Take-In.

"What is this?" "That is a walking stick." "What is this?" "That is a handkerchief." "And what is this?" "A cigarette case." "And this?" "That is a program."

No doubt most persons have been at a performance when an act of this kind has been performed. A lady is seated in a chair in the centre of the stage, with a handkerchief tied round her head. Perfectly "blinded," she describes various articles collected from the audience, states the numbers written upon a blackboard by a member of the audience, adds the numbers up, and gives the total, before the gentleman himself can add the first row of figures. She may also tell the color of a handkerchief, and name any kind of tea, which has been chosen.

I have performed the second-act act with a lady assistant hundreds of times, and my methods have never been solved. I always found that I could pull the public with the simplest trick.

When I was performing the second-act act, my lady assistant would name a dozen articles, while she was blinded. Of course, we had arranged before the show to pick a walking-stick first, a handkerchief second, a cigarette-case third, and so on, until we had picked a dozen, and we took pains to select the most common articles, which we could always find in an audience. This was our opening trick.

Another successful trick was known as "mental telepathy."

I would call for a member of the audience to come up beside me on the stage. I would then explain to the audience that I should come down among them and transmit my thoughts to the lady on the stage, thus enabling her to name any number of words the gentleman puts on the blackboard. The lady would be blinded, and I undertook not to utter a word or sound, or make any sign whatever that would assist her.

The gentleman would then come on the board, and she would call them out as fast as he could put them down, while sometimes she would even tell him which number he had crossed out.

It was really quite easy for the lady to perform these mysteries. The chair she sat upon was made with a hollow leg, fitted to a table, which led to the centre of the chair-back, where the lady could rest her head. A speaking-tube, which was connected to the bottom of the hollow leg, ran under the stage floor to the wings, where an assistant was concealed, so as to be invisible to the audience or the person on the stage. At the same time he could see all that was going on. When the gentleman put the figures on the board, the assistant would call them softly to the lady through the speaking-tube.

Of course, the chair was fastened down to the stage, otherwise, if it were moved, it would disconnect the speaking-tube, and thus spoil the whole show.

An interesting trick I used to perform I called "thought transmission." Three pieces of card were handed round to those members of the audience, also three envelopes, each recipient being requested to write three figures on his card. He then put it in the envelope, to prevent me seeing what the numbers were. After this was done, the cards, still in their envelopes, were handed to a fourth gentleman.

Then I stepped on the stage again, and instructed the gentleman to place the numbers on the cards together to form a sum, and add it up. When this was done, I asked the gentleman to fix a steady gaze at the lady's forehead for a few seconds, and think of the total of the sum. Then "thought transmission" would take place, and the lady would read the thoughts that were working in his mind.

After a reasonable period my assistant called out "1,375." I then asked the gentleman if this was the correct total to his sum, and, to the astonishment of all, it was found to be correct.

This trick was really absurdly simple. I had concealed under my waistcoat three envelopes each containing a card upon which were written the numbers 722, 235, and 358 respectively, in different handwritings. After I had handed the plain cards round, and the figures were written upon them, and the cards placed in the envelopes, I gathered them up, and in the act of stepping on the stage I changed them for the three I had concealed under my waistcoat.

It was the latter I then handed to the fourth gentleman to add up the sum. Of course, he thought these had been written by the other members of the audience, as they were in different handwritings; while the other three gentlemen, each not knowing what number the others had put on the cards, thought the total was correct. They did not guess I had changed the cards for a sum of my own; but that, of course, was why the answer to the sum was correct.
